JURY TAMPERING CHARGE FOLLOWS DRUKMAN VERDICT

Three Convicted of Plot to Obstruct Justice in New York: Deadlock in Case of Two.

TRIAL OUTGROWTH OF GARAGE KILLING

Special Prosecutor Alleges Slip of Paper Was Slipped Into Pocket of One of Jurors.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 27.—Failure of a Supreme Court jury to reach a complete verdict after convicting three of five men accused of conspiring to obstruct justice in the Samuel Drukman murder case brought fresh charges of jury tampering today.

Special Prosecutor Hiram C. Todd, who had accused the five men of trying to interfere with the action of a grand jury, declared he was investigating what he called an attempt "improperly to influence a trial juror" in the present case.

His statement came when the jury was discharged after reporting it was unable to agree on the guilt or innocence of William W. Kleinman, Assistant District Attorney of Brooklyn, and Detective F. L. Dardis, in the conspiracy case.

A few hours earlier the jurors had returned a partial verdict convicting three co-defendants: James J. Kleinman, stepfather of William Kleinman; Henry C. Singer, former chief Assistant United States Attorney in Brooklyn, and Jacob Silverman, an electric goods dealer.

Gov. Lehman Pressed Case.

Todd, appointed by Gov. Herbert H. Lehman to sift charges growing out of the prosecution of the killers of Drukman, an obscure garage employe, charged that a slip of paper had been slipped into the pocket of one of the jurors. The paper, he said, was a note "containing an opinion as to the guilt or innocence of the defendants."

Pending a further investigation, he withheld decision as to whether he would move for a re-trial of William Kleinman and Dardis.

Those convicted face a possible maximum sentence of one year imprisonment, plus a $500 fine, each.

Dismissal of the jurors was ordered by Justice Erskine C. Rogers 27 hours after he had turned the case over to them. The jury had sent two notes to the Court saying it was "exhausted and unable to reach an unanimous verdict," and that it was deadlocked at 10 to 2.

Two Others Are Fugitives.

Two other defendants, charged with having been the "pay-off men," are fugitives. They are Max Silverman and Ike Luckman.

Drukman's beaten and strangled body was found stuffed in the rumble seat of a coup, March 3, 1935, in the garage where he worked.

After three investigations, precipitating charges and counter charges of bribery and collusion to "throw the case," three men were indicted, convicted, and sentenced to prison for the actual murder.

Three in Prison for Killing.

The conspiracy indictments under which the present defendants were tried, resulted from charges that efforts had been made to prevent the convictions of Meyer and Harry Luckman, uncle and nephew who employed Drukman, and Fred Hull. Hull and the Luckmans are serving terms of 20 years to life for the killing.

The April grand jury in 1935, meeting a month after Drukman was killed, declined to indict Hull and the Luckmans.

Later—after Special Prosecutor Hiram C. Todd superseded District Attorney William F. X. Geoghan in the case—they were convicted of second-degree murder and the conspiracy trial followed on allegations that several thousand dollars was raised to shield the Luckmans and Hull.

GLIDER PILOT KILLED IN CRASH

Craft Dives to Earth at Angola, Ind., When Tow Rope Is Cut.

By the Associated Press.

ANGOLA, Ind., June 27.—Walter Seibold, 24 years old, of White Plains, N. Y., a student at Tri-State College here, was fatally hurt today when a glider he was piloting fell 50 feet.

Witnesses said the glider went into a dive after it was cut loose from the tow rope of an automobile. Seibold's skull was fractured.

BRITISH SPINSTERS PARADE IN DEMAND FOR PENSIONS AT 55

2000 Say War Kept Them Single and Now Jobs Go to Younger Women.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, June 27.—Two thousand English women who say the war robbed them on a chance to marry paraded through the streets of London today, demanding pensions for unmarried workers at the age of 55.

They were delegates representing 35,000 members of the National Spinsters' Pensions Association.

The spinsters, most of whom are supporting themselves because, they contend, a million men of their generation lie dead in France, held a rally in Hyde Park after meeting in Downtown London.

Leaders said the spinsters were being crowded out of jobs by younger women and could not hope to hang on to employment until they were 65, when they would be entitled to the benefits of health insurance.

Pensions 10 years earlier, they declared, would cost only £5,000,000 ($25,000,000) a year.

Great Britain has about 2,000,000 more adult females than there are males.

PAPA DIONNE CRAWLS ALONG DITCH TO SEE QUINTUPLETS

Views Youngsters Through Window Despite Policemen, Wire Fence and Watch Dogs.

By the Associated Press.

CALLANDER, Ont., June 27.—Lean Oliva Dionne wriggled through a drainpipe ditch today to view his quintuplet daughters and tell their nurses what he thought about a measles quarantine.

The five older Dionne children, who live just down the road from the "Quinterie," have had the measles. Consequently Oliva and his wife, who are expecting another baby, have not been permitted to see the little girls. But Oliva was not daunted by three Ontario policement, a steel wire fence and watch dogs. He found the excavation for a drainpipe, crawled through it today and stood critically surveying the 25-month-old quintuplets through a nursery window.

The astonished policemen plugged the hole after Papa Dionne had disappeared through it on the return trip and spoken his mind in sarcastic French.

Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe, the quintuplets' doctor, said the quarantine might be lifted by tomorrow to permit the parents to visit their famous children.

THREE RUSSIANS GET DEATH FOR STEALING STATE FUNDS

Convicted of Embezzling Money for Rest Homes and Tubercular Children.

By the Associated Press.

KIEV, U. S. S. R., June 27.—Three former officials of the Ukranian Council of Labor Unions were sentenced to death by the Supreme Court of the U. S. S. R. today for embezzling state funds intended to maintain rest homes and care for tubercular children.

They were R. Kravchenko, former manager of the Council's Bureau of Social Insurance; K. Dubrovsky, former head of the financial section, and B. Sinelnikoff, former manager of the section for rest homes and sanatoriums.

A number of others received prison sentences.

CHAMBER VOTES PAID VACATIONS FOR BELGIANS

Freedom for Trade Unions, 40-Hour Week for Workers on Dangerous or Unhealthy Jobs.

GUARANTEE OF 6-DAY WEEK FOR MANY

This Applies to Those Having Same Employer a Year — Vote on Union Liberty, 183 to 0.

By the Associated Press.

BRUSSELS, June 27.—The Chamber of Deputies, after urgent debate tonight adopted bills instituting paid vacations for all workers in all industries, freedom for trade unions, and a 40-hour week for workers in dangerous and unhealthy occupations.

Workers having the same employer for at least a year will be guaranteed a six-day week.

The vote on the bill guaranteeing liberty for trade unions was 183 to nothing, the opponents of the measure abstaining from the balloting.

(The French Parliament recently passed similar legislation, including paid vacations and provision for collective bargaining.)

Workers Take Over Munitions Plant When Owners Can't Pay Tax.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, June 27.—Workers, with the consent of the owners, took over a munitions factory near Amiens today. The employes will operate the plant which the proprietors were forced to close because of their inability to pay taxes.

Newspapers said the Government had promised to advance the workers money to enable them to get their new enterprise under way.

ITALY PUTS $100,000,000 MORE INTO COLONIZATION

Official Gazetete Announces Extraordinary Appropriations for 1936-37.

By the Associated Press.

ROME, June 27.—Premier Mussolini poured another $100,000,000 into Italy's colonial enterprises today.

A decree in the official gazette announced the following extraordinary appropriations effective July 1 for 1936-37: Minister of Colonies, for unspecified expenses, 400,000,000 lire; Ministry of Interior for the families of soldiers, 50,000,000 lire; Ministry of War, for military administration of the colonies, 600,000,000 lire; Navy Ministry for expenses incurred in connection with the "colonial situation," 200,000,000 lire; for the Air Ministry for colonial air administration, 50,000,000 lire.

The total, 1,300,000,000 lire, is more than $100,000,000 at the present rate of exchange.

ROOSEVELT TO SPEND TODAY WITH MOTHER AT HYDE PARK

Regular Family Reunion Aboard Presidential Special as It Leaves Philadelphia.

By the Associated Press.

ABOARD ROOSEVELT TRAIN, PHILADELPHIA, June 27.—President Roosevelt headed toward the family home at Hyde Park, N. Y., tonight after accepting renomination in a public ceremony at Franklin Field. He planned to spend tomorrow and Monday with his mother, Mrs. James D. Roosevelt, at Hyde Park.

It was a regular family reunion on board the special. In addition to his mother and wife there were John, a son, Mr. and Mrs. James Roosevelt and Mr. and Mrs. John Boettiger. Gov. and Mrs. Herbert H. Lehman of New York, also accompanied him. The Governor and his wife will have breakfast with the Roosevelts at Hyde Park tomorrow. Then motor to their summer home at White Plains.

SHIPS COLLIDE IN CHANNEL

Norwegian Craft Seriously Damaged Off Southampton.

By the Associated Press.

SOUTHAMPTON, England June 27.—The German steamer Holstein and the Danish Freya were reported to have collided in the English Channel today with serious damages to the Freya.

The Alaunia, Cunard-White Star liner, reported the collision on arrival. Her offices said the crew of the Freya was removed by a lifeboat from Selsey Bill, 30 miles southeast of Southampton, and by other ships. The crash occurred in a fog.

Sidelights On Democratic Convention

By PAUL Y. ANDERSON,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

PHILADELPHIA, June 27.

WELL, Roosevelt and Garner made the grade. The only obstacle which lay between them and renominataion was surmounted here tonight. The obstacle was time.

Under Jim Farley's schedule, five days had to be killed. Never did time die a more lingering and painful death. They slew it with the cruelest weapon ever devised for such slaughter—speeches. Five afternoons and evenings of speeches—seventy-one seconding speeches — just thing of it! The nomination of the President was seconded by a representative of each of the 48 states, and the Canal Zone, Hawaii, Alaska, Puerto Rico, District of Columbia, the Philippine Islands and the Virgin Islands. Garner's nomination was seconded 16 times.

Sometime Thursday afternoon the lady from Arkansas, Senator Caraway, remarked to Jimmy Roosevelt: "I think your father will get it, if we can find some way to end this filibuster."

The Roosevelt Touch, Emotional and Casual.

THE President ended it here tonight in this historic and handsome stadium (Franklin Field) with a last final speech, which was pleasantly emotional in tone, but almost casual in substance. His allusion to "the robes of legal sanction" was obscure. Apparently he has decided it would be sounder tactics for party orators to pipe down for a while on the subjects of the Constitution and the Surpeme Court. They will be revived between now and November.

Show Must Go On; Jim Farley Says So.

UP TO the last moment there was doubt as to whether the ceremonies would be held in Franklin Field. It started raining in the middle of the afternoon and rained hard in spells, but at 6:30 word came from on high. Farley announced that the show would go on if it rained pitchforks. It has been raining gravy for the last four years and Jim probably felt they could endure a change of weather for one evening in honor of the head man.

The stadium was filled even at that early hour. A huge, double-decked affair inclosing the field on three sides, it seats 110,000 people.

Farley's men took no chances on not having a full house, 200,000 tickets were issued. People with perfectly good-looking tickets stood out in the streets, arguing with the cops for hours. How the cops knew which ones to keep out is their secret.

About every five minutes the loudspeakers would bellow that "Charles Ross is wanted on the platform." The missing Charley Ross has been missing 60 years, but they still hoped he would show up on the platform here.

Almost everyone else had, including One-Eyed Connolly and the Governor of South Dakota.

Music; Band Leader Looks Just Like Hitler.

DURING the first two hours entertainment was furnished by a banjo player, name of Peabody; The Chickasaw Indian Princess, who again sang "By the Waters of the Minnetonka" (thus giving rise to the suspicion it's the only number she knows); and by a common ordinary band, with a leader who looked exactly like Hitler. About 8:30, however, the ordinary band was given the bum's rush and the one and only Philadelphia Symphony entered with Lily Pons. The Democrats are up in the money now, and nothing could be too good for the head man's big night.

One regrettable case of desertion was reported. Senator Barkley, who had been detailed to convey to Vice-President Garner the astounding news that he had been renominated, had taken ship for Europe. Senator Pat Harrison gallantly volunteered to perform the task, thus saving Garner from the shame and mortification of being compelled to buy a Sunday paper to find out what happened.

Robinson Grows Testy and the Mike Tells All.

THE strain had begun to tell on the delegates earlier in the day, but it had told even more on their presiding officers. Senator Robinson, who still forgets that the microphone tells all, banged his gavel impatiently a dozen times during the afternoon session, and then the loud speakers recorded this savage growl:

"The damn fools haven't even got sense enough to sit down."

The fact was that the loud speakers had not been properly distributed through the hall, and although the audition was excellent for those of us up in front, when you went a few rows back, the speeches became unintelligible. Among 1117

100,000 CHEER ROOSEVELT SPEECH OF ACCEPTANCE AT OUTDOOR CEREMONY

"End Dynasty of New Economic Royalty"

Text of President Roosevelt's Acceptance

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, June 27.

FOLLOWING is the text of President Roosevelt's speech of acceptance of the Democratic Presidential nomination:

Senator Robinson, members of the Democratic convention, my friends:

We meet at a time of great moment to the future of the nation. It is an occasion to be dedicated to the simple and sincere expression of an attitude toward problems, the determination of which will profoundly affect America.

I come not only as the leader of a party—not only as a candidate for high office, but as one upon whom many critical hours have imposed and still impose a grave responsibility.

For the sympathy, help, and confidence with which Americans have sustained me in my task, I am grateful. For their loyalty I salute the members of our great party, in and out of official life in every part of the Union. I salute those of other parties, especially those in the Congress, who on so many occasions put partisanship aside. I thank the Governors of the several states, their legislatures, their state and local officials who participated unselfishly and regardless of party in our efforts to achieve recovery and destroy abuses. Above all, I thank the millions of Americans who have borne disaster bravely and have dared to smile through the storm.

America will not forget these recent years—will not forget that the rescue was not a mere party task—it was the concern of all of us. In our strength we rose together, rallied our energies together, applied the old rules of common sense, and together survived.

In those days we feared fear. That was why we fought fear. And today, my friends, we have won against the most dangerous of our foes—we have conquered fear.

Still All Is Not Well.

But, I can not, with candor, tell you that all is well with the world. Clouds of suspicion, tides of ill-will and intolerance gather darkly in many places. In our own land, we enjoy indeed a fullness of life greater than that of most nations. But the rush of modern civilization itself has raised for us new difficulties, new problems which must be solved, if we are to preserve to the United States the political and economic freedom for which Washington and Jefferson planned and fought.

Philadelphia is a good city in which to write American history. This is fitting ground on which to re-affirm the faith of our fathers; to pledge ourselves, to restore to the people a wider freedom—to give to 1936 as the founders gave to 1776—an American way of life.

The very word freedom, in itself and of necessity, suggests freedom from some restraining power. In 1776 we sought freedom from the tyranny of a political autocracy—from the eighteenth century royalists, who held special privileges from the crown. It was to perpetuate their privilege that they governed without the consent of the governed; that they denied the right of free assembly and free speech; that they restricted the worship of God; that they put the average man's property and the average man's life in pawn to the mercenaries of dynastic power—that they regimented the people.

And so it was to win freedom from the tyranny of political autocracy that the American revolution was fought. That victory gave the business of governing into the hands of the average man, who won the right with his neighbors to make and order his own destiny through his own government. Political tyranny was wiped out at Philadelphia on July 4, 1776.

New Struggle for Freedom.

Since that struggle, however, man's inventive genius released new forces in our land which reordered the lives of our people. The age of machinery, or railroads, of steam and electricity; the telegraph and the radio; mass production, mass distribution—all of these combined to bring forward a new civilization and with it a new problem for those who would remain free.

For out of this modern civilization economic royalists carved new dynasties. New kingdoms were built upon concentration of control over material things. Through new uses of corporations, banks and securities, new machinery of industry and agriculture, of labor and capital—all undreamed of by the fathers—the whole structure of modern life was impressed into this royal service.

There was no place among this royalty for our many thousands of small business men and merchants who sought to make a worthy use of the American system of initiative and profit. They were no more free than the worker or the farmer. Even honest and progressive-minded men of wealth, aware of their obligation to their generation, could never know just where they fitted into this dynastic scheme of things.

It was natural and perhaps human that the privileged princes of these new economic dynasties, thirsting for power, reached out for control over Government itself. They created a new despotism and wrapped it in the robes of legal sanction. In its service new mercenaries sought to regiment the people, their labor and their properties. And as a result the average man once more confronts the problem that faced the Minute Man.

Hours, Wages and Monopoly.

The hours men and women worked, the wages they received, the conditions of their labor—these had passed beyond the control of the people, and were imposed by this new industrial dictatorship. The savings of the average family, the capital of the small business man, the investments set aside for old age—other people's money—these were tools which the new economic royalty used to dig itself in.

Those who tilled the soil no longer reaped the rewards which were their right. The small measure of their gains was decreed by men in distant cities.

Throughout the nation, opportunity was limited by monopoly. Individual initiative was crushed in the cogs of a great machine. The field open for free business was more and more restricted. Private enterprise became too private. It became privileged enterprise, not free enterprise.

An old English judge once said: "Necessitous men are not free men." Liberty requires opportunity to make a living—a living decent according to the standard of the time, a living which gives man not only enough to live by, but something to live for.

For too many of us the political equality we once had won was meaningless in the face of economic inequality. A small group had concentrated into their own hands an almost complete control over other people's property, other people's money, other people's labor—other people's lives. For too many of us life was no longer free; liberty no longer real; men could no longer follow the pursuit of happiness.

Against economic tyranny such as this, the citizen could only appeal to the organized power of government. The collapse of 1929 showed up the despotism for what it was. The election of 1932 was the people's mandate to end it. Under that mandate it is being ended.

Economic Slavery.

The royalists of the economic order have conceded that political freedom was the business of the Government, but they have maintained that economic slavery was nobody's business. They granted that the Government could protect the citizen in his right to vote but they denied that the Government could do anything to protect the citizen in his right to work and live.

Today we stand committed to the proposition that freedom is no half and half affair. If the average citizen is guaranteed equal opportunity in the polling place, he must have equal opportunity in the market place.

The economic royalists complain that we seek to overthrow the institutions of America. What they really complain of is that we seek to take away their power. Our allegiance to American institutions requires the overthrow of this kind of power. In vain they seek to hide behind the Flag and the Constitution. In their blindness they forget what the Flag and the Constitution stand for. Now, as always, the Flag and the Constitution stand for democracy, not tyranny; for freedom, not subjection; and against a dictatorship by mob rule and the overprivileged alike.

The brave and clear platform adopted by this convention, to which I heartily subscribe, sets forth that government in a modern civilization has certain inescapable obligations to its citizens, among which are protection of the family and the home, the establishment of a democracy of opportunity, and aid to those overtaken by disaster.

But the resolute enemy within our gates is ever ready to beat down our words unless in greater courage we will fight for them.

The Fight Will Go On.

For more than three years we have fought for them. This convention in every word and deed has pledged that that fight will go on.

The defeats and victories of these years have given to us as a people a new understanding of our Government and of ourselves. Never since the early days of the New England town meeting have the affairs of Government been so widely discussed and so clearly appreciated. It has been brought home to us that the only effective guide for the safety of this most worldly of worlds is moral principle.

We do not see faith, hope and charity as unattainable ideals, but we use them as stout supports of a nation fighting the fight for freedom in a modern civilization.

Faith—in the soundness of democracy in the midst of dictatorships.

Hope—Renewed because we know so well the progress we have made.

Charity—In the true spirit of that grand old word. For charity literally translated from the original means love, the love that understands, that does not merely share the wealth of the giver, but in true sympathy and wisdom helps men to help themselves.

Personality in Government.

We seek not merely to make government a mechanical implement, but to give it the vibrant personal character that is the embodiment of human charity.

We are poor indeed if this nation cannot afford to lift from every recess of American life the dread fear of the unemployed that they are not needed in the world. We cannot afford to accumulate a deficit in the books of human fortitude.

In the place of the palace of privilege we seek to build a temple out of faith and hope and charity.

It is a sobering thing to be a servant of this great cause. We try in our daily work to remember that the cause belongs not to us but to the people. The standard is not in the hands of you and me alone. It is carried by America. We seek daily to profit from experience, to learn to do better as our task proceeds.

Governments can err—Presidents do make mistakes, but the immortal Dante tells us that Divine Justice weighs the sins of the cold-blooded and the sins of the warm-hearted in different scales.

Better the occasional faults of a government that lives in a spirit of charity than the consistent omissions of a government frozen in the ice of its own indifference.

Mysterious Cycle of Events.

There is a mysterious cycle in human events. To some generations much is given. Of others much is expected. This generation of Americans has a rendezvous with destiny.

In this world of ours in other lands there are some people who, in times past, have lived and fought for freedom, and seem to have grown too weary to carry on the fight. They have sold their heritage of freedom for the illusion of a living. They have yielded their democracy.

I believe in my heart that only our success can stir their ancient hope. They begin to know that here in America we are waging a great war. It is not alone a war against want and destitution and economic demoralization. It is a war for the survival of democracy. We are fighting to save a great and precious form of government for ourselves and for the world.

I accept the commission you have tendered me. I join with you. I am enlisted for the duration of the war.

STADIUM JAMMED FOR GRAND FINALE OF DEMOCRATS' 5-DAY CONVENTION

President 'Heartily Subscribes' to Platform and Declares New Deal Is Ending 'Economic Tyranny of the Few.'

TONE OF ADDRESS IS HUMANITARIAN

'Industrial Dictatorship' Has Put Hours and Wages Beyond People's Control, He Says—Pledges 'War for Democracy.'

By RAYMOND P. BRANDT
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

PHILADELPHIA, June 27.—Accepting the Democratic nomination for re-election before more than 100,000 persons crammed into Franklin Field, President Roosevelt pledged himself and his party tonight to the overthrow of the "economic tyranny of the few," which he said was being ended by the New Deal.

The open-air meeting tonight was the greatest political rally ever held in this country and was the climax of the five-day Democratic national convention in the Municipal Auditorium, at which President Roosevelt and Vice-President John Nance Garner were unanimously nominated to succeed themselves.

Virtually every seat in the huge stadium of the University of Pennsylvania was filled and tens of thousands stood or sat on the playing field.

Emotional and Humanitarian.

The President's speech was on a high emotional and humanitarian plane. It did not deal with details of the 1936 Democratic platform, to which the President said he "heartily" subscribed. It did not deal with the Supreme Court or the "if" constitutional amendment plank in the platform.

The President read his speech with all the dramatic emphasis of which he is capable, and the huge crowd listened with great respect.

He was given a rousing demonstration when he concluded his 30-minute address with an aggressive challenge against "want and destitution and economic demoralization."

"It is a war for the survival of democracy," he solemnly declared. "We are fighting to save a great and precious form of govenment for ourselves, for the world. I accept the commission you have tendered me. I join with you. I am enlisted for the duration of the war."

His concluding words were drowned out by a tremendous roar from the audience, which continued long after he had left the platform. Obviously pleased by the hearty reception, he gave the cheering crowd the famous Rooseveltian smile and waved his right hand with his characteristic enthusiasm.

He remained on the platform only eight minutes after he had finished his address. He left on the arm of his towering son, James. An hour later people were still milling around on the littered football and track field.

"Economic Royalists" of Today.

The address was designed to appeal to a Philadelphia audience. His major theme was an attack on economic tyranny and he developed this thought by comparison of conditions today with those of 1776.

The American Revolution, he said, was fought to end the tyranny of political autocracy, under which royalists had held special privileges from the crown. He developed this thought by declaring that modern conditions had given rise to "economic royalists who have carved out new dynasties" for themselves through the use of corporations,

HUGE CROWD SITS IN RAIN; WAITS HOURS FOR TALK

Stadium Virtually Filled by 7:30 P. M., Although President Does Not Speak Until 10.

STREETS JAMMED FOR BLOCKS AROUND

Elaborate Precautions Taken—Main Thoroughfare Lined With Police for Nearly Two Miles.

By MARQUIS W. CHILDS,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

PHILADELPHIA, June 27.—Just before 7 o'clock a light rain fell from heavily overcast skies. Within a few minutes it had increased to a downpour and a garden of umbrellas blossomed in the uncovered sections of Franklin Field.

The streets leading to the field were jammed in every direction for blocks with the crowd converging on the stadium.

An optimistic voice over the radio loudspeakers reported that Chairman James A. Farley would soon make an announcement whether the ceremony would be held in Convention Hall "if rain should make it necessary." This drew a laugh from the crowds in the exposed bleachers.

Never before in Philadelphia's history, it was said, have such elaborate police precautions been taken. The main thoroughfare leading from the center of the city to the field was literally lined with policemen for a distance of nearly two miles. In some blocks they were stationed two ranks deep, the rain glinting on the leather visors of their helmets.

25 With Sub-Machine Guns.

It was along this street that the President passed on his way to the hall. In the stadium at strategic points 25 picked men were stationed with sub-machine guns. Every entrance was heavily guarded and the credentials of those entitled on the field itself, in the areas reserved for delegates, distinguished visitors and the press, carefully scanned.

The crowd was a good-natured one, like a throng gathering for a football game in the face of a September drizzle. The seating capacity of the University of Pennsylvania stadium is given as 110,000 and the Democratic National Committee distributed nearly 200,000 tickets to insure a gathering that overflowed in the streets about the bowl to hear the president's address by radio loudspeakers.

Officials were extremely reluctant to transfer the acceptance ceremony to the nearby Convention Hall, which holds when packed to capacity with standees, about 14,000 persons. And finally a little after 7 the rain slackened, although there was still a drizzle and gray clouds hung low. The air was full of a steamy moisture.

Just in front of the stand on which the President spoke the movie camera men were stationed on a high scaffolding. A battery of nearly 20 cameras, flanked by huge Kleig lights, were trained on the speaker's platform, giving a Hollywood air to the scene.

Stadium Filled Early.

By 7:30 the rain had ceased and not only had the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra taken its place, but the radio announcer put on Eddie Peabody, "world's champion banjoist," for the benefit of the crowd.

The entire stadium, with the exception of the remote upper end section in which it was obviously impossible to see and probably, despite the loudspeakers, impossible to hear, was filled two and a half hours before the scheduled hour of the President's address.

Shortly after 8 o'clock, W. Forbes Morgan, secretary of the Democratic National Committee and a distant relative of President Roosevelt, appeared on the platform and made a final inspection of arrangements. With him were radio technicians and others in the corps of experts who had the task of seeing that the whole country heard the words of the President.

Again the grayish, darkling sky scattered rain on the crowd.

The Philadelphia orchestra under the direction of Charles O'Connell began to play shortly after 8:30. The threat of rain still hovered in the muggy air. As the dusk grew, several batteries of lights high up were snapped on.

Boss Next to Lily Pons.

The platform reserved for distinguished guests was filling up. John B. (Jack) Kelly, Democratic boss of Philadelphia, took a front row seat next to Lily Pons, opera star. Mrs. James Roosevelt, mother of the President, was escorted to a front row seat and was greeted by applause.

Just before 8:30 it was estimated that close to 100,000 persons were gathered. Even the far end upper tier was filling up and on the field and along both sides of the huge field there was hardly a vacant spot to be seen. Along the topmost upper row there were standees.

The radio announcer issued an appeal to the crowd in the name of Farley to refrain from all demonstrations for fear of causing serious injury in the dense-packed throng.

Towering over the speaker's platform and over the wall of the stadium was the university gymnasium. In every open window were two or three police. The dark-coated figures of policemen were to be seen along the upper tiers. The radio announcer, against heavy odds, pleaded with delegates to clear the aisles while the orchestra played "The Blue Danube."

The end section, nearly a block and a half from the platform, was then more than half filled. At a little before 9 the police estimated more than 100,000 persons were assembled. On the stand the President's mother held a reception, shaking hands with Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins, Senator Guffey of Pennsylvania and other notable.

Her Voice Silences Crowd.

The auburn-haired Miss Pons achieved the remarkable feat of silencing the great crowd as she sang with the orchestra. In the vast bowl scarcely 100 vacant seats could be seen. Secret Service men and police were lined about the crowded speaker's stand as the hour of the President's arrival drew near. Miss Pons' voice carried with astonishing clarity out of the packed mass of humanity.

At 9:30 the orchestra played "Pomp and Circumstance" with no sign that the official program was to begin. The announcement was made that the President's train had arrived at the Philadelphia station. The crowd cheered.

Radio broadcasters described for the crowd the arrival of the presidential party. Brilliant spotlights played over the jammed stadium and there was more cheering.

Tense Quiet Over Crowd.

Once again the radio announcer cautioned the crowd to remain seated on the arrival of the President, warning that this was probably the largest crowd ever assembled in this country. A tense quiet lay over the crowd in expectation of the presidential party.

GRAND JURY INQUIRY IN STRIKE SHOOTINGS AT PORTSMOUTH, O.

Bombings and Assaults Also to Be Investigated in Disorders at Steel Plant.

By the Associated Press.

PORTSMOUTH, O., June 27.—Judge B. F. Kimble ordered a special grand jury session Thursday to investigate the shootings, bombings and assaults which have occurred since a strike threw 5500 employes of the Wheeling Steel Co. out of work May 22.

A company guard, killed last Tuesday in a fight at the plant in which four others were wounded, was identified today as Simon Ginsburg, 38 years old, of Bayonne, N. J. He had been listed as George Meyer.

Sheriff Arthur Oakes enlisted 100 special deputies to "preserve law and order" in nearby New Boston, site of the steel plant.

The sheriff said one of the first things that would be done would be to investigate reports strikers had established rifle nests near the company property.

All appeared quiet in the vicinity of the plant, but a heavy tension pervaded the industrial area. Pickets surrounded the plant, but there was no large crowds.

SCIENTISTS TOIL IN PITS REVEALING PREHISTORIC CITY

Archaeologists Turn Up Evidence Bearing on Nebraska Men of 4000 Years Ago.

By the Associated Press.

LYNCH, Neb., June 27. — Nine University of Nebraska archaeologists toiled today in nearby pits to learn more details of men they asserted lived 4000 years ago in the State's largest prehistoric city. Dr. Earl H. Bell is leader of the expedition.

Corn, two types of beans, pottery, arrowheads, bone tools and weapons, flint chips, charcoals and bones of buffalo, deer and elk have been found in pits dug on farms.

The scientists assert early men of this city of 4000 years ago were an agricultural people of high culture who knew the value of irrigation. Dr. Bell described them as intelligent Indians and said they apparently lived in a semi-subterranean type home.

Convention Sidelights

delegates, I doubt whether 200 understood anything said from the platform. Consequently, they were restless and intractable.

Pons' Gentle Lark Has No Chance at All.

THE evening session was better behaved, but there was obvious anxiety over the possibility of a physical mishap, such as a stampede. Delegates were warned that any attempt to conduct a parade of standards "may result in loss of life."

Miss Pons sang "Lo, Hear the Gentle Lark," but the gentle lark didn't have a chance here. The conditions called for lustier forms of animal life. That was a night for the eagle to scream and the donkey to bray.

Biggest Crowd Ever at National Convention.

YES, the Democrats are up in the money, and Farley has a talent for theatricals. This was, by long odds, the largest crowd that ever attended a national convention. It was the only one, so far as I recall, ever held outdoors. There isn't a hall in the world that would accommodate 110,000 people.

A speaker was rather enthusiastic when he said that "this is the largest public gathering ever held in this country." Twice this number gathered on Art Hill for the St. Louis Pageant and Masque. Nevertheless, it was a big crowd.

The President's arrival at the depot, and his progress thence to the field, was reported in detail over the loudspeakers. He came on the platform attended, as usual, by Jimmy. He bent over to speak to his mother, the venerable Sarah Delano Roosevelt. He straightened up and faced the enormous blare of applause. He waved a hand.. He waved his panama hat. Then he gave the crowd the double handshake that prize fighters use when introduced from the ring.

"Soldier" Garner Does His Duty.

PAT HARRISON gave Garner the bad news that he had been renominated. The Vice-President seemed to pull a wry face over it. He said: "I am a soldier, and my duty is to follow where the commander leads. I accept the rules of war as laid down in the platform." He seemed to be saying that he did it only because it was his duty.

He told this correspondent two years ago he would never accept it again, but Jack, as he said in his speech, is 'a soldier"—a brass-collar Democrat from Uvalde County, Tex.

Roosevelt in Form; Audience With Him.

THE President looked well. He wore a natty navy blue serge suit, double-breasted, with a white kerchief in his breast pocket. He was brisk, vigorous and emphatic. He was on his toes, too. After the ovation had roared on for a few minutes, he looked at his wrist watch with a gesture obviously intended to remind the immediate audience that the radio audience was waiting. It worked.

He has a way with crowds. He has both voice and bearing. The crowd cheered his thinnest platitudes. They even cheered his complimentary allusions to the city. He gave them the Declaration of Independence all over again. He denounced George III and said that we still are up against the same thing, in different form. "Privileged princes of economic dynasties," he called them, and "the new economic royalty." His declaration that "private enterprise became too private," evoked more enthusiasm than his allusion to "robes of legal sanction." These people had felt the pinch and grind of the depression. To them Hoover is still the villian and to many, it appeared, Roosevelt is still the hero. Of course, the tickets probably were issued to the "right" people.

"Jafsie" Condon Covers Convention.

IT HAS been said that if you stand long enough at Forty-second street and Broadway, you will see everyone in the world. That is an exaggeration. There are some people in Afghanistan and on Devil's Island who will not pass that way. But if they are ever seen anywhere over here, it will be at a Democratic national convention.

Every personality ever heard of by newspaper readers could be seen at one time or another. Two rows behind me in the press section last night was an old gentleman shielding his eyes from the torturing glare with a black felt hat, while he wrote industriously for the Bronx Home News. It was "Jafsie."

Band Plays "It Ain't Gonna Rain No More."

ROOSEVELT accepted the nomination. I felt certain he would. If he had intended to send regrets, he would have wired them from Washington. Farley rushed over to congratulate him, and the band played "It Ain't Gonna Rain No More."

The "Roosevelt luck" had held with the weather. Half an hour before he came on the field the gusty downpour which had drenched the rest of us (and probably given all of us severe head colds) ceased entirely. The conditions under which he spoke were ideal, as such things go.

For seven minutes after he concluded, he continued to take the cheers. An idiot in Indian costume, complete with war bonnet, managed to shake the President's hand. Score an error against the Secret Service on that one. Anyone who is crazy enough to appear in public in such an outfit, is capable of anything.

The delegates obeyed the instructions not to march. I dare say they were glad enough to do so, after all the painful, perspiring walks they had taken around the convention floor since Tuesday.

Rush to Platform After President Leaves.

ALL sorts of people swarmed on the center platform when Roosevelt and his retinue vacated it. Attorney-General Cummings and "Chip" Robert mingled with citizens of Ashtabula, O., and Tombstone, Ariz. An athletic female in a striped hat stuck her face in the microphone, and shrieked: "Hello, Santiago, Cal."

Half an hour after the President finished speaking, the enormous mob was being admonished over the loudspeaker to "take your time about leaving the field." Every precaution was taken against an untoward event. There are dynamic and fatal possibilties in the massing of a vast number of people under conditions deliberately calculated to produce hysteria.

It gives a curious sensation to see mounted policemen riding through an audience.

It's All Over Now for Another Four Years.

LADIES and gentlemen, the quadrennial demonstrations are over. They are always forced and very tiresome. They are ratifications of decisions which already have been made. The platforms are concocted to catch votes. The tickets should be tested by the character of the men who compose them, their public records, their natural instincts, their connections, and the degree to which they have succeeded in educating themselves to a civilized way of life.

DEMOCRATS HOLD 'RATIFICATION' IN CITY AUDITORIUM

Eighth Ward Drum Corps Almost Blots Out Dickmann's Radio Talk From Philadelphia.

They ratified the nomination, all right, in Municipal Auditorium Convention Hall last night. The Roosevelt nominators, numbering 7000 or more, and including most of the city, Federal and State employes who did not go to Philadelphia, sat through a radio audition of the President's acceptance and saw a vaudeville and boxing program which followed it.

Tickets were $1, and every buyer became a member of the Nominators, the roster of which is to be presented to the President. Many came in ward clubs, carrying banners and marching in with a turmoil of drumming. The Eighth Ward delegation arrived just as Mayor Dickmann, speaking from Franklin Field in Philadelphia, was opening his speech to "introduce" the President. It took some rushing down the aisles and heavy gesticulations to stop the drummers and save the speech for the Mayor's audience.

Mason Introduces Mayor's Speech.

The introducing of the Mayor was done by William L. Mason, president of the Board of Aldermen, who spoke in person from the canvas boxing ring in the center of the hall. He was in the midst of a Supreme Court discussion when the radio watch-holders cut in with the beginning of the Mayor's speech.

Mayor Dickmann, speaking in a Philadelphia booth at the same time that other regional speakers were addressing their own sections, got through with all that he had to say, and was heard fairly well after the first two or three paragraphs. He compared Hoover days with those of the Roosevelt administration, and told of PWA improvements, made "at little or no cost to our city," and the Jefferson Memorial river front plan, on which "thousands will be employed." He promised that St. Louis and Missouri would give the Democratic ticket a record majority.

As the Mayor spoke, and during the much more clearly understandable delivery of the President's speech, the audience settled into a familiar home attitude toward the radio recital. At home, with the radio turned on, one listens after a fashion, but talks with other members of the family, answers the telephone or walks about the room. So the Roosevelt Nominators, between snatches of conversations or yoohoos of greeting to friends in the next section, heard and applauded the President's words about Faith, Hope and Charity, while vendors trafficked in soda-pop.

Match Philadelphia Applause.

When a pause denoted the end of a paragraph, yells would arise and drumheads would be smitten. Sometimes this lasted about as long as the applause in Franklin Field; sometimes the local crowd shouted longer, if not more lustily, than those in Philadelphia, and the first few words of a new paragraph

When the President quoted "the immortal Dante," the ensuing quotation got a vigorous hand. When he closed by announcing himself "enlisted for the duration of the war," a 15-minute racket began.

It was not exactly like a convention demonstration, for there was no parade in the aisles. Each group had paid for its own seats, and did not wish to vacant them. But the Second, Fourteenth, Seventeenth, Twenty-seventh, Twenty-eighth and other ward delegations stood in their places, holding upward banners and Roosevlt placards, and chanting with drum obligato.

With the subsidence of the cheering, the first part of the program, which, as Mason informed the crowd, was for "instruction and inspiration, to gird our loins in the age-long war," ended, and the second part, devoted to amusement, began, with "Biz" Kenney in the ring as master of ceremonies.

Many ticket-holders arrived too late for the speaking, but in time for the show, and stayed in the air-cooled hall for the latter part of the evening.

Garner's Acceptance: He Pledges Allegiance to Commander-in-Chief

"Midway in Our Course—Great as Are the Things Which Have Been Accomplished . . . Much Remains to Be Done."

PHILADELPHIA, June 27.

THE prepared text of the speech by Vice-President John Nance Garner of Texas accepting the Democratic nomination for Vice-President follows:

Mr. Chairman, friends:

My words shall be as few as they shall be fervent and sincere. I am a soldier and my duty is to follow where the commander leads. I accept the rules of war as laid down in the platform.

I am not insensible of the high honor which has been conferred upon me. This confidence which my fellow countrymen have reposed in me I accept as a solemn trust. And I am not unmindful of the responsibility which goes with that trust.

I gladly accept the nomination for the Vice-Presidency now tendered to me for the second time. The sense of personal satisfaction in this honor is enhanced and heightened by the thought that I am again to be on the ticket with Franklin Delano Roosevelt.

I shall stand with him in the months ahead as I stood with him before the voters of this country in 1932—as I have stood, in sharing with him since March 4, 1933, the obligations and duties and responsibilities which the Constitution imposes.

Renews Pledge to Roosevelt.

Franklin Delano Roosevelt is my leader, my Commander-in-Chief. In this presence, before this multitude and with the stars of heaven to bear witness to my covenant, I renew the pledge of fealty I gave four years ago.

In Franklin Delano Roosevelt the hopes of a nation have been reborn. Despair has given place to confidence. Despondency and gloom have made way for happiness. Laughter again is heard in the land.

We are now, as it were, midway in our course. Great as are the things which have been accomplished to bring order out of chaos in which we found the country in March, 1933, much remains to be done.

There must be no return to old conceptions denominated as the Old Deal. And what do we mean by the Old Deal? We mean a political system which fosters an economic order giving special privilege to a few favored ones through the sacrifices of the many. By the New Deal we mean simply an adaptation of the laws of the country so that the greatest good will come to the greatest number—the protection of the rights of that vast majority of our populace, men, women and children—to whom the Old Deal meant want, hardship, despair and degradation.

Old Deal and the New.

Our people have not forgotten the wretchedness to which these sins of omission and commission of 12 years of the Old Deal had plunged the country when the New Deal was ushered in on a March day in 1933. But the dawn of a new day was at hand. The time for a change had come. The country welcomed a new leader. And I cheerfully bear witness here and now to the loyal support of New Deal measures and principles accorded in Congress by certain of our friends of the opposition. With voice and vote many brethren of Republican persuasion have shown how they could ,in time of national peril, rise above partisanship and heed the call for help of a stricken country.

We still ask for the support of all those who believe as we do that the function of Government is to protect the many from the selfishness of the few, to guarantee to all the means of livelihood and participation in the things that make life good and noble and worth the living.

That is our platform. Upon that platform I stand and I am proud to stand with our leader—a leader who has never faltered in his course and never once lost faith that in the sovereign will of the American people rests true wisdom in Government and the way to security, peace and happiness.

In that faith I put my trust. In that faith I pledge anew my allegiance to Franklin Delano Roosevelt.

banks and securities, new machinery of industry, and agriculture and labor—"all undreamed of by the fathers"—and that the "privileged princes of these economic dynasties" had reached out for control of government itself.

In the service of these dynasties, he continued, new mercenaries sought to regiment the people, their labor and their property. As a result, he said, the average man once more confronted the problem that faced the minute man of 1776.

Cheers for Simpler Terms.

Under other circumstances, these thoughts would have been vigorously applauded, but the meaning seemed to elude the vast crowd. It cheered, however, when he returned to simpler terms.

"The hours men and women work," he solemnly declaimed. "The wages they receive, the conditions of their labor—these had passed beyond the control of the people, and were imposed by this new industrial dictatorship. The savings of the average man, the capital of the small business man, the investment set aside for old age—other people's money—these were the tools which the new economic royalty used to dig itself in." The crowd cheered.

Coming to a defense of his New Deal administration, the President declared that if the average citizen is guaranteed equal opportunity in the polling place, he must have equal opportunity in the market place.

"The economic royalists complain," he said, "that we seek to to overthrow the institutions of America. What they really complain of is that we seek to take away their power. Our allegiance to American institutions requires the overthrow of this kind of power."

This aggressive challenge drew a prolonged cheer from the crowd and Edward F. McGrady, Assistant Secretary of Labor, who was sitting in the distinguished visitors section on the platform, leapt on his chair and let out a rebel yell.

The secondary theme of the speech was that America and the world needed moral principles, faith, hope and charity.

"Governments can err," he intoned. "Preisdents do make mistakes, but the immortal Dante tells us that divine justice weighs the sins of the cold blooded and the sins of the warm hearted in different scales.

"Better the occasional faults of a government that lives in a spirit of charity than the consistent omissions of a government frozen in the ice of its own indifference."

The rally was slow in getting started and all of the earlier speeches, except the acceptance speech of Vice-President Garner, were cut short in order to permit broadcasting of the President's speech exactly at 10 o'clock (8, St. Louis time).

Garner's Speech.

In his speech of acceptance Garner said: "We still ask for the support of all those who believe as we do that the function of Government is to protect the many from the selfishness of the few, to guarantee to all the means of livelihood, and participation in the things that make life good and noble and worth the living."

Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi was the pinch-hitter for Senator Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky in making the Garner notification. Barkley left for Europe this noon and Harrison read less than a third of the Kentuckian's prepared speech.

Senator Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas, the permanent chairman of the convention, had a prepared speech of about 600 words, but he cut it down to a scant 50. The President's speech required exactly 30 minutes for delivery.

4 DIE AS PLANE FALLS IN LAKE CHAMPLAIN

Six Hurt in Two Other Aircraft Crashes on Good Will Flight From New York.

By the Associated Press.

ESSEX, N. Y., June 27.—Four persons were reported killed and six suffered minor injuries today when a sudden storm and fog caused the crash of three planes among 50 bound from Roosevelt Field, L. I., to montreal on a good will flight.

One of the ships dived into Lake Champlain two miles off shore, where all of its occupants apparently drowned in 270 feet of water.

Officials at Floyd Bennett Field, L. I., said the occupants were:

Frank Saglimbene, pilot, 29 years old, Brooklyn.

Steve Kaye, Woodside, L. I.

Miss Dolly Garling.

George W. Ericson, Brooklyn.

One plane was damaged at Westport, N. Y., and another at Pittsfield, Mass., both in forced landings, but the six occupants escaped with minor injuries.

Everett Monez, Richmond Hill, L. I., one of the good will pilots, said his ship had left with Saglimbene's, and they had flown close together almost to Burlington, Vt., across the lake from this city.

"I was forced down at Burlington airport," Monez said. "There was fog right down to the bottom when the plane crashed into the lake off Essex. Enough of a wing was recovered to get the model number—4726." Monez telephoned New York and established the identity of the plane.

An attempt will be made, probably tomorrow, to salvage the plane and recover the bodies.

Saglimbene owned the plane which he piloted. His widow and a son, 4 years old, survive.

DIES OF INJURIES IN COLLISION

Enos Wehling, 21, of East Side, Struck by Truck.

Injuries suffered Friday night when his car collided head-on with a large transport truck caused the death yesterday at St. Elizabeth's Hospital, Granite City, of Enos Wehling, 21 years old, a farmer residing near Alhambra, Ill.

The accident occurred as Wehling tried to pass another car on U. S. highway No. 66, four miles north of Edwardsville. His machine was knocked back more than 50 feet and wrecked. He suffered fractures of the skull, left leg and right arm and his chest was crushed. The truck driver, a Collinsville resident, was not injured. Wehling's cousin, Orville Figge of Edwardsville, chanced to pass as Wehling was being put in an ambulance and identified him.

FIGHT TO BEAT BROGAN, KINNEY MAY BE DROPPED

Jimmy Miller Says 'Compromise' May Be Arranged in These Two State Senatorial Races.

NOTHING DEFINITE YET, HE DECLARES

'Maybe It Will Be Straightened Out,' Fourth Ward Boss, Back From Philadelphia, Asserts.

The possibility that the fight on State Senators Michael Kinney and Joseph Brogan may be dropped appeared imminent last night when Jimmy Miller, Fourth Ward boss and principal sponsor of the candidates opposing Kinney and Brogan, told a Post-Dispatch reporter that a "compromise" might be effected in the two senatorial races.

Discussing reports from the Democratic national convention, which adjourned at Philadelphia yesterday, that State Representative Warren Burke, who has filed against Kinney, and Howard Quinn, who has entered the race against Brogan, would withdraw, Miller said that nothing was definite yet, but "maybe it will be straightened out."

He was asked whether he had decided to support Kinney and Brogan instead of Burke and Quinn.

"Nothing like that has happened," he replied. "If you heard anything like that, it's just a lot of talk, like people do when they're sitting around a convention."

"Just a Lot of Talk."

"If they're saying that Burke and Quinn will withdraw, that's just a lot of talk too. I don't know that will happen at all. Maybe we'll be able to straighten this thing out or work out some kind of compromise I don't know. There's been nothing decided."

Miller denied a report that he had been approached by a friend of Kinney's at Philadelphia and told to "lay off Kinney if you know what's good for you."

"Nobody said that to me, and if they did, I'd be all the more set on doing just the opposite of what they wanted me to do, he said.

Members of the Missouri delegation attending the national convention hear frequent reports that Kinney and Brogan would have a clear field for renomination. Miller and Brogan were delegates from the Thirteenth Congressional District, but Kinney was not a delegate.

Some of the Democratic workers here have been discussing the difficulty of defeating Kinney and Brogan at the primary election Aug. 4 in view of their admitted voting strength in their respective districts. Kinney has represented the Thirty-first District since 1912 and Brogan has served from the Thirty-third District since 1908.

Setback for Opposition.

The opposition to Brogan suffered a setback the day after Howard Quinn filed against him, when Tom Quinn, Howard's brother, who is Committeeman of the Eighteenth Ward, with 19 precincts in Brogan's district, announced he would support Brogan. Most of the politicians, including Miller, thought Tom Quinn, who is constable of the district of which Miller is Justice of the Peace, would support his brother. Tom said, however, that he was for "harmony and Joe Brogan."

Brogan's district has only four precincts in the Fourth Ward, but Kinney's has 15 in Miller's ward, and with Miller against him, Kinney would have a much harder fight for renomination than Brogan.

Dickmann Fight Brought In.

Both Kinney and Brogan are allied with Mayor Dickmann's faction of the Democratic party, while Miller has been one of the leaders of the anti-Dickmann faction. Last February, when Dr. R. Emmet Kane induced leaders of the opposing factions to discuss peace terms, a proposed peace agreement finally fell through after Miller had refused to promise that he would not oppose the two Senators for renomination.

Brogan told a Post-Dispatch reporter recently that he could not understand Miller's antagonism to him except that Miller had once told him that he was too close to Kinney for Miller's liking. Kinney, apparently undisturbed over the fight against his candidacy, told a reporter that he "wasn't worrying about it."

Burke, Kinney's opponent, has served two terms in the State House of Representatives. Howard Quinn, a plasterer by trade, has been identified with various dog track promotions, and has never before sought public office.

Burlington Men Reject A. F. of L.

LINCOLN, Neb., June 27.—H. L. Creviston, secretary-treasurer of the Mechanical Department Association of Burlington Railway employes here, said today a recent secret ballot taken among workers had rejected affiliation with the American Federation of Labor for the six crafts in the organization. The vote included the entire Burlington railroad, Creviston asserted. The crafts retained by the M. D. A., Creviston said, were: carmen, machinists, boilermakers, blacksmiths, sheet metal workers, and electricians, as well as apprentices and helpers for each group.

CONVICTS SIGN SMUGGLED PETITION FOR CONDEMNED MAN

Plea for Delbert Green Presented to Pardon Board in Utah.

By the Associated Press.

SALT LAKE CITY, June 27.—Fellow convicts came to the aid today of Delbert Green sentenced to die before a Utah firing squad for murder. A smuggled petition, by 208 of Utah State prison's 322 prisoners, was presented to the Board of Pardons. It urged commutation to life imprisonment.

The board, which had rejected two previous appeals for the man sentenced to be shot July 10, delayed action until Wednesday. "We beg you to have mercy on our friend," the petition read. Board members appeared amazed when Attorney Edward Morrisey produced the petition. Weeks ago, word leaked out that one was being circulated by J. W. Abbott, a convict. Gov. Henry H. Blood ordered it destroyed. But when Abbott was freed, it was said he smuggled it back in pasted to the leaves of a manuscript.

The petition contended Green has the mentality of a 10-year-old child. He was sentenced for killing his wife, her mother and an uncle in 1929.

FORMER NIGHT CLUB HOSTESS REARRESTED TO DOUBLE BAIL

Miss Marie Morrison Accused in Fatal Shooting of Harry Anastas, Operator of Club.

Miss Marie Morrison, former night club hostess, named in a Coroner's verdict of homicide in the fatal shooting of Harry Anastas, operator of the Golden Dragon night club, was rearrested yesterday on orders of Assistant Circuit Attorney James McLaughlin, who has asked the court to double her $5000 bail bond.

In requesting the arrest McLaughlin told police he had information that Miss Morrison was preparing to leave the city. Police who found her at the home of her mother at 1331 Merchant street, reported she had applied dark dye to her blonde hair and eyebrows.

Anastas, who was 46 years old and married, was shot at Miss Morrison's flat, 2123 Maury avenue, early on the morning of June 15 during a quarrel with Miss Morrison, who formerly worked in his club.

MANILA, June 28 (Sunday).—President Manuel Quezon, suddenly stricken with an illness diagnosed as angina pectoris, was unable to participate in a cornerstone laying ceremony at Cebu. He made arrangements to return to Manila.

Physicians said the commonwealth president's throat was in bad condition. He had a cough and fever. He is in his fifty-eighth year.

Two Women Flyers Missing.

By the Associated Press.

SPOKANE, Wash., June 27.—Search was begun tonight for two Portland women flyers many hours overdue for an all-women's air meet here. The women, Mrs. Alyce Pashburg and Irma Westover, took off from Portland in an open cockpit plane at 7:15 a. m. Another woman, Bessie Halliday, who left Portland after the Pashburg-Westover plane, arrived here at 1:27 p. m., winning the cross-country event. Two planes from the Vancouver (Wash.) barracks near Portland, and a third plane piloted by William Turner of Portland started late today to search for the two women.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., June 27.—Al Capone, former Chicago gang leader, who was stabbed in the back by another prisoner at the Alcatraz Island prison, left the hospital today and returned to his routine duties. James C. Lucas, Texas bank robber, who wounded Capone last Tuesday, was still in solitary confinement.

STARK SAYS HE WILL WORK FOR BIGGER OLD AGE PENSIONS

Democratic Candidate for Governor Speaks at Carrolton, Norborne and Richmond.

By the Associated Press.

CARROLLTON, Mo., June 27.—Maj. Lloyd Stark, Democratic candidate for Governor, told an audience of 500 persons here today that if elected he would work to increase old-age pensions.

Stark repeated that he was not bound by pledges to individuals or organizations. He recalled that he was general chairman of a state committee which promoted Missouri's $75,000,000 road bond issue and referred to his work for farm-to-market roads.

He also spoke at Norborne and Richmond and was scheduled to appear at Marshall at 4 p. m. Former Lieut. Gov. W. R. Painter introduced Stark to the audience here.

WIFE GETS DIVORCE FROM ARTHUR PREECE

Former Lilly Magnus Obtains Decree Shortly After Filing of Suit.

Mrs. Arthur D. Preece, the former Lilly Busch Magnus, obtained a divorce yesterday. Her husband was formerly the huntsman at the Bridlespur Club in Huntleigh Village. They were married Feb. 2, 1933, separated last October.

The decree was granted by Circuit Judge Sartorius in Court of Domestic Relations less than two hours after the suit, based on allegations of general indignities, had been filed. The petitioner's maiden name was restored. There was no request in the petition for alimony and her lawyer told Judge Sartorius a satisfactory property settlement had been made out of court.

The petitioner, who wore a cream-colored shark-skin suit trimmed in beige, with brown linen hat and brown-and-white sport shoes, repeated the allegations of the petition from the witness stand, testifying that Preece had absented himself from home at night without explanation, and that he was quarrelsome and disagreeable on occasion.

Two housemaids employed in the home of her father, Edward Magnus, 4 Hortense place, vice-president of the Busch-Sulzer Bros. Diesel Engine Co., testified as character witnesses. Preece filed an entry of appearance and general denial, but did not appear in court.

Mrs. Preece, who is 25 years old, attended Mary Institute and was graduated from Miss Wright's School at Bryn Mawr, Pa. She was presented to society at a hunt ball at the Bridlespur Club in 1929. Her father is the son of Mrs. J. W. Loeb of Chicago, who was Miss Nellie Busch, daughter of the late Adolphus Busch, brewer. Her mother was formerly Miss Nellie Orthwein, daughter of Mrs. William D. Orthwein, 15 Portland place.

FUGITIVE INSANE MAN KILLED

Escaped Minnesota Convict Fights Police in Oklahoma Holdup.

By the Associated Press.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Ok., June 27.—Police gunfire ended the flight of a criminally insane killer from St. Peter (Minn.) Asylum and Oklahoma City officers tonight sought his companion. The gunman, who attempted to hold up a cafe here, and exchanged shots with police, was identified through police photographs as Albert (Scarface) Saroko, 40 years old, who escaped from the Minnesota hospital June 8 with 15 other inmates.

At St. Peter officials expressed belief the missing man might be either Lawrence De Vol of the old Barker-Karpis gang or Donald Read, former Missourian sentenced to life in Minnesota for bank robbery. Read and De Vol fled into Iowa with Saroko after the break.

108 SPEEDING ARRESTS IN DAY SET NEW RECORD IN CITY

58 Motorists Stopped in Forest Park; Street Car and Bus Included in List.

Traffic policemen set a new record on Friday when they arrested 108 speeders as part of a new drive begun several days ago designed especially to cut down speeding in the public parks. The previous record number of arrests on any one day, according to Capt. Charles Loepker of the Traffic Division, was 85 on Nov. 24, 1935.

In Forest Park, where the speed limit is 20 miles an hour and to which 10 motorcycle policemen have been assigned, 58 speeders were overtaken and arrested. They were going between 25 and 45 miles an hour. Four were arrested in Tower Grove Park, two in Fairgrounds Park, and one in O'Fallon Park.

The remaining 43 arrests were made on the city streets. These included four trucks, a motorcycle, and a street car and a bus, both traveling at 40 miles an hour. All drivers were required to go to police stations and give bond for appearance in Police Courts.

Since June 18, 1935, when the first intensive drive on speeders was begun at the instigation of Police Commissioner Albert Bond Lambert, 10,340 arrests for speeding have been made, Loepker said. He said there have been very few serious accidents or injuries in the parks because of speeding and that the present renewal of the drive was made to prevent any accidents or deaths, especially in view of the multitude of picnickers, zoo visitors, and Municipal Opera patrons in the parks.

FUMES DRIVE OUT WORKERS AT THE WESTLICHE POST

Sulphur Burning as Insecticide in Adjoining Building Put Out by Firemen.

Thirty-five employes of the Westliche Post were forced to leave the press room and offices of the newspaper building at 1128 Pine street at 8:30 o'clock last night by fumes from sulphur being used as an insecticide in the adjoining building at 1126 Pine, occupied by the Sixth Ward Regular Democratic Club.

The fumes from the sulphur pans, which had been placed in the basement of the building at 1126 Pine, gradually seeped into the basement of the Westliche Post building, forcing the pressmen and then the other employes to suspend operations.

Firemen extinguished the burning sulphur, enabling the employes of the Westliche Post to return to work in half an hour. The Sixth Ward Democratic Club had obtained a permit to burn the sulphur between 9 o'clock this morning and 6 o'clock tonight, but for some reason, the work was started ahead of schedule.

$142,000 MYSTERY PACKAGE FOR SWEEPSTAKES WINNER

Roy W. Ford of Mississippi Turns It Over to Roy Ford, Reported Rightful Owner.

By the Associated Press.

LAUREL, Miss., June 27. — A reliable report from Smith County tonight said the mysterious package of $142,625 in bonds delivered by parcel post to Roy W. Ford, druggist, of Mize, Miss., had been turned over to their rightful owner, Roy Ford, farmer, who won the money on a ticket in the Irish sweepstakes.

Miss Kendall Eaton, a Belhaven College student and daughter of Harvey Eaton, a merchant of Taylorsville nearby, said the bonds had been given to the second Roy Ford, who resides in the country eight miles from rural Mize, and not sent to New Orleans for checking of their authenticity, as had been reported. It was said in Smith County that the two Fords often got their mail mixed.

Miss Eaton said she was told of delivery of the bonds by a brother of the second Ford. Ford paid $2.50 for his winning sweepstakes ticket.

The delivery of the bonds deprived Mize of two brick churches which the first Ford said he would build if the bonds turned out to be his property. The bonds were sent to Mississippi from British Columbia.

MYRNA LOY WED IN MEXICO TO ARTHUR HORNBLOW JR.

First Marriage for Motion Picture Actress, Second for Producer Who Was Divorced at Reno.

HOLLYWOOD, June 27.—Myrna Loy, motion picture actress, and Arthur Hornblow Jr. were married today in Ensenada, Lower California, Mexico. The marriage was performed at noon by High Court Justice Jaime S. Pardo, in the Government Building.

Witnesses were Shirley Hughes, stand-in for the 30-year-old actress, and Ray Ramsey, from the studio where Hornblow is employed as a producer. He met Miss Loy when she appeared two years ago in a picture he directed.

It was her first marriage and his second. He was divorced recently at Reno, Nev., from Juliette Crosby, an actress.

Mr. and Mrs. Hornblow announced they would spend a brief honeymoon on the estate of Frank Vanderlip at Palos Verdes, near here.

WEDDING RECEPTION GUEST KILLED IN FIGHT

Assistant Football Coach at Loyola U., New Orleans, Accused of Manslaughter.

By the Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, La., June 27.—James S. Percy, assistant football coach at Loyola University, was tentatively charged with manslaughter today in the death of a guest at a society wedding reception here. He was released under $2500 bail. Detectives charged he struck Sumners Carpenter, 21-year-old interior decorator, who died after the encounter at the exclusive Orleans Club last night.

Percy, 27, told police trouble developed when he reproved Carpenter for a remark which he said "reflected on my character." He said the remark was made as the two were in the kitchen having drinks. Police who questioned many of the 600 guests said they were told the affair developed into a general fight among the male guests.

The detectives said the honor guests, Dr. Willoughby E. Kittredge Jr., and his bride, the former Ruth Sullivan, had gone on their honeymoon when they arrived at the club. Before some of the guests would talk, the officers said, they had to threaten to recall the newly-married pair.

The investigators said witnesses told them that when Carpenter was knocked to the floor another guest remonstrated with Percy and that both began swinging.

Percy, whose wife was an attendant in the wedding, left the club and the fight quickly spread to the front of the building. Alfred Kassel, 27, a guest, said some of the women guests tried to separate the men.

On his arrest two hours later at his home Percy told police he did not know Carpenter was dead, that he thought the young man had been stunned. Police said they found blood stains in the reception room, kitchen and pantry, the rear porch and lawn of the club.

Charity Hospital attendants said Carpenter was dead on arrival. Dr. Robert H. Potts said he died of a broken neck. Court records show that Mrs. Percy was granted a separation petition from her husband several weeks ago. Percy was a substitute halfback on the Tulane football squad in 1930.

FARLEY KEEPS COMMITTEE JOB; NEW TREASURER

W. Forbes Morgan Elected to Party Office After W. J. Cummings of Chicago Withdraws.

L. W. ROBERT JR. NAMED SECRETARY

Postmaster-General Gives Pep Talk—Says Democratic Finances Are in Good Shape.

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, June 27. — The new Democratic National Committee re-elected Postmaster-General James A. Farley today as chairman. The committee's action was unanimous on a motion by Guy T. Helvering, Internal Revenue Commissioner, and holder of a proxy from Kansas.

Farley said any announcement about his resigning his place in the Cabinet would have to come from President Roosevelt after they talked over the situation next week.

Reporting on the state of the party's finances, Farley said that there was enough in the treasury "to take care of all obligations."

"Finances are in better shape than they have been in the last four years," he said.

Farley introduced Vice-President Garner, National Committeeman from Texas, who told the committee members they had great responsibilities in the coming campaign.

Election of Morgan.

Farley read the committee a telegram from Walter J. Cummings, Chicago banker, asking that he not be nominated for re-election as committee treasurer, and requesting the election of W. Forbes Morgan, committee secretary, as his successor. Morgan was elected by acclamation.

In his message, Cummings reported that the committee had "paid off a large deficit and now has a substantial sum in the treasury."

Morgan, of New Hampshire, spoke briefly, expressing appreciation for his election.

As he resumed the chair after his re-election, Farley made a brief pep talk. Several minutes of applause followed.

The committee then unanimously selected L. W. Robert Jr. of Atlanta, Ga., former Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, to succeed Morgan as secretary. Clark Howell Sr., Atlanta publisher, nominated Robert.

Col. Edward A. Halsey, secretary of the Senate, was elected sergeant-at-arms.

Farley announced that campaign headquarters would be in the Biltmore Hotel, New York, and that the campaign committee would be appointed within a few weeks.

Vice-Chairmen Named.

The committee chose the following: Vice-chairmen—Vice-President Garner, David E. Fitzgerald Sr., Connecticut; Lynn Broderick, Kansas; A. B. Chandler, Kentucky; Louis Jiggitts, Mississippi; James P. Aylward, Missouri; Frank Hague, New Jersey; Charles Sawyer, Ohio; A. S. Brown, Utah; C. E. Broughton, Wisconsin; Mrs. Lucretia Del Valle Grady, California; Mrs. Samuel M. Ralston, Indiana; Helen N. Hanson, Maine; Mrs. Emma Guffey Miller, Pennsylvania; Mrs. Ann Struble, South Dakota; Mrs. Douglas W. Brown, West Virginia; Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, District of Columbia, and Mary W. Dewson, head of the women's division.

Contests for places on the committee from Arizona, Washington, Puerto Rico and the Canal Zone were referred to a subcommittee headed by Brooks Hays of Arkansas. Contestants were asked to file briefs.

The New Committee.

The selections for the new Democratic National Committee had been announced this morning by Farley.

The new states leaders are as follows:

Alabama, National Committeeman, Judge Leon McCord, National Committeewoman, Mrs. A. Y. Malone; Arizona, Wirt G. Bowman and Mrs. Samuel White; Arkansas, Brooks Hays and Mrs. W. H. Arnold; California, Senator William Gibbs McAdoo and Mrs. Lucretia del Valle Grady; Colorado, James A. Marsh and Mrs. Katherine Hilliard; Connecticut, David E. Fitzgerald Sr., and Mrs. Josephine Flynn; Delaware, James M. Tunnell and Mrs. Marguerite Brodziak; Florida, H. H. Wells and Hortense Wells; Georgia, Clark Howell Sr., and Mrs. Virginia Polhill Price; Idaho, Ramsay M. Walker and Emma Alexander Simons.

Illinois, Pat A. Nash and Elizabeth A. Conkey; Indiana, Thomas D. Taggart and Mrs. Samuel M. Ralston; Iowa, Hon. Hubert Utterback and Mrs. Flora C. Etter; Kansas, Lynn Broderick and Georgia Neese Clark; Kentucky, Gov. A. B. Chandler and Mrs. Sam L. Conner; Louisiana, Gov. Richard W. Leche and Mrs. Emile Bienvenu; Maine, F. Admits Stopping Train With Pole.

By the Associated Press.

ATTICA, Ind., June 27.—A 19-year-old Negro admitted tonight, authorities said, that he placed the stub of a telegraph pole in the path of a Wabash Railroad passenger train to stop the train so he could get a ride. The locomotive of the train, bound from St. Louis to Detroit with many week-end travelers, was damaged sligthly but was able to proceed. Sheriff Frank Youngblood said the youth gave his name as Robert Johnson of Columbia, S. C., and Kankakee, Ill. Railroad police quoted the youth as saying he was "just a little bit mad at the railroad" because he had been put off freight trains twice today.

Text of Undelivered Addresses Of Senators Robinson and Barkley

Arkansan Writes President Roosevelt's Renomination by Acclamation Is "Reward of a Grateful People.

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, June 27—

ALTHOUGH Senator Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas had prepared and made public a speech notifying President Roosevelt of his nomination, he never delivered it. Instead, he merely spoke one sentence, saying it was his privilege to inform the Chief Executive that he was again the nominee. Similarly, a speech notifying Vice-President Garner had been given out by Senator Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky. and was to have been read in Barkley's absence by Senator Harrison of Mississippi, but Harrison compressed it to a few words. Following is the text of the speech Robinson wrote:

Mr. President:

It is my pleasant duty as chairman of the Democratic national convention and of its special committee, designated for that purpose, to notify you formally that you have been renominated unanimously for the exalted office of President of the United States.

Mr. President, it should be a matter of gratification and pardonable pride for you to know that your renomination was accomplished by the joyous acclamation of the 1100 delegates to this convention without the formality of a roll call.

In pursuing that course, the delegates merely carried out the mandate given them by loyal Democrats throughout the length and breadth of this land who appreciate beyond measure the heroic manner in which you have captained the ship of state through the trying period of the last three years.

"Beyond Bare Recognition."

The honor which is being accorded you, Mr. President, is something above and beyond a bare recognition on the part of the rank and file of the people of the just and able manner in which you have administered the affairs of government. Your renomination is the reward of a grateful people acting under a democracy—the only fitting honor which a democracy may pay to a patriotic and loyal servant who has performed the exacting duties of the presidency in keeping with the magnificent traditions of the great men who have preceded him in that high office.

It is fortunate for the people of the United States that the Democratic party, with its traditions of public service and public duty, was in charge of the conduct of Federal affairs during the emergency period from which the country is now emerging, restored to strength and vigor in its spiritual and material life.

We may look back now, almost with an incredulous manner, upon the doleful prophecies of those who whispered in the dark days of late 1932 and early 1933, that a democracy was impotent in a crisis to meet the exactions of government in a modern industrial state. We may indulge in the luxury of a smile of understanding at those men in high station who were willing to question the efficacy of popular rule, at those men who showed an impatience with the tested principle of rule by the majority, at those men who had lost faith in democracy and yearned for the iron hand of a dictator at the helm.

New Spirit Abroad in Land.

Perhaps it is not without significance that those individuals who were first to lose confidence in the traditional American way of solving our difficulties, are the very individuals who today are striving desperately and without success to halt the onward course of the present administration at Washington.

A new spirit is abroad in the land, inspired by your genius and leadership, Mr. President, a feeling of confidence and trust in the hearts of humble men and women who know by experience that the conduct of government has been restored to the time-tested fundamental basis of equality of opportunity for all. It is no exaggeration to say that the conduct of affairs in the last three years has vindicated the faith of the plain people in the processes of democracy as the best system of government ever devised by man.

The Democratic party this year selected the City of Philadelphia as its meeting place because it was here in this hallowed spot that the American people first won that charter of liberty which ended for all times the sway of foreign despots on these shores. As our countrymen have won their political liberties, so are they now, under your inspired leadership, winning the battle for the restoration of their economic liberties from the despotic sway of selfish groups and grasping minorities.

A mighty gathering of your fellow Americans stand before you, Mr. President, grateful for the fact that this honor has been bestowed upon you. Millions of others are gathered around the hearth-sides waiting to hear the words of acceptance of the man who has so manfully borne the burden during the troubles and trials of the last three years. For all these millions, I congratulate you, Mr. President, in the sincere belief that you are going forth to an overwhelming victory in November.

GARNER DEPICTED AS AN INVALUABLE TRUSTED ADVISER

HERE is the text of the speech that Senator Barkley wrote which Senator Harrison condensed:

Mr. Vice-President:

As temporary chairman of the national Democratic convention just held in this city, it becomes my delightful duty and great pleasure to give you official notice of your nomination as the Democratic candidate for Vice-President of the United States.

Though I might speak volumes concerning your long and distinguished career, the circumstances of this occasion do not require it.

As a member of Congress for a long period of years, as Speaker of the House of Representatives, and as Vice-President of the United States, you have permanently and indelibly stamped the force of your rugged personality upon the legislative history of this country for a generation.

These have been stirring years which you have given to the service of your country.

"People Trust You."

Problems of personal interest to and far-reaching effect upon all classes of our people have arisen for solution. Some of these problems are still unsolved, but must have the most single-minded devotion of patriotic Americans in their proper solution in the immediate future.

In your capacity as a member of Congress, a Speaker of the House, and as Vice-President, you have given to the cause of good government your high character as a man and your lofty conception of public duty.

Your friends who have known you for these many years understand thoroughly the reasons which have made you an outstanding figure in the political life of the nation. They know you, and to know you is to trust you.

The American people as a whole have come to know you, and knowing you they trust you.

While the office which you hold is presumed to be chiefly concerned with the duties of a presiding officer over the Senate, your wide experience in legislation and in statesmanship have made you an invaluable counselor to the legislative and exective branches of the government, and during the next four years your services in this capacity will enable you to contribute still more to the cause of democracy which is so dear to your heart.

Congratulations.

I congratulate you upon your renomination to this second highest office within the gift of the people. I congratulate the State of Texas, which has given you to the nation. I congratulate the nation as a whole on the prospect of having the benefit of your experience and devotion for another term of four years. Simplicity of character, steadiness in the performance of duty, honesty in dealing with the people's affairs have characterized your public and private life, and I predict for you and for the President, whose servant you are and will continue to be, an overwhelming indorsement on the part of the people. This overwhelming indorsement will be, in part, personal to both the President and you, but it will be even more significant because of its indorsement of the great constructive program of rehabilitation which you have helped to inaugurate in behalf of the American people.

German Veterans Must Register.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, June 27.—Officers and soldiers of the World War were made subject to registry and possible draft today by a decree signed by Minister of the Interior Wilhelm Frick and Marshal Werner von Blomberg, the War Secretary. The decree affects all persons who have served in a military capacity who were born before 1913. The registration will take place between July 13 and Aug. 22.

LEAGUE TURNS TO GERMAN AND DANZIG PROBLEMS

Conference Held by Anthony Eden and Maxim Litvinov on Rearmament of Reich.

By the Associated Press.

GENEVA, June 27.—Nazi Germany and Nazi problems in the strategic free territory of Danzig stirred the anxiety of League of Nations Powers tonight. These questions and another created by the resignation of Nicaragua today from the League as the Council began its second day's session, pushed into the background the lifting of sanctions against Italy.

Germany's rearmament, informed sources said, was discussed at a conference between Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden of Great Britain and Maxim Litvinov, Soviet Russia's Foreign Commissar.

The French and Polish Foreign Ministers, Yvon Delbos and Joseph Beck, conferred on the Danzig situation precipitated by a thrust from the free city's Nazi leader, Albert Forster, against the League and its high commissioner, Sean Lester.

Reichsfuehrer Hitler's delay in replying to the British Locarno questionnaire, which sought to clarify the Reich's intentions following the rearmament of the Rhineland, was reported a continued subject of English uneasiness.

The Danzig Problem.

Forster's statement that Lester and the League "have nothing more to do with settling differences between Danzig and Poland" caused expressions of fear in some League circles lest his action be a Berlin-inspired prelude to a Nazi dictatorship in Danzig. Such a step would violate the Treaty of Versailles and would necessitate prompt League action, observers said. German sources in Geneva took the position, however, that Foster merely was indulging in a personal quarrel.

Nicaragua joined the Latin American states which have resigned from the League today, giving rise to suggestions of possible ambitions for a Pan-American League of Nations among Central and South American Powers. Guatemala, Paraguay, Costa Rica and Brazil already are outside the League and it was reported Honduras might quit.

Poland Lifts Sanctions.

There were predictions that assembly debate on the question of lifting sanctions against Italy for its war on Ethiopia would be only a formality because so many countries have indicated they do not want to go on with the measures. The Polish Government announced today it had lifted sanctions from Italy. Government officials said Poland had voted for sanctions only because it was a member of the League of Nations, and now that the Italian-Ethiopian war was over, it seemed useless to continue them.

Italian indicated that as soon as the League removed sanctions from Italy, Italy would reciprocate by removing "counter-sanctions" against the majority of League members.

Observers See Move to Return Free Area to Reich.

By the Associated Press.

FREE CITY OF DANZIG, June 27.—Germany plans further steps soon to return this free area to the Reich, foreign observers predicted tonight, following a Nazi independence declaration by Albert Forster, Nazi leader, that the League of Nations and its high commissioner (Sean Lester) had become "superfluous" in Danzig affairs.

(League supervision over Danzig became effective in 1920 and constituted a compromise between Poland's demands for a sea outlet for shipping and fears of the Versailles peace conference of placing an essentially German population under another nation's sovereignty. A storm trooper was killed and about 50 persons were injured June 13 in a fight between Nazis and anti-Nazis in a meeting house brawl. The Nazis, who control the Senate of the tiny Baltic sea territory, and have a majority in the Volkstag, invaded an oppositional meeting.)

Polish circles said their attitude was one of watchful waiting.

The Forster declaration said: "The League and its High Commissioner in Danzig have nothing more to do with settling differences in Danzig and Poland and their existence on the whole has become superfluous. The High Commissioner seizes every occasion to block the efforts of the National Socialist (Nazi) Government and to help the opposition. He therefore does not contribute to the pacification of Danzig. As the Hitler movement without the High Commissioner came to a quiet understanding with Poland, thereby creating external peace, so will the Hitler movement know how to establish internal peace without the High Commissioner.

German Foreign Office Mouthpiece Backs Nazi Danzig Move.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, June 27.—The Foreign Office, through its mouthpiece, the Deutsche Diplomatische Korrespondenz, openly backed the Danzig Nazis' independence move tonight.

"A state with many centuries of old traditions and culture such as Danzig does not need a Governor or Governess," it said.

"For this reason," it added, "the expectation must be voiced the League of Nations henceforth will refrain from inappropriate methods which in the end could only lead to a question whether the League really sees its task as a furtherance of peace or perhaps the creation of dissension."

Nicaragua Hopes to See Pan American League Formed.

By the Associated Press.

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, June 27.—Nicaragua's resignation from the League of Nations today was inspired. At least partly, by a desire to help formulate a Pan American League of Nations. Dr. Luis Manuel de Bayle, the minister of foreign relations stated: "Although we have separated ourselves from the League, we still will be inspired by its ideals. Internationally, we want to be free on this side of the world to devote our entire efforts toward fomenting a Pan American League of Nations which will crystallize in the Buenos Aires conference."

(The conference of American nations, suggested by President Roosevelt, will probably be held this fall).

GOV. LANDON CONTINUES HIS SILENCE ON POLITICS

"No Visitors and More Fishing" His Program on Vacation; Social Security Plan for Kansas.

By the Associated Press.

ESTES PARK, Colo., June 27.—"No visitors and more fishing," over the week-end was the program outlined today by Gov. Alf M. Landon of Kansas in his mountain vaction retreat.

As the Republican presidential nominee came to Estes Park from the vacation ranch for his daily press conference he continued his silence on political matters.

Today's program, he said, included wood chopping, giving his two young children, Nancy Jo and Jack Cobb a horseback ride and just resting. His shoulder was somewhat stiff from casting for trout yesterday, he said, but added he was "pretty well rested."

Landon said he had virtually completed his message to the special session of the Kansas Legislature which will meet July 7. The message, he indicated, would be a recommendation for legislative approval of submission of a "broad comprehensive amendment to the Kansas Constitution to permit the enactment" of a social security program.

FASCISTS RENEW ACTIVITIES AGAINST SPANISH GOVERNMENT

Leftist United Front Breaks in Seville Where Republicans Defeat Socialists in Election.

By the Associated Press.

MADRID, June 27. — Fascists, cheered by the first break in the Leftist united front, renewed their activities tonight against the Government of Premier Santiago Cesares Quiroga.

The rift was reported in Seville, where Republicans voted against Socialist in selecting four councilmen to fill posts vacated by resignations.

The Republicans, announcing "the electoral pact no longer exists," proceeded to elect four members of the party of Diego Martinez Barrio, former interim President and chief of the Republican Union, despite Socialists' objections.

The Fascists circulated thousands of handbills attacking Cesares Quiroga's regime.

Three hundred Rightists, defied anyone to appear in a Red shirt. Several persons were injured in clashes resulting from Communist acceptance of the challenge.

Three professors of the Marchena Institute were injured when Socialist students, shouting that the professors were Fascist sympathizers, stoned them.

Strikes continued to tie up industry and commerce, particularly in Asturias and Madrid. A general strike in Huelva ended after the Government announced it would reduce hours for miners.

CROSS OF FIRE LEADER FORMS ANOTHER PARTY

Says 'French Social Party,' With Million Members, Seeks to Reconstruct Nation.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, June 27.—Col. Francois de la Rocque, leader of the militant Croix de Feu, which the government has ordered dissolved, today announced the organization of a Rightist "French Social Party." He said it would have 1,000,000 members to start.

De la Rocque said his new party would strive for a "decisive assault toward the renovation, reconciliation and reconstruction of France."

Leftist-Rightist tension exploded into sporadic street fights today as strikes, likewise, alternately ebbed and flowed.

A crowd of 2500 Nationalists clashed with police after attempting to overturn a bus which was blocking their line of march. A bus passenger wearing the insignia of the Peoples Front was pulled off the platform and beaten. Two persons were arrested and accused of throwing sand in the eyes of policemen.

Roving bands of Nationalists and Leftists fought each other and police in the streets of Rouen, several times. Mobile guardsmen ended the disorders after three police and a dozen civilians were injured.

Insults to Blum.

The inhabitants of Toulouse found insults to Premier Leon Blum burned in the grass about the statute of Jean Jaures, assassinated Socialist leader. The incident followed two fights last night between opposing political factions, in which several persons were hurt.

Campaigning to have the Tricolor flown above the Leftist red flag, the National Union of Combatants, representing nearly 1,000,000 war veterans, joined Nationalist factions in an appeal to "all free citizens."

Conservative Radical Socialists openly accused their Communist collaborators in the People's Front of responsibility for daily strikes and disorders.

Georges Bonnet, Radical Socialist leader, who has been mentioned as a possible Ambassador to Washington, in a speech served warning that his colleagues "are firmly attached to the rights of public property" and "not ready for any revolutionary experiments."

The newspaper La Republique accused Communists of entering the Peoples Front "to bury liberty and install the Soviets in France."

Fifty Royalist students attempted a demonstration in Paris, but were dispersed by a large force of police, who made five arrests.

Strikes in Other Cities.

Lille and Roubaix were without newspapers because of a "stey-in" strike of linotype operators. Gas and electric workers in Toulon occupied their plants but promised to continue supplying the city with power and gas.

Military authorities furnished bread in Avignon, where bakers refused to return to their jobs. Cafe and restaurant employes struck at Saint Etienne.

The Government disclosed it was planning a financing system for loans to business and industry which might be economically affected by provisions of the new labor laws, granting workers a 40-hour week and other advantages.

Labor's influence in the Blum Government was extended to foreign affairs with the inclusion of Leon Jouhaux, secretary of the General Confederation of Labor, in the French delegation to the League assembly at Geneva next week.

FRATERNAL ORDER REPLIES TO STATE INSURANCE CHIEF

Modern Woodmen Quote Director of Illinois Department on Soundness of Its Finances.

'100 PCT. SOLVENT,' SAYS ERNEST PALMER

Society, in Answer to O'Malley, Asserts It Can Meet All Its Obligations in Normal Way.

The Modern Woodmen of America, a fraternal society providing life insurance for its members, made public yesterday, in reply to criticism by State Insurance Superintendent R. Emmet O'Malley, a statement asserting the society is in sound financial condition and able to meet all its obligations without any special assessment against its members or any increase in its insurance premium rates.

The statement, signed by society's executive council and its national president, A. R. Talbot, was received in St. Louis by William L. Eck, 6048 Horton place, inspector-general of the Forestry Department of the organization. It quoted a letter dated June 24 from Ernest Palmer, director of insurance of Illinois, stating, "In our opinion from an audit of the annual statement filed since the last examination and our knowledge of the society's affairs, the society is 100 per cent solvent, and is well able to meet and is meeting its obligations to its policyholders."

Chartered in Illinois.

The Modern Woodmen organization is chartered in Illinois and has its home office at Rock Island. It has about 496,000 members throughout the United States and about $664,800,000 of life insurance in force. In Missouri there are about 35,000 members and $45,133,000 of insurance.

A report of an examination of the society made public a week ago by Supt. O'Malley, who for some time has been engaged in controversy with fraternal insurance societies, asserted the total liabilities of the society, including its policy reserve liabilities as computed by O'Malley's examiners, were $61,038,392 and exceeded its assets by $8,286,322, and that for the three and one-half year period ending last June 30, its operating expenses had exceeded operating income by $3,152.423.

In making public his report Supt. O'Malley mentioned that the Modern Woodmen was one of the fraternal societies opposing the insurance code which he proposed to the 1935 Legislature and which failed of passage. In its statement, the executive council of the Modern Woodmen asserted that O'Malley ordered the examination, which cost about $20,000, charged against the society, through "spite."

Difference in Methods.

The methods used by the examiners in computing the society's assets and liabilities were at variance with the society's methods, the statement said, asserting assets in reality exceeded liabilities by $3,000,000. The statement quoted Director Palmer of the Illinois Insurance Department as follows:

"Our study of the situation indicates that the society was fully justified in the method which they adopted, regardless of the position taken by the Missouri Insurance Department in adopting an entirely different method of computing solvency. The method employed by the society has been accepted by this department as reflecting the true condition as of June 30, 1935.

"In the examination by the Missouri department, various matters with respect to phases of management and suggested economies in operation were called to the attention of the society and changes have been made, including expenses reductions where the society felt such reductions proper without impairing the efficiency of operation. In addition, since June 30, 1935 (the effective date of the Missouri examination), the society has experienced a material improvement in the market values of its bonds, and its other investments have enhanced in value.

Value of Bonds.

"In the examination report, the examiners wrote off some $200,000 in the value of the society's bonds. Upon inquiry made of a reputable bank in the city of Chicago, dealing in like securities, it was found the actual market value of the bonds as of June 30, 1935, was in reality $3,000,000 in excess of the value allowed in the report by the Missouri examiners. In addition to this item of difference, it was found the actual value of certain of the society's real estate was in excess of the value allowed in the report. The reserve liabilities computed by the Missouri examiners were greatly in excess of those computed by the Illinois Department."

Director Palmer stated that the society operated under the direct supervision of his department and that "no other member should be alarmed as a result of the recent Missouri examination and the publicity given to the report. The Illinois Department, Palmer said, will conduct a regular examination of the society next year and will invite other state insurance departments to participate.

The Modern Woodmen statement asserted that the insurance code proposed by O'Malley would have driven fraternal insurance out of the State. O'Malley described the code as imposing on fraternal insurance the same regulations and restrictions as the present law places on old line insurance.

COMMUNISTS ISSUE APPEAL TO FARMERS

Convention Speaker Pleads for United Front Farmer-Labor Party.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 27.—The Communist party issued an appeal to farmers today for unity in a people's front Farmer-Labor party looking to an ultimate Soviet United States.

Clarence Hathaway, editor of the Daily Worker, official organ of the Communist party, told the national convention that "we must fight for the mass farm organizations and bring them into co-operation with the workers."

The convention will end tomorrow when candidates for President and Vice-President will be nominated in a mass meeting at Madison Square Garden.

The presiding committee, working behind the scenes, put the finishing touches on a platform that is expected to sound an immediate appeal for a People's Front unity, laying aside momentarily the full socialism program of the Communist party.

Unless an unexpected change of sentiment occurs among the delegates, Earl W. Browder, secretary of the party, and James W. Ford, Negro, will be the nominees for President and Vice-President, respectively.

"Since 1900," Hathaway said, "America has become a country of landless peasantry." He said the Democratic party's farm platform was "a retreat to reaction" and that the Republican farm plank worked "to strengthen the rich."

"The Democratic program of plowing under works only to benefit the biggest capitalist farmers and to the detriment of the poor and middle class farmers.

"Under their soil conservation program there will be still fewer farmers who will be benefited. The result will be to drive the farmers into the reactionary camp of the Landons and the Lemkes."

Calling repeatedly for a Soviet United States, to the cheers of the 725 delegates, Hathaway said the ultimate Roosevelt farm program could be realized only under a Sovietized country with socialized land and great co-operative farms.

He proposed a six-point farm program to get farm workers into a Farmer-Labor party:

A moratorium on farm debts; refinancing of farm loans without inflation; Government loans bearing interest of 1½ per cent to meet the farmers' needs without jeopardizing their ownership; adequate farm relief; protection of farmers from gouging by commission merchants, banks and railroads, and crop insurance, guaranteeing adequate protection from drouth menace and adequate return for labor.

WOMAN SAID TO ADMIT THEFT OF NINE PURSES IN CHURCHES

Two Arrested at Their Homes As Suspects; One Denies Stealing Handbags.

Two women, one the mother of four young children and the other of two, were arrested by detectives at their homes yesterday suspected of being the persons who have stolen purses from women who were praying in Catholic churches during the last three months.

One of the women has admitted, according to Chief of Detectives John J. Carroll, that she stole the purses and enumerated nine instances on which she entered churches, sat down next to a woman who was kneeling in prayer, and snatched her purse off the pew. The other woman denied taking any purses but admitted that she went along to the churches, sometimes taking her two children, and knew what would be done.

The churches in which purses were stolen include the following: St. Alphonsus (Rock), St. Patrick's, St. Francis Xavier (College), St. Roch's, St. Pius, St. Rose's, St. Francis de Sales, and Holy Name.

The two women were arrested two years ago when they were buying goods in a downtown clothing store and charging them to someone else's account. Charges were filed against them in the Court of Criminal Correction but they were paroled from the bench.

TWO CHARGES AGAINST DRIVER

Edward Limberg Arrested After Collision Friday Night.

Edward Limberg, insurance salesman, 2 Lenox place, must answer in Police Court next Thursday to charges of driving while intoxicated and careless driving, resulting, police reported, from a collision between a car he was driving and another machine at Gravois and Phillips place Friday night.

Limberg was taken to City Hospital. A man riding with him at first said he was the driver, but later changed his story, and Limberg admitted he was driving, police said. No one was injured.

BORDER PATROLS REINFORCED ON SYRIAN FRONTIER

French and British Add to Forces as Trans-Jordan Arabs Block Shipments to Palestine.

By the Associated Press.

BEIRUT, Syria, June 27.—Border patrols were reinforced tonight following a report Trans-Jordan Arab tribes had sent a Nationalist ultimatum to Sir Arthur Grenfall Wauchope, Palestine High Commissioner.

The nature of the ultimatum was not disclosed but in view of mounting Arab Nationalist feeling in sympathy with the Palestine Arabs' fight against the Jewish influx into the Holy Land, French and British forces took added precautions on their respective sides of the border.

The British Consul said, however, Syrian Arabs were allowed to cross the Palestine frontier freely.

Meanwhile Syrians who have joined Trans-Jordan Arabs in espousing the cause of the Arabs in Palestine continued to destroy veterables bound for the Holy Land.

Many merchants voluntarily cut off shipments of goods to Palestine Jews in an effort to help the Arabs in their fight against Jewish immigration and land ownership.

Officials said land transportation between Palestine and Beirut was becoming virtually impossible.

Syria also has its own movement against French rule under a League of Nations mandate. The French Government in Paris now has under consideration new means of dealing with this movement, and meanwhile French military forces have been reinforced.

A majority of native Syrian merchants was reported today to have offered aid to the Arabs in Palestine despite the serious repercussions caused commercially by the abrupt decline of Palestine trade.

This morning groups of young men in Damascus established guards over garages to prevent shipments of vegetables, chickens and eggs routed to Palestine. Many trucks have been destroyed near Sidon on the principal route between Beirut and Haifa.

Relief funds have been subscribed in several villages to support striking Palestine Arabs.

British Troops Kill One Arab, Wound Another in Palestine.

JERUSALEM, June 27.—(Jewish Telegraphic Agency) — British troops killed one Arab and wounded another today at Azzun, Northern Palestine, when they fired into a group that did not halt when challenged.

The death toll in the disorders since April 15 was unofficially estimated at 135, including 43 Jews, 4 Christians, 3 British troops and 85 Arabs. About 30 Arabs were thought to have fallen before British rifles and machine gun fire in the past week.

Soldiers repelled Arab attacks during the night at Motza and Ben Shemen.

Arab newspapers reported today that Emil Abdullah, ruler of trans-Jordan, has invited the supreme Arab committee to confer with him soon at his capital, Amman.

However, the Government of Trans-Jordan published a categorical denial that there was any intention on the part of residents of Trans-Jordan to conduct an armed march on Palestine.

MUENCHES EXPECTED TO GIVE BOND SOON ON NEW CHARGE

$5000 Bail on Federal Mail Fraud Indictments to Be Returnable Sept. 21.

The four principals in the Muench baby hoax are expected to surrender this week and give $5000 bonds on a Federal indictment returned Friday charging them with using the mails to defraud by falsely convincing Dr. Marsh Pitzman that Mrs. Nellie Tipton Muench was the mother of a baby and that he was the father of the child.

Besides Mrs. Muench, the defendants are her husband, Dr. Ludwig O. Muench, Attorney Wilfred Jones, the baby broker, and Mrs. Helen Berroyer. It was charged in the indictment that the baby of Anna Ware, Pennsylvania domestic, was obtained to be palmed off as the child of the Muenches, and that the defendants convinced Dr. Pitzman that he actually was the child's father. Miss Ware recovered the child from the Muenches after a sensational habeas corpus hearing last fall.

Last April Dr. Pitzman testified in a trial at Kahoka, Mo., where the four principals in the baby hoax were charged with criminal conspiracy, that he had given Mrs. Muench a total of $16,000, for her expenses as a defendant in the Kelley kidnaping case, and on the representation that he was the father of the baby.

The mail fraud case has been assigned to the court of Judge George H. Moore and the bonds will be returnable Sept. 21. The case will be prosecuted by United States Attorney Harry C. Blanton.

OUTDOOR OPERA IN NEW YORK

"Carmen" Presented at Jones Beach; Stage Over Ocean.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 27. — Bizet's "Carmen" was presented at the opening of an outdoor opera season at Jones Beach tonight by Fortune Gallo's San Carlo Opera Company. The stage was over the water before stands with seats for 15,000.

Scenery was attached to large square pylons. For each of the four acts another side of the pylons was turned to the audience and folded wing-pieces were opened to provide a fresh setting. Coe Glade sang the title role of Carmen with Mostyn Thomas as Escamillo, the Toreador, and Dimitri Onofrei as Don Jose, her jealous soldier lover. Olga Kargau was Micaela, abandoned sweetheart of Don Jose, and Harold Kravitt sang the role of Zuniga, captain of the guard.

ST. LOUIS BOY KILLED IN AUTO UPSET IN EAST

Ben Landsman, 16, Hitch-Hiking to Washington, Loses Life in Pennsylvania.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Pa., June 27.—Ben Landsman, 16 years old, 5849 Theodosia avenue, St. Louis, was killed today when an automobile in which he was riding turned over on a road near here. He had been hitch-hiking to Washington, D. C., with a friend, Edward Wasserman of St. Louis, and they were riding with Ermel Johnson of Ashland, Ky., when the accident occurred.

Johnson and Wasserman escaped injury, but John Bowen, owner of the car and stepfather of Johnson, was seriously hurt.

Landsman, son of Mrs. Jennie Cohen, left his home early Monday, presumably to deliver newspapers. His mother had asked him not to go Washington, D. C., until fall, when he planned to enter high school there and live with relatives.

Mrs. Cohen received a letter from him Tuesday mailed in Indianapolis in which he said he had left with Wasserman and another friend, whom he did not name. He attended Ben Blewett High School until last fall when he quit to take a job delivering newspapers. Besides his mother, he is survived by a brother, Max Landsman, and a sister, Mrs. Lillian Altman.

COURT GIVES ADVICE ON RUNNING RAILROAD

Says Bankrupt Line Ought Not to Go in Debt for New Equipment.

A bankrupt railroad ought not to add to its debts by issuing equipment trust certificates for the purchase of new rolling stock, Federal Judge Charles B. Davis ruled yesterday in directing Berryman Henwood, trustee of the Cotton Belt Railroad, not to buy new equipment until the money to pay for it was available.

The Court authorized expenditure of $1,133,203 for improvements and maintenance, but denied a plea that the trustee be permitted to issue equipment trust certificates to purchase three new locomotives for $575,000 and five new air-conditioned coaches for $225,000.

The money the trustee was authorized to spend will go for new tracks and bridges, general maintenance and the purchase of 50 steel freight cars for transporting automobiles.

HOSPITAL HEAD TELLS HOW TO SOLICIT GIFTS

The Rev. R. D. S. Putney Says He Urges Wealthy Men to Donate and Cut Their Taxes.

MID-WEST MEETING COMES TO CLOSE

W. S. McNary of Denver New President, Dr. J. H. Jennett of Kansas City President-Elect.

The two-day convention of the Mid-West Hospital Association, composed of groups from Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma and Colorado, closed yesterday with the election of William S. McNary, superintendent of General Hospital, Denver, Colo., as president. He succeeded Walter J. Groiton, superintendent of City Hospital No. 1.

Dr. J. Harvey Jennett of Kansas City General Hospital was chosen president-elect, to take office next year. Other officers elected were T. J. McGinty of Southeast Missouri Hospital, Cape Girardeau, first vice-president; H. E. Suderman, Bethel Deaconess Hospital, Newton, Kan., second vice-president, and Florence King of Jewish Hospital, executive secretary and treasurer.

Advice on how to get contributions from philanthropists was given the members by the Rev. Rufus D. S. Putney, superintendent of St. Luke's Hospital. "There is nothing I love to do better than separate a rich man from his money," he said. "One of the best selling points I know is to stress the fact that he ought to give it to your hospital instead of to the Government in taxes, up to the 15 per cent charity exemption allowed. I got $50,000 from one man that way and I hope to get more.

Rich Men Asking to Give.

"People are making money again, although they may claim they are relatively poor. In the last three days, three people asked me where they could give away money. One was worth eight million dollars.

"Don't jump at people's gifts too eagerly. Sit down and talk it over and show them why they should give more. Don't let them off too easily. And work on the wealthy patients, the ones in the $18-a-day rooms. When they're convalescing, they're at your mercy," Dr. Putney said facetiously. "If it's a man at all interested in finances, go in show him your balance sheet, and ask him for advice on meeting expenses, and by the time he leaves he'll be a very healthy subject for an endowment.

"The hospital with the large endowment is in the most independent position. There is no control by a community fund, board of aldermen or state legislature."

Beer Versus Tea.

Representing tax supported hospitals, McNary, of the University of Colorado School of Medicine and Hospitals, declared that "while Dr. Putney is having tea with philanthropists, we're drinking beer with politicians." He said he found that Legislatures always adopt a policy of cutting requested budgets on the idea that institutions always ask for more money than they need. He advised keeping all requests nonpolitical.

At a round-table conference yesterday afternoon on a variety of hospital administration subjects, Dr. Malcolm T. MacEachern of Chicago, an associate director of the American College of Surgeons, declared that a physician, in supplying data for insurance companies, has the right to hold out such information "as might reflect on the character of the patient, possibly disturb his domestic relations or affect his position in society." Information on social diseases was among that which might ethically be withheld, he said.

In a discussion of cooling systems, the members were told that operating rooms should be disconnected from regular cooling systems, as they require a temperature of 85 degrees and a relative humidity of 77.

WALLACE APPOINTS DROUTH COMMITTEE

Says Government Will Send Livestock Feed to Four Central and Western States.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 27.—Secretary of Agriculture Wallace named today a committee of six, headed by Jesse W. Tapp, Assistant AAA Administrator, to co-ordinate Federal drouth relief, following a conference with President Roosevelt on the situation in the North-Central States.

Officials said the committee would work with the Relief Administration, Resettlement Administration, WPA and Rural Rehabilitation agency in conducting a plan of Federal assistance. Wallace announced 8000 tons of mill-feed had been made available through the Commodity Surplus Corporation for distribution as livestock food in Western North Dakota, Western South Dakota, Eastern Montana and Northeastern Wyoming. The feed is a by-product of Northwestern wheat milled for relief purposes.

Situation Serious.

Saying the situation is growing serious, Wallace told reporters:

"I told the President that we have a committee set up between the Department of Agriculture and the Rural Resettlement Administration to handle the drouth problem and the President has put out word to Harry Hopkins, Works Progress Administrator. We will be getting together in a very definite way, I think."

Other committee members are C. W. Warburton, director of the Agricultural Extension Service; Hugh H. Bennett, chief of the Soil Conservation Service; A. G. Black, chief of the Bureau of Agricultural Economics; W. S. Callander, assistant AAA director, and Joseph L. Dailey, assistant administrator of resettlement.

J. B. Kincer of the Weather Bureau said that June so far had brought practically no relief and precipitation was much below normal in nearly all sections. Only a few places between the Appalachian Mountains and the Rocky Mountains had as much as one-half the normal rainfall.

Worst in Spring Wheat Area.

The drouth is worst in the spring wheat area, Kincer said. North Dakota, which had only about one-third normal precipitation in May, had even less than that so far in June and rain now would be too late.

June precipitation has been less than one-fifth normal in Kentucky, Tennessee and Texas, a little less than one-fourth normal in Missouri, and one-third normal in Arkansas. Ohio has had only 33 per cent of its normal June supply; Indiana 37 per cent; Northern Illinois 37 per cent; Southern Illinois 42 per cent; Eastern Kansas 21 per cent, and Central Kansas 33 per cent.

Scattered showers fell in South Dakota communities today and a quarter of an inch of rainfall in Eastern North Dakota and Western Minnesota, but the benefit was slight. The mercury in those states today stood generally between 85 and 90 degrees.

The worst drouth in the history of Stutsman County, North Dakota, has transformed once fertile prairies into a dismal landscape. Many fields are blackened and yellow after receiving virtually no rain for a year. Wheat, burned and brittle, was heading four to eight inches from the sun-seared soil—if at all.

Livestock Being Trucked Out.

Cattle wandered among the parched crops and along roads, foraging for the sparse vegetation. Trucks are carrying livestock from the parched regions.

"I've been here 27 years and have never seen anything like it," said C. P. Conaway, secretary of the North Dakota Grain Dealers' Association. "It's developing into a catastrophe. The farther you go west the more serious it becomes. The only bright spots, outside of a few scattered areas which have had rain, are south and north of Grand Forks and along the Red River Valley at some points."

Of the 53 counties in the State, only five—Pembina, Walsh, Grand Forks, Traill and Cass—will harvest a normal wheat crop. The remainder will get little or no cash crop.

Water Shortage Threatened in South-Central Ozarks.

By the Associated Press.

WEST PLAINS, Mo., June 27.—Unless rain comes soon to the south-central Ozarks, farmers and some rural communities will face a serious water shortage. Springs, stock ponds, shallow wells, cisterns and small streams are dried up or running low and already many farmers are hauling water from West Plains and other neighboring towns.

West Plains itself has sufficient water in its three municipal wells, but the level in the deepest is the lowest since the well was sunk in 1923. Ordinarily the water stands at 75 feet below the ground. Now the level has fallen to 375 feet.

$10,000 FEE TO ATTORNEYS FROM STOCKSTROM ESTATE

Stove Manufacturer Left $39,000 in Bequests, Residue to Daughters.

Attorney fees of $10,000 for services to executors of the $2,941,000 estate of Charles A. Stockstrom, stove manufacturer, were granted yesterday by Probate Judge Glendy B. Arnold to Robert W. Hammerstein, Arthur E. Kammerer and Leo Rassieur Jr., who have offices in the Ambassador Building.

The attorneys' petition stated they had received no other compensation from the estate since their services began April 29, 1935, four days after Mr. Stockstrom's death.

The will left $39,000 in specific bequests, mostly to friends, and the residue to two daughters, Mrs. Ada Hein and Miss Olga Stockstrom, and a son, Carl Stockstrom. Mr. Stockstrom was a co-founder of the Quick Meal Stove Co., which was absorbed by the American Stove Co. A State inheritance tax of $145,936 was paid recently on his estate.

SOLOMON'S GATE AT MEGIDDO FOUND BY ARCHEOLOGISTS

Chicago U. Expedition Uncovers Historic Relic of Ancient Palestine.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 27.—The ancient gate that King Solomon built for the City of Megiddo has been uncovered in Palestine. Its discovery was announced today by the Oriental Institute of the University of Chicago.

A ramp leading up to the gate was paved with lime.

Megiddo controlled the pass over the Carmel Ridge inland from modern Haifa. The city was the scene of many great struggles, notably between ancient Egypt and Asiatic Powers.

Ex-Convict Swallows Poison.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 27. — Meyer Bogue, 55 years old, ex-convict and former police informer, was found unconscious in his hotel room by two detectives today. They said there was a package of poison tablets at his bedside. Bridewell Hospital physicians said his condition was serious. Detectives had called to question Bogue about the robbery yesterday of two New York jewelry dealers. Police said Bogue asserted he had taken the poison and wanted die.

SATURNS RINGS DISAPPEAR; EDGES TURNED TOWARD EARTH

Regular Occurrence Every 15 Years; Scietnists Study Thickness of Bands.

By the Associated Press.

EVANSTON, Ill., June 27.—The rings of the planet Saturn began to disappear tonight. Four knots of light were all that could be seen of the brilliant bands made up of millions of moons. The planet does this sleight of hand trick every 15 years.

What had happened was that Saturn had reached the point in its orbit where the earth was in the plane of the rings. For 14 years earth sees the circles tilted to a greater or lesser degree, like a saucer. On the fifteenth year, only the saucer's edge is seen.

Becauses Saturn is made of much less dense stuff than earth, and because it is bright with methane, the gas that makes "will-o-the-wisps" in marshlands, the section of the rings across the planet's face is not visible on earth. The rings show only where they protrude on each side of the sphere. From these small points of light, Dr. Oliver J. Lee, of Northwestern University's Dearborn observatory, hopes to determine how thick the rings are. The question has long been in dispute. Estimates range from 10 to 200 miles.

SOVIET LAW TAXES DIVORCES; GIVES AID TO BIG FAMILIES

Prison for Men Concerned in Illegal Operations, Public Rebuke for Women.

By the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, June 27.—A big family project, which taxes divorces and grants state aid to families with numerous children, became law tonight on approval by the All-Union Federal Executive Committee. It was signed by Michael Kalinin, president of the committee.

The law prohibits operations for prevention of childbirth and establishes graduated taxes of from 50 to 300 rubles ($10 to $60) for divorces, and provides for Government financial help to families with more than six children. Birth control operations are permitted only when the health of the prospective mother is bad or where there is serious hereditary disease.

Doctors performing illegal operations will be imprisoned. Men who induce women to undergo such operations will be liable for two years in prison. The women will be publicly rebuked.

Amounts fixed for support of children in divorces are one-quarter of the parents' income in the case of one child to one-third the income in the case of two children and one-half the income in the case of three or more children.

ST. CLAIR COUNTY WILL VOTE ON TAX BOARDS

Plan to Submit Abolition of Two Bodies to Election Approved by Supervisors.

A proposition to abolish the St. Clair County Board of Assessors and the Board of Review will be placed on the ballot in the November general election by authority of a resolution unanmously adopted yesterday by the St. Clair County Board of Supervisors at Belleville.

William F. Nies, chairman of the Taxation Committee, said the people of the county wanted a chance to vote on abolition of the boards, and for years had complained of the unequal property assessments made under the present system.

He also called attention to the numerous successful law suits brought by corporations against assessments fixed by the boards, and the injustice that resulted to the small property owner who couldn't afford the cost of such suits.

Assessment Machinery in County.

Valuations in St. Clair County first are made by the local assessor, may be changed in East St. Louis by the Board of Assessors, may be reviewed and changed again by the Board of Review, and then may be taken to court on a suit by the county or the property owner. St. Clair is the only county in Illinois with the two-board system. Besides the numerous local assessors, there are six member on the Board of Assessors and three on the Board of Review, besides clerical employes.

If the boards were eliminated, the County Treasurer would officiate as supervisor of assessments. Local assessors would fix valuations, which could be appealed to a board composed of the chairman of the Board of Supervisors and two other members appointed by the County Court. Appeal could be made to the Circuit Court.

Frequent petitions have been gotten up by taxpayers' organizations to place the proposition on the ballot but the Board of Supervisors never acted on the petitions.

Fee for Care of Paupers Raised.

Following the recent policy of the State in making townships more responible for the care of persons unable to support themselves, the board adopted a resolution to raise the charge to townships for care of paupers in county institutions from 45 to 65 cents per capita a day. Members of the finance committee said the 20 cents difference now was being paid from the general county fund.

The Road and Bridge Committee was authorized to secure right-of-way by condemnation suits if necessary for the east approach of the proposed St. Clair County bridge across the Mississippi River from a point near Cass avenue to National City. A mile of right-of-way is sought extending along St. Clair avenue near the limits of East St. Louis.

The board approved the proposed purchase of the right-of-way of the defunct East St. Louis, Columbia & Waterloo Railway, from the south boundary of East St. Louis to the Monroe County line for $16,000. The bid has been approved by the East St. Louis Federal Court and the deal will be completed tomorrow. It is intended to use the right-of-way for widening State Route No. 3, which the railway parallels. Assets of the company were sold at auction.

'BRITAIN PUSHING ITS REARMAMENT NIGHT AND DAY'

Neville Chamberlain Denounces Lloyd George for Calling Ministers Cowards on Sanctions.

ATTACKS OPPOSITION BY SOCIALISTS

Declares Their Protests Won't Prevent Carrying Out Costly Program of National Defense.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, June 27.—Great Britain's Chancellor of the Exchequer, Neville Chamberlain, declared tonight the empire was "devoting itself night and day" to the task of defensive rearmament.

"The rate of progress is increasing week by week as the plans are developing," he told a Conservative rally at Manchester.

Chamberlain also challenged the Socialist opposition to rearmament and attacked David Lloyd George, former Premier, for calling the Cabinet Ministers "cowards and traitors" because of their about-face on sanctions.

The Government's critics, he said, were "actuated by partisanship and personal pique, rather than by the true interests of the country."

The Government, he added, would not be disturbed by the Socialist protests against the rearmament program, "or by the evident fact the cost of this great program is going to be exceedingly heavy."

"In this great task of ensuring national safety," he said, "I never have doubted but that we would have the whole-hearted support of all thinking men and women of the country."

Challenge to Lloyd George.

The Chancellor asked Lloyd George point-blank whether he would demand "that we should risk bringing to our country the horrors which so shocked us in Ethiopia in order that we might avoid being thought 'cowards' by him." He declared he and Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden never had disagreed on foreign policy and "I object to its being represented that my words ever were intended to force his hand" on sanctions.

(Chamberlain's declarations, before the Cabinet decided to take the leadership in lifting sanctions from Italy, were interpreted in some quarters as indicating a ministerial split which might force Eden's hand. The Chancellor on one occasion said to continue sanctions would be "very midsummer madness.")

Londonderry Sticks to His Guns.

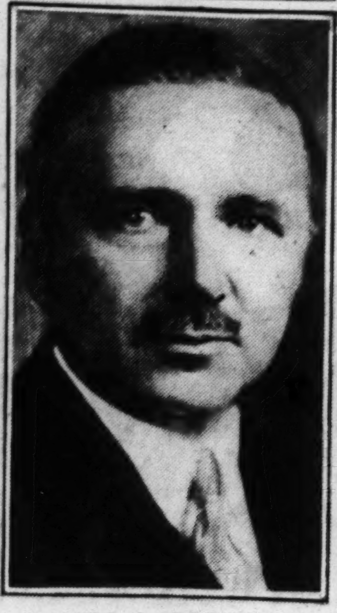
Lord Londonderry, former Lord Privy Seal and Air Minister, continues to maintain he had given Prime Minister Baldwin a true picture of German rearmament before he left the Cabinet last year. (Baldwin has said Britain was late in being informed of the true extent of German rearmament). He disavowed any intention of making a personal attack on the head of the Government, however.

"Every piece of information it was possible to give Mr. Baldwin was imparted to him, and on a recent visit to Germany I found all information I was capable of giving the Prime Minister to have been correct," he said.

The Labor leader, Herbert Morrison, at a Labor demonstration at Colchester, sarcastically remarked the Government was in such a sorry state that "if things were not so serious it would be almost funny."

"One would be tempted to ask Cochran (C. B. Cochran, theatrical producer) to make a revue out of it," he added.

CHARITY CAMPAIGNER



FRED L. ENGLISH.

FRED ENGLISH TO HEAD UNITED CHARITIES DRIVE

Former Circuirt Judge Named to Direct Fund-Raising Campaign.

Fred L. English, attorney and former Circuit Judge, has accepted the chairmanship of the annual United Charities fund-raising campaign which will be held in November, it was announced yesterday.

English is a member of the board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce and a member of its Charities Committee. He has been a solicitor in the special gifts division of United Charities campaigns for several years and was chairman of the speakers' bureau in the 1933 campaign.

Associated with him as an advisory committee for the campaign will be Oliver F. Richards, president of United Charities; Arnold C. Stifel, Aaron S. Rauh, Sidney Maestre, Leo C. Fuller, Hord Hardin, Frank C. Rand, Ethan A. H. Shepley, Benjamin M. Loeb and Tom K. Smith.

Campaign headquarters have been established in the offices of United Charities, 613 Locust street. Peter Kasius, director of United Charities, will be director of the campaign. Kirk E. Latta will be associate director.

Meetings of the advisory committee will be held in the near future to select leaders for the various divisions of the campaign organization. Much of the preliminary work has already been done and this will continue through the summer. The task involves obtaining the services of several thousand volunteer solicitors and the preparation of more than 200,000 cards for prospective donors.

SALESMAN TO SEEK SPECIMENS IN SOUTH AMERICA FOR ZOO

Pete French to Depart Tuesday With Four Boys On West Indies Journey.

Pete French, insurance salesman who spends his vacations collecting exhibits for the Zoo and serving as chaperon to touring students, will depart Tuesday with four boys on a trip to South America and the West Indies, during which he expects to obtain specimens for the Zoo.

French and his small party will fly to New Orleans Tuesday and sail that night aboard the steamer Austvangen. The ship will touch at islands of the West Indies, several South American countries, and will journey 150 miles up a river into the jungles of Dutch Guiana. French, who made similar trips the last two summers, expects to find friends he made on those occasions waiting with consignments of humming birds, snakes, lizards and monkeys for the Zoo. Last year he succeeded in bringing back 10 humming birds, which require almost constant observation and care on a journey.

PIERSON LAWYER SAYS HE'LL ANSWER GRAND JURY QUERIES

Jack Moore to Waive Immunity a Inquiry Into His Fight With Juror.

Jack Moore, one of the attorneys for Ralph Pierson, recently convicted of murder, notified Circuit Attorney Franklin Miller yesterday that he would waive immunity and answer the questions of member of the grand jury who have been directed by Circuit Judge James M. Douglas to investigate a police report that an attempt was made to obtain "a statement not based on fact" from a member of the Pierson jury.

Judge Douglas, in his instructions to the grand jury, mentioned no names but referred, obviously, to the meeting of Moore and Frank Hamm, one of the jurors, who had a fight last Monday night in a tavern at 5928 Delmar buolevard.

Moore told the Post-Dispatch, when it became known that he and Hamm had fought, that he went to see the juror to investigate a report that a remark prejudical to Pierson had been made by a deputy sheriff during the trial. Hamm told police that Moore had told him it would be possible to obtain a new trial for Pierson if he could get affidavits from four jurors that they had discussed their opinions before all the evidence had been presented.

Pierson, co-owner of the Buckingham Hotel Annex, destroyed by an incendiary fire in 1927 with a loss of seven lives, was sentenced to life imprisonment.

RUMORS OF IMPENDING 'PUTSCH' IN AUSTRIA HEARD IN PARIS

Some Official Anxiety Despite Vienna Denials—Two Killed in Montenegro.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, June 27.—Rumors of an impending "putsch" in Austria reached official France today. Most officials considered them "premature," but some indicated a measure of anxiety. The nature of the supposed movement—whether from monarchists or from Nazis—was nebulous.

Informed observers said that, if Austrian Nazis seized power, they did not see "what France or the Little Entente—Yugoslavia, Czecho-Slovakia and Rumania—could do." However, should Legitimists attempt to restore a Hapsburg throne and make the Archduke Otto the Emperor, officials thought the Little Entente probably would march on Austria.

(In Vienna, both Monarchists and Government officials scoffed at the "putsch reports." The death of two farmers and the wounding of 16 in the former Kingdom of Montenegro, now part of Yugoslavia, today, was attributed to monarchist agitation. In another part of the Balkan States—Rumania—military precautions were taken against expected anti-Jewish excesses tomorrow.)

CLEVELAND EXPOSITION OPENS

Roosevelt Presses Button in Washington.

CLEVELAND, O., June 27.—President Roosevelt pressed a button in Washington today and the gates of the Great Lakes Exposition opened here in the name of Ontario, Erie, Huron, Michigan and Superior.

Miss Marguerite Bacon, descendant of Moses Cleaveland, cut a white ribbon at the gateway and visitors poured into the grounds. Secretary of Commerce Roper conveyed the Federal Government's greetings and defended the right "to guide our actions for the good of the country."

WINDSTORM HITS COAST NEAR CORPUS CHRISTI, TEX.

15 Small Craft Reported Sunk at Port Aransas; Wind Reaches 80 Miles an Hour.

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex., June 27.—The first tropical hurricane to endanger the Texas coast this summer passed inland between Aransas Pass and Matagorda Bay late today, missing coastal cities. There were no reports of major property damage or loss of life.

The district coast guard superintendent at Galveston said he had been advised by radio 15 small craft were sunk or stranded at Port Aransas. Wind velocity was reported to have reached 80 miles an hour.

EAST SIDE RELIEF FUNDS TO BE CUT SHARPLY IN JULY

Unemployed to Get Little or No Aid During Shift From County to Township Administration.

ESTIMATED TAX YIELD INSUFFICIENT

Available Money Likely to Fall Short of $26.60-a-Month-Per-Family Budget by Half.

Families receiving unemployment relief in East St. Louis and St. Clair County generally after Wednesday, when the Illinois Emergency Relief Commission is to surrender administration of relief to the individual townships, will be confronted with the necessity of of subsisting on sharply reduced budgets, and with very little or no aid during the first three weeks of July.

Legislation recently passed abolished the 102 county administrative units of the Illinois Emergency Relief Commission and set up in their place some 1500 township units, each administered by the township supervisor. The commission will continue in existence as a skeleton agency to determine needs of the townships and to recommend to the State Auditor of Public Accounts their monthly allocations out of revenues from the 3-cent occupational sales tax.

One approved measure allocated to relief is one-third of the sales tax income, thus yielding an estimated $2,000,000 monthly, which must be pro-rated to all of the townships on the basis of need. Before townships may share in this fund they must at some time in July levy a property tax of 30 cents on the $100 assessed valuation.

Estimate of Needs.

The East St. Louis Town Board, in a requisition to the State relief commission, has placed the needs of East St. Louis at $66,180. For the 2300 families on relief, representing 7590 persons, this amount would provide a monthly budget of $26.60 for the average family of 3.3 persons who would be furnished food, fuel, clothing, rent, household necessaries and medical aid.

An appeal sent to Gov. Horner urging him to increase the State relief appropriations set forth the predicament in which the city will find itself after July 1. The estimated monthly income for East St. Louis from the sales tax will be $21,162 and from the 30-cent property tax levy, assuming 100 per cent collection, $12,500, making a total of $33,662 available each month, or about half the amount necessary.

The $26.60 relief budget obviously will have to be reduced in proportion as the funds made available are short of the $66,180 required. If only $33,662 is forthcoming, the budgets will have to be cut to $13.30. George M. Curry, County Relief Administrator, estimated this amount would care for only about 80 per cent of the food budget, leaving nothing for the other necessaries.

Orders Must Await Funds.

State funds will not be distributed to the townships until about July 25, so that townships will be left to their own resources till then. The measure appropriating these funds for relief prohibits the townships from anticipating against them. Thus relief orders cannot be issued until funds actually are in hand.

East St. Louis township officials are fearful that insurmountable barriers may be encountered in raising local funds. The board will meet early in July to adopt an ordinance levying the 30-cent property tax. After a legal opinion is rendered on the ordinance, it will then be closely scrutinized by the legal departments of the banks to which tax anticipation warrants, issued against the levy, will be offered for sale.

If a considerable number of large East St. Louis industries indicate they will object to payment of the taxes, the banks may refuse to purchase the warrants, leaving the township to carry on with only $21,162 in State funds. Sale of the warrants is expected to occupy the first two or three weeks of July.

Last County Relief Checks.

Some families will be cared for until the middle of July by the present County Emergency Relief Committee. Budget checks for two weeks will be issued to families in alphabetical order of their names throughout the last half of June. When these payments are exhausted, the families will be on their own until township funds come in.

The 22 townships of St. Clair County have placed their aggregate relief needs at $109,319 for July, and have applied to the State for $98,194 of this amount, taking the position that no local funds will be available until taxes are paid on the 30-cent levy. Administrative costs, which must be borne by the townships, will be $11,125. It is estimated $40,000 will accrue monthly from the sales tax and $32,000 from the local tax (assuming 100 per cent collection), yielding a total of $72,000 toward the required amounts.

PIERCE KINGSLEY FATALLY INJURED

Director of Alton Little Theater Group in Auto-Bus Collision.

Pierce Kingsley, director of the Alton Little Theater Group, scenic artist and retired actor, who used to tell of playing with George Arliss and W. C. Fields, was killed in an automobile accident in East Alton Friday.

Returning with two employes from St. Louis, where they had been working on his motorboat, his car crashed into the back of a Wood River-Alton bus, which had stopped for a passenger a block east of the Big Four Railroad crossing of U. S. Highway No. 67. Bystanders had difficulty in removing him from the wreckage of the sedan. Kingsley, who was said to be in his 50s and who resided at 609 East Broadway, Alton, died almost immediately. His head and body were crushed.

The employes, Harry Pratt and Charles Wilson, who were cut and bruised, were taken to St. Joseph's Hospital.

MORE SCHOOL PLAYGROUNDS TO BE OPENED TOMORROW

Activities to Start at Carr, O'Fallon, Gratiot, Central High and Froebel.

Five additional public school playgrounds will be opened tomorrow for the rest of the summer, bringing the number in operation to 55. They will be at the following schools: Carr, 1421 Carr street; O'Fallon, 1409 North Fifteenth street; Gratiot, 1615 Hampton avenue; Central High, 3616 North Garrison avenue, and Froebel, 3709 Nebraska avenue.

They will be open on Mondays to Fridays, inclusive, from 1 to 5 p. m., except the Froebel, which will be open from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. Beginning tomorrow, the Dozier School playground, 5749 Maple avenue, will be open also from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m.

Handicraft, dancing and sports activities have progressed in the two weeks the playgrounds have been in service. More than 5000 children have enrolled in the handicraft classes. Inter-playground sports competition will start tomorrow.

$34,700 SECURED NOTES IN INVENTORY OF REHME ESTATE

Retired Banker Left Assets of $4246 and Land and Notes Valued at About $38,000.

An inventory of the estate of Henry R. Rehme, retired banker, who died March 31, filed in Probate Court yesterday, listed assets of $4246, and in addition 50 acres of land in Jefferson County and notes with a face value of about $38,000, the value of which was described in the inventory as unknown. Of the notes, $34,700 were secured and the rest unsecured.

The will of Mr. Rehme, who resided at 4127 Nebraska avenue and was formerly vice-president and trust officer of the South Side National Bank, left about $11,500 in specific bequests, including $2000 each to four children, Mrs. Martha Offenbacher and Joseph L., Albert A. and Gregory A. Rehme, and $1000 each to three grandchildren. The residue was left to his widow.

Daughters of Russian Revolution.

MAN SHOT IN QUARREL IN EAST ST. LOUIS

Charles Englehart Wounded by W. B. Finley, Who Says Victim Attacked Him.

Charles Englehardt, 65-year-old WPA worker, was shot and seriously wounded yesterday afternoon by Walter B. Finley, a grocer, following a quarrel in front of Finley's store at 1820 Lynch avenue, East St. Louis.

Finley, who was taken into custody, admitted the shooting, according to East St. Louis police. He said Englehardt had threatened him several times, and yesterday afternoon, after telling him that he would kill him, attacked him with a pocket knife. Finley said he fired after he had struggled with Englehardt for several minutes for possession of the knife.

Englehardt was shot once through the left shoulder near the heart. He was taken to St. Mary's Hospital, East St. Louis. He resides at 1324 North Nineteenth street, East St. Louis.

Finley told police that he was sitting on a bench in front of his store when Englehardt walked by and said: "I'm going to get me a new knife and then I'm coming back to kill you." He walked away, Finley said, and then Finley went into his store, got a revolver, and came back to the bench.

A little later Englehardt, who had been drinking, came back, Finley said, pulled an open pocket knife out of his pocket, and attacked him.

After he was shot Englehardt walked into a tavern next door, where a friend called an ambulance. Finley did not say what the quarrel was about. He is 58 years old and resides at 1816 Lynch avenue.

BOY, 10, FOUND MURDERED NEAR TAWAS CITY, MICH.

Mutilated Body of Child, Who Disappeared Monday From Ranch, Left by River.

By the Associated Press.

TAWAS CITY, Mich., June 27.—The mutilated body of 10-year-old Robert Kenyon, of Detroit, missing from a ranch near here since Monday, was found today by a fisherman along the Au Gres River.

The child's head was nearly severed, his ears and tongue had been cut off, and his jaw was dislocated.

The boy went with a dog Monday to round up the cows. The dog came back alone.

RIVERFRONT MEMORIAL STAFF BEING FORMED

Office Opened—Work to Begin If Legal Obstacles Are Removed.

Steps are being taken by the National Park Service, the Federal Government agency in charge of the proposed Jefferson Memorial on the river front, to proceed with the acquisition of the site and preliminary construction, if legal obstacles are removed.

John L. Nagle, designated by the Park Service to be superintendent of the memorial, opened an office yesterday in the Buder Building, 705 Market street, and began organizing a staff to carry on various phases of the work.

To a Post-Dispatch reporter he said that unless an injunction were granted against the memorial by the Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia, he expected to begin soon the actual acquisition of land in the 37-block area which has been defined as the site.

The District of Columbia Court of Appeals probably will rule Tuesday on the petition of 38 business firms in the memorial area for a temporary injunction. Such an injunction was denied last Wednesday by Justice Joseph W. Cox of the District of Columbia Supreme Court, but the applicants appealed to the higher court, which may or may not grant a temporary injunction pending hearing on the merits.

Although the completed memorial project is expected to cost about $30,000,000, the funds which will be immediately available if no injunction is granted will be $6,750,000 allotted by the Federal Government and $2,250,000 from a city bond issue, a total of $9,000,000. This is expected to provide for acquiring and clearing the site and for first stage of improvement.

As superintendent, Nagle will have supervision of all phases of the work. Under him there will be an administration department, with an executive officer and a chief clerk; a real estate department, with appraisers, title examiners and various assistants; a landscape branch, in charge of Charles Peterson as senior landscape architect; a branch of architecture; a branch of design under Julian C. Spotts as engineer of design; a branch of construction, which will have charge of demolition of old buildings and all new construction, and a technical branch for map making, the drawing of contracts and the like.

There also will be a legal department in charge of John L. McNatt of St. Louis as a special attorney for the Department of Justice. This division will have charge of condemnation proceedings.

Nagle said that most of the employes, except those in supervisory positions filled by regular employes of the National Park Service, would be selected in St. Louis. He said no steps had been taken thus far toward acquisition of any property, and that there would be no hurry about it. The policy will be to purchase property when the price can be agreed on, but otherwise to acquire it by condemnation.

4 HELD ON SUSPICION IN INTIMIDATION CASE

Arrests Follow Attempted Shooting of Witness in Auto Theft Trial.

Four men, arrested by two Government agents and accompanying city detectives yesterday, were held for the Government on suspicion of intimidating Government witnesses. The arrests follow the attempted shooting of Harvey Miller, witness in a pending automobile theft case.

The men arrested were Henry Ronsiek, two-time former convict, Mehlville, St. Louis County, against whom Miller is scheduled to testify in September; John Schaeffer, a welder, living in a hotel at Broadway and Cass avenue, convicted of an automobile theft charge in April, and two others.

Miller, a used car dealer, pleaded guilty in April to an indictment charging him and nine others with transporting stolen cars between St. Louis and Iowa points, in violation of the Dyer Act. Sentence was suspended, after Miller promised to testify for the Government in other pending cases.

Miller was in front of his salesroom at 3527 North Twenty-fifth street, Wednesday night, with a customer, Charles Fricke of 2814 Parnell street, when both were wounded slightly with shotgun pellets, Miller having a flesh wound in the abdomen and Fricke being slightly wounded in the right leg. Ronsiek was questioned by police at the time. The Government men who took up the case and made the arrests yesterday were H. Wiltse and R. J. Mann.

PROPOSALS FOR CURB ON SUPREME COURT

Only One Speaker at Labor Institute Against Changing Present System.

By the Associated Press.

TAMIMENT, Pa., June 27.—Solicitor-General Henry Epstein of New York today defended before the annual meeting of the Tamiment Economic and Social Institue the existing legislative and judicial procedure of the United States.

Epstein, who presented two plans for the benefit of labor as worthy of passage by State legislatures, was the only speaker in the three-day conference of labor leaders and students, to assert that a constitutional amendment to curb the power of the Supreme Court was unnecessary under the American democracy.

"A majority of one in the Supreme Court should have all the sanctity and force of a unanmious decision, because that is the core of the democratic form of government," Epstein said.

He said he had presented his two plans—one to provide State supervision of organization of labor for collective bargaining. The other to give States authority to fix minimum wages—to Senator Wagner (Dem.), New York, and to Secretary of Labor Perkins for study.

Epstein said under the first plan the State industrial commissioner would have the power to "inform employes of the p urpose and value of collective bargaining and endeavor to achieve . . . employe organization."

In the other, wage-cutting as a basis for market competition would be outlawed through establishment of minimum wage requirements for specific services or occupations.

Other speakers at the conference advocated amendment of the Constitution to limit the powers of the Supreme Court, broadening the "general welfare" clause or even by altering the method of amending the Constitution to permit simple majorities of the electors of three-fourths of the state to ratify.

These speakers included Charlton Ogburn, general counsel of the American Federation of Labor; Louis Waldman, New York right wing Socialist leader, and Max Zaritsky, head of the Cap and Millinery International.

Morris R. Cohen, professor of philosophy of the College of the City of New York, said he opposed the Supreme Court's having the veto power over Congress "by either a majority or a unanimous vote," and added "it would be safer for us to be at the mercy of the majority of our representatives in Congress than of one Supreme Court Justice who may or may not know for what he is voting."

The conference will close tomorrow with addresses by Senator Holt (Dem.), West Virginia, and Sidney Hillman, head of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, on "Political Currents in 1936."

EDUCATORS TO DISCUSS FREEDOM OF TEACHING

District of Columbia Restrictions to Be Considered at Convention at Portland, Ore.

PORTLAND, Ore., June 27.—Delegates were arriving today for the seventy-fourth convention of the National Education Association, which opens Monday. A lively discussion of congressional restrictions on the teaching of the facts of Communism and other political philosophies in the schools of the District of Columbia was forecast.

Belmont Farley, public relations director of the association, predicted "decisive action." Another topic slated for discussion was a questionnaire advocated by Representative Thomas L. Blanton (Dem.), Texas, designed to disclose the religious leanings, political and intellectual inclinations of public school teachers.

Although some educators have taken a grave view of recent student strikes, Miss Agnes Samuelson of Des Moines, Ia., association president, termed them "just spurts of youthful enthusiasm," and said, "There are very, very few of these demonstrations" in proportion to the total number of schools.

The teachers will hear a three-sided political debate, with Gov. Paul V. McNutt of Indiana speaking for the Democrats; former Representative Burton L. French of Idaho for the Republicans and Norman Thomas for the Socialists.

ARKANSAS FARMER PUTS RADIO ON HIS COTTON CULTIVATOR

Provides Music for Two Other Teams in Field at Paragould; Neighbors Gather Round.

By the Associated Press.

PARAGOULD, Ark., June 27.—Herschel Batey's mule team moved up and down the cotton rows today pulling the first musical cultivator ever seen in these parts. While astonished neighbors gatherad round, Batey explained he hitched a radio to the cutivator to satisfy his love for music and baseball scores—especially those of the St. Louis Cardinals.

Batey installed the receiver and batteries on the tongue of the implement. The aerial was set up from the front to the back and the frame was used for a ground.

There are two teams in the field beside his own. So Batey takes the center row and the other teams go on each side of him. They all get entertainment while they ride along.

SCOUTS SAIL TO ST. LOUIS

Started From Chicago June 11 in Home-Made Motor Boat.

Three Chicago Boy Scouts arrived in St. Louis yesterday in a 12-foot home-made outboard motor boat after a 16-day, 350-mile cruise from Chicago through the drainage canal, the Illinois River and the Mississippi River.

The boys, John Mehagan, 16, Warren Anderson, 15, and Edward Ford, 15, left Chicago June 11, camping out at night and cooking their own meals. They intend to remain here until they sell their boat, which it took seven weeks to construct. The cruise was originally suggested by their geography teacher at the Lyons Township School, who helped them prepare for the trip. Two days after the lads had left Chicago the teacher died.

MONT BLANC TUNNEL PLANS

Auto Passage to Be 7.8 Miles Long and 28 Feet Wide.

PARIS, June 27.—Plans for boring a road tunnel through Mont Blanc, Europe's highest mountain peak, are nearing completion. It is proposed to link up the French Arve Valley with the Doire Valley on the Italian side. The north side entrance of the tunnel will be near Chamonix, about 3150 feet above sea level, while the southern entrance will be near the Italian village, Entreves.

The total length of the tunnel will be 7.8 miles and its width 28 feet. The tunnel will afford the shortest distance between Paris and Rome via Chamonix. A toll will be levied according to the weight of the cars and the number of passengers.

Genuine Goodyear quality at lowest price — a great tire that is a great buy for little money

Getting ready for another day's blistering grind

WE KNEW our new Double Eagle Airwheel was the safest tire Goodyear had ever produced — for we had combed the earth for finest materials; developed new building methods, spared no expense to give you superlative protection against the most extreme hazards of modern driving.

Then, to check up on ourselves, we pitted it against the two most relentless enemies of tires — speed and heat — on Bonneville Salt Flats in the Utah desert, the world's fastest speedway.

"Give it the works"

"Kick the accelerator wide open! See how much punishment it can take," Goodyear told its veteran test drivers.

And they did. Day after day. Week after week. At topmost speed . . . around a 10 mile saucer of cement-hard salt with the mercury boiling up, up, up to 130° F. — a hell on wheels for men and tires!

Alongside we tested tires of other makes, but long after these had weakened or "burned out" these new Double Eagles kept on and on — setting new records for endurance and safety in stock tire performance!

The world's finest safety equipment

If you can afford the best, if you want proved protection against blowouts, against skidding, against every tire emergency, you should equip your car with this super-standard tire and its companion-in-safety the Goodyear LifeGuard* Tube.

Built not to save money but to save life, these two infallible Goodyear guardians give you a mighty margin of extra safety, at mighty little extra cost.

Inconclusive Movements Of Stock Prices; Steels Sell Off While Oils Develop Strength

Indication of an Increased Desire of Some Traders to Withdraw From Market Pending Clearer View of Values.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 27.—Financial markets were pushed forward by better business this week only to be jolted in the late sessions by prospects of labor trouble in the steel industry.

Early in the week steel shares met with good demand from sources encouraged by the more than seasonal operating gains.

Oil issues, aided by the improved statistical position of petroleum and the outlook for brisk summer consumption, joined steels in the rise. Oils held their ground. Steels did not.

Financial circles, long impressed by the abnormal driving power of the steel industry at this season, were confronted with the realization that threatened labor troubles for steel-makers may prove a stumbling block.

While this hitch in the industry's progress is seen by most as distant, it overshadowed business circles the past week. Meanwhile steel experts said some of the recent activity of mills was attributable to forward buying for inventory against the higher prices soon to take effect.

A measure of the stock market's jumpy frame of mind was taken from the fact that Thursday's decline was accompanied by the heaviest volume in more than a month.

Inconclusive Action.

On the whole, however, analysts said the week's performance was inconclusive. Liquidation of some groups which proceeded under cover of strength in the oils was believed symptomatic of an increasing desire of traders to withdraw from the market pending a clearer view of both domestic and foreign factors.

Notwithstanding the various recent studies designed to show that presidential elections are not usually major stock market influences, the rank and file of Wall street men watched closely developments on this front.

Opinions that the present pace of business and industrial recovery is fast enough to generate its own sustained power were offset by misgivings in some circles over the long-term effect of the newly enacted tax law.

Analysts insisted the new tax will in some instances bring a spurt in dividends; in other case it was held companies will plow "excess" funds into plant, equipment and improvement; that it would leave corporate treasuries somewhat hard pressed for reserves in lean years was believed by most.

Bank of France Rate Cut.

The marking down of the Bank of France discount rate from 6 to 5 per cent on Tuesday and to 4 per cent on Thursday was regarded in banking circles as primarily a "New Deal" effort by the new French Government to stimulate internal business improvement by lowering the cost of money to business.

To some extent the lower French rate reflected abatement of political and labor distress which had seriously threatened the stability of the franc.

In the bond market various medium priced rails which had been speculative favorites bumped into liquidation. Polish obligations broke sharply on word service on loans would be paid in blocked zlotys owing to reduction in the country's trade balance.

Sales for the week amounted to 5,789,710 shares, compared with 5,146,906 a week ago and 4,970,328 corresponding week a year ago. Total sales from Jan. 1 to date were 262,419,075 shares, compared with 124,826,725 a year ago and 215,237,415 two years ago.

Steels and Motors Lead.

Steels and motors assumed leadership of the market at final session of week and pulled the list out of an irregular trend into a small but definite gain at the close.

As has been usual in recent Saturday sessions, the interest in trading was small with professionals providing the bulk of activity. Transactions amounted to 366,350 shares compared with 317,180 shares the week before with more than half of the buying and selling in the last hour.

U. S. Steel, which gained ⅝ of a point at 61½, pointed the general trend. Its low for the day was 60½, and the close was only ¼ under the highest.

Chrysler, another leader, got up a point to 109, nearly two better than the day's low.

Chicago Great Western preferred gained a top place when the Interstate Commerce Commission approved the road's plan to establish rules and charges for carrying motor trucks and trailers loaded with freight or empty. The stock was up ¾ at 8¼.

General Motors was in the van at a gain of ⅝ to 66⅞, and a scattered but select list of rails, oils, utilities and industrials and specialties were unchanged to fractionally higher.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks edged up .1 of a point to 64.0 with 30 industrials up .1, 15 rails up .2 and 15 utilities unchanged on balance.

Socony-Vacuum was active and ⅛ higher at 13¼ after the company announced a reduction of 1 cent a gallon in gasoline in line with the lowering of the New York State tax to 3 cents from 4 cents a gallon.

Consolidated Oil moved narrowly and was unchanged, but the comparatively heavy volume was attributed to surveys showing that about $3,200,000 a year has been saved in the past two years in interest and preferred dividends through various refundings and exchanges.

Telephone Is Weak.

American Telephone proved a weak spot when it closed at 164¾, off ¾, but considerable strength developed to bring it up from the day's low of 162¾. The Public Service Commission ordered a cut in charges of the company's principal New York subsidiary. International Telephone was unchanged, and Western Union gained ½ at 86½.

Other steels were firm at small advances. Bethlehem closed at 52⅜, up ⅝; Gulf States Steel 46¼, up ¼; Ludlum 24, up ⅞; Otis Steel 13⅞, up ⅛; and Republic 19¼, up ¼.

American Radiator, Johns-Manville and several others were higher by fractions to as much as 2 points, in the case of Johns-Manville which closed at 104¾.

Among the rails, Union Pacific rose 1⅞ to 130, and New York Central edged higher by ⅜ to 36⅞. Northern Pacific and Canadian Pacific were active but unchanged.

A repatriation of French funds from New York led to a second sharp advance in the franc against the dollar. Commodities lent nothing in particular to the stock trend.

Wheat turned lower near the close and ended ¼ to ⅝ of a cent a bushel lower. Corn was off ⅝ to ⅞ of a cent a bushel, and cotton was 20 to 30 cents a bale higher.

Day's 15 Most Active Stocks.

Sales, closing price and net change of the 15 most active stocks: U. S. Steel, 9400, 61½, up ⅝; Chi. Gt. W., pfd., 9100, 8¼, up ¾; Chrysler, 9100, 109, up 1; Gen. Motors, 8400, 66⅞, up ⅝; Univ. Pipe & Rad., 7600, 1, down ¼; Curtiss-Wright, 6700, 5½, down ⅛; Unit. Corp., 5900, 7⅛, unchanged; McCrory Strs., 4700, 14½, up 1⅛; Socony Vac., 4700, 13¼, up ⅛; Cons. Oil, 4100, 13¼, unchanged; N. Y. Central, 4000, 36⅞, up ⅜; Am. Crystal Sug., 4000, 27⅝, up 1; Cons. Edison, 3600, 35½, unchanged; Radio, 3400, 11⅝, up ¼; Pure Oil, 3200, 18½, down ⅛.

INDUSTRIAL ACTIVITY REACHES NEW PEAK

Index at 91.3 of 1929-30 Average Compared With 72.9 Year Ago.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 27.—Tramping steadily upward, the legions of industry scored the ninth new peak for the year in the last 11 weeks today.

The Associated Press Index of industrial activity stood at 91.3—the highest since mid-1930—against 90.9 last week and 72.9 in the same period a year ago.

On a seasonally adjusted basis only one component of the Index declined, automobile production; while two, electric power output and residential building, established new tops for 1936.

Residential construction continued to show a strong backlog of orders, although the normal peak for the letting of contracts was passed in April.

Total carloadings improved slightly. The gain would have been more substantial but for declines in coal, coke and less-than-carlot shipments. Electric power production was at the highest level ever recorded, with the drouth prompting irrigation pumping in the West and industrial takings at a record rate.

Steel mill activity was maintained by the large orders placed against the July 1 price advances. The output of cotton goods was slightly better.

The Index, with its seasonally adjusted components based on the latest available statistics, and with 1929-1930 as 100, follows:

	Latest Week.	Prev. Week.	Year Ago
*Composite Index—	91.3	90.9	72.9
Automobile Prod.—	92.3	93.4	82.0
Steel mill activity—	94.2	93.9	50.6

*Electric Power Product — — —	110.5	109.8	99.7
*Residential bldg.—	49.9	48.3	32.1
Total carloadings —	71.5	71.3	58.8

CURB STOCKS, EXCEPT OILS, GENERALLY UP

Metal Shares Are Best Performers as a Group—Trade Light.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 27.—With the exception of easing tendencies in a prominent group of oil shares, generally higher prices prevailed in the curb market today.

That many traders were absent from board rooms in an extended weekend holiday was indicated by the small turnover of 93,000 shares, against 108,000 last Saturday.

Metal shares proved the best performers as a group. Hollinger Gold pushed up 1¼ points to 81¾, New Jersey Zinc at 81¾ improved more that a point and active issues such as Sunshine, Hecla and Newmont held steady.

Other shares closing minor fractions higher included Electric Bond & Share, Excello Aircraft, Niagara Hudson and Technicolor. Losers included Gulf Oil, Humble, Pennroad and United Gas preferred.

Confidence in Gold Currencies Mounts Steadily During Week

French Franc Leads Upward Movement—Outflow of Metal From That Country Is Stopped.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 27.—Confidence in gold currencies mounted steadily throughout this week with the French franc leading the upward movement. The outflow of gold was stopped and the French Minister of Finance, Vincent Auriol, told the Chamber of Deputies late in the week that several millions of dollars in gold had been returned to the country by secret hoarders.

Large scale short covering, together with a steady flow of funds back to Paris sent the turbulent French franc above its dollar par to 6.64 cents in foreign exchange trading Saturday. The par is 6.6334 cents.

Other gold units moved sympathetically with the franc. The Holland guilder advanced .11 of a cent to 68.20 in New York, also above its dollar par, the Swiss franc improved .06 of a cent to 32.76 cents and belgas gained .02 of a cent to 16.91 cents.

The British pound sterling advanced ⅜ of a cent in New York to $5.03¼ after the dollar had closed in London at $5.02 3-16. In Paris the American unit ended at an equivalent of 6.635 cents to the franc.

Further evidence of the turn in favor of the French unit was seen by market experts in the forward rate, which narrowed to a discount of .24 of a cent from the spot rate, compared with Friday's .29 of a cent.

Based on the franc at its final New York rate the dollar was at a discount of 10-100 of 1 per cent, compared with a premium of 11-100 on Friday and a premium of 75-100 a month ago.

Francs touched a low of 6.59¾ cents a week ago and displayed spectacular strength Friday in rushing up .02⅝ of a cent to 6.62⅞. At that advanced point the dollar declined to a premium of 11-100 of 1 per cent compared with 73-100 a month ago when confidence in the ability of the Blum Government to keep finances stable was at low ebb.

The pound sterling moved narrowly all week with the exchange equalization fund ironing out what might have been wide swings. A week ago it was quoted at $5.01¾. On Tuesday it was at a high point of $5.02⅝ in moving against the franc.

Belgian belgas were narrow and edged from a high of 16.93 cents a week ago to a low of 16.89 yesterday.

Holland guilders, on the other hand, came under the French influence at week-end to reach a peak of 68.09 cents.

Both the Swiss and Polish currencies followed much the same trend, although the zloty fluctuation was within a smaller range.

No little factor in the strength of gold monies was the lowering of the rediscount rate of the Bank of France to 5 per cent from 6 and to 4 per cent from 5 within the week, an unprecedented maneuver which sought to make funds plentiful and cheap for industrial expansion needed to offset increased wages forced by strikes.

OUTSIDE BANK FUNDS RETURNED LAST WEEK

Local Bank Clearings for Week $111,300,000 Against $98,900,000 Previous Period.

The St. Louis Clearing House Association's weekly report as of the close of business Friday disclosed a partial return of funds withdrawn from city banks the preceding week, the bank deposit item showing an increase of $8,915,000 to $149,442,000. Total deposits increased $11,176,000 to $524,611,000; demand deposits increased $1,885,000 to $276,255,000; time deposits increased $376,000 to $98,914,000 loans and discounts decreased $4,422,000 to $120,857,000; bond and stock accounts increased $4,445,000 to $261,225,000; total resources increased $11,257,000 to $579,822,000; total lawful reserves increased $11,575,000 to $85,939,000.

Total clearings last week amounted to $111,300,000 compared with $98,900,000 the previous week. Debits to individual accounts last week totaled $119,300,000 compared with $144,500,000 the preceding week and $115,700,000 the corresponding week last year. The daily average debits to individual accounts last week was $19,883,000 compared with $24,013,000 the previous week and $19,263,000 corresponding week last year.

Local money rates were as follows: Prime commercial paper, ¾@1 per cent; customers' loans, 1½@5½ per cent; collateral loans, 2½@6 per cent; loans secured by warehouse receipts, 2@5½ per cent.

Washington Commerce Notes

WASHINGTON, June 27. — The East, with a gain of 26.5 per cent over May, 1935, captured the lead in retail merchandise sales in small towns and rural areas last month, the Commerce Department reports. The South, based on preliminary estimates, was credited with an increase of 21.5, the Middle West 19.5 and the Far West 24.5 per cent. For the first five months the Far West led with an increase of 19 per cent over the corresponding period last year. The East followed with a gain of 14 per cent, the South with 10 and the Middle West with 7.5.

Domestic production of crude coal tar products increased last year to 276,543,798 gallons, valued at $12,018,920, from 263,985,746 worth $11,615,113 in 1934, according to a compilation by the tariff commission.

Loans for new home building by Federal Savings and Loan Associations have topped lending for re-financing of old mortgages, reversing the trend of the last few years, the home loan bank board reports. Out of $17,890,000 loaned by 1006 Federal associations last month, 31 per cent was for new building ond only 29 per cent for re-financing. Purchases of old properties accounted for 29 per cent and repairs 7.7 per cent. In the same month last year, 25.5 per cent was loaned for new construction, compared with 41.9 for re-financing.

Silver imports reported by the Commerce Department jumped to $6,378,638 last week from $1,006,822 the preceding week as result of arrival of $5,583,764 from China. The treasury recently agreed to buy silver from China to aid its currency stabilization program. Gold imports dropped to $79,464,862 from $101,178,087 the week before.

A wide gain over last year, but little change from April are shown in the Commerce Department's May index of retail sales of new passenger automobiles. Adjustment for seasonable variation, it stood at 92.5 per cent of the 1929-31 average compared with 93 in April and 70 in May, 1935. Sales were 40 per cent above the 1935 figure and 76 per cent higher than in 1934.

Tonnage building or under contract in American yards for private shipowners totaled 153,866 on May 1 compared with 136,804 on April 1, the Bureau of Navagation reports. The total included 13 seagoing vessels of 1000 gross tons or over, approximating altogether nearly 80,000 tons.

An increase of 27 per cent in dollar volume of retail sales last month compared with May, 1935 was reported to the Commerce Department by 395 independent stores in Indiana. All lines shared in the gain, with motor vehicle sales up 75 per cent over last year, hardware 27 and furniture 26.6.

C. & O. REFUNDING WOULD SAVE ROAD $19,055,465

WASHINGTON, June 27.—The Chesapeake & Ohio Railroad Co. asked the Interstate Commerce Commission today to authorize the issuance and sale of $29,500,000 in 60-year refunding and improvement mortgage bonds which it estimated would save $19,055,465 in interest charges.

The bonds would bear 3½ per cent interest and be dated Aug. 1, with maturity in 1996. They would be known as series "E" bonds.

They would replace $24,784,000 of outstanding series "A" bonds, bearing 4½ per cent interest and due to mature Oct. 1, 1993, and series "C" bonds of the railroad now held in its treasury aggregating $4,716,000, bearing 4½ per cent interest and maturing Sept. 1, 1996.

The railroad proposed to handle the issue through investment bankers, but said it had made no contracts for the sale.

The series "A" bonds now held by the public would be called Oct. 1 at 110 per cent of par.

The carrier said it also would pay off on Oct. 1, $1,000,000 in Chesapeake & Ohio Northern Railway first mortgage 5 per cent bonds at 105 per cent of par.

It said it also plans payment at 110 per cent of par value on Nov. 1 of $553,000 in mortgage bonds of the Virginia Air Line Railway, which bear 5 per cent.

Corporation Reports Re-Examined As to Surplus - Dividend Status

Taxation of Undistributed Earnings Causes Much Local Speculation as to How Individual Concerns Will Meet Situation

Last year's earning statements—as well as those of the current half year wherever available—of corporations whose stocks are listed on the New York Stock Exchange, St. Louis Stock Exchange and other trading boards of the country, are undergoing a re-examination by analysts as a result of the passage by Congress and the signing by President Roosevelt of the new undistributed profits tax measure.

Support given to some of the stocks soon after the enactment of the law was seen as based on the belief that more generous disbursements to shareholders are likely becaues of penalties on the undistributed surpluses, resulting from business operation since Jan. 1, 1936.

Bankers, business men and investors here as elsewhere sought to form an opinion as just what might be in prospect as a result of the operation of the new law. It was thought that some corporations might ask stockholders to reinvest in the new stock of the company part of any disbursements. It was pointed out in other quarters that the average corporation pays 13⅓ per cent and will pay an average of 19 per cent. Another idea suggested was that a firm might pay all of its earnings to shareholders, finding it cheaper to borrow new capital than to pay the tax.

The new law taxes corporation income withheld from distribution in dividends to stockholders at 7 per cent on the first 10 per cent withheld, 12 per cent on the next 10 per cent, 17 per cent on the next 20 per cent, 22 per cent on the next 20 per cent and 27 per cent on all over 60 per cent.

Dividends and Surplus Accounts

In the following table will be found a list of leading corporations whose stocks are listed on St. Louis Exchange, showing net earnings for the calendar or fiscal year 1935, together with amounts paid out in dividends, the ratio per share, and increase in surplus:

DROUTH, HEAT PROD COMMODITY PRICES

Associated Press Weighted Index of 35 Items Is Highest Since April.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 27.—Drouth and searing heat in many parts of the West continued to prod commodity prices into higher ground this week, for the fourth successive advance.

The Associated Press weighted index of 35 important wholesale commodities closed at the highest point since late April. At 73.75 the index compares with 73.01 last week and 72.63 a year ago.

The Weather Bureau report for the period ending June 23 indicated "a widespread need for rain in most agricultural sections of the country," with 35 states receiving less than normal moisture.

As the week drew to a close, however, light rains pattered over the stricken Northwest, alleviating the parched condition of much of that area, at least temporarily.

The drouth blight has not visited all states equally. Nineteen fronting on the coast, for instance, have had better-than-normal precipitation this year. Even in these apparently favored sections the last few months has brought little rain and many of them are currently seriously deficient.

Broad Grain Advance.

The appearance of high temperatures in the prairie regions of the Midwest during the past fortnight was responsible for considerable pessimism over crop prospects. While it remains cool, topsoil and plant moisture is retained but hot, sunny days cause rapid evaporation of this reservoir.

The grains responded to these weather dispatches with broad advances. Wheat, following early gains, settled back. Corn, oats and rye, however, pushed substantially higher. Cotton continued to show strength as rumors pointed to curtailed Government liquidation.

The trend of food prices at wholesale was mixed. Butter was subjected to the most unusual movement in a decade, rising unseasonally on short supplies. Flour prices followed the upward surge in wheat. Cocoa added slightly to its already advanced level. Eggs, sugar and lard weakened.

Livestock prices—up 6 per cent in four weeks—again nudged ahead. The possibility of reduced or higher cost feed as a result of dryness is reported to have had some effect in boosting hogs and cattle. Lambs were a bit lower.

Staples of Industry Rally.

The staples of industry rallied abruptly following last week's low for the year. Rubber, steel scrap, turpentine, linseed oil and bituminous coal joined in the upturn. Lumber dipped.

Tin plunged downward during the week, the decision of the international committee to increase the world allotment of 5 per cent adding impetus to an already feeble market. The markdown of zinc, first in many months, accompanied reports of excessive stocks of the metal.

Textiles were mixed, silk moving up a notch and the more heavily weighted wool declining.

The index, with its components, based on 1926 as 100, follows:

	June 26.	Pr.wk.	Yr. ago
35 commodities	73.75	73.01	72.63

LOCAL STOCKS MAINLY HIGHER LAST WEEK

Slight Increase in Aggregate Volume of Business Over Preceding Period.

Although there was no special activity in any particular stock or group of shares, the aggregate volume of business on the St. Louis Stock Exchange last week was a little heavier than in the preceding period. Gains, too, largely exceeded the declines. Price changes were rather limited, with one or two exceptions. Coca Cola Bottling was up 6 points and Title Insurance, which had not sold for several months, gained 6⅛ from last sale.

Ely & Walker and Rice-Stix were higher by fractions and Missouri Portland was up a point.

Wagner Electric and National Bearing Metals showed recessions and National Candy was unchanged.

Sales in Saturday's session were as follows: Falstaff Brewing Co. 25 shares at 7, unchanged; Mo.-Portland Cement, 175 at 11½, unchanged; National Bearing Metals 10 at 29¼, unchanged; United Railway 4s, $2000 at 30½, down 1¾; United Railway 4s c-d, $4000 at 30, down 1.

FOREIGN MARKETS AT A GLANCE

LIVERPOOL, June 27.—Wheat futures opened lower today, but a sharp rally took place later on a bullish private estimate of wheat unsold in Australia and poor crop reports from America.

Trading in cotton futures was small, scattered liquidation being absorbed by trade calling and speculative buying on unfavorable U. S. weather reports.

London and Paris—Closed, no sessions on Saturday.

NON-FERROUS METALS AGAIN DOMINATED BY TIN ACTION

Zinc Is Unchanged in Price and Lead Quiet.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 27.—Nonferrous metals were again dominated by the action of tin this week.

The latter market, after an advance of 1¼c, broke 2¼c a pound, the collapse being a direct reflection of the unexpected decision of the International Committee in raising the tin export quota 5 points to 90 pc for the third quarter. The change, in itself, was not considered particularly large, in view of the statistical position, but the trade was wholly unprepared for the change and its effect was magnified.

Zinc was indirectly affected by the action of tin but quotably the market was unchanged. While foreign news and efforts to reorganize the cartel are followed closely, domestic consumers were showing more confidence and increased bookings were emphasized by the jump in galvanizing operations to 59 per cent of capacity.

Lead was quiet. Sellers held stubbornly at current prices, but consumers continued to hold off.

While possible labor difficulties clouded the outlook for steel, the immediate situation continued favorable and operations for the fourth successive week registered a further expansion, the current rate of 70.2 per cent comparing with 37.7 per cent last year.

Copper was featured by a show of firmness in the foreign market, and continued quietness in the domestic market. Abroad the c. i. f. price advanced to 9.20 cents a pound, due to a better demand stimulated by the lifting of sanctions against Italy and the return of rather more settled conditions in the French political situation. Domestic consumption is said to be holding around the rate of 60,000 tons monthly, with an improvement in building operations offsetting some slackening in buying from the automotive trade.

Antimony was dull and featureless, with prices unchanged and the demand limited to less than carload lots.

TRADE BUYING AT WEEK END OFFSET TO REALIZING SALES

General Market Closes Steady at Advance of 4 to 6 Points.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 27.—Cotton was quiet and steady today with week-end realizing absorbed by trade buying.

October sold up from 11.67 to 11.73 and closed at 11.72 with the general market steady 4 to 6 points net higher.

The opening was irregular with July 5 points higher on some further covering, while new crop months were within a point either way of yesterday's closing quotations. Some foreign selling and liquidation at the start was absorbed by the trade buying.

July sold up to 12.43 on the early advance, or 10 points net higher and closed at 12.39 compared with net advances of 4 to 5 points on later positions. Reports that rain was becoming more urgently needed in Texas may have contributed to the steadiness of new crop positions. The amount of cotton on shipboard awaiting clearance at the end of the week was 53,000 bales against 60,000 last year.

COTTON PRICES REACH NEW HIGH GROUND

Reports of Continued Tight Spot Situation and of Improved Trade, Cited.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 27.—Cotton overcame reactionary tendencies this week and crop positions reached new high ground for the movement.

Advances at the beginning of the period met considerable realizing, but it was absorbed on declines of some 20 or 25 points, after which the market again responded to reports of a continued tight spot situation and improved trade conditions.

October contracts, after selling from 11.68 to 11.42, advanced to 11.79 Friday, closing at 11.72 Saturday against 11.58 at the close of the previous week.

Business in cotton cloth market tapered off following recent activity. There were reports of continued good retail turnover throughout the country.

After completion of liquidation of the producers' pool July holdings in the previous week, the price of that position advanced to 12.37 last Monday on covering. This was sufficient to bring out increased offerings fro mremaining holders, but after easing off to 11.96 on the midweek reaction, it firmed up again on renewed covering.

So far, only one notice has been issued here against July.

TUMBLE OF POLISH BONDS MARK WEEK

Announcement Made That Service on Country's Obligations Would Be Blocked in Zlotys.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 27.—Gradual weakening and then a swift collapse in Polish Government obligations overshadowed the bond market last week.

Polis 7s and 8s, Warsaw 7s and Silesia Province 7s crumbled late in the week on announcement the service on Polish obligations would be met solely in blocked zlotys.

The unfavorable foreign trade situation of Poland and diminishing remittances from Polish emigrants abroad paved the way for this action.

United States Government securities had a mild weak spell under liquidation from dealers who had stocked up anticipating demand from institutional buyers. Failure of aggressive demand from big buyers to develop prompted dealers to sell, investment circles said. Treasuries recovered somewhat as the week drew to a close.

Corporate loans were comparatively quiet. Various carrier leins recently in speculative demand came under pressure. A few industrial and utility obligations improved.

A sharp rebound in Polish Government bonds enlivened an otherwise narrow listed market Saturday.

The great majority of domestic corporate loans moved within minor fractions of Friday's closing levels and the same was true of United States Government obligations, most of which ended 1-32 to 2-32 of a point higher.

The improvement in Polish Government bonds was considered a normal course after the collapse of prices yesterday.

In fairly heavy trading the Government 8s advanced 5¾ points to 46, the 7s held unchanged at 47, the 6s improved 4 at 42 and Silesian Province 7s advanced ⅜ to 34½. Other foreign bonds maintained a generally steady undertone.

Domestic corporate liens were extremely quiet. Issues closing within minor fractions either way of Friday's levels included Southern Railway 4s at 67, Postal Telegraph 5s at 30½, Missouri Pacific 5s at 31½, Santa Fe 4s at 114¼, Chesapeake Corporation 5s at 135¾, Chicago Great Western 4¾s at 13¼, and International Hydro Electric 6s at 41½.

The Associated Press averages ranged from an advance of .3 of a point in the foreign group to a loss of .1 of a point in the low-yield and utility groups.

Transfers of all bonds totaled $4,007,000, par value, compared with $4,313,000 last Saturday.

Financial Notes

NEW YORK, June 27.—Manufactured and natural gas utility revenues for April, reported to the American Gas Association, amounted to $67,568,200, compared with $62,969,100 for the like 1935 month. Revenues of th emanufactured gas industry were $32,092,900 in April and for the natural gas industry, $35,475,300.

The Stich weekly average tobacco price for U. S. Type 12, Grade B4F, flue-cured tobacco advanced last week to 16.7 cents a pound from 16.3 cents.

Passengers on United Air Lines' routes in the first five months of this year increased 36 per cent over the same 1935 period, W. A. Patterson, president, reported. In the same period mail increased 9 per cent, and express, 47 per cent.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE

NEW YORK, June 27.—A flow of French currency balances to Paris from New York and hurried covering of short positions in the Foreign Exchange in forepart of market today sent the French francs up .01⅛ of a cent to 6.64 cents in New York trading.

The rise compared with a Paris rate on the dollar of 6.635 cents to the franc and an overnight New York quotation of 6.629 cents. The discount on 90-day franc futures fell to .24 of a cent from .29 of a cent yesterday.

Triangular trading between Paris, London and New York put the pound sterling up ½ of a cent to $5.02⅜ in New York as French interests purchased sterling with dollars and francs with sterling for return to Paris.

The dollar in London closed at 5.02 3-16 to the pound against an overnight New York rate of 5.01⅞ to the pound.

Holland guilders again displayed the greatest following power with a rise of .13 of a cent to 68.22 cents. Swiss francs were up .026 to 32.80 cents, and Belgian belgas, which were unchanged yesterday, advanced .03 of a cent to 16.92 cents.

The franc held a net gain of .01⅛ of a cent at 6.64 cents, and sterling was up ⅜ of a cent at $5.03¼.

Road Reports May Deficit.

CHICAGO, June 27.—The Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway Co. today reported net railway operating deficit in May was $465,665, compared with $399,855 in May, 1935.

Gross revenue, reported at $6,088,192, exceeded the figure last year by 17 per cent and was the highest for any May since 1931.

Operating expenses, however, were increased to $5,708,196, compared with $4,905,175, due partly to an enlarged program of roadway and equipment maintenance and other unusual expenses.

Net revenue from railway operations was $370,996, against $312,492 in May last year.

EXPECTING HEAVY RUN OF WHEAT, PRICES DECLINE

Indications Point to Record-Breaking Receipts of Newly Harvested Winter Grain Monday.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 27.—Indications of record-breaking big receipts of newly harvested domestic winter wheat Monday at all Southwestern markets gave a downward swing to prices late today.

The setback of wheat values resulted in more than wiping out preceding gains of a cent a bushel. An added bearish influence was likelihood of a substantial increase of the United States wheat visible supply total on Monday.

Unofficial July crop reports next week were awaited with interest, especially the season's first estimates of the nation's 1936 probable yield of corn.

Wheat closed weak, ¼@⅝ under yesterday's finish, July 93⅛@¼, Sept. 93¾@⅞, Dec. 95⅛@¼, corn ⅜ off to ⅞ up, July 65⅝@⅞, Sept. 65@65⅛, Dec. 61¼@⅜, oats ⅛@⅜ higher, Sept. 30⅞@31, and rye ¼@⅜ advanced, Sept. 63⅜. The outcome in provisions was unchanged to 15 cents lift.

Arrivals of Grain Larger.

Today's volume of arrivals of wheat from the harvest fields southwest were greatly enlarged. Kansas City reported 486 cars, against 70 a week ago, and 35 at this time last year. Wichita, too, had 325 cars today, Hutchinson 297, and Salina 341, all showing huge increases. As a result, pressure of hedge sales intensified, and sentiment became decidedly bearish in anticipation of heavier handicaps on Monday.

The fact that the Kansas City wheat market today fell to 4 cents a bushel discount under Chicago attracted particular notice. Kansas City weakness caused extensive removal of hedges there and corresponding replacement here. Heavy selling for professional traders was also a feature, and Chicago September wheat dropped from a top of 94½ to 93⅛ cents at the last.

Transient strength that characterized wheat values prior to the late downswing was largely due to evidence that assumed likelihood the drouth in spring crop areas north and south of the Canadian border might be ended overnight was without any good basis. Surprise behavior of the Liverpool market today did much also to change the course of values here temporarily from weakness to relative vigor. Cables said Liverpool advances came about in considerable degree on account of authoritative estimates that Austalia would have but 12,000,000 bushels wheat surplus this season, only half the total that heretofore was figured upon.

Corn Rules Strong.

For the most part, corn ruled strong. Unfavorable crop reports came from many sections, with reports of urgent need of widespread heavy rains. Actual rainfall for the 14 West Central States in April, May and June is only 50 per cent of normal, and by a strange coincidence exactly equals the supply in the same period of the disastrous drouth year of 1934. Oats and rye showed good rallying power.

Provisions reflected purchases of lard, hedged by sales of corn.

Wheat futures purchases yesterday totaled 28,277,000 bushels; corn, 6,912,000. Open interest in wheat was 55,931,000 bushels, and in corn 23,269,000.

Wheat futures closed ¼@½c lower. Corn closed ⅝c lower to ⅞c higher.

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, June 27.—Wheat futures lost an early upturn today and closed fractionally lower. Corn finished slightly higher.

Winnipeg wheat opened ⅝c to 1⅛c higher and early was ⅝@¾c up. The close was ⅛@⅜c net higher.

Local wheat receipts, which were 61,500 bu, compared with 7500 a week ago and 16,500 a year ago, included 35 cars local and 6 through. Corn receipts, which were 63,000 bu, compared with 69,000 a week ago and 24,000 a year ago, included 38 cars local and 4 through. Oats receipts, which were 16,000 bu, compared with 8000 a week ago and 26,000 a year ago, included 7 cars local and 1 through.

ST. LOUIS CASH GRAIN

In the cash grain market Saturday, soft wheat was 1@3½c lower. Selections were taken early and later trading was on a scale down, with final transactions offering the most loss. Local mills were the best buyers while order buyers made only light purchases. Most of the offerings ran to heavy test and were quite dry. High moisture grain was discriminated against and was discounted. Corn was unchanged to ½c lower. There was a pretty good demand and a fair clearance was effected. Mills and industries took the bulk of the offerings. Oats were ½c higher. Supply was light and cleared readily. Elevators took the white and mills the mixed.

45 RAILROADS REPORT MAY RETURNS WERE BETTER

Gain of 20.5 Per Cent in Gross and 17 in Net Operating Income.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 27. — Earnings of the first 45 railroads reporting for May show gains of 20.5 per cent in gross and 17 per cent in net operating income.

Operating income comparisons were unfavorably affected by the fact that some of the carriers added the pension accruals to the month's total last year following the Supreme Court's reversal of the Railway Pension Act. The St. Paul and Chicago & Northwestern were among carriers showing adverse contrasts because of the accruals.

Largest gainers were mainly the Southwestern roads, including Kansas City Southern, Norfolk & Western, Missouri-Kansas-Texas, Illinois Central, St. Louis Southwestern and Southern Railway.

Northeastern colliers showed the most sizeable losses in net operating income compared with the previous year, including Central Railroad of New Jersey, Delaware & Hudson, New York, Ontario & Western, New York and Boston & Maine.

Five months results indicated a continuation of the rising trend with gross income up 14 per cent and net operating income advancing 15 per cent for the 45 carriers.

PACKING HOUSE COMMODITIES OUTPUT OFF NON-SEASONALLY

CHICAGO, June 27.—Production of packing house commodities at inspected slaughtering establishments in the United States declined non-seasonally 1 per cent in May from April to a level 14 per cent below the 1926-35 average for the month, the Chicago Federal Reserve Bank reported today. Volume of production, however, was 12½ per cent heavier than a year ago.

The statement said creamery butter production in the Seventh Federal Reserve District rose 57 per cent in May to a leval within 8 per cent of the 1926-35 average for the period and 2½ per cent under a year ago. Butter sales tonnage expanded 21 per cent over April but was 8 per cent under last May.

American cheese manufacture in Wisconsin increased 29½ per cent in May over April and was 5½ per cent greater than a year ago.

Prices declined 3 per cent in May from April.

TREASURY WORKING BALANCE SHOWS $500,000,000 DROP

WASHINGTON, June 27.—The Treasury's cash "working balance," which rose above $3,000,000,000 on the mid-June financing and inflow of taxes, has fallen sharply as bonus bonds have been turned in for payment. Treasury deposits at the Federal Reserve Banks have been drawn down about $500,000,000.

The shift of funds has been evident in an abrupt upturn in surplus reserves of member banks as the Government drew funds from the Reserve banks.

Deposits in the Treasury's "general account" at the Reserve banks compared as follows: Week ended June 24, $929,072,000; preceding week, $1,421,457,000; same week last year, $80,301,000.

SEVENTH RESERVE DISTRICT REPORT ON BUSINESS

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 27.—Grocery sales during May in the Seventh Federal Reserve District, comprising Illinois, Wisconsin, Iowa, Michigan and Indiana, were 2 per cent less than the preceding month, as against a 6 per cent expansion in the 1926-35 average for May, a Federal survey report disclosed.

The hardware trade reported a 9 per cent gain over April; the electrical supplies industry 12 per cent, while the recession of 2 per cent in drug sales was slightly greater than average for the period.

Department store sales in the district rose 4 per cent in May over April.

STEEL ORDERS INCREASE

NEW YORK, June 27.—The American Institute of Steel Construction reported today estimated bookings of fabricated structural steel for the industry during May were 39 per cent greater than for April and 141 per cent ahead of March, 1935.

Bookings for May were estimated at 145,553 tons compared with 104,849 in April and 58,629 in May, 1935.

The improved May business brought the total for the first five months to 52.2 per cent of normal—basing normal on the average yearly rate of 1928-1931, inclusive. For the five months bookings were 612,249 tons against 395,514 in the 1935 period, the highest level for the period since 1931.

May shipments of 134,623 tons were the best for any month this year, the Institute said.

BUCYRUS-ERIE PLAN

MILWAUKEE, June 27.—The board of directors of the Bucyrus-Erie Co. has approved plans for simplification of the capital structure and liquidation of accumulated dividends on its preferred stock.

The recommendations will be submitted to a meeting of stockholders at South Milwaukee, July 30.

Under the plan, common stock of the company would be put in a position to receive dividends as soon as earnings justify them. Dividends on the common had not been paid since 1931.

While the company paid quarterly dividends throughout the depression it did not maintain the full 7 per cent annual dividends so there now are accumulations of $16 a share on the preferred stock.

CORPORATION REPORTS

NEW YORK, June 27.—Wesson Oil & Snowdrift Co., with plants in virtually all of the Southern states, reported today for the nine months ended May consolidated net profit of $2,139,053, equal after preferred dividends to $2.14 cents a common share. This compares with $3.36 a share on the same basis for the nine months ended May, 1935. The company, maker and distributor of cottonseed oil products and other food stuffs, had a net profit of 51 cents a share for the May quarter against 58 cents in the like 1935 period, based on a comparison of the six and nine months' periods.

NEW YORK BANK STATEMENT.

NEW YORK, June 27.—The weekly statement of the New York Clearing house shows: Total surplus and undivided profits $743,339,100 (unchanged); total net demand deposits (average), $49,426,000 (decrease); time deposits (average), $3,486,000 (increase); clearings week ending today, $3,206,471,496; clearings week ending June 20, $4,606,152,010.

NEW COMMODITY EXCHANGE SETUP PUT INTO MOTION

Revised Grain Futures Administration to Include Cotton, Rice, Millfeeds, Butter, Eggs, Potatoes.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 27. — The new Commodity Exchange Administration was set in motion today when Secretary Wallace signed an amendment to the rules and regulations governing the administration of the grain futures act.

The Grain Futures Administration hereafter will be known as the Commodity Exchange Administration.

The Jones bill, passed during the closing days of the seventy-fourth Congress amended the grain futures act by broadening its scope to include in addition to grains the following commodities: Cotton, rice, millfeeds, butter, eggs and Irish potatoes.

Wallace said the Jones amendment was passed too late to enable Congress to provide appropriations for its enforcement and that it would be necessary for the present to proceed as far as possible on funds appropriated to enforce the original grain futures act.

GERMAN PAGAN PERIODICALS REPORTED GROWING RAPIDLY

Ludendorff's Fortnightly, "At the Holy Well of German Power," Goes from 44,867 to 70,000 Copies.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, June 27.—Circulations of neo-paganistic periodicals are going up by leaps and bounds in Germany, while those of orthodox church journals are dwindling, complains the "Innere Mission," a Protestant organ.

It is stated that in 1935 sales of the "Durchbruch" mouthpiece of the "Germanic faith movement," rose from 4000 to 12,000; Ludendorff's fortnightly "At the Holy Well of German Power" from 44,867 to 70,000.

At the same time "Evangelical Germany" went back from 12,600 to 10,700, and the "Junge Kirche," oppositional church organ, from 36,000 to 28,355.

FRISCO SEEKS SIX MONTHS' DELAY ON REORGANIZATION

Deals Pending That, If Concluded, Will Increase Earning Capacity Given as Reason.

REQUEST OPPOSED BY RFC ATTORNEY

Plan Due to Be Submitted by Wednesday — Court Takes Plea Under Advisement.

Application for a further extension of time for filing a reorganization plan for the bankrupt Frisco Railroad was made to Federal Judge George H. Moore yesterday by Jesse McDonald, attorney for the trustees of certain bond issues of the railroad.

A reorganization plan was to have been submitted to the Court by next Wednesday. Judge Moore took the request for further delay under advisement.

McDonald said that although the railroad business was improving, operating costs were increasing, and the general economic situation was uncertain, making the formulation of an equitable plan of reorganization difficult.

Deals Pending.

He said, too, that the Frisco trustees were negotiating for the sale of the Fort Scott and Rio Grande division to the Santa Fe Railroad for about $1,500,000, and had pending before the Interstate Commerce Commission an application to abandon two unprofitable short lines. The conclusion of these deals, he said, would materially increase the Frisco's earning capacity. He estimated that they might be completed within six months and asked for an extension of that length of time.

Delay Opposed.

Further delay was opposed by Oliver T. Remmers, counsel for the Railroad Credit Corporation and the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, both large creditors of the Frisco. He pointed out that three years had passed since the Frisco filed its petition for reorganization and said that so far as he knew nothing had been done toward drawing up a reorganization plan.

The railroad, he said, was operated at the expense of its creditors, and he predicted that if the extentions were granted an application for further delay would be made at the end of another six months.

Louis Mayer, attorney for the bondholders who filed the original receivership petition against the railroad, suggested that the Court grant one more extension, but of three months, not of six, and that the Court require that the plan be filed within that period.

Injunction Plea Referred.

Judge Moore referred to Special Master John T. Harding of Kansas City another motion filed by Charles P. Williams, attorney for trustees of bonds issued by the Kansas City, Fort Smith & Memphis division of the Frisco, which asked the Court to enjoin the bankruptcy trustees from purchasing and retiring $1,584,000 of equipment trust certificates next Wednesday.

Williams argued that retirement of the equipment trust certificates would be accomplished by diverting earnings of the division he represented from the bondholders for whose benefit they should be held. Joseph Jamison, attorney for the bankruptcy trustees, John G. Lonsdale and James M. Kurn, replied that retirement of the equipment trust certificates was in compliance with a specific order made by Judge Charles B. Faris of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals when he was Judge of the District Court and in charge of the Frisco bankrutpcy.

DOCTOR ROBBED OF HIS AUTO

$44 Also Taken From Salem (Ill.) Physician by Two Men.

Police are seeking the automobile of Dr. Herbert Schoonover, Salem (Ill.) physician, who reported he was robbed of the machine and $44 by two men, who got in the car when he stopped for a traffic signal at Lindell boulevard and Euclid avenue Friday night.

One man threatened him with a remolver, Dr. Schoonover said, and he was forced to drive to Lackland and Natural Bridge roads, in St. Louis County, where he was bound with cord and put out of the car after his wallet, containing $49, was taken. The robbers returned $5 at his request, and drove away, stating that the car would be left near the Municipal Auditorium.

DECISION TOMORROW IN LABOR BOARD CASE

General Motors Attacks Action Against Chevrolet and Fisher Body Plants Here.

Federal Judge George H. Moore will pass tomorrow on an application by the General Motors Corporation for an injunction to restrain the National Labor Relations Board from prosecuting a complaint of unfair labor practices in the Chevrolet and Fisher Body plants here. The hearing on the complaint is scheduled to start at 10 a. m tomorrow at the Federal Building.

Counsel for the corporation argued yesterday that the provisions of the National Labor Relations Act were identical with the labor provisions of the Guffey law, which was held to be unconstitutional by the United States Supreme Court in the Carter Coal Co. case. The attorneys asserted that the labor act did not apply to the local Chevrolet and Fisher plants, which, they said, were not engaged in interstate commerce, and was, furthermore, in violation of the fifth amendment of the Constitution.

David Shaw, attorney for the Labor Board, told the Court that the act creating the board employed the same language as that used in the Railroad Labor Act, which has been held constitutional. The Fisher and Chevrolet firms had no ground to seek an injunction without showing specific damage, and their only peril from a hearing was that of publicity, Shaw declared.

John S. Leahy, in a closing argument for General Motors, charged the officials of the Labor Board with unfair practice in refusing to defer the hearing until a similar case, in which Federal Judge Merrill Otis at Kansas City had issued a restraining order could be decided by the United States Court of Appeals. Referring to Shaw's statement concerning damage, Leahy said the motor firms would be damaged through a revelation of "trade secrets" at the Labor Board hearing. Leahy concluded with the statement that "everyone knows General Motors pays the highest wages in the land."

The complaint, filed June 12, by the Labor Board, charged that the motor firm fostered a "company union," discriminated against employes for union activities and resorted to espionage.

CATHOLIC STUDENTS DISCUSS ECONOMICS

Convention Outlines Policy for Sodality Units for Next Two Years.

Catholic college students, attending the sixth national students' spiritual leadership convention sponsored by the Sodality of Our Lady at Hotel Jefferson, continued their consideration of political and economic issues yesterday, preparing resolutions which are to be voted on in closing sessions today.

The convention delegates, representing colleges and universities in 30 states, are to adopt a program of activities and suggest general attitudes for the guidance of the individual units of the sodality during the next two years. Their meeting is conducted by the Rev. Daniel A. Lord, S. J., and other priests on the staff of the Queen's Work, sodality publication which is edited here.

Revision of taxation was considered by the section on participation in government, a resolution being proposed which urged legislators to investigate the capital levy. Delegates argued such a tax was most equitable in taking into account the ability to pay. No criticism was made of another resolution supporting the proposed Norris-Lea amendment to the Federal Constitution, which would provide that a state's vote in the presidential electoral college be divided to reflect the vote of the state on each candidate.

Unanimous approval of the consumers' co-operative scheme was given by members of the committee on economics at a discussion meeting yesterday. The committee was to frame a resolution making education in consumers' co-operatives an objective of all college sodalities. Training in the formation of credit unions was also proposed.

The relation of members of college sodalities to their home parishes was discussed at a business session yesterday morning. An assertion by the Rev. Joseph Luther of Detroit that most students, returning to their parishes, are aloof from parish enterprises and uninterested if they cannot dominate the activities, brought the reply from several delegates that pastors are frequently unreceptive to the students' offers of assistance. It was charged by two of the speakers that efforts to participate in church affairs are sometimes blocked by the "pillars of the church."

The Rev. George A. McDonald, S. J., presiding at the discussion, said he had asked for reports by the unit sodalities on how the program adopted at the convention in 1934 for parish-student relations had been carried out. Only one unit in the country fulfilled the suggestions of the convention, he said.

"Storm-tossed," a play by Father Lord, dealing with the conflict between the Catholic and Communist programs for the social order, was presented before the delegates last night in the ballroom of the Jefferson. The convention will end tonight. Members of high school sodalities will meet here next Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

A Big Mule for the Democrats.

By the Associated Press.

LINCOLN, Neb., June 27.—What was said to be the world's largest mule was offered today to the Democratic National Committee for campaign purposes. The offer was made by Harry E. Henson, Lincoln farmer, who said the animal, named Tom, was 6 feet, 7 inches high and weighed between 2300 and 2400 pounds—about twice as big as an ordinary mule.

M'GRATH'S 1912 OLYMPIC HAMMER THROW RECORD BEATEN IN TRIAL

BROAD JUMP CHAMPION OF 1932 IS ELIMINATED

By the Associated Press.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., June 27.—Bounding Bill Bonthron, hero of many a stirring foot-race during his spectacular career at Princeton University, dashed down the Harvard Stadium stretch today with an old-time burst of speed to lick his Pennsylvania rival, Gene Venzke, and fortify his chances of making the American Olympic team.

Out of competition last year and slow this spring to round into form, Bonthron bounded off the last turn to close an eight-yard gap, quickly overtake Venzke some distance from the tape and win by a foot in the 1500 meter final of the Eastern sectional Olympic tryouts.

The former Princeton captain's time of 3:55.2 was not so startling, compared to his own world record of 3:48.8.

His performance was convincing, however, in every respect. He was looking over his shoulder at the finish as Venzke spurted to save second place from the closing drive of Ernest Fedderoff, dark horse entry of the Millrose A. A., New York.

Few Upsets.

Bonthron's victory was the high-spot of the tryouts which served as the semi-final test for some of the South's outstanding athletes, as well as the Eastern group. First and second place men in each of the 17 events contested today under rainy conditions automatically qualified for the final American tryouts July 11-12 at Randall's Island Stadium, New York City.

There were comparatively few upsets.

Eddie Gordon of Iowa City, 1932 Olympic broad jump champion, was one of the few victims as he did no better than 23 feet, 6 inches, finished third to Henry (Monk) Little of William and Mary, and thus missed the final tryouts.

Syracuse's Eddie O'Brien, national champion and sensation of the last winter season, qualified in the 400 meters, but he ran such a disappointing second to his Dartmouth rival, Jack Hoffstetter, that his chances of making the Olympic team appear jeopardized, particularly with a start field of quarter-milers emerging from the West.

O'Brien trailed Hoffstetter by four yards and was clocked in 48.2 seconds, far from his best, while the winner registered 47.7 seconds. O'Brien was extended to save second place from the rush of Dick Gill of Boston College by a stride.

David Weicher of Rice Institute, Texas, achieved the most startling performance of the field events when he cleared 14 feet 3 inches to surpass the Olympic pole vault record in the meet's closing event. Inspired by the best performance of his career, Weichert then tried the bar at the world record height of 14-5½, but failed in two attempts. Second place went to Bud Deacon, former Stanford star, at 14 feet even. The Olympic record, 14 feet 1⅞ inches, was made by Bill Miller, United States winner in 1932.

The only other Olympic mark to be bettered was in the hammer throw. On his last attempt, Henry Dreyer of Providence, R. I., and the New York A. C., got off a mighty toss of 180 feet 3 inches to overtake his Maine rival, Donald Favor, who had achieved 177 feet 4 inches. Dreyer surpassed the Olympic record of 179 feet 8.4 inches, made by Matt McGrath, New York police officer, in the 1912 games.

Woodruff Wins 800.

John Woodruff, 20-year-old Negro runner who has just finished his freshman year at the University of Pittsburgh, established himself as a real Olympic hope by capturing the 800 meters in the dazzling time of 1:51.3. Only Ben Eastman, Coast star and record holder, has beaten this time in competition this year. Woodruff, who has an extraordinary stride, beat Indiana's Chuck Hornbostel by three yards.

Hornbostel, timed in 1:51.9, came up fast to take second place from Harry Williamson of North Carolina by two yards.

The veteran Joe McCluskey of the New York A. C. not only proved he is still in a class by himself among American steeplechasers but came within one-tenth second of the Olympic standard. McCluskey was clocked in 9:21.9. He finished 75 yards in front of Eino Pentti of the Millrose A. A., New York, who thus gained his second qualifying place. Pentti won the 10,000 meters run easily yesterday. Walter (Duke) Wood, Cornell

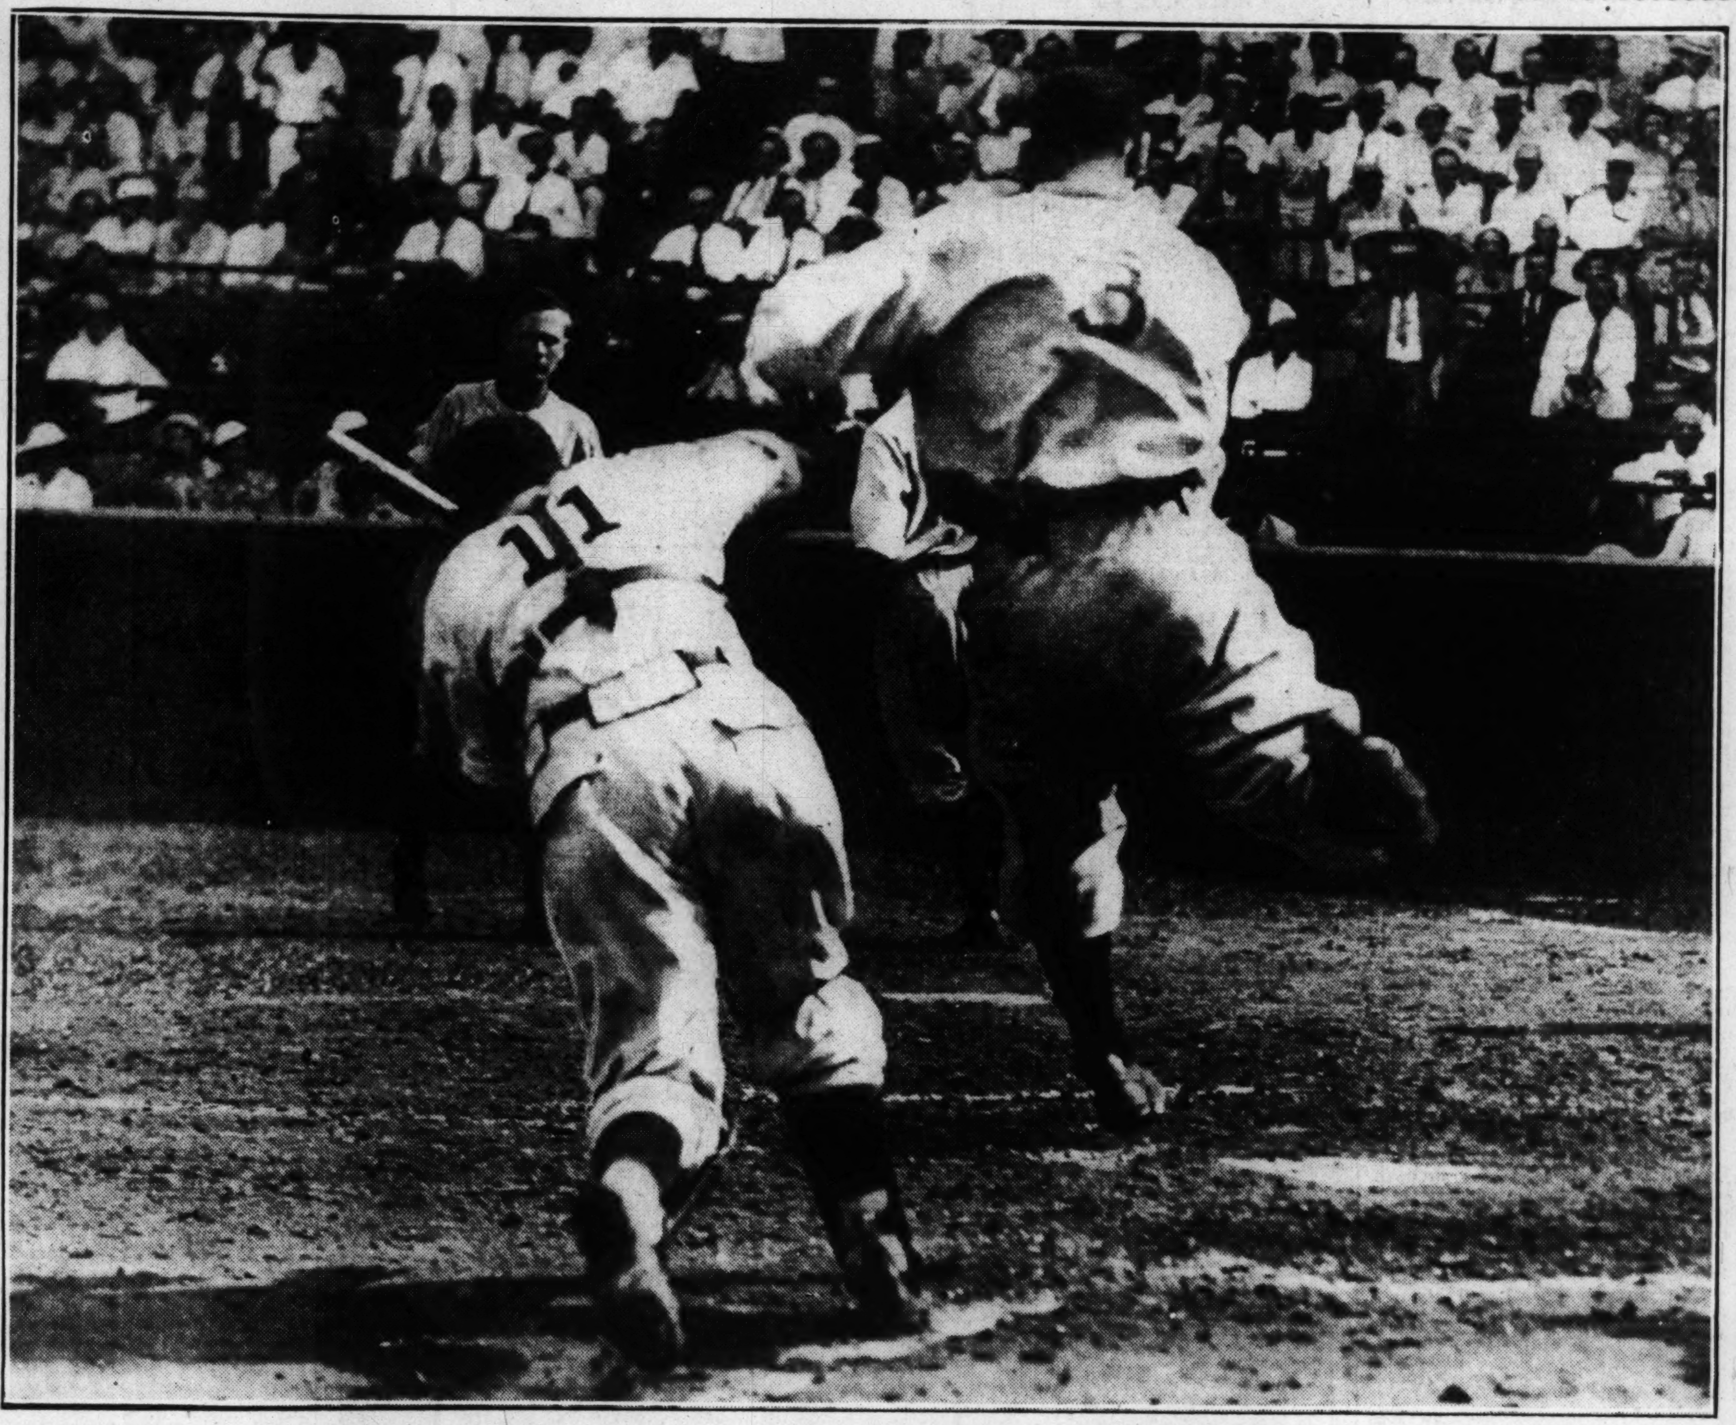
BROWNS LOSE TO YANKEES, 10-6; HOMERS: YANKEES 6, BROWNS 1

A STAR FALLS—WHEN TWO ALL-STARS COLLIDE



—By a Post-Dispatch Staff Photographer.

Rough play had no part in the fans' selection of Outfielder George Selkirk of the Yankees and Catcher Rollie Hemsley of the Browns to help represent the American League in the inter-league all-star game a week from Tuesday at Boston. This picture shows it is part of the day's work, however, as Selkirk bumps Hemsley to the ground. The play was in the fifth inning of yesterday's game at Sportsman's Park as Selkirk scored on his home run inside the Park.

Morris, Competing in His Second Decathlon, Breaks World Record

By the Associated Press.

MILWAUKEE, June 27.—Glenn Morris, the 24-year-old Denver automobile salesman who competed in his first decathlon last April, broke the world record for the event today in qualifying for the United States Olympic team.

The six-foot native of Simla, Colo., who has been training for a year and a half, amassed a total of 7880 points in the 10 difficult track and field events, smashing the mark of 7824.5 points by Hans H. Sievert of Germany in 1934.

Morris' record total was achieved by his taking first among the field of 15 contestants in the discus, the shot put, tying for first in the high jump, 100 meters, the 400 meters and the 110 meter hurdles, and ranking second in the javelin, third in the 1500 meters, fifth in the broad jump and a tie for eighth in the pole vault.

The new champion dropped out of the pole vault after clearing 3.45 meters or 11 feet, 4 inches, his best vault so far, so as to conserve energy for the windup.

The two others who made the

That All-Star Game.

ORGANIZED baseball turned the game back to the fans, in the matter of selecting the players for the All-Star game, scheduled in Boston, July 7, with the result that some of the heroes dear to the heart of the Knotholer, will be among those missing.

MARTIN

Several of the selections remind one that Vox Populi makes a lot of noise in the mundane chorus but isn't always in tune.

What sort of an all-star game is that going to be without that rip-snorting Wild Horse of the Osage tearing round the bases — Pepper Martin? There won't be a dust cloud on the paths all afternoon if he isn't in there.

And how can the Nationals get along without that great money-player Durocher at short, especially when umpire debates are in order?

What? No Poison!

ALSO, they left out "Big Poison" Paul Waner. It won't seem like a baseball game without a Waner in the lineup.

Paul may be a veteran but, as we recall his averages this year, he's going great guns again.

And imagine them picking a group of four pitchers and leaving off Hal Schumacher in favor of either Warneke or Mungo. Schumacher should sue for defamation of character, for he is and has been for years, a really

17 Home Runs Hit in One Day; Four Teams Idle

LED by the Yankees, who hit six home runs at Sportsman's Park yesterday, the major league sluggers had a field day, collecting 17 home runs. Two games in the National League were rained out or there might have been more circuit clouts.

The Sportsman's Park fences suffered the heaviest bombardment, for in addition to the half-dozen slammed by the Yankees, Julius Solters made it seven by hitting a four-bagger for the Browns.

Three were hit in the Philadelphia-at-Detroit game, two in the second game of the Senators-White Sox doubleheader at Chicago and one in Boston's contest at Cleveland. The Reds' game at Philadelphia saw four blows clear the fence. The Polo Grounds was not shivered by home runs, for both the Cubs and Giants failed to drive the ball out of the lot in their game.

WYKOFF STARS IN OLYMPIC COAST TRIALS

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, June 27.—Outstanding performances by flying Frank Wykoff, Jimmy Luvalle, Ben Eastman and Mack Robinson, featured the finals of the Far Western tryouts for the American Olympic track and field team today.

Winners of first and second places were assured a chance to compete in the final American trials in New York July 11-12.

Wykoff electrified the crowd with a smashing win in the 100 meters, running the distance in 10.5 seconds.

Robinson, dusky Pasadena Junior College sprinter, ran second to Wykoff in the 100 and won the 200-meter dash in 21.1 seconds, bettering the existing Olympic record of 21.2 seconds held by Eddie Tolan.

Cards a Game Ahead; Dizzy Dean and Maybe Paul Will Hurl Today

By J. Roy Stockton.
Of the Post-Dispatch Sports Staff.

NEW YORK, June 27.—Frank Francis Frisch figures conditions can't possibly be as bad in July or September as they are now and so the manager of the Cardinals was almost on the verge of being in a good humor when today's game with the Brooklyn Dodgers was postponed because of rain.

And Frisch was in good humor and a smile came on his face when he looked at a scoreboard later and saw that the Giants had defeated the Cubs, 11 to 2. The Cubs' defeat enabled the Redbirds to increase their first-place lead over Charley Grimm's club to a full game. The Cubs now are tied with the Cardinals in the defeat column. The Redbirds have been in first place since May 21, when Paul Dean defeated Al Smith and the Giants at the Polo Grounds, 4 to 2.

Frisch Begins to Worry Again.

Almost immediately after being able to smile, Frisch quickly began to worry again, for tomorrow the Gas House Gang will have to play a doubleheader, but the hazards of that twin bill were cut in half by the rain, for two games were scheduled anyhow and now he will be able to send Jerome Herman Dean to the hill in one of the contests.

Your guess is as good any anybody's as to who will do the hurling in the second contest.

"It may be Paul Dean," Frisch confided hopefully.

What, had Paul's sore arm shown such unexpected rapid improvement.

"I hope so," Frisch replied. "I haven't asked him yet, but what am I going to do? Parmelee says he can't go. He's afraid he'll throw that end joint of his finger out of place again, and perhaps be out for the rest of the season. I'm in trouble, all right. I don't know who's going to pitch. If Paul can't make it, it will have to be Heusser or maybe Walker."

Dizzy Dean to Pitch.

Despite their position in the cellar, the Dodgers hoped to play the Crosetti Leads Four-Bagger Parade With Two—Others Smashed Out by Di Maggio, Selkirk, Gehrig, Ruffing and Solters—Doubleheader Today.

By James M. Gould

The way the New York Yankees are hitting these days, it is becoming more and more certain that they not only will win the 1936 American League pennant but also will break the record for homers, hits and runs made by one team in a single season. And, certainly, the life of a Yankee pitcher is, "the life of Riley."

"Marse" Joe McCarthy's hirelings certainly turned on the power yesterday afternoon as they defeated the Browns, 10 to 6, in the opener of a three-game series. Six homers they hammered out, two by Crosetti and one each by Gehrig, Selkirk, Di Maggio and Ruffing. Every one of their 10 runs either was a homer or was driven in by one.

Yankees' Homers Off Thomas.

Gehrig's was his eighteenth of the season, Di Maggio recorded his ninth and Crosetti collected his ninth and tenth of the year. All told, the Yanks gathered 16 hits off Al Thomas who went all the way while the Browns made 11 off Ruffing including the game's seventh homer, a wallop by Solters with Clift on base in the ninth.

No records were broken by this hitting-bee for the one-team major league record for four-baggers in a game is seven and the mark for two teams is 10. But, to show how the Yankees are going, it is of record that, for the season they have hit 86 homers—the mark for the full-campaign is 173—and have hit 25 for the circuit in 12 games on this trip and 14 in the last three days.

The Browns weren't at all overawed by the league leaders, but were just overpowered by the extra-base barrage. They actually led for four innings but that was before the high-explosives got in their work.

Yankees Lead by Seven Games.

By their victory, which was the fourth straight defeat for the Browns, the New Yorkers went seven full games ahead of the second-place Red Sox, the longest lead they've enjoyed all year. The baseball sharps say the team that is in the league-lead on July 4 will win the pennant. The Yankees will be up there when Independence Day arrives and they'll have to go into the world's greatest tailspin to miss winning the pennant.

Both Thomas and Ruffing were too good in the first two innings and neither side threatened. Opening the third, Ruffing hit his homer to right to start the run-getting but he paid for his temerity in the last half when the Browns smacked him for three runs.

Thomas began with a single and Lary flied out. Clift's double put the pitcher on third and he and Clift scored when Solters rammed a two-bagger to right-center. Julius stayed there while Bottomley struck out but tallied on Bell's double.

In the fourth, the Browns added one on Hemsley's second single and Carey's double. Thomas sacrificed though he had to bunt a third strike to do it but after Lary walked, Hoag made a nice catch of Solters' line-drive.

Selkirk's Homer Inside Park.

Crosetti, leading off in the fifth, took it upon himself to hit a homer. After one was out, Di Maggio singled and, after two were retired, Dickey single. The Yankees then got their break when Selkirk's drive bounced over Solter's head in left-center and went for an in-the-park homer, three runs scored to put the Yankees one to the good.

In the sixth the Yankees again opened on Thomas when the first two men singled but a Lary to Carey to Hemsley to Clift double-play prevented any scoring.

The heavy artillery of the Yankees broke out again in the seventh when, starting the inning, Di Maggio and Gehrig hit four-baggers in succession. It was a strange situation in a way for the Yankees, with five homers at this stage, led the Browns by only three runs. As a rule such a burst of hitting would mean a mighty long lead.

Thomas weathered the eighth but in the ninth Crosetti elected to hit his second homer and there happened to be two on at the time. It is obvious that this meant three more Yankees' runs.

Solters' homer with Clift on gave the Browns two in their half.

GIANTS ROUT WARNEKE, WIN FROM CUBS, 11-2

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 27.—The Chicago Cubs today missed their second chance in a week to take over the National League lead by bowing to the Giants, 11 to 2.

As a result of the victory, the Giants pulled up to a third-place deadlock with the Pirates, and the Cubs sank to a full game in back of the St. Louis Cardinals.

Harry Gumbert, chalking up his seventh victory against two defeats for the season, pitched six-hit ball through the seven full innings he worked. Frank Gabler relieved him when he showed signs of weakening early in the eighth.

Although the Giants were out in front from the first inning, when they scored three runs, and started Lon Warneke on the way to his fourth defeat of the season against eight victories, they sewed up the game with a six-run splurge in the eighth, after pushing two more runs across in the sixth.

The six-run spree was made while Roy Henshaw, the third Cub pitcher, was in the box. The Giants pounded him for five hits and profited by Henshaw's two-base wild throw to shove the runs over.

In the first, singles by Joe Moore and Sam Leslie, a walk and Gus Mancuso's double brought in the three runs. Mel Ott's walk, Leslie's triple and Mancuso's long fly added the two in the sixth.

Singles by Augie Galan and Lon Warneke accounted for the Cubs' first tally, in the third, while their other, in the seventh, came when Gumbert passed Billy Herman with the bases loaded, after Charley Grimm and Bill Jurges had singled.

GRANT'S VICTORY OVER M'GRATH ASTONISHES WIMBLEDON

'GIANT KILLER' WILL OPPOSE FRED PERRY IN QUARTERFINAL

Capacity Crowd of 20,000 Sees Marvelous Display of Court Covering as "Bitsy" Wins.

WIMBLEDON, England, June 27.—Britons know now why Bryan (Bitsy) Grant is the giant-killer of the tennis courts.

The Atlanta atom, who stands barely over five feet when he takes a deep breath and pulls himself up to his full height, shelled Vivian McGrath of Australia to cover, 6—3, 6—4, 6—0, in the fourth round of the all-England championship today.

His short legs working swiftly and vigorously, Grant treated a capacity gallery of 20,000 to one of the greatest displays of court-covering ever seen on Wimbledon's historic center turf.

McGrath, known as the two-fisted player because he holds the racquet with both hands on deep forehand and backhand shots, is one of the foremost placement artists in the game, but he couldn't keep the ball out of Grant's range.

Several times McGrath caught the little fellow out of position, but Grant flew over the court and in his characteristic manner made seemingly impossible returns. And there was plenty of arm and accuracy in those returns.

With McGrath's victory tucked under his belt and an earlier triumph over Heiner Henkel, young German Davis Cup star, Grant found himself in the quarterfinal round, where he will meet Fred Perry, twice champion, Monday in the star attraction. It should be a great duel of contrasting styles—the Atlantan's rhythmic steadiness and the Briton's blasting accuracy.

Grant, Perry and the Australians, Jack Crawford and Adrian Quist, all gained the round of eight today. Perry breezed past Camille Malfroy, former Cambridge player, 6—2, 6—2, 6—4; Crawford toppled Harry Lee, ex-English Davis cupster, 7—5, 6—4, 9—7, and Quist defeated Donald Butler, 6—3, 7—5, 9—7.

The other quarterfinal brackets were filled yesterday by red-head Don Budge, who still looks like America's best bet notwithstanding Grant's fine showings; Wilmer Allison, the American champion; Gottfried von Cramm, German ace, and H. W. (Bunny) Austin, Perry's Davis Cup teammate. All eight are seeded players.

Perry, Grant, Budge and Quist are in the upper half of the draw; Allison, Austin, Crawford and Von Cram form the lower half. Monday's program: Perry vs. Grant, Budge vs. Quist, Austin vs. Allison, and Crawford vs. Von Cramm.

While Grant stole the show, Helen Jacobs, the American champion, moved into the quarterfinals with a 6-4, 6-3 triumph over Countess Lili de la Valdene of France and Spain. Her next opponent will be the much-improved Anita Lizana of Chile, who trounced Mary Heeley of England, 6—3, 6—3.

WYKOFF STARS IN OLYMPIC TRIALS ON THE PACIFIC COAST

Bob Graham, Whitman College, Walla Walla, Wash., was second in the 200 meters.

"Blazing" Ben Eastman, the West's best bet in the 800 meters, came through with an easy win in 1 minute 50.1 seconds. Jimmy Luvalle, coffee-colored ex-Bruin of the University of California at Los Angeles, had little trouble winning the 400 meters in 46.3 seconds. Bob Young of U. C. L. A. finished second.

Bill Graber, another "come-back" campaigner, moved toward the New York finals in the pole vault, along with George Varoff of the Olympic Club. The two tied with the Trojan star, Bill Sefton, who already had qualified in the event, with a leap of 14 feet 3 inches. Graber holds the world record of 14 feet 4⅜ inches.

Roy Staley, of the famous hurdling duo of Phil Cope and Staley of Southern California, captured the 110-meter high hurdles in 14.3 seconds. Leroy Kirkpatrick of San Mateo Junior College was second.

Estel Johnson, another Trojan protege of Coach Dean Cromwell, who sent most of his stars to perform in Milwaukee today, won the 400 meter hurdle event, with Dell Fishback of California 15 feet behind in second place. The winning time was 52.2 seconds.

Delos Thurber, U. S. C., won the high jump with a leap of 6 feet 7 inches, with Walter Marty of the Olympic Club, holder of the world's record, second at 6 feet 6 inches. Phil Levy of Stanford took the discus throw with a heave of 164 feet 1⅝ inches. Adrian Davis, Compton (Cal.) Junior College, was second with 154 feet 7½ inches.

Malcolm Metcalfe of the Olympic Club won the javelin throw, tossing the spear 219 feet 6½ inches, with [illegible] Parke, his teammate, second at 211 feet 11¼ inches. Clarence Rowland, Fresno State, was third at 208 feet 4½ inches, and Johnny Mottram of the Olympic Club, a favorite, was fourth at 207 feet 5⅜ inches.

Dear Uncle Dudley: Why is Second Baseman Carey of the Browns called "Scoops?"—Toot Sweet.

Scoops, my dear! It's just an old Spanish custom dating back to the time when the original "Scoops" Carey played for first base for Indianapolis, if memory serves. Since that time it follows as inevitably as night follows day that all Careys are "Scoops." The current Carey escaped the appelation for a while after joining the Browns, but "Scoops" finally caught up with him. It had to be that way.—U. D.

The Cards carried the West by a comfortable majority, but the returns from the East have been anything but encouraging. However, if they cross the Eads Bridge and come down to the railroad tracks with a scant margin, they ought to go over in spite of reverses in the Eastern sector.

Just as it was beginning to look like a race between the Cardinals and Cubs, Pittsburgh started a third-party movement and began to make trouble for the parties of the first and second part.

The Democratic convention in Philadelphia providing no contest, it was up to the Phillies to come through with an upset. S-o-o-o, all they did was knock "Dizzy" Dean out of the box in the fourth inning.

The second game the Phils knocked out Bill Walker in the first inning to get at Jess Haines. But when they got old Jess, they found they had a bear by the tail and couldn't let go.

So the day wound up with each club beating the other by a score of 13 to 4, which is probably a major league record and, if so, what of it?

After tieing the major league record of seven straight strikeouts and holding the Cincinnati Reds to seven hits, Van Lingle Mungo lost the game, 5 to 4. Demonstrating that anything can happen in Flatbush.

J. Pluvius did his stuff a day too soon to be of any assistance to Joe Louis. Now, if J. P. had stopped the fight in the fourth round Friday night, he would have been really helpful.

Eleanor Jarrett Sets New Mark, Lenore Wingard Wins Second Swimming Race Title

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 27.—Three champions, among them 12-year-old Mary Hoerger, the tiniest and youngest mermaid of them all, fell in a wave of upsets that shook women's national outdoor swimming championships at Oriental Pool, Manhattan Beach, today.

Only one of four defending titleholders, Mrs. Lenore Kight Wingard of Homestead, Pa., survived the tolling count over the champions. The Homestead star survived by retaining her 440-yard free-style championship with ease.

The Hoerger girl, who stunned the swimming world last year by coming up and whipping one of diving's greatest fields, was dethroned by Claudia Eckert, 1935 indoor low board champion from Chicago, who scored her winning points in two beautifully executed dives—the running front somersault, layout position and a backward one and a half duck.

Miss Eckert's total was 132.63 as against 129.49 for the 80-pound Miami girl. Janice Lifson of New York, second to Miss Hoerger by a fraction of a point last year, was third with 128.37 points.

Mrs. Jarrett Regains Title.

Mrs. Eleanor Holm Jarrett of New York, a veteran who thinks hard training is a lot of hokum, came back to regain her reputation and title in the 220-yard back stroke, defeating the Kompa sisters from New York, Elizabeth and Erna, with yards to spare in the record time of 2:51.8, or 4.8 seconds faster than her own American record.

The result dethroned Erna Kompa, third today, as champion but was far from unexpected as Mrs. Jarrett was a slight favorite.

Iris Cummings, 15-year-old Los Angeles high school girl, who almost missed the championships because her club mates thought she wasn't good enough, turned in the day's biggest upset even though the diving and back-stroke championships caught the interest of the crowd of 2500.

Unheralded as a dangerous foe, she streaked into the lead in the 220-yard breast-stroke and won it, defeating Katherine Rawls, Miami star, and defending titleholder, by inches, in a driving finish. Miss Cummings' time was 4:17.2, the identical time she has been swimming the event in practice.

Mrs. Wingard Leads in Points.

Mrs. Wingard, in retaining her second free-style title—she recaptured the mile event Thursday in the world-record time of 24:07.2—took the lead in the race for individual honors. In the 440, as the mile, she had an easy time of it, beating her closest pursuer, Mary Lou Petty of Seattle, by seven yards.

Dorothea Dickinson of New York was third. Mrs. Wingard's time was 5:37.3, far off her own record, but good enough.

Aided by a one-two-three sweep in the back-stroke, the Women's Swimming Association of New York increased its lead in the team championship race, piling up a total of 25 points as against 15 for the second-running Washington A. C. of Seattle.

The Carnegie Library Club of Homestead, Pa. (Mrs. Wingard) was third with 12. Other point totals, with only tomorrow's events in the 300-meter medley relay and 880-yard free-style left on the program, were:

Miami Beach Swimming Club, 8; Newark (N. J.) A. C., 7; Los Angeles A. C., 5; Shelton Dolphins, New York, 5; Olneyville Boys' Auxiliary, Providence, R. I., 3, and two points each for the Peoria (Ill.) Country Club, Miami Beach A. C., and unattached.

The summaries:

220-YARD BACKSTROKE FINAL—Won by Eleanor Holm Jarrett, New York, 2m. 51.8s; second, Elizabeth Kompa, New York, 2m. 57.3s; third, Erna Kompak, New York, 2m. 59.9s; fourth, Jean Laubeimer, Brooklyn, 3m. 9.2s; fifth, Mable Hall, Peoria, Ill., 3m. 12.9s; sixth, Mary Shepherd, Miami Beach, 3m. 16.2s. (Mrs. Jarrett's time lowered her own American record of 2m. 56.4s for long course pool.)

220-YARD BREAST STROKE FINAL—Won by Iris Cummings, Los Angeles, 3m. 17.2s; second, Katherine Rawls, Miami Beach, 3m. 17.9s; third, Elsie Petri, New York, 3m. 24.5s; fourth, Marjorie Dozier, New York, 3m. 28.2s; fifth, Harriet Vance, Peoria, Ill., 3m. 39.4s; sixth, Johanna Gorman, Homestead, Pa., 3m. 40s.

440-YARD FREE STYLE FINAL—Won by Mrs. Lenore Kight Wingard, Homestead, Pa., 5m. 37.3s; second, Mary Lou Petty, Seattle, 5m. 45.4s; third, Dorothea Dickinson, New York, 5m. 46.1s; fourth, Doris Buckley, Seattle, 5m. 49.6s; fifth, Olive McKean, Seattle, 5m. 51.6s; sixth, Doris Brennan, Providence, R. I., 5m. 53.2s; seventh, Virginia Hopkins, Miami Beach, 5m. 54.2s.

THREE METERS SPRINGBOARD DIVE FINAL—Won by Claudia Eckert, Chicago, 132.63 points; second, Mary Hoerger, Miami; 129.49; third, Janice Lifson, New York, 128.37; fourth, Margaret Reinhold, Tampa, Fla., 125.48.

game. Dizzy Dean had been advertised to pitch and the front office ordered the gates opened in the hope the slight drizzle would end in time to permit play. But when it was still raining at 1:45 and only a few customers were on hand, it was announced that the game was off and would be re-scheduled on a later Cardinal visit to Ebbetts Field.

Dizzy, who will be seeking his fourteenth victory for the season tomorrow, will find the oppositoin as tough as the Dodgers can make it.

Ed Brandt, who handed Jerome Herman his second defeat of the season on May 12, is likely to be the greater Dean's opponent, and if it isn't the veteran southpaw it will be Van Lingle Mungo, who is trying hard to reinstate himself in the good graces of the club, after his recent one-man rebellion.

WRAY'S COLUMN

great pitcher for the Giants. That he labored in the shadow of Hubbell hasn't altered his worth.

Looks Like O. B. Sidestepped.

IN THE American League the fan ballots didn't miss the mark very far, although we would like to have seen old Goose Goslin, comeback warhorse of the Tigers, get a place in the lineup instead of Chapman or Selkirk. And Crosetti has surely earned a chance at shortstop by his great fielding.

The fans were handicapped in some of their selections by the necessity of seeing that every team was represented. Because of this there are a few kinks in the announced selections. Perhaps the greatest "boot" was in naming an unseasoned player like Stuart Martin and omitting a live wire like Pepper Martin.

The setup indicates that in giving the game back to the fans (to pick the all-star teams) Organized Baseball did a wonderful job of sidestepping a hard and thankless task.

About the Game Itself.

THE playing of the all-star game, under the rules laid down, will be interesting enough, but it will be largely a parade of talent.

Three pitchers will be used and substitutions made on the slightest provocation. That will, of course, enable most of the men named on the all-star outfit to get into the game.

This parade of famous stars will doubtless please fans who seldom have a chance to view all of the outstanding players of both leagues.

Viewed in one way, the game will be a better test of league strength than if the first nine men sent to the field for each side played all the way through.

The boys who like a ball game would like to see the Great Diz and Lefty Grove fight it out to a finish.

But it is a better test of all-round strength to make use of replacements—and that is the system planned.

The game affords an agreeable break in the monotony of the league grinds, gives the public and players something different to think about and discuss, is a great "ad" for baseball and provides a considerable sum of money for the benefit of needy veteran baseball players.

All-in-all, it's a worth-while addition to the sport calendar, each year.

Year of Comebacks.

THE way comebacks are going over, you can't blame the G. O. P. for hoping it will pull a Max Schmeling next November. It has really been a great year for the old-timers, the most recent of whom to ring the gong was Jack Sharkey.

Jack pleased a big crowd at Boston last week when he got up off the floor and beat Phil Brubaker, a rising young California heavyweight.

They are all pepped up about the one time idol of Boston now. Matches with Schmeling, Braddock and even Baer are being talked about for Jack—but he'd better make it Baer, playing it safe.

Jack has had four fights in his comeback effort and he has seemed to improve. But in beating Brubaker he has not satisfied the world as to whether the victory resulted from Sharkey's strength or Brubaker's weakness.

After all, Phil's just one of those California skyrockets and you don't know when or where the stick will fall.

He seems to have the stuff, however, although a trifle green.

Pulled Green.

PERHAPS that's the trouble with our present crop of top-rank professionals, who are sent up on their amateur reputations before they have had a chance to season.

It seems to be the only possible explanation of the remarkable series of surprises effected by has-beens. First there was Jimmy Braddock and he stunned the world by beating a bigger, younger man, Max Baer, then champion. Then came Max Schmeling and he knocked out the comet Joe Louis. Sharkey followed by getting the nod over Brubaker.

Louis and Brubaker, while they had fought a large number of professional fights, were sent against powerful opponents before they were thoroughly experienced.

Baer was not inexperienced, but was guilty of the sins of pride, overconfidence, gluttony and what have you.

Managers ought to be more patient with fighters, otherwise they may get them badly hurt and wreck their careers. Young fellows ought to practice day after day to learn the game after quitting the amateur ranks. They should remain in the semi-windup and preliminary classes until thoroughly fitted to face real professionals.

There is a vast difference between the best amateur and an ordinary professional.

Still, today, managers of young amateurs want to run them through a string of pushovers and then tackle a good fighter. It very evidently is an easy way to get your man hurt.

Must Need the Money.

THE reason for all the recent moves toward ring comebacks? The answer probably will be found in the bank books of the respective fighters.

Max Schmeling reported that his finances were O. K. before the Louis fight, and that he did not need the money so much as he needed the championship. According to one Hype Igoe, New York writer, Schmeling actually is broke and was glad to get the remains of his 25 per cent of the Louis fight receipts, after Uncle Sam, Hitler and Joe Jacobs got through with it.

Incidentally, it is said that Schmeling took only $12,000 home with him. He had borrowed sums said to total $35,000 from Jacobs in the past year.

Considering that Schmeling made a lot of money, is no spendthrift and had a couple of lucrative fights abroad, the story sounds fantastic. Still, the charge is Max was broke.

Jimmy Needs It.

BRADDOCK we know was broke and has not made anything since the Baer fight. He has lived freely and spent money and he will most certainly welcome the cash from another big house.

Max Baer made a lot of money, cut it up a lot of ways and had most of the remainder in escrow due to lawsuits. Nobody knows how his fortune stands, but it certainly has not been improved since a court decision in favor of his former manager was handed down.

As for Jack Sharkey, he ought to have half a million dollars, but you never can tell. Why should he have opened a tavern if he was rolling in wealth? And why, now, at his age, should he try a comeback if money were no object to him?

Boxers like Sharkey, Baer and Schmeling do not emerge from retirement for glory — it would be unprecedented if they did. The only conclusion is that the big fortunes amassed in the ring slip away as quickly as they were accumulated.

Easy come, easy go—it still works out that way for all except Tunney and Dempsey.

CARBONDALE GOLFER CAPTURES SOUTHERN ILLINOIS GOLF TITLE

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MOUNDS, Ill., June 27.—J. Draksler of Carbondale late today won the Southern Illinois golf championship by scoring an overwhelming victory over W. H. Atterbury of Fairfield in the 36-hole final of the tournament. The score was 9 and 7.

LOWRY LOSES MATCH AT AUDITORIUM

Herb Lowry, heavyweight wrestler, lost a match on the Democrtaic rally card at the Auditorium last night when Joe Miller threw him out of the ring after nine minutes and 59 seconds of wrestling. Both are from St. Louis.

Boxing exhibitions, in which no decisions were rendered, also were on the card.

The program:

WRESTLING.

Manny Marguils, 165, St. Louis, drew with Ernie Klein, 160, St. Louis, 15 minutes.

Ben Rodriquez, 184, St. Louis, threw Joe Vitale, 184, St. Louis, 8m. 17s.

Joe Miller, 175, St. Louis, threw Herb Lowry, 170, St. Louis, 9m. 59s.

BOXING.

Merl Thompson, 126, St. Louis, vs. Ossie Merritt, 126, St. Louis, three rounds.

Archie Moore, 155, St. Louis, vs. Charles Dobbins, 160, Little Rock, Ark., three rounds.

Jack Nichols, 175, St. Louis, vs. Joey Parks, 165, St. Louis, three rounds.

36 MID-WEST STARS QUALIFY AS TWO OLYMPIC RECORDS FALL

By the Associated Press.

MILWAUKEE, June 27.—Kenneth Carpenter, of the University of Southern California, and Edward Burke, Marquette University freshman, led a field of 36 athletes into the United States Olympic finals by bettering Olympic marks in the discus and high jump in the central Olympic track and field semifinals today.

Sam Allen of Oklahoma Baptist University, who equaled the Olympic 110-meter hurdles time in qualifying last night, failed to repeat in the finals and bowed to Fritz Pollard, son of the former Negro football star at Brown University.

Other laurels went to Ralph Metcalfe, Marquette University sprinter, who won the 100 and 200 meters and put in his bid for a berth on his second Olympic team, and Glenn Cunningham, the veteran Kansas distance star.

While placing fourth in the 800 meters, Cunningham won the 1500 meters in 3 minutes, 53.2 seconds, after coming from behind and taking the lead from Archie San Romani, of Emporiar (Kan.) Teachers.

Carpenter, who bettered the world record with a discus throw of 173 feet a week ago, exceeded the Olympic mark with a toss of 170 feet, 2.8 inches. The Olympic record of 162 feet, 4⅞ inches was set by John Anderson in 1932. Today's throw also smashed the stadium record of 164 feet, 9 inches Anderson set here this year.

In taking second with 164 feet, 8.9 inches, Gordon Dunn, of the San Francisco Olympic Club, also bettered Anderson's marks.

Although Burke's high jump of 6 feet 6 7-16 inches was seven-sixteenths of an inch better than the Olympic mark Harold Osborn made in 1934, the Negro lad failed by more than two inches of the stadium record set in the A. A. U. games here in 1934.

The two-year-old stadium record in the javelin, held by Ralston Le Gore of North Carolina, also fell when Lee Bartlett, Detroit, threw the spear 221 feet, 9 inches. Le George's mark was 216 feet, 9 3-5 inches.

Metcalfe, who has equaled or bettered all standard sprinting records from 40 yards to 220, was clocked in the 100 at 10.5 and in th 200 at 21.3, after pulling out with his characteristic burst of speed at the half-way mark.

The two-year-old stadium record of Ivan Fuqua, of Indiana, in the 400 meters was cast into the discard as Arichie Williams, University of California, breezed to victory in 46.7 seconds. Fuqua's time was 47.4.

Featuring the first day of the two-day trials was the brilliant 10,000 meters run by Donald Lash, of Indiana, competing for the first time against competition. He lapped the entire field and came home in 33 minutes, 45.4 seconds.

Winners of firsts and seconds in the trials here qualify automatically for the New York finals on July 11 and 12.

TWO PHILLIES TIED FOR SECOND PLACE IN N. L. BATTING LIST

By the Associated Press.

Johnny Moore of the Phillies, apparently recovered from his recent injuries, pulled up to a second place tie yesterday in the National League trio in baseball's "Big Six" of batting. He collected three hits in five times at bat to boost his average to .355 and a deadlock with his teammate, Dolph Camilli, while Baxter Jordan of the Boston Bees slipped to fourth place from third.

Rip Radcliff of the White Sox took a tighter grip on second place in the American League by getting four hits in nine trips to the plate during a doubleheader to raise his mark three points to .376.

The standing (three leading hitters in each league):

	G.	AB.	R.	H.	Pc

BRADDOCK READY TO DEFEND HIS HONORS IN CLEVELAND RING

CLEVELAND, June 27.—Lincoln G. Dickey, general manager of the Great Lakes Exposition, said he received a telegram today from James J. Braddock, heavyweight champion of the world, saying he would be "tickled to death to appear in Cleveland" in defense of his title.

Dickey recently wired Promoter Mike Jacobs, offering to underwrite the Braddock-Schmeling bout to the extent of $1,250,000 if the show was brought to the Great Lakes Exposition.

Cricket Match Today.

The undefeated Riverside team will meet the Forest Park team in a St. Louis Cricket Association match this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock on the Cricket Field near the Nathan Frank bandstand in Forest Park. It will be the last league game of the season.

Forest Park has lost only one game, that by an 83-to-82 score to the Riverside aggregation. The teams are tuning up for the intercity contests against Chicago to be played here, July 4 and 5.

ALF PADGHAM'S 287 WINS BRITISH OPEN GOLF CHAMPIONSHIP

GENE SARAZEN TIES FOR FIFTH, FALTERING ON LAST 9 HOLES

Scotch Player, Jim Adams, Is Second With 288—Cotton Cracks on Last Nine Also, and Finishes Third.

By the Associated Press.

HOYLAKE, England, June 27.—Alf Padgham, who broke into the professional's shop shortly after daylight to get his golf clubs, took the British open championship right under the eyes of Henry Cotton, Gene Sarazen and an assorted body of golfing stars from two continents today.

Boldly resorting to window smashing when the Hoylake Golf Shop key was lost, Padgham calmly speared himself a pair of 71s and then withdrew to the clubhouse veranda and watched the others vainly try to equal his total of 287.

Several of them had their chances, including Sarazen and Cotton, but they could not endure the rigors of Hoylake's finishing holes.

Sarazen, making one of his famous last-ditch drives, blazed around this morning's round in 70, and went out in 35, one under par, this afternoon. He had a huge, unwieldly gallery mad with excitement as he turned home needing a 34 to tie, but 34 is four under par for that nine, and hole by hole he dropped strokes to Hoylake's vast distances. He finished the nine in 38 for a 73, a total of 291, and a tie for fifth place.

Cotton Cracks, Also.

Cotton, requiring only a 36 on that last nine to catch Padgham, also found the strain too great and cracked while the shy, quiet leader sat back and smiled. Cotton finished with a 74 for 289 and a tie with Marcel Dallemagne of France for third place.

The honor of pushing the new champion hardest went to Jim Adams, the Scottish open champion, who was knocking at the door all the way through this championship and wound up only one stroke behind. At the end of the first round he was one shot back of Bill Cox, the Wimbledon pro.

At the half-way mark, he was sharing the lead with Cox. He kept this lead at the 54-hole mark by shooting a 71 in the third round this morning, though Henry Cotton pulled up level with him at noon, and then, drawing a great gallery for the first time this afternoon, he faltered at the start.

His nervousness on the greens cost him the title. He three-putted the second and the fifth, and was out in 38, two over par, but once he got used to the crowd, he made a great bid. He came back in 35, three under par, for a total of 288. Only a wayward second shot into the sand at the seventeenth cost him a tie.

Percy Alliss and Tom Green, British professionals, tied Sarazen at 291, and, like the American, both had a possible chance of victory on the last nine holes. Alliss did manage to start the final nine with a birdie after going out in 34, but he played the last eight holes in level par for a 37 and a 71. Green likewise needed a remarkable finish to win, but could do no better than par, for a round of 75.

Three others, including Bobby Locke, an English amateur, finished in a tie for eighth at 294.

Ted Turner, Pine Valley, N. J., pro, finished second among the four Americans who qualified. He shot a 75 and a 74 today for a total of 298, two over par for the 72 holes.

Willie Coggin, San Francisco, and Errie Ball, Mobile, Ala., the other Americans, posted totals of 302. Coggin had a 73 and Ball a 72 this morning, but both fell away in the afternoon, Ball to 79 and Coggin to 77.

Padgham, runner-up for the title last year and third the year before, started out the final round with a birdie four, but he caught the sand on the second and dropped a stroke there. Again, at the sixth, he wandered into the waving grass and went a stroke over par, and so it was at the turn.

Putts Fall for Padgham.

When he started for the clubhouse, however, he was unbeatable. He got that stroke back at the tenth with a birdie. He went one under at the twelfth with another birdie. He rammed down an 18-footer at the thirteenth for a deuce, and got a birdie four, his third in a row, at the fourteenth.

The new champion lost a stroke at the fifteenth, but made it up at the home green where his second was six feet from the flag and his third in the hole.

Sarazen struggled through the first six holes of the final round in even par, though he had to drop a 35-footer at the fourth to do so. He missed the green at the short seventh and slipped one over, but he birdied the eighth and ninth, sinking a 35-footer at the ninth, to reach the turn in 35.

Gene missed the green again at the short eleventh and lost another stroke here, and though he birdied the next three holes, he practically put himself out of it when he bogeyed the fifteenth. Another 5 at the sixteenth gave him a chance to tie by playing the last two holes in birdies, but he took two fives instead.

HE WHO HESITATES IS OUT—Lazzeri Retired at Third

Tony Lazzeri was the second victim on an odd double play by the Browns in the sixth inning of yesterday's game at Sportsman's Park. Lazzeri opened the inning with a single to left and moved to third on Ruffing's one-ply blow. Crosetti hit to Lary, who threw to Carey to force Ruffing at second. "Push 'Em Up" Tony started for home and seeing that he might be caught at the plate, tried to return to third and was run down, Carey to Hemsley to Clift.

TERRY OUT OF ALL-STAR GAME; GRIMM TO PICK AN ALTERNATE

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 27.—Charley Grimm, who will manage the National League all-stars in the annual inter-league battle July 7, announced today that Bill Terry, New York Giants' pilot and first baseman, has withdrawn from the squad for the forthcoming game.

Terry's left ankle, which has been ailing since March and was wrenched again yesterday, forced him to ask that his name be removed.

Terry played in most of last year's all-star clash, retiring in the late innings in favor of Rip Collins of the Cardinals.

The starting first sacker for this year's game probably will be among the five players Grimm will name Monday to round out his squad.

The material from which McCarthy and Grimm may pick still includes such stars as Al Simmons, Joe Cronin, Mel Harder, Joe Vosmik, Frankie Frisch, Paul Waner, Pepper Martin and 11 other participants in last year's fixture, all of whom failed to gain places in the balloting this year.

Dizzy Dean led all players with 49,100 votes with Charlie Gehringer a close second with 42,385. Gabby Hartnett third with 41,385 and Bob Grove fourth with 40,640.

In addition to Dean, Stuart Martin and Joe Medwick of the Cardinals and Rollie Hemsley of the Browns, gained places.

The National League squad:

OUTFIELDERS—Joe Medwick, Cards; Mel Ott and Joe Moore, Giants; Wally Berger, Bees; Frank Demaree, Cubs.

INFIELDERS—Bill Herman, Cubs; Arky Vaughan, Pirates; Bill Terry, Giants; Stuart Martin, Cards; Pink Whitney, Phillies.

PITCHERS—Dizzy Dean, Cards; Carl Hubbell, Giants; Van Mungo, Dodgers; Lon Warneke, Chicago.

CATCHERS—Gabby Hartnett, Cubs; Ernie Lombardi, Reds.

The American League squad.

OUTFIELDERS—Joe di Maggio and George Selkirk, Yankees; Earl Averill, Indians; Ray Radcliff, White Sox; Ben Chapman, Senators.

INFIELDERS—Charley Gehringer, Tigers; Luke Appling, White Sox; Lou Gehrig, Yankees; Jimmy Foxx, Red Sox; Pinky Higgins, Athletics.

PITCHERS—Lefty Grove, Red Sox; Vernon Gomez and Monte Pearson, Yankees; Lynwood Rowe, Tigers.

CATCHERS—Mickey Cochrane, Tigers; Bill Dickey, Yankees; Rollie Hemsley, St. Louis.

In Tennis Final.

PITTSBURGH, June 27.—Art Hendrix of Lakeland, Fla., and Barney Welsh of Washington, advanced into the final singles round of the Middle States tennis tournament today by winning hard-fought matches in the semifinal bracket.

Hendrix, seeded No. 1, defeated Bob Harmon, California youngster, 7—5, 6—1, 14—16, 7—5. Welsh eliminated Guy Cheng, Chinese student at Tulane University, 6—4, 0—6, 6—4, 6—4.

MORRIS COMPETING IN HIS SECOND DECATHLON BREAKS WORLD RECORD

United States decathlon team in the 1936 Olympics through their work in the two-day contest at Marquette University stadium were Robert Clark of the San Francisco Olympic Club, national champion in 1934-35, and Jack Parker, of Sacramento Junior College, who still has two more years of college competition.

Clark's point total was 7598 and Parker's was 7290.

Morris first became attracted to the decathlon, ranked as the supreme test of the all-around athlete, while watching the 1932 Olympics at Los Angeles.

A good athlete in his student days at Colorado State College, Morris went under rigorous training under Coach Harry Hughes of that school. He has been working hard a year and a half, the first result of which was shown at the Kansas Relays in April when he exceeded the record of Jim Bausch made in the last Olympics.

Clark's performance in the decathlon was featured by his broad jump of 25 feet 11½ inches in which he broke the record set by Jesse Owens of Ohio State in 1935. The Buckeye star's mark was 25 feet 9 inches.

3 TEAMS TIE FOR LEAD IN TOLEDO GOLF

By the Associated Press.

TOLEDO, O., June 27.—The $4600 Inverness invitational four-ball tourney became a three-team race today as 16 of the country's leading professionals tore the course apart with 33 birdies, upset the leaders and jumbled the standings to a point where anything can happen before the curtain is rung down Sunday afternoon.

Walter Hagen and Ky Laffoon, who have held the edge since the opening shots were fired Thursday afternoon, were forced to share the top berth after today's matches with Ray Mangrum, the lean lanky pro from Dayton, O., and Craig Wood, of Deal, N. J., only a point back were "Light Horse" Harry Cooper and Horton Smith.

The luck of the draw pits the three leaders against each other in Sunday's matches. In the morning Smith-Cooper meet Mangrum-Wood while Hagen-Laffoon are tangling with Tommy Armour and Bobby Cruickshank. In the afternoon Hagen-Laffoon meet Mangrum-Wood, while Cooper-Smith take on Henry Picard and Johnny Revolta, the defending champions.

The standing of the teams at the end of the day's play, on a cumulative basis, was:

Hagen-Laffoon, plus 10; Mangrum-Wood, plus 10; Smith-Cooper, plus 9; Shute-Ghezzi, minus 2, Thomson-Little, minus 3; Picard-Revolta, minus 5; Armour-Cruickshank, minus 5; Hines-Klein, minus 14.

Results of today's rounds:

Morning: Armour-Cruickshank defeated Thomson-Little, 5 up; Mangrum-Wood defeated Hines-Klien, 4 up; Smith-Cooper defeated Shute-Ghezzi, 2 up; Hagen-Laffoon defeated Picard-Revolta, 2 up.

Afternoon: Smith-Cooper defeated Hines-Klein, 5 up; Mangrum-Wood defeated Armour-Cruickshank, 3 up; Shute-Ghezzi defeated Picard-Revolta, 3 up; Hagen-Laffoon tied Thomson-Little.

Browns Lose to Yankees, 10-6; Homers: Yankees 6, Browns 1

for the Yanks. The first game will start at 1:30.

The Browns used strategy. A lull in the rain about 1:20 p. m. yesterday would have permitted the removal of the tarpaulin, but had it been removed, the Yankees would have got some batting practice. Hornsby figured that was one thing the Yankees didn't need especially, so the cover stayed on.

Between games today, Johnny Schulte, Yankee coach and a St. Louisan, will be presented with a traveling bag by members of De Andreis Council, Knights of Columbus.

Max Carey, former major league outfielder, and one of the greatest base runners of his time, saw the series opener.

Solters fouled to Selkirk in the first and the New York outfielder skidded and fell just as the ball reached his glove. He held to it, however.

It was Nokomis vs. Nokomis when Bottomley faced Ruffing for the first time. Charley made Jim drive to Powell in center.

Powell's line drive in the second might have spelled trouble as two were on at the time but Solters came to time with a nice catch only a foot or two from the fence.

Despite the rainy prelude, about 4000 saw yesterday's game.

Ruffing's third-inning homer was a line-driver which seemed to be still rising when it skidded off the pavilion roof.

Di Maggio started the season as the Yankees' left-fielder but now he's in right. Manager McCarthy got the idea that runners were taking an extra base on Selkirk so he put the stronger-armed Italian in right, Selkirk moving to left.

Both pitchers shone as batters first time up. Ruffing checked in with a homer and Thomas singled to start the Brown's three-run third.

star now representing the Newark A. C., missed his chance to top the discus throwers and beat the Olympic record when he fouled on his best throw, measuring 165 feet, 11½ inches. Wood qualified, however, with a second-place throw of 160 feet, 11¼ inches, made the day before, while the 1932 Olympic champion, John Anderson of the New York A. C. remained in front with 161 feet, 8½ inches.

High Jump Mark Equaled.

The Olympic high jump record of 6 feet 6 inches was equaled by Cornelius Johnson, Los Angeles Negro, but he has consistently done better. Johnson was satisfied not to try jumping higher when the mark sufficed to clinch first place, an inch beyond the best efforts of either George Spitz of the New York A. C., or Al Threadgill, Temple University Negro.

Jack Torrance, the 320-pound Baton Rouge (La.) policeman and world record-holder, rallied to win the shot put with a toss of 52 feet, 3⅛ inches. Torrance trailed in yesterday's trials but made his first effort this afternoon good enough to beat his Boston rival, Dimmy Zaitz, who took second place with 51 feet, 9 inches.

Louisiana's hurdlers monopolized the spotlight. The veteran Al Moreau skimmed over the 110-meter high hurdles in 14.5 seconds to whip Phil Good of Bowdoin College by two yards, with another Louisianan, Johnny Morriss, 1934 national champion, third. Glenn Hardin of Louisiana State, apparently back in top form, romped off with the 400-meter low hurdles in 52.6 seconds, finishing four yards in front of Hamilton Hucker, Buffalo boy competing for the New York A. C.

Winner Barred.

The sprints failed to develop anything startling. Robert Rodenkirchen, the Jersey City school boy who was disbarred yesterday on non-citizenship grounds after breaking a 200-meter record, sat on the sidelines as Ben Johnson, New York Negro, flashed home a winner in 21.5 seconds. This was a half second short of the mark Rodenkirchen made for the distance, run around one turn, but good enough to give Johnson a yard victory over Edgar Mason, Pittsburgh star and intercollegiate A. A. A. A. champion.

Rodenkirchen's status, as an Olympic hopeful, depends on pending steps to obtain his father's final citizenship papers before July 15, the date on which the American Olympic team sails. If the German-born youngster's eligibility to represent the United States can be cleared, he will be permitted to enter the final tryouts in New York on the strength of his fast work yesterday.

Kelly to Run at Olympics.

Mel Porter finished third in both the Boston Marathon and the Washington Marathan this year but John Kelly of Boston who finished fifth at Boston and second in Washington was chosen instead for the Olympic team. The first two were Tarzan Brown and Bill McMahon, winners at Boston and Washington respectively.

SIX-RUN FRAME HELPS TIGERS BEAT ATHLETICS

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, June 27.—The Detroit Tigers landed on Gordon (Dusty) Rhodes for six runs in the seventh inning today to defeat Philadelphia, 8 to 4, in the second game of the series and tie with Washington and Cleveland for third place in the league standings.

Rhodes and Gumpert, who pitched the eighth for the Athletics, were pounded for 17 hits, including a home run by Al Simmons in the second inning, and three safeties each by Charlie Gehringer, Billy Rogell and Marvin Owen.

Home runs by Puccinelli with Wally Moses on base in the first, and by Bob Johnson, first up in the fourth, aided by giving Rhodes a three-run lead which he was unable to hold.

Clarence Phillips, Roxie Lawson and Chad Kimsey divided tne Detroit hurling duties and limited the Athletics to six hits.

GOODMAN'S TWO HOMERS HELP REDS BEAT PHILS FOR SIXTH IN ROW

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, June 27.—The Cincinnati Reds won their sixth straight game today, their longest victory run of the season, by nosing out the Phillies, 10 to 9, with a home-run attack in which four round-trip clouts were hammered out of the park.

Ival Goodman smashed out two of the four-baggers and Billy Myers and Babe Herman had one apiece, which more than made up for the 19—14 edge the Phils had in total base hits.

The Phillies not only lost the game, but their shortstop, Leo Norris, as well. He was spiked in the leg in the ninth and had to retire from the game.

CHICAGO BOXERS MEET NEW YORK TEAM JULY 22

NEW YORK, June 27.—New York's Catholic Youth Association amateur boxers, still smarting from the 10-6 defeat handed them at Wrigley Field last year, will again invade Chicago on July 22 to do battle with the cream of the Middle West's Simon Pure crop, at Soldier Field, according to an announcement today.

Last year's show, held before a crowd of 30,000, was the first meeting of boxers representing the two largest Catholic Archdioceses in the nation. New York could win only six of the 16 contests, but almost started planning for revenge when the gong rang after the last round of the final bout.

Oakland Scores 27 Runs, 8 Under Coast League Mark

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., June 27.

OAKLAND approached the Pacific Coast League record for the largest score when it defeated Mission, 27 to 6, here this afternoon. The largest score, 35, was made by Vernon on May 11, 1923, against Salt Lake, which counted 11 runs.

San Francisco holds the record for most hits, with 37, made when it defeated Salt Lake, 30 to 14, on May 24, 1924, so the 30 hits made by Oakland today also fell just short of equaling the mark.

Missions used four pitchers in an effort to stop the barrage, which included 10 runs in the third inning. In addition to the 33 runs scored by both teams, the clubs totaled 40 hits and each side committed three errors.

WHITE SOX RECRUIT HOLDS SENATORS; TEAMS DIVIDE DOUBLEHEADER

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 27.—Washington and the White Sox broke even in a doubleheader this afternoon, the Senators winning the first game, 2 to 1, and the White Sox taking the nightcap, 7 to 3.

Earl Whitehill beat Johnny Whitehead in a pitcher's duel to win the opener when he allowed six hits to Whitehead's seven.

In the second game the Sox hammered Jimmy De Shong for 11 hits in the first four innings, including a homerun by Larry Rosenthal. Italo Chelini pitched steady ball on his first start of the year.

Kuhel hit a home run in the ninth for Washington.

ROOKIE WEATHERLY GETS THREE HITS AS INDIANS WIN, 14-5

By the Associated Press.

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, June 27.—The Cleveland Indians pounded four Boston pitchers for a total of 21 hits to defeat the Red Sox, 14 to 5, today.

Outfielder Roy Weatherly, rookie from the New Orleans Pelicans, made his bow as a Cleveland Indian by knocking out two triples and a single and batting in four runs. Hal Trosky hit his nineteenth home run of the season in the fifth inning.

DISCOVERY WINS BROOKLYN HANDICAP 3RD STRAIGHT YEAR

CHAMPION IS EASY VICTOR DESPITE HIS 136 POUNDS

Roman Soldier No Match for Vanderbilt Star, Finishes Seven Lengths Back, in Third Position —10,000 See Race.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 27.—Breezing through the stretch as if taking a morning workout, Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt's Discovery galloped to his third successive victory in the classic Brooklyn Handicap at Aqueduct today.

The big chestnut, probably never better in his brilliant career, and packing the crushing weight of 136 pounds, reached the judges at the end of the one and one-eighth miels four lengths in front of his running-mate, Good Gamble. Another three lengths back trailed Elwood Sachsenmaier's Roman Soldier, labeled as the horse that would force Discovery to give his best. It was the second time in si starts this year in which the Soldier, carrying 10 pounds less than the Vanderbilt ace, failed to have his head in front at the end of a race.

A Vanderbilt Party.

The race for the purse of $10,575 was strictly a Vanderbilt affair in both the betting and running. In the wagering the entry was held at the prohibitive odds of 2 to 7. When it came to the running, Discovery and Good Gable two-timed their three rivals with the latter setting the early pace and former taking the lead at the head of the stretch to win in a breeze.

Packing the heaviest load ever carried to victory in the historic stake, Discovery was clocked in 1:50. He could have made it much faster had it been necessary. Last year, with only 123 pounds in the saddle, the son of Display set what was then a world record of 1:48 1-5 for the distance. Two years ago, as a three-year-old, he won with 113 pounds up.

Sammy Renick sent Good Gamble into a long early lead while Leo (Skinny) Fallon rated Discovery in second place. Vanderbilt had declared to win with Discovery and Fallon had plenty of horse under him as he took command of the situation rounding the turn leading into the stretch. From there on, it was a parade, with Roman Soldier failing to even menace Good Gamble for runner-up honors, worth $2000.

Lucky to Land Third.

The Soldier, second choice at 4 to 1, just managed to head A. A. Baroni's Ann O'Ruley out of the show position with William Woodward's Palma bringing up the rear.

Jinx Buster.

Coach Marchmont Schwartz of the Creighton University football team will try to make good as a jinx buster this season. For the last five years Creighton football captains have been hurt and out of the game. Schwartz will now appoint a captain for each game upon taking the field.

Overweight—Ann O'Ruley, 1; Palma, 1½.

Discovery in great form. He handled his weight well, was rated back of the pace to the stretch where he just breezed to the front and at the end he was only galloping. Good Gamble opened wide gap early and was next best. Roman Soldier moved up fast in run around turn but was no match for the winner. Ann O'Ruley never a factor and was outclassed. Palma was outrun.

SCHMELING'S RIGHT MAY NOT FIGURE IN BRADDOCK BATTLE

CHAMPION SAYS MAXIE WILL BE LUCKY TO LAND IT THREE TIMES

Champion Has Been Kayoed Once and Defeated 19 Other Times—Challenger Also Has Been Stopped and Beaten.

By W. J. McGoogan.

Max Schmeling taught the boxing world one important lesson when he knocked out Joe Louis at the Yankee Stadium, June 19. It was that past performances are not necessarily always perfect indications of what will happen when two boxers meet for the first time.

What each has done in the past, to the same men or other men, does not give a good line on the ultimate winner of a bout.

Nevertheless, boxing fans now are beginning to wonder what will happen when Schmeling meets Jim Braddock for the championship, probably in New York in September.

And for the good of the gate in that fight it is a fortunate thing that Schmeling did upset the forecasters the way he did, for on their records neither man appears to be fit material to be champion.

As Jim Braddock remarked last week, "Our fight will be one between two comebacks, men who had been generally believed to be washed up."

That's what their records do indicate, too, throwing out Schmeling's sensational victory over Louis, for Braddock in his 10-year career was stopped once by a very ordinary boxer, Lou Scozza, and lost no fewer than 19 other decisions.

Max Kayoed Twice.

Schmeling was knocked out twice, once by Gypsy Daniels and again by Max Baer, while he dropped three other verdicts.

The two men have met the same man only once. That was Max Baer, whom Braddock defeated in 15 rounds for the championship and who knocked out Schmeling in 10 rounds.

So on a line through Baer, Braddock would seem to have the edge over Schmeling, but Max has a better record than Jim, all things considered.

Most of Braddock's campaigning was done among the light-heavyweights and he never succeeded in winning the title in the 175-pound division, while Schmeling has always fought among the bigger boys.

As before stated, though, the past records can be thrown into the ashcan and a new book started, when consideration is given to the coming battle.

It will have many unusual features, in addition to the rather indifferent record of each man. They are personal friends, for one thing; but boxing is their business and friendship will cease when they enter the ring, particularly when the prize-heavyweight champion of the world—is considered.

Both are seasoned fighters. Braddock has a better left hand than Schmeling and a good right, too; but Max showed what his right meant when he was able to land it as he did against Louis.

Right Hand at Discount.

It is doubtful if the German will be so successful in a right-hand attack against a veteran campaigner like Braddock, though. In fact Jim has been quoted as saying that he'll bet his end of the purse that Schmeling will be fortunate to tag him with his right three or four times during the match.

Each is 31 years of age, Schmeling being a little more than two months older than Jim. Each will weigh about 195 pounds and Jim is one inch taller than Max, being 6 feet 2 inches tall, to 6 feet 1 inch for Schmeling.

So all factors point to an even contest and the experts who took such a trimming on their guesses as to the outcome of the Schmeling-Louis bout will go slow in picking a winner here.

Very little probably will be said until after it is seen how the two men look in training. And it is a certainty that they will do the best they can to get into a nearly perfect condition as possible.

Under the usual rule Braddock would be entitled to 37½ per cent of the net proceeds, a champion's share and Schmeling 12½ per cent, a challenger's share. But it is likely that some revision of those figures will have to be made, privately, at least, if not publicly because no doubt Schmeling will demand more because of his victory over Louis which has enhanced the value of the championship scrap a whole lot.

McQUAY-NORRIS TEAM WINS SEVENTH GAME

The McQuay-Norris softball team won its seventh consecutive contest in the Y. M. C. A. Industrial Softball League this week, turning back the Broderick and Bascom squad, 5-3, to remain the only undefeated team in any of the three divisions.

Other results were:

Division No. 1—Pevely Dairy 4, Purina Mills 1; Cupples Office 4, Laclede Plant 3.

Division No. 2—National Bearing 12, L. M. Clark 3.

International Shoe Division—Cherokee 4, Friedman-Shelby 0; Peters 3, R. J. & R. 0.

Ozark District Hopes In the Olympic Trials

HELEN STEPHENS HEADS WOMEN'S TRACK SQUAD TO OLYMPIC TRIALS

By Reno Hahn

Helen Stephens, Fulton (Mo.) girl whose flying feet have smashed national and world sprint records in nearly every race she has run, will be the leader of a group of eight girls from the Ozark A. A. U. district who will depart today and tomorrow for the last obstacle in their path to a trip to Berlin via the United States women's Olympic track and field squad. That last hurdle to be cleared is the final Olympic tryouts scheduled to be held in Providence, R. I., this coming Saturday.

In addition to the phenomenal Fulton girl, whose trip will be financed by her townspeople, the others from this district going are: Harriette La Mertha, University City, hurdler; Jane Santschi, Festus, Mo., hurdler, and Anna Vucich, Wood River, Ill., javelin thrower; these three are also being sent by the proud townspeople of their cities; and four St. Louisans, Harriett Bland, May Brady and Edna Gustavson, sprinters, and Loretta Murphy, high jumper, who are being sent by the St. Louis Athletic Club.

The first of the local athletes to depart will be Harriette La Mertha, University of Missouri sophomore, who will board a bus tonight at 7 o'clock. Miss La Mertha is a hurdler and, while she has not been competing in that event long, she has shown remarkable improvement in the short time she has been hurdling and should make a creditable showing in the finals.

She, as did the others going, qualified for the honor by participation in the district tryouts here two weeks ago. She won the 80-meter hurdles in 12.7 seconds. That is slow time, but on the day she ran it, she had been training for only a week, and had run the hurdles only once in practice. Since then, she has been hard at work under the direction of Henry Bushyhead, a classmate at Missouri and a veteran of the track wars.

Chief interest, of course, centers on what Helen Stephens will do. She is entered in the 100-meter dash, and discus throw, Olympic events, and the shotput, a national event, at Providence. In addition, she will undoubtedly be used at the anchor position in the relay race in the Olympics if she turns in the best time in the sprint race as expected.

Her coach, Burt Moore, reports that the pulled tendon in her left leg has not been bothering her, and that he expects her to be in the best of condition for the final tryouts. She is set to make the 11.2 seconds 100-meter dash she ran here an official world's record at the final trials and qualify for the right to meet her rival for world sprint honors, Stella Walsh of Poland, in the Olympics.

KOCSIS BEATS LESLIE 6-5 TO WIN COLLEGE GOLF HONORS

CHICAGO, June 27.—Shooting a fine brand of golf, Charles Kocsis of the University of Michigan, won the National Intercollegiate golf championship today at North Shore Golf Club.

Holder also of the Big Ten title Kocsis won the Intercollegiate crown by defeating Paul Leslie of Louisiana State 6 and 5 in the 36-hole final.

Leslie, who was one down at the end of 18 holes, went to pieces in the last round.

In annexing the national title, Kocsis equaled the feat of Johnny Fischer, also a Michigan star, who held the Big Ten national titles in 1928.

Leaders Play in Trolley Feature

What promises to be the feature attraction on today's weekly card of Missouri Illinois Trolley League will be fought at Athletic Field, Belleville, when the Edgemont A. C. of East St. Louis makes its appearance against the league leadings Stags, starting at 3 o'clock.

In second place, a game behind the Stags, the East Siders have a chance to advance to even terms, providinng they are successful in defeating the home team.

In two previous meetings, the Stags were returned winners, 5-3 and 4-2.

Bill Eichelberger or Clarence Smith will work against the leaders, while "Ham" Gregory or Glen Barthleme will get the assignment to keep Belleville on top.

With Edgemont in Belleville the East St. Louis fans will witness the Alpen Braus-Vandalia game. The game will start at 3 o'clock. Lloyd Farley is down to work for the Alpen Braus, while Eddie Waddell is slated to pitch for Manager Martin Kennick's crew.

The Hufschmidts of East St. Louis go to Carlyle to tie up with last place Boosters. Vernon Jennett or Reynolds will pitch for the home team with George Matrin or Oberkramer working for the Hufschmidts.

U. S. F. A. BACKS OLYMPIC TEAM; JOS. M. TRINER NEW PRESIDENT

By the Associated Press.

PITTSBURGH, June 27.—The United States Football Association tonight guaranteed America's participation in soccer at the Berlin Olympic games.

The association voted $2000 from its treasury to support the team. Officers said funds raised by state associations and individuals will give the Olympic soccer committee "at least $6000."

The association elected Joseph M. Triner of Chicago president. He succeeds Joe Barriskill of New York. Triner is chairman of the Illinois Athletic Commission and formerly was associated with the Sparta Soccer Club of Chicago.

Trial games for candidates for the Olympic team will be held in Brooklyn, N. Y., July 5. Members of the team will be selected by the Olympic committee of which Elmer A. Schroeder, Philadelphia, is chairman, and announced the night of July 5 or July 6.

Oother officers elected:

Harold S. Callowhill, Baltimore, first vice-president; D. H. McDonald, Kearny, N. J., second vice-president; Thomas Sager, Philadelphia, third vice-president; William T. Angus, Cleveland, treasurer.

The officers constitute the board of directors. They reappointed James Armstrong, Brooklyn, N. Y., as secretary.

RICHTER BREAKS TRIPLE A RECORD

Ben Richter, lefthanded professional of the Triple A Golf Club set a new course record over the links in Forest Park yesterday with a 62, eight strokes under par, beating by one stroke the mark held jointly by himself and A. J. Hemphill, an amateur.

Twice around the nine hole layout, Richter, had a 30 and a 32. He previously had shot 63 several times playing both summer and winter rules.

Yesterday he played the ball as it lay.

The Angler's Lament.

FISHING conditions throughout Missouri thus far have been below par and there are some who believe, with the hot July and August days in the offing, that there is only a slight chance for marked improvement in conditions before early fall.

June is considered usually a good fishing month for Missourians; but this year, with streams low and clear, fishing generally has been poor. There has been no ideal fishing conditions reported yet this season from any section of the State.

Best reports on bass fishing have come from small lakes, generally those privately owned or so small as to not be considered public property.

From these small lakes, some of which are little larger than stock ponds, bass have been taken on plugs and live bait.

But on the larger lakes bass fishing has not been worth while.

Natural Food Attracts Bass.

Because few bass have been taken on plugs, whereas one is taken now and then on a fly, some anglers believe the striking habits indicate the bass are feeding upon natural food in the insect group.

Little streams are all low and clear. Anglers say one is only wasting his time trying to fish them.

Instead, fishing on the larger streams such as the Gasconade, Osage, Niangua, Current, St. Francis, Black, White and James rivers is suggested as being worth while for fishing with live minnows and spinners.

A few good bass and some jack salmon are reported to have been taken but the jacks are expected to become less interested in striking as hot weather continues.

Crappie Still Biting.

About the only consolation the fisherman who goes on lake and stream now receives is the assurance that time, patience and many worms or minnows will bring crappie to net.

Fishing for these quick-to-strike and quick-to-die fish has been good wherever deep fresh water has been available.

Small minnows have been widely used for crappie fishing. New low prices on these small minnows now prevail in most areas at about 10 cents per dozen. The former price was about 25 to 35 cents per dozen.

Goldfish continue to be sold and used throughout the resort section of Missouri, but they do not appear to have any special attraction for bass.

Goldfish, members of the carp family, are barred as bait in some states for fear minnows dumped by fishermen will increase and contaminate the streams.

Chiggers and wood ticks are thriving again this year, apparently due to the dry weather. A saturated solution of photgoraphers' "hypo" can be used on bitten parts with helpful results.

Relief From "Duck Depression"

The highest water levels in years prevailing in the great Canadian wild duck nesting grounds promise a second season of relief from America's greatest wild duck "depression" which last year brought down the most drastic restrictions on duck hunting in history, according to reports of Canadian game officials sent in to the More Game Birds Foundation.

Following successive devastating drouths from 1930 to 1934, uncounted numbers of lakes and marshes from the Dakotas northward through southern Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba dried up completely. Here were located North America's most important wildfowl breeding grounds.

The first break in the prolonged drouth came last year, an organized international wild duck census of the area revealed. Although the bulk of the wildfowl were found to have been driven to nesting sites in the more northern portions of the provinces, improved water and food conditions resulted in a better crop in their ancestral nesting areas to the south, observers found.

DREWES WILL NOT DEFEND MUNY TITLE

Ted Drewes, defending champion, yesterday defaulted his first round singles match in the St. Louis Municipal tennis tournament at the Jefferson Memorial Courts in Forest Park, giving as his reason an injured wrist suffered a week ago in practice.

He was to have played Donald Lorenz, but decided he felt able to play only in doubles, in which his partner will be Robert Norton of O'Fallon Park. This pair, when they played together three years ago, went to semifinals of the national Public Parks tennis tournament.

The doubles are scheduled to begin today.

Referee Bell announced that 11 remaining second round singlese matches must be completed this morning with third round matches scheduled to begin at 2 o'clock.

only Goodrich Silvertowns have the Life-Saver Golden Ply

THE yearly toll of injuries and deaths due to blow-outs runs into the thousands. And here's why. Today's high speeds generate terrific heat inside the tire. Rubber and fabric begin to separate. A tiny blister forms and grows bigger and BIGGER until, sooner or later, BANG! A blow-out!

Since the earliest days of the automobile, The B. F. Goodrich Company has made many outstanding contributions to motoring safety. But the Goodrich development that means the most to you as you're driving along at 40-50-60 miles an hour is the Life-Saver Golden Ply, found only in Goodrich Silvertown Tires.

This amazing invention is a layer of special rubber and full-floating cords, scientifically treated to resist internal tire heat. By resisting this heat the Golden Ply keeps rubber and fabric from separating. It keeps heat blisters from forming. And when you prevent the blister, you prevent the high-speed blow-out.

Don't gamble! Life is too sweet to take chances on unsafe tires. Equip your car with a set of Goodrich Safety Silvertowns with Life-Saver Golden Ply blow-out protection. Remember they cost not a penny more than other standard tires.

MARION MILEY RETAINS T.-M. TITLE; DAWSON PLAYS MATSON

KENTUCKY GIRL WINS, 3-2 OVER MISS BARRETT, OF MINNEAPOLIS

Champion Is Held Even for First 18 Holes of Contest by Tournament Novice, Daughter of a Professional.

By the Associated Press.

DENVER, June 27.—Dexterous shots in tight places earned Marion Miley, stoical brunette from Lexington, Ky., her second successive women's Trans-Mississippi golf championship today.

She beat her close friend and tournament roommate, 19-year-old Beatrice Barrett of Minneapolis, on the thirty-fourth green on the testing Denver Country Club course, 3 and 2.

Miss Barrett, a "rookie" in tournament strife, frequently displayed enough expert golf to threaten an upset. Her final hope died on the 381 yard thirty-fourth where her three-foot downhill putt grazed the cup—and missed.

The 22-year-old Kentuckian said it was a "much tougher" match than her meeting with Patty Berg, Minneapolis redhead, in last year's championship contest.

It was a losing fight all the way for the younger girl. Three times she pulled even but she held the lead only once, when she won the first hole.

Miss Barrett, daughter of a Minneapolis professional, cut down a three-hole lead to deadlock at the 18-hole mark after Miss Miley won the first two holes of the afternoon engagement, Beatrice knotted the count with a 30-foot putt for a birdie 2 on the 200 yard twenty-sixth.

After Miss Miley won the twenty-seventh, Miss Barrett squared the battle for the last time on the twenty-eighth.

Opportunity to take the lead knocked for the former Minnesota champion on the 230 yard twenty-ninth but an easy putt lipped the hole.

Miss Barrett, still game, chipped in a birdie on the thirty-second but Miss Miley, had won the thirty-first with a well-played birdie 4, captured the thirty-third in par 5.

Miss Miley played her best golf in the afternoon, touring the 16 holes in one under par after slipping two over in the morning. Miss Barrett's card, featured by a 38 on the third nine, read four over par for the match. Miss Miley said she will defend her Western Amateur and Western "Derby" titles in August.

SMITH TO PLAY THOMPSON FOR CLAYTON TITLE

By Davison Obear.

McNeill Smith, St. Louis District champion, will oppose Frank Thompson, University of Virginia player, in the final round of the fifth annual Clayton open tennis championship on the Clayton Municipal courts this afternoon. The match is scheduled to start at 2 o'clock and will be the best three out of five sets.

The remaining semifinal round match in the men's doubles will be completed after the singles final. Joseph Werner and Frank Thompson will meet McNeill Smith and Dick Tindall. Each team won a set before darkness stopped the play last night. By agreement only one more set will be played to decide the winner.

Both McNeill Smith and Thompson were forced to close battles in the semifinal matches of the men's singles yesterday afternoon. Smith won from Herbert Weinstock in five sets, 4—6, 3—6, 6—0, 6—3, 6—3, while Thompson eliminated Wayne Smith, 9—7, 10—8, 6—2.

Weinstock played very accurate tennis to win the first two sets from Smith in their match but the East St. Louisan began an attack in the third set which ultimately gave him the victory. His chop strokes close to the sidelines enabled him to win the third and fourth sets. Weinstock led 3 to 2 in the final set but Smith took four straight games to win the set and the match.

The match between Thompson and Wayne Smith was somewhat more spectacular than the other semifinal. Both players drove hard from the baseline. Smith probably played the best game of his career against Thompson yesterday. He matched drive for drive right down to the final set when he finally appeared worn down by the strain and intense heat.

Karl Kammann and Charles Barnes, defending champions, smashed their way into the final round of the men's doubles by defeating Gus Boehmer and Bert Lambert, 8—6, 6—1, 6—4 in the semifinals yesterday. The Country Club pair furnished plenty of competition in the first and third sets against the champions.

ESPRIT DE CORPS—Pearson Likes It on the Yankees

MONTE PEARSON.

Monte Pearson, Yankee Ace, Attributes His Fine Season To Team Work of His Mates

By W. J. McGoogan.

Team work of the Yankees is the chief reason why Monte Pearson, pitcher, has won two more games so far this season than he did all last year with the Cleveland Indians, and it also is the answer to why the Yankees are so far out in front in the American League pennant race, the hurler says.

In 1935, with the Indians, Pearson won eight games and lost 13. To date he has won 10 and lost three to tie Bob Grove of Boston for the league leadership.

Wandering about the lobby of Hotel Chase trying to find something to keep him occupied on a hot afternoon off, Pearson stopped long enough to sit on a lounge and discuss his rehabilitation.

"Everybody on this team is for you," he said, and added with a trace of bitterness in his voice, "I can't say that for every other team I have played with. Each man on one club wanted to be the outstanding star and they were hoping, when you went into the box to pitch, you would get your ears pinned back, so it would make them look better.

"With the Yankees it is entirely different. Why, it's a strain on you just sitting on the bench watching some other fellow work, you are so wrapped up in his performance.

"When a clutch comes, you say to yourself, "Gee, I hope he throws that guy a curve, because I know he's a pretty good fast-ball hitter,' or the other way around. You are interested in every pitch and the other fellows feel that way about you."

Says Yankee Club Is Best in League

"Are the Yankees confident of winning the pennant?" he was asked.

"We don't even talk much about that," Monte replied. "We just go out there every day and do our best. Naturally, we think we have the best club in the league and have a great chance to win, but there is no danger of over-confidence with our men."

It was noticed that Pearson wasn't smoking, although there are not a great many players today who don't smoke, within reason, if they want to, but Monte declared that he was advised early in his career to leave cigarettes alone, and he found it helpful.

"When I went to training camp the first year, I weighed only about 130 pounds," he said, "and I was asked if I was there to try to put on weight or what. But I could throw that hard one in there with the best of them.

"I smoked cigarettes steadily then and had been doing so for about six years, and never was able to add any weight. I was advised to stop it, and shortly after began picking up until now I weigh right around 165 pounds all the time. I lose three or four pounds in a game, but put it right back on.

"Also I find that my wind is much better when I don't smoke. It used to be that when I was forced to run the bases and perhaps be on base when the third out was made, I would return to the box puffing and out of breath, which didn't help my pitching any. That isn't true now."

Pearson Takes Care of His Legs.

Pearson is a young man who has followed in other things, besides cigarettes, what he thought to be good advice of more experienced men. One of these other things had to do with a pitcher's legs. He was told that a pitcher's legs were just about as important as his throwing arm, so he has spent considerable time and thought in keeping his legs in condition.

After a turn of duty on the mound the first thing he does is to run to keep his legs in condition, for he has noticed that many older hurlers who are through are through not because their arms have gone back on them, but because their legs have.

"When your legs are tired you sometimes shorten or lengthen your pitching stride," he explained. "Either is bad, because it leads to wildness, and of course control is the most essential part of any pitcher's work. So the day after I pitch I get out and run around the field."

Monte is pitching his fifth season in the American League and believes that Charley Gehringer of the Detroit Tigers is about the hardest man for him to pitch to in the league. He has done a lot of work on the Tiger star, and while he hasn't discovered any weakness in the armor of Charley, he has succeeded better than ever this year in retiring him.

"Pitching to Gehringer, or anybody else, for that matter, it is a good idea for a hurler to get the first ball over the plate with plenty of stuff on it, trying to get a strike or two on him before working on his weakness," Pearson said.

"Keep Ahead of Batter."

"Keep ahead of the batter. That's the thing a pitcher has to do. If you start to work right away on a batter's weakness the first thing you know you have three balls and one strike on him, or 3 and 2, then you have to come through with the next one, and he tees off on it.

"But if you can keep ahead of him, then you have a chance to make him bite at a bad one. Of course, he is liable to crack that first one, but any time you have a team hitting at the first ball you are going to beat them, because you have seven men behind you and the odds are all in your favor."

Monte began his pitching career for his high school team in California. He was an infielder at the time, but when the coach ran short of hurlers he chose Pearson, because he could throw a fast ball, and a pitcher he has been ever since.

He still makes his home in Fresno, Cal., where he lives with his wife and infant son in the winter time, taking it easy during the off season, although he sometimes takes a turn helping his brother, who is an interior decorator.

"I believe a major league player should make enough so he doesn't have to work in the winter time, though," Monte said, "because if he can take it easy during the off season he will last longer as a major league player."

And so saying, Pearson waived to a brother Yankee, who had managed to scrape up an automobile, and they were off on a trip to the Zoo.

GYMNASTS TO PERFORM ON TUBERCULOSIS DAY CARD HERE, JULY 15

A 15-minute tumbling exhibition, featuring a group of the city's finest gymnasts, was added to the Tuberculosis Day entertainment program at Sportsman's Park July 15, when the Southwest Gymnastic Society of St. Louis accepted an invitation extended by the Entertainment Committee of the Tuberculosis and Health Society, William Yorger, executive chairman, announced.

Approximately 75 boys and girls, between the ages of 8 and 18, are included in the personnel of the society. Dressed in attractive uniforms, the youngsters will be divided into five groups.

A feature of the exhibition will be a demonstration of tumbling skill by the members of an advanced class. Henry Stroer is the instructor for the gymnastic society.

Emerson Ten Loses.

The Emerson team lost its first game in the Electrical Board of Trade Softball League when it was defeated by the Graybar squad, 10-9. In other games, the Buss Fuestrons won from the Buss Superlags, 5-1; Glasco blanked Myers, 15-0, and Barrett trounced Westinghouse, 24-3.

14-MILE HANDICAP BICYCLE RACE TODAY

A 14-mile handicap bicycle race will be held this morning starting at 8 o'clock at Chippewa and Brannon avenues and ending on Highway 66, about a mile west Vandover way 66, about a mile west of Vandover road. The race is being sponsored jointly by the Century Road Club of America and the St. Louis Cycling Club.

Any rider is eligible to enter the event. Handicaps will be given on the basis of past races. After the race, the riders will go on to Pacific (Mo.) to spend the afternoon.

WESTERN ROWS QUINCY CREW IN INTERCITY RACE TODAY

Western Rowing Club's eight-oared shell will meet the Quincy (Ill.) Boat Club crew this afternoon in their annual inter-city boat race. The race will start at the Central Rowing Club's dock at the foot of Angelica street at 2 o'clock. The distance will be a mile-and-a-half downstream.

The race will serve as an appetizer for the Central States regatta which will be held at Keokuk, Ia., July 4 and 5.

Both Western and Quincy will have teams entered in the Central States regatta. So will the North End Club, the St. Louis Rowing Club and the Central Rowing Club, all of St. Louis. In addition, Chicago and Detroit are expected to send entries to Keokuk.

The Central women's teams will compete in their first regatta. The women's barge, which has been coached by Joe Lepping, their coxswain, has made two starts this year, winning both from the North End women's team in close races.

The women's eight will consist of Ruth Peters, bow; Janet Ladi, No. 2; Esther Ladi, No. 3; Sadie Elliott, No. 4; Virginia Rowles, No. 5; Albertine Rasche, stroke and Joe Lepping, coxswain.

Kausch Seeks to Regain Title.

Nick Kausch, 1934 singles champion, will try to regain the championship he lost last year when he broke his rigger during the race. His brother, Christ, will row in the junior singles and they will pair to row in the senior doubles. Being a junior in the regatta means that a man or a team has not won a race. It is the equivalent of being a maiden in horse racing.

Central's four-oared crew, which is entered in the Olympic trials to be held at Philadelphia, July 3 and 4, will depart tomorrow morning in order to get in several workouts before the trials begin. The team is Ed Mossotti, bow; Fred Heidecker, No. 2; Walter Rist, No. 3, and William Leipholtz, stroke.

RALPH GULDAHL TO PLAY IN EXHIBITION MATCH AT NORWOOD

Ralph Guldahl, 1936 Western Open champion by virtue of a par-shattering round of 64 on the final day of the tournament last Sunday at Davenport, Ia., will appear in an exhibition match at Norwood Hills Country Club this afternoon, starting at 2:30 o'clock.

He will pair in a foursome with Johnny Manion of Sunset against Francis Schwartz and Ben Richter, Triple A pro.

Guldahl has been made an honorary member of Norwood. He was St. Louis Country Club's pro several years ago, but will not serve in any sort of professional capacity at the club.

The district junior golf tournament probably will be held about the second week of July. Joe Switzer of Sunset Hills Country Club has not set the exact time and date yet.

The next event on the district women's golf program for the season will be the weekly team play to be held Tuesday at Meadowbrook Country Club with 10 teams entered. On Friday, July 10, there will be a "Buddy Tournament" for women at Triple A Golf Club. It will be played in foursomes, nine holes and prizes for low gross and low net.

MATTHEWS TO BOX NICHOLS IN CHICAGO

Allen Matthews, St. Louis Negro boxer, is to meet George Nichols in a 10-round match in Chicago next Wednesday evening, his manager, George Wilsman, announced last night. Matthews is anxious for a title bout with John Henry Lewis, light-heavyweight champion of the world.

WICHITA YOUTH SURPRISES BY 3 AND 1 VICTORY OVER GOODMAN

Former Title-Holder Bows to Blazing 68 of Youngster Playing His Home Course.

By the Associated Press.

WICHITA, Kan., June 27.—A tall, Wichita dark horse, Frank Matson, and the youthful Chicago veteran, Johnny Dawson, advanced today to the finals of the thirty-sixth Trans-Mississippi golf tournament at the Wichita Country Club.

Matson weathered a sensational sub-par rally to defeat Defending Champion Johnny Goodman of Omaha, 3 and 1, in the 36-hole semifinals. Dawson eliminated tall, nonchalant Walter Emery of Oklahoma City, 4 and 3.

The Goodman-Matson match packed enough thrills for a dozen golf tournaments and left a sweltering gallery of approximately 2500 fairly limp.

Matson, twice Kansas amateur champion, shot a blazing 68, four under par, for the morning round to take a 3-up lead on the Omahan, who carded a 71.

Goodman started the afternoon round by getting birdies on the first four holes, sinking putts of more than 10 feet on each green.

Fighting stubbornly, Matson matched two of the birdies and clung to a one-hole lead until the twenty-third hole, where Goodman squared the match.

The stolid Wichitan regained the lead on the twenty-sixth, and never lost it thereafter.

ELLIOTT MISSES ONE OUT OF 150 IN TRAPSHOOT

Russell W. Elliott of Raytown, scored 140 consecutive hits, missed once and then hit eight more for a 149 to win Class A honors in the 150 singles shoot in yesterday's opening activities in the two-day Eastern Missouri zone trapshooting tournament. The shoot is being conducted on the grounds of the Airport Gun Club, located two miles north of the Municipal Airport on Lindbergh drive.

Elliott, who recently won the allround honors as well as finishing in the runnerup position in the recent Missouri State championship shoot at Jefferson City, also tied Dan Zimmer for the Class A honors in the doubles event, each having a score of 46.

Second place in the doubles went to Dr. M. E. Hagerty, with a 44. Oscar B. Franz tallied a 43 in Class A. Frank F. Wilmas had a 45 to win out in Class B while Walter W. Bradbury, head of the Missouri State Skeet organization, was the runnerup with a 42.

Led Professionals.

The leading professional shooter in the doubles was H. L. Maitland. He cracked up 44 of the clay pigeons. Dave Flannigan was next with a 42.

Dan Zimmer fo Creve Coeur and Wilmas trailed Elliott in the singles, both having 146's. Dr. Hagerty won the Classic B title with 143 hits in 150 shots, while Bradbury took another runnerup berth, finishing behind Dr. Hagerty with a 140. Ed Willers had a 140 to win in Class C while Dr. D. L. Penney of the St. Louis Skeet and Gun Club was runnerup in this group with his 128.

Won Team Title.

The two-man team title in the opening competition went to Wilmas and Zimmer, their combined scores making a total of 292. Bradbury and Franz were next in line with 284, while Willers and Dr. Hagerty were third with 283.

While only 14 shooters participated in yesterday's events it is expected that this number will swell to approximately 50 with contestants coming in from Jefferson City, Bagnell and other gun club strongholds.

Today's program will include competition in the 100 singles shot at 16 yards with three classes and the Eastern Missouri handicap, 100 targets shot from distances from 16 to 25 yards.

The Creve Coeur Gun Club will conduct its monthly "derby" tournament a week from today on the club's new grounds located on the old grounds of the old Creve Coeur speedway.

REAL ESTATE — REAL ESTATE ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH SECTION — AUTOMOBILES

PART THREE — ST. LOUIS, SUNDAY MORNING, JUNE 28, 1936. — (C) — PAGES 1—16C

78 ACRE TRACT OFF OF CLAYTON ROAD FOR DEVELOPMENT

Ground on South Side, 1000 Feet West of North and South Road Is Bought by Syndicate.

PLENTY OF CAPITAL FOR IMPROVEMENTS

Land Originally Part of Gay Estate, Which Also Included Area Comprising Lake Forest.

By Berry Moore

A 78-acre tract on the south side of the Clayton road, approximately 1000 feet west of the North and South road, has been acquired by a syndicate sponsored by W. A. Federer, president of the Federer Real Estate Co. and a director of the St. Louis Real Estate Exchange. It was owned by the Clayton Road Realty Co., composed of clients of the St. Louis Union Trust Co. The consideration was not disclosed.

Situated at the southeast corner of Clayton and McCutcheon roads, just east of Ridge Top, the tract has attracted the attention of speculators as well as of investors, as essentially a site for a high-class residential development. It has a frontage of 557 feet on Clayton road and 3029 feet on McCutcheon road, the west line of the property. Forest trees enhance materially the value of the tract for residential purposes.

Subdivision Plans Announced.

Pitzmann's Company of Surveyors and Engineers has been commissioned to convert the tract into a residential park on a scale commensurate with the location. Ample capital has been made available for the installation of sewer, water, gas and electric mains, and for surface improvements, including macadamized streets of a high order. A subdivision of one acre building sites, with provisions which will set a high standard for its upbuilding is contemplated.

Firmin V. Desloge, whose residence stands on a plot on the Clayton road frontage of the tract, has purchased the first lot in the proposed development, making his selection from the subdivision blue prints, it was stated.

Speculation is rife as to the price per acre realized for this tract as as a criterion for values of land on the south side of Clayton road in this section of St. Louis County. The Federer Realty Co. handled the negotiations on behalf of the purchasing syndicate, with John A. Wehmeyer, real estate officer of the St. Louis Union Trust Co. acting for the Clayton Road Realty Co. LeGrand Jones Inc. also participated in the negotiations.

The Federer Realty Co., one of the most aggressive forces in the subdivision field, launched Holly Hills, Grand Dover Park and Woodland Park, all of which have proved noteworthy successes.

The Clayton Road Realty Co., organized by W. K. Bixby, G. H. Walker, N. A. McMillan, Thomas West and other 20 years ago purchased approximately 160 acres in

ACQUIRES BUILDING ON VANDEVENTER

Irving Corn Purchases Property at Northeast Corner of West Belle Place.

The business block at the northeast corner of Vandeventer avenue and West Belle place has been acquired by Irving Corn. Cornet & Zeibig effected the sale for the Mississippi Valley Trust Co., the grantor to the title.

The property consists of two, three and four-story structures, with a lot frontage of 147 feet on Vandeventer and 100 feet on West Belle. There are seven stores on the ground floor. The upper floors comprise 18 suites, with 11 baths, or a total of 55 rooms, operated as an apartment hotel, with heat, elevator and janitor service. Annual gross rentals aggregate $13,000.

LITHOGRAPHING CONCERN TAKES LEASE ON BUILDING

American Lithofold Corporation, recently formed, has taken a long-term lease on a modern one-story building at 2500-2506 Montgomery street, owned by Claude E. Vrooman real estate operator. The building has 15,000 square feet.

The Lithofold company is composed of William F. Leschen, president; Robert J. Blauner, vice-president and general manager, and R. A. Blauner, secretary and treasurer. Blauner and Blauner have been engaged in this line the past 20 years.

Extensive improvements are being made to the building, with plans for a modern printing plant.

The Breitt & Naumer Realty Co. negoiated the lease which is for a long term.

SYNDICATE BUYS APARTMENTS ON WEST PINE BLVD.

Tentative Plans Made For 24-Family Apartment in Blue Ridge Terrace—Estimated Cost $100,000

The State Apartments, comprising a four-story fireproof structure with English basement, at 3658 West Pine boulevard, just west of Grand, have been acquired by a syndicate composed of Delbert Wenzlick of the Wenzlick Sales Organization, Inc., and Thomas Kutis Jr., South Side undertaker. The building was owned by the Western & Southern Life Insurance Co., which had acquired it under a $180,000 loan.

Erected in 1927, the building consists of 51 units, including 12 bedrooms, 27 efficiency and 18 pullman apartments, all equipped with tile baths. The apartments are replete with labor saving devices. The life insurance company recently reconditioned the building throughout and installed electric refrigerators in all the apartments.

The site has a frontage of 75 feet on West Pine, by a depth of 213 feet to an alley. There is garage space in the rear of the premises for a large number of cars.

Annual rentals approximate $24,000. The consideration was not disclosed. As part payment the insurance company took back a first deed of trust for $101,000. The purchase was made as a speculative investment. Delbert Wenzlick, president of the Wenzlick organization handled the transaction.

Tentative plans have been made

R. W. MURPHY ACQUIRES D. L. LAMBERT'S RESIDENCE

The white-painted residence of Donaldson L. Lambert, in the St. Louis Country Club Grounds, has been acquired by R. W. Murphy, secretary of the Jefferson Memorial Association. Mary Potter Love, Inc., handled the negotiations. No intimation as to the consideration was given.

The house, in the early American style, is one of the most striking in the club grounds. It stands on a two-acre site. Living room, dining room, kitchen, sunroom, guest's room, breakfast room, hall, maid's room and bath comprise the first floor. Six bedrooms, four baths and two inclosed porches are on the second floor. A den is in the basement. The grounds are enhanced with landscape work. A garden and wading pool form an attractive feature.

Louis County under negotiation.

HUTCHESON SHOE CO. LEASES LARGER QUARTERS ON OLIVE

The Hutcheson Shoe Co. has taken a long lease on the store at 518 Olive street in the Commercial Building. Now at 714 Olive street, the company has been located on this street for 36 years. Possession of the new quarters, now being enlarged, will be taken about July 6.

The new store will be modern in design and compact in arrangement. The concern, of which John A. Hutcheson is president, specializes in men's shoes.

The lease was made for the account of Commercial Building Co. Arthur S. Martin & Son handled the negotiations.

$14,285,000 IN FHA LOANS IN NINE DAYS

Mortgages selected for appraisal by various insuring offices throughout the country average more than $1,500,000 a day for each workday, according to reports received by the Federal Housing Administration in Washington, D. C.

A further evidence of the trend of the home building and buying field is shown by the fact that during the first nine days of June mortgages accepted for insurance by the Housing Administration totaled $14,285,387. This figure includes money insured for both new construction, buying of new homes and the refinancing of existing mortgages.

Through June 9 the total business transacted through the Federal Housing Administration, including repairs, refinancing, and new construction, was over $850,000,000, indicating that the billion-dollar mark will probably be passed in August. Large-scale housing mortgages accepted for insurance now total $33,452,158.

All of this money represents private capital. Funds are advanced by private financial institutions, and the mortgages are insured against loss by the Housing Administration.

RIVERFRONT CONCERN ACQUIRES QUARTERS ON PINE STREET

The Monarch Printing Co., now has taken a long lease on the first floor of the building at 1625 Pine street. It has been located on North Third street in the riverfront district for a number of years. It plans to take possession of its new quarters in July.

Quarters at 1623 Pine street have been leased by the Severson Printing Co., formerly at 100 North Third street, for a term of five years. All parties to the above mentioned leases were represented by the Andrean Leasing Co., agents for the building.

GANNON REALTY CO. OPENS OFFICE AT 813A CHESTNUT

The H. J. Gannon Realty Co., Inc., recently incorporated, has opened an office at 813A Chestnut street. The concern will conduct a general real estate business. Harry J. Gannon, its president, was formerly vice-president of the Gannon-Franke Realty Co.

What Would an X-RAY of Your House Reveal?
Behind your walls, under your floors, costly damage may be going on—without you knowing it. An astonishing percentage of structures in this section is being attacked by termites. These tiny wood-eating insects enter a building from the ground, and remain hidden inside the wood while they carry on their destructive work. They leave no outward evidence of the damage they are doing, and property owners seldom suspect the presence of termites until costly repairs become necessary.
Why not find out if your property is termite-infested? Phone us and a trained Terminix Representative will inspect it—without cost or obligation. This is a free service offered by Terminix—the world's largest termite control organization.

RESIDENTIAL CONSTRUCTION GAINED IN MAY

Aggregate Value of Permits in Cities, During Month, However, Was Below April Level.

Although the value of permits issued for new residential buildings and for additions, alterations and repairs to existing structures increased in May, the aggregate value of building permits issued during the month was below the April level, Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins announced today. This decrease was due to a sharp decrease in the value of permits issued for non-residential buildings.

"Reports from 1522 cities in the country to the Bureau of Labor Statistics," she said, "show an increase of 1 per cent in the value of new residential buildings, an advance of 10 per cent in additions, alterations and repairs, and a decrease of more than 13 per cent in the value of permits issued for new non-residential buildings.

"The May level of building activity was far ahead of a year ago, the value of permits issued for residential construction showing an increase of more than $20,000,000, or 79 per cent. Indicated expenditures for new non-residential buildings increased $11,000,000, or 45 per cent, and the permit valuation of additions, alterations and repairs to existing buildings increased nearly $7,000,000 or 33 per cent. The increase in total expenditures amounted to approximately $38,000,000, or 54 per cent.

Five Months' Record.

"During the first five months of 1936 permits were issued for buildings valued at $466,441,000. This is an increase of 71 per cent over the corresponding period of 1935. Over the same period, the value of new residential buildings for which permits were issued increased 114 per cent; the value of new non-residential buildings, 66 per cent, and the value of additions, alterations and repairs, 30 per cent."

These figures are based on reports received by the Bureau of Labor Statistics from 1522 identical cities having a population of 2500 or over. The percentage change from April to May in the number and cost of building permits issued for each of the different types of construction is indicated in the following tabulation:

Type of Building.	Change from April to May, 1936. Number.	Est. Cost.
New residential — — —	— 0.8	* 0.8
New non-residential— —	* 2.7	—13.2
Additions, alternations and repairs — — —	* 2.0	* 9.6
Totals— — — — —	* 1.6	— 2.2

The percentage change in comparison with the same month of last year is shown in the table below for 792 identical cities having a population of 10,000 or over.

Type of Building.	Change from May, 1935, to May 1936. Number.	Est. Cost.
New residential — — —	*74.8	*78.8
New non-residential— —	*20.4	*44.5
Additions, alterations and repairs — — —	* 8.5	*32.6
Total — — — — —	*17.9	*53.6

*Up. —Down.

There was a gain of 65 per cent in the number of family-dwelling units provided in these 792 cities, comparing May 1936 with the corresponding month of 1935. The data collected by the Bureau of Labor Statistics include, in addition to private construction, the number and value of buildings for which contracts were awarded by Federal and state governments in the cities included in the report. For May, 1936, the value of public buildings amounted to $3,470,000; for April, 1936, to $1,483,000, and for May, 1935, to $4,486,000.

Important Projects.

Permits were issued during May for the following important building projects: In Boston, Mass., for a hospital building to cost $330,000; in New York City, in the Borough of the Bronx for apartment houses to cost $970,000; in the Borough of Manhattan for apartment houses to cost over $500,000, for office buildings to cost over $3,500,000, and for mercantile buildings to cost nearly $400,000, and in the Borough of Queens for apartment houses to cost over $1,000,000; in Rochester, N. Y., for factory buildings to cost nearly $1,200,000; in Philadelphia, Pa., for a factory building to cost $700,000, and for school buildings to cost over $850,000; in Peoria, Ill., for school buildings to cost $681,000; in Ann Arbor, Mich., for buildings at the University of Michigan to cost over $1,600,000; in Detroit, Mich., for mercantile buildings to cost nearly $400,000; in St. Paul, Minn., for a school building to cost nearly $300,000; in Dallas, Tex., for mercantile buildings to cost over $400,000; in Fort Worth, Tex., for amusement buildings to cost over $800,000, and for a school building to cost $400,000; in Albuquerque, N. M., for school buildings to cost nearly $250,000; in Glendale, Cal., for a recreation center to cost $500,000; in Los Angeles, Cal., for apartment houses to cost over $500,000 and for motion picture studio buildings to cost nearly $650,000; in San Francisco, Cal., for school buildings to cost over $300,000; and in Spokane, Wash., for a power plant to cost $850,000.

this section, including the 78 acres involved in the present transaction, as a site for a golf course for the St. Louis Country Club. Subsequently, the club purchased its present site on the Price road, north of the Clayton road, as better adapted to its requirements.

Once Part of Gay Estate.

The tract purchased by the Federer syndicate originally was a part of the Edward J. Gay estate, which owned extensive acreage in this section of St. Louis County, which also included Lake Forest, a subdivision development of 70 acres on a pretentious scale, at the southwest corner of Clayton and Hanley roads. The part comprising Lake Forest, formerly the site of Gay Villa, was purchased in 1929, virtually on the eve of the depression, from the late Mrs. Sophia Mitchel Crow, a daughter of Edward J. Gay, by the Lake Forest Development Corporation, for $5000 an acre.

The Gay estate also owned 60 acres on the north side of Clayton road, east of the McKnight road and opposite the tract purchased by the Federer syndicate. The 60-acre tract is now vested in Wayman Crow, Alexander Crow, John Gay Reilly and others, grandsons of Mrs. Sophia M. Crow. The Clayton street car line divides this tract, the north part of which forms the east boundary of Dramara Acres, a high-class development on the McKnight road.

Chase Ulman recently acquired 23 acres at the southeast corner of Clayton and Geyer roads in part payment for the Chase Shops and Office Building at the southwest corner of Maryland avenue and York drive, purchased by Oliver R. Burkhart president of the Burkart Manufacturing Co., through the Henry P. Weisels Co. Several offers recently have been submitted for the Clayton and Geyer road tract, regarded as an eligible site for a residential development on a pretentious scale.

Prohibition Picnic July 4.

Members of the city and county prohibition clubs will hold a Fourth of July picnic on the grounds of the Clifton Heights Methodist Church, 2510 Clifton avenue. Mrs. J. W. Shankland, State chairman of the Prohibition party, will discuss party platforms.

SYNDICATE BUYS APARTMENT ON WEST PINE BLVD.

for a 24-family apartment building for an attractively situated site in Blue Ridge terrace, the apartment house section of the Moorlands, Clayton. Negotiations are pending with the Anderson-Stocke-Buermann Real Estate Co. for a loan for the project, involving an estimated cost of $100,000.

A modern fireproof structure, with air conditioning equipment, is proposed. Four and five room apartments replete with innovations are contemplated.

A site 260 by 180 feet, east of Glenridge, is under option in this connection, it is understood.

The Anderson-Stocke-Buermann Co. is financing a 12-family apartment on the south side of Cromwell drive, east of Westwood, being erected by Jacob Rubin & Son, builders. It will extend through to Clayton road. A 12-family apartment building is under construction on the south side of York drive, approximately half a block west of Glenridge in Blue Ridge terrace. Fred W. Ahlmeyer is the builder. The John P. Dolan Real Estate Co. is financing the project. The site was acquired through Cornet & Zeibig. Construction is progressing on two three-story 18-family apartment buildings, one on the south side of Byron place, the other on the north side of Parkdale, east of Westwood, in Blue Ridge. Lichtenstein Estates, Inc., is erecting these buildings, which are being financed by interests represented by W. H. Rodemyer & Co.

Several apartment projects are nearing completion in Blue Ridge. A record number of duplex buildings has been built in this section during the last two years. The Anderson-Stocke-Buermann Real Estate Co. is financing two duplex on Wellington drive, east of Westwood in Blue Ridge.

Made Sales Agent of Addition.

The Dimmitt-Rickhoff-Bayer R. E. Co., at Big Bend and Clayton roads, has been appointed exclusive sales agents for Country Life Acres at the south side of Clayton road, approximately three-quarters of a mile west of Ballas road.

There are already six homes completed including the model home, now on display, with plans already approved for two more, construction of which will start very shortly.

B. & L. ASSOCIATION'S LOANS SHOW INCREASE

May Advances for Construction Operations and Repairs Up 135 Per Cent.

Building and loan associations in Missouri lent 200 per cent more money in May, 1936, than in May, 1934, and 87 per cent more than in May, 1935, according to reports received by the Missouri State League of Building and Loan Associations from associations throughout the state.

Loans for construction operations increased 135 per cent in May, 1936, over the same period of last year, which is ascribed to the resumption of residential construction.

There were 148 construction loans in May totaling $512,875, a slight increase over April. The largest increase, however, was witnessed in advances for financing existing buildings. This amount showed an increase of 54 per cent in May over April to a total of 298 loans for $706,037.

The refinancing of loans held by these associations and of loans on their own stock dropped 12 per cent to 515 loans aggregating $664,922.

Miss Lucy S. Richardson, secretary of the league, in this connection, said: "The amount of loans reported by the member associations has increased steadily since February. In May there were 961 loans, aggregating $1,883,834, the largest amount reported since the beginning of the depression."

Farms Recently Bought.

Syl R. Nahlik Realty Co. of House Springs, Mo., reports sales of farms and suburban properties as follows: A 40-acre farm for C. Kuene to Grue Bros.; 40 acres for Mr. and Mrs. Fred Oetjen to Mrs. Jean Eitman; six acres for Mr. and Mrs. A. Hluzek to Fred Argurieo; three acres and home for Harry Ross to Mrs. Edna Cox; one acre in Weber subdivision to Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ruess; 10 acres for Maichel Dunigan to J. Beyer; 70-acre farm for Mr. and Mrs. Fred Polkinghorne to Melvin Spies; one acre in Weber subdivision to a client; clubhouse and lot for Walter Ermert to Mr. and Mrs. Kundert; one acre in Weber subdivision to Arthur B. Nickel; eight acres for J. B. Nahlik to Emil J. Barth; 80 acres for Steffen estate to Mrs. Fannie F. Cook.

Leases In Bank Building.

L. Frank Westlake, druggist with store at 1508 Hodiamont avenue, has leased quarters at 6637 Delmar for a store, in the Bank of University City building. The Neumode Hosiery Co. of Chicago has leased the corner storeroom fronting 16 feet on Delmar boulevard and 41 feet on Heman avenue in the bank building, for a third store in St. Louis.

Arthur H. Fuldner, manager of the Commercial leasing department of Oreon E. & R. G. Scott, arranged the leases.

J. McNamara; 1410 Linton avenue, modern single flat, to Helen Meyer for H. M. Straub; cottage in Big River Hills subdivision near House Springs, Mo., to Irwin O. Fisher for Joseph A. Franz; 1522-24 East De Soto, flat, to Joseph Hoffmeyer, for W. H. Behring; 16 lots in Steinlage subdivision on Steinlage drive and Catherine place, for the Steinlage Investment Co. to a client as site for bungalows; 118-acre farm in Jefferson County, near High Ridge, Mo., for Nicholaus and Cecilia Schmitt to Dr. Quitman U. Newell.

'HOME OF THE MONTH' ON DISPLAY TODAY HERE

The Cyrus Crane Willmore Organization, Incorporated, with offices at 4723 Donovan avenue, has been chosen sponsor for the "Home of the Month" program, a home building movement now going forward in nine states. In its inception the movement included only members of the Home Builders and Land Developers Division of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, but now members of the National Association are in active participation.

in each "Home of the Month design from the size of the house down to the color of the bathroom draperies. Of course, each owner will select such decorative details according to his taste but complete suggestions carefully worked out are included in the June Home of the Month on display today at 4908 Tamm avenue, St. Louis Hills.

Yeckel-Earickson Outing.

Officers, directors and employes of Yeckel, Earickson and Co., Inc., and American Home Building and Loan Association will give an outing today on the Meramec River, near Fenton. Automobiles will leave the offices of Yeckel, Earickson and Co., Inc., and the American Home Building and Loan Association at 3542 Gravois, at 9 a. m. There will be swimming, ball games, card games, surprise games and horseshoe pitching, etc.

O. F. Renz, Marie Rohrbach and Al Schich compose the program committee.

SUBURBAN PROPERTY FOR SALE—Pasadena

PASADENA HILLS

Thirty-seven new homes are now under construction in PASADENA HILLS. These represent an investment of over $550,000—many times greater than in the entire City of St. Louis in 1932.

Why is Pasadena Hills selected by so many home owners Pasadena Hills is just 20 minutes by auto from downtown St. Louis. tI is surrounded by three arterial highways; street cars and buses. The new Pasadena Hills' $100,000 grade school on seven acres is to start immediately. The one hundred and thirty homes are all artistically designed, beautifully landscaped.

There are still nearly 200 lots for you to select from—many wooded—some facing the various parks. Make your selection now.

A New Face May Smile at You From Behind the Pop Corn Stand

The lad who handed you the bag of pop corn last summer may be there to serve you again when July days come. But a pop corn machine was offered for sale in the Post-Dispatch want ad pages and a new boy may be there to take your nickel. The want ads tell of other equipment now being brushed up, getting it ready for summer service and profits. There are the ice cream freezers for sale, ice cream cabinets and soda fountains. One hamburger stand outfit was offered. Many advertisements from day to day tell of counter bars and bar backs. Various offers of interest to amusement park and other concessionaires are appearing. To the persons seeking opportunities for the summer these may be suggestions. Or a want ad telling the kind of equipment wanted will bring answers.

CROSBY'S PLATFORM

The political conventions of Cleveland and Philadelphia having been tucked to bed, we bring back the spot-light to St. Louis' Used Car Arena, to our Nominee . . . the candidate of all parties . . . all creeds . . . all classes and all Automobile Buyers.

Our Standard Bearer, E. M. Crosby, the People's Choice and present incumbent, has been nominated by acclamation to succeed himself to the office of President of the Used Car Business of the Middle West, on the following platform:

PLATFORM

AGRICULTURE

1 We believe that the farmer is an integral part of the community, and as such needs a Crosbyized Used Car for transportation—this being the greatest opportunity that a grateful nation can offer.

INTERSTATE COMMERCE

2 Recognizing the profession of Selling to be the backbone of the country, we subscribe to the principle of a Crosby Used Car for every salesman.

DOMESTIC RELATIONS

3 Because the women of this country are inclined to rule the roost, and because we men are sports enough to let them continue to think so, we offer to America's Womanhood, an amazing selection of beautiful Used Cars, perfectly reconditioned, and all worthy of Crosby.

E. M. CROSBY
President and Sole Owner

PLATFORM

SUPREME COURT

4 Deferring to the majority opinion of the Supreme Court, we advocate an amendment to the Constitution which will provide a Crosby Used Car for every American citizen, in addition to two chickens in the pot.

LABOR

5 This party stands four-square behind labor, and the reduction of working hours in the selection of a Used Car. For that reason, we have reduced the labor of buying a Crosby Used Car to a minimum, and have provided five acres of Used Cars to make the selection easier.

FINANCE

6 We repeat the promises made by this administration two years ago, and are solidly in accord with them—namely, "No Free Man or Woman shall be deprived of the privilege and luxury of a Crosby Used Car because of price or payments." Therefore, we shall continue to offer the world's lowest prices and most convenient terms to the people of this nation.

OUTSTANDING!

My administration has been in existence for a short two years. I am confident, however, that it will continue indefinitely, because Crosby Motors has earned the confidence of its public by adhering strictly to the cardinal principles of a successful business. These principles involve nothing more nor less than—

Giving the public a little more than it expects in VALUE, QUALITY, SERVICE, TERMS, and, of course, the Crosby Motors Type of Satisfaction . . . the Satisfaction that continues long after the sale is made.

E. M. CROSBY.

ORNAMENTAL IRON WORK IN, VOGUE AGAIN

Ornamental iron work is very much in vogue again and justly so, for its decorative value is high. The wrought iron of the Georgian period and earlier and the cast iron of a later day that was brought to a high state of perfection at the time of the Directoire both deserve a place in our architectural scheme.

Craftsmanship in wrought iron is once again receiving careful consideration, and some of the work now produced compares favorably with the best English or Italian examples of the art. Methods have changed little, and craftsmen today turn the beautiful curves and hammer out the delicate members much as their forerunners did generations ago. It remains one of the arts that has not been "improved" by machinery.

Cast iron is used mostly for decorative porches and grilles outside of windows, and many lovely designs have been resurrected from the past and originated for both these purposes. A porch with a convex standing seam metal roof against a white Directoire house makes a delightful picture. The dark lacelike metal etched against the smooth white background gives a splendid effect, and the richness of the iron work contrasting with the severe simplicity of the body of the house enhances the best qualities of both.

The cost of good iron work is still high, so elaborate examples can be included only in the more expensive houses. But simple front-porch railings made of light members of stock sizes and designs are within the reach of many small-income home owners.

Balusters of one-half inch square bars with a railing made up of a one-inch by one-quarter-inch bar with a halfround or turtle back on top gives a very pleasing effect at little cost. The newels should be about three-quarter-inch squares and should be let into the masonry and fastened in with lead. It is less expensive to have the bottoms of the balusters set in an iron bar one-half inch by one-quarter inch, with occasional three-quarter posts set in the masonry, than to omit this lower bar and have all the balusters fastened individually in the masonry. Brass finials of stock design can be used on the newels with good effect.

QUESTIONS BEFORE THE HOUSE

Q. Please advise me the best solution to use to remove old varnish and dirt from hardwood floors. What is the proper mixture of sand and cement for a concrete floor in a garage? MRS. C. P.

A. Use a mixture of sand, cement and gravel. The proportions are: One part cement, two and one-half parts sand, and three and one-half parts gravel. Mix to a plastic workable consistency with water and give the floor a float finish to give greater traction to automobile tires. The float is the wooden smoothing tool.

Q. What is the proper depth for kitchen shelves? CLARA C. S.

A. For dishes, the shelves should not be less than 10 inches. For canned goods and dry groceries, they should be narrower if there is plenty of shelf room. Six or seven-inch shelves for packaged groceries and four-inch shelves for cans are ideal. On deeper shelves, small cans and containers get hidden behind larger ones; but on these narrower shelves every object is in plain sight.

Q. If house plans call for brick veneer does it make any difference if clapboard is used instead? J. S. N.

A. Brick veneer which is connected to the house with wire ties is a little more rigid. For clapboard the framework should be stiffened by diagonal braces.

Q. Is there anything I can do to correct sagging shutters? LAWRENCE D.

A. About the only thing to do short of having them rebuilt is to put right-angle iron braces at the corners. If you want to go to a little extra expense, these can be made like an L hinge and supplant the existing portion of the hinge that is fastened to the shutter.

Q. We have two quarter circle windows in our attic which are used as ventilators. They swing inward and I notice that they do not keep out the rain. Can anything be done to remedy this? ANXIOUS.

A. Windows that open inward are difficult to make tight. We suggest that you swing them outward and fit them with metal weatherstrips.

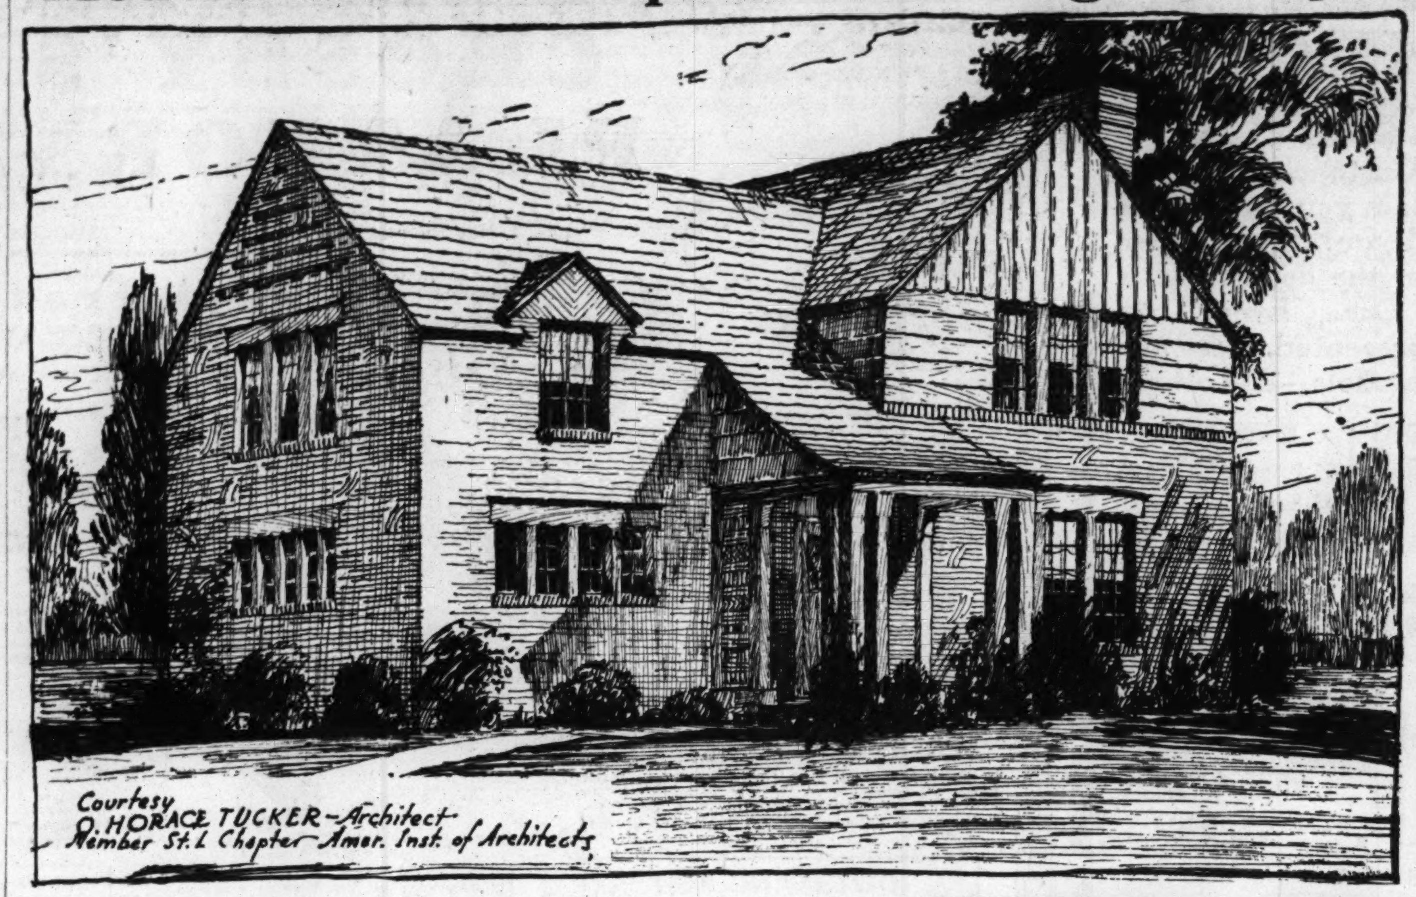
Q. The clapboards on my frame house are laid rather wide and are beginning to show space where they overlap. Can I re-nail them so they will be tighter? What filler shall I use to keep the rain from seeping through? T. L. S.

A. The clapboards have probably not had enough overlap in the first place. The best thing to do is to take them off and renail them, being careful to allow enough overlap. Oakum should be forced into the cracks and this should be covered with caulking compound with a caulking gun.

Modern House Adapted from English Style



Courtesy O. HORACE TUCKER—Architect Member St. L Chapter Amer. Inst. of Architects

Simplified Version of Substantial Brick and Timber Retains All the Charm of the Earlier Style.

ARCHITECTURE no longer represents a slavish adherence to tradition. The present trend is away from all unnecessary detail and embellishment and toward greater simplicity. All this is directly in line with good housing and good housing means a good use of space and ample facilities. Today the home building dollar buys more of the needed and less of wasteful gimcracks.

English half timber and stucco combined with brick represents a certain solidity and charm in a house. The house shown here illustrates what an architect is able to do in simplifying the exterior and yet retaining its basic charm and solidity. The half timber idea has been retained in the stained siding used at the second floor and in the gable of the window. The squared porch supports and the wooden lintels over the windows carry out the scheme.

This particular house was designed for a Federal Housing Administration campaign specifically to illustrate the requirements of good housing for lower incomes. The house and plans show what can be done with a corner lot.

The garage has been made an integral part of the house. Through it one has access to the house, the service hall and the stairs which lead to the recreation room in the basement. A walk has been built along the house wall which necessitates parking the family automobile near the outer wall.

THE entrance to the house has been designed to give easy access to the second floor of the house without interfering with any social activities that may be in progress in the living room. The stair way is open at its lower portion and has substantial balusters, newel post and balustrade.

The service area grouped around a rear hall includes two good sized closets, a toilet and the kitchen. Every modern housekeeper looks upon the kitchen as a kind of laboratory to be used for the preparation of food. As a workshop it should be compact, well planned and well lighted. This kitchen is small but most efficiently laid out. Most of the activity in a kitchen lies between the sink, stove and refrigerator. Consequently the architect has planned counters and cabinets where they will require the least number of steps.

In order that the dining room may fulfill its function as a room where meals are served it has been planned as a fairly large room lighted on two sides. There is no pantry to separate it from the kitchen.

The lavatory on the first floor is lighted by a window which looks into the garage. Circulation of air and ventilation are cared for by means of a ventilator.

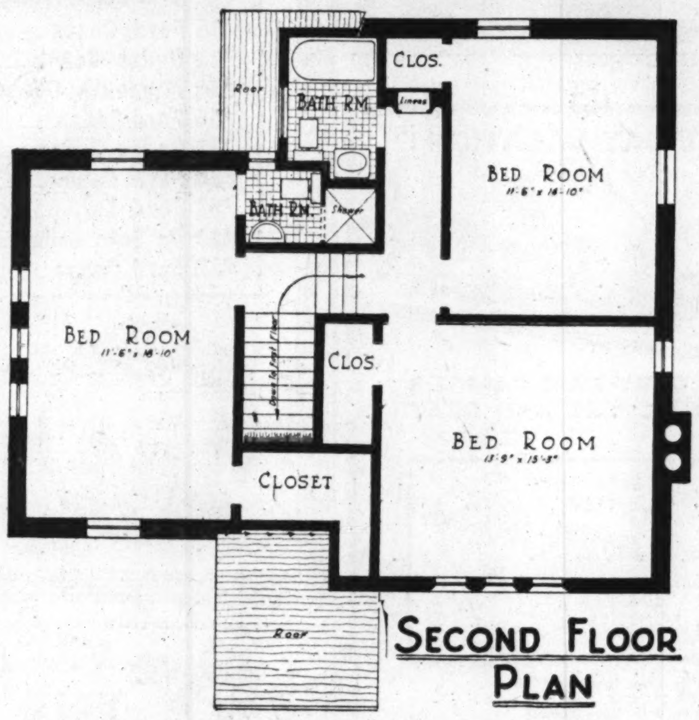
Good housing is fully illustrated by the second floor which has three bedrooms served by two bathrooms and ample closet space. The master bedroom which has its own bath with shower is built over the garage. This room opens off a landing and is about four steps below the level of the two remaining bedrooms. All bedrooms have two exposures.

The interior woodwork is of gum. The fireplace in the living room is of brick and gum panelling. The windows are steel casement and have plaster reveals instead of the usual wood trim. The floor in the living room is oak. Maple has been used for the kitchen floor because it does not have the same expansion and contraction of fine or oak.

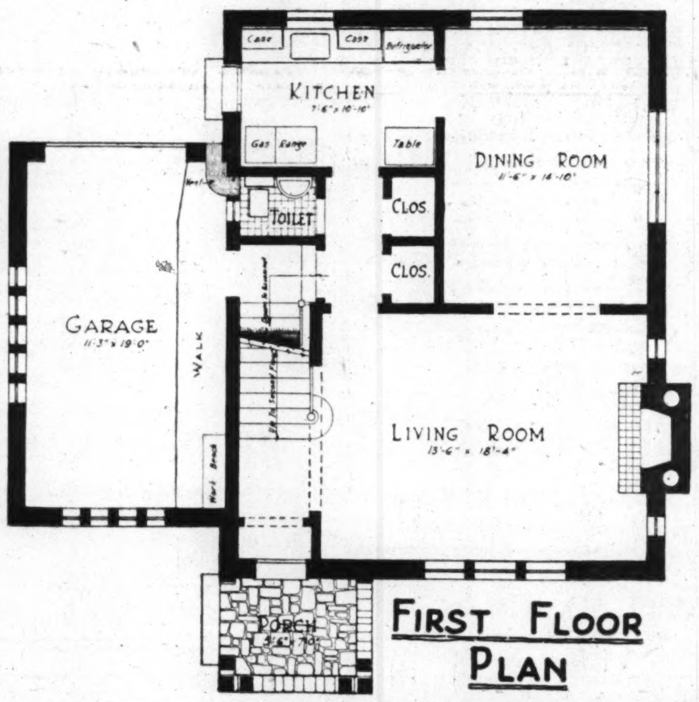
THE house faces west and is thoroughly insulated with rigid and blanket type insulation. The walls are brick masonry and the only ornamentation lies in the brick courses in the gable and about the doorway. The house is heated with a gas fired winter air conditioned furnace.

The garage is unexcavated. The remainder of the basement provides for a recreation room of knotty pine with a stone fireplace, a laundry and heater room. The roof is slate.

Cubage has been figured at 27,000 cubic feet and the cost is estimated roughly at 28 cents per cubic foot. Landscaping has been included in the estimate. This house has been erected in the city of Brentwood.



SECOND FLOOR PLAN



FIRST FLOOR PLAN

FOR BETTER LIVING

A new midget showerhead has recently been put on the market which uses about half as much water as the old ones but gives the same amount of service.

The new head is non-clogging, or practically so, and is especially recommended for gyms, schools or large families where the water meter ticks merrily on into dollars and cents every time a tap is opened.

For the blithe cigarette-out-of-the-window tosser sheet metal awnings are now on the market in copper, aluminum, or stainless steel. They are fire and corrosion resistant and fold up as neatly as the canvas article.

If you are the lucky possessor of a summer cottage you need not go through another season without home-made ice. There is now a refrigerator available which uses kerosene for fuel and requires only about two hours a day to furnish enough refrigerant to last for the day. What is more, it looks like the high powered article in your town house kitchen.

Screens no longer need to be installed every spring and removed and stored in the fall. There is a new type that rolls up with the ease of a window shade. These screens fit into guides at the side of the window.

The new screens are a boon to the housewife who has always had trouble operating her casement windows or keeping draperies and summer curtains where they belong. The Handy Man too will appreciate no longer having to match screens and wrestling with these refractory bug catchers.

A WELL-BUILT STAIRWAY GOOD ECONOMY

To build a first-class stairway is expensive, but to build anything but a first-class stairway is unwise and therefore poor economy.

The stairs in a house are so important from the standpoint of both use and decoration that if an extravagance (if you can call it that) is excusable anywhere in the house it is here. For the results of poor stair building are many, aggravating, and conspicuous. They cannot be concealed from anyone passing up or down. Squeaky or sagging treads, loose hand rails or newels, rattling balusters, open joints, all are the result of improper construction.

In a properly built stair the wall string (that perpendicular member at the wall against which the treads and risers butt) is cut so that the treads and risers slip in from the back. The grooves into which they fit are tapered so that wedges can be put in, driven up tight, and glued to hold them securely in place. The treads and risers are interlocked where they meet by means of a tongue and groove. After all the members are in place, triangular-shaped pieces are set under the treads where the risers fit into them, and these, too, are glued. About three of these blocks are placed under each tread. Thus the whole structure is wedged and glued together into one solid whole.

Frequently, in inexpensive house construction, the treads and risers are merely nailed together and to the wall string, or the string is cut so that the treads rest on top of it and are nailed to it. In such a stair the nails work loose and the sagging and squeaking result.

Balusters should be dove-tailed into the treads and should fit into a grove in the rail with blocks set in the grove between the balusters to hold them securely in place. Free-standing newels should extend down and be screwed to the floor joists that surround the stair well, or they should be fastened with iron toggles.

Save if you must elsewhere in the house where the structure itself will not be impaired, but if at all possible, demand a first-class staircase.

A FEW BRUSH TIPS

If you have a screened porch and wish to add to your privacy there, paint the outside of the screening with a thin white paint. This prevents those outside from looking through, but does not obstruct the view from within.

If you're applying paint to wicker furniture with a brush, be careful not to let the paint settle in the wicker crevices where it will be thick and cannot dry properly.

• • •

Flanking the fireplace in an effective Regency dining room are gray marble pilasters with capitals picked out in royal blue. The walls are painted egg-shell white while the doors are blue with gray and white moulding.

New Walls For Old

Give the walls in your bathroom and kitchen a "facial" by replacing or applying new materials right over the old surfaces. The old wall can be made to look like new.

Shelves Save Space

In small houses where all the wall space is needed for furniture, book shelves may be built on the walls, starting about four feet above the floor. This allows the lower part of the wall to be used for furniture and at the same time gives a refuge for your books.

Cornices Attractive

Wood cornices over windows to act as valances are attractive and need not be expensive. If you are good with a hammer and saw, perhaps you can make them yourself. If not, any good carpenter can do it. You had better have some orchitect or decorator design them.

Does your head of the house get himself tangled in lamp or radio cords? There is a clip on the market that holds these wires along the baseboard securely and out of the way.

Jane Francis Is Married to Howard Williams

Ceremony Takes Place In Garden of Talton T. Francis Home—Bride Is a Former Veiled Prophet Queen and Member of Junior League.

MISS JANE PERRY FRANCIS, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Talton T. Francis, became the bride of Howard Williams yesterday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock. The ceremony was performed in the garden of her parents' home on Upper Ladue road by Bishop William Scarlett.

The bride, a former Veiled Prophet Queen, was gowned in the wedding dress of her sister, the former Miss Miriam Francis, whose marriage to E. Lansing Ray Jr. was one of the most fashionable events of last June. Made on empire lines of satin, just off white in color, it formed a train, four yards in length, which swept behind her as she approached the scene of the ceremony. The bodice was changed to form an off the shoulder neckline, and rare Brussels lace, which had belonged to the bridegroom's mother, stood upright around the top of the bodice. Long pointed satin sleeves were joined to the lace below the shoulders. She carried a bouquet of white larkspur. Her tulle veil, which floated to the end of her train, was gathered to the back of her head, and a face veil fell from a coronet of Brussels lace, leaving the top of her dark hair uncovered.

On the arm of her father the bride descended from the stone paved terrace at the top of the garden, down the stone steps, and along the grass path to stand beneath an apple tree at the far end. Two Italian blue vases on the terrace were filled with tall blue delphinium, and delphinium and daisies were blooming in the garden. She was preceded by her two attendants, Mrs. Ray as matron of honor, and Miss Louise Goddard, as bridesmaid.

Mrs. Ray and Miss Goddard were dressed alike in white mousseline de soie, on which were clusters of hand-painted flowers of green, yellow and deep larkspur pink. The high boat neckline was finished with a bias fold of the material several inches wide, and the deep puffed sleeves fell in soft pleats from the shoulders to the elbows. The circular skirts were fitted around the hips and flared from there to the ground. Grosgrain ribbon, the color of the green of the flowers on the material, formed a belt which ended in front in a tailored bow. Their costumes were completed with large shepherdess hats of leghorn, made with shallow crowns, and trimmed with green ribbon streamers that fell behind to the knees. They carried arm bouquets of lavender gladioli blossoms.

Mr. Williams had as his best man his brother, Stewart Williams, who now makes his home in Houston, Tex. Crawford Johnson and Francis Findlay of Boston were his groomsmen. They wore white linen suits with blue corn flowers boutonieres.

A symphony ensemble of 10 members provided the wedding music, and following the ceremony played the Mendelsohn march as the wedding party walked from the garden onto the wide rolling lawn where the reception took place. The receiving line formed beneath the trees, and the grass was dotted with garden chairs where the guests were served refreshments.

A buffet table was laid in the dining room where the wedding party gathered later. It was decorated with one large vase filled with white larkspur and bouvardia and tall candelabra at each end.

Mr. Williams is the son of former Judge and Mrs. George H. Williams of Log Cabin lane. He prepared at the Berkshire School in Connecticut and was graduated from Princeton University, class of 1923. He later received a law degree from Washington University, His clubs include the St. Louis Country and University. Mr. Williams' father was former United States Senator from Missouri.

Mrs. Williams is the granddaughter of the late David R. Francis, former Governor of Missouri and United States Ambassador to Russia. Her maternal grandmother is Mrs. Paul F. Coste. She is the niece of Mrs. Eugene T. Senseney, Paul Coste, of Providence, R. I., and J. D. Perry Francis, Sidney R. Francis, Charles Francis, David R. Francis and Thomas Francis.

The bride attended John Burroughs School and the French School in New York. The year before her debut she spent a year at the Child-Walker School of Fine Arts and Crafts in Boston, where she resumed her studies for a season several years ago. She is a member of the Junior League.

Mrs. Francis, who, with her husband and the parents of the bride-

Anne Dieffenbach Engaged to Wed New York Man

DR. AND MRS. RICHARD HAGDEN DIEFFENBACH, Newark, N. J., have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Anne Dieffenbach, and George Pettengill III, 151 East Eighty-third street, New York. The prospective bridegroom is the son of Rear-Admiral George Pettengill, U. S. N., and Mrs. Pettengill. His father recently returned East from the Pacific coast where he was in command of the Second Battleship Division of the Pacific fleet, to take command of the Navy Yard in Washington.

The announcement was made at an informal party given yesterday afternoon at the Dieffenbach home.

Miss Dieffenbach is a granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Casper Koehler and is a niece of Mrs. William J. Lemp, and Julius Koehler, all of St. Louis, and of Mrs. Ottilie Krausnick, Memphis. She is a cousin of Carl J. Koehler and of Edward A. Limberg. During her debut season, 1930, she visited here as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph L. Werner of the Woodlands, Ladue road. She was introduced to Eastern society at the Essex County Country Club after graduating from Miss Beard's School, Orange, N. J. She is a

Robert Burkham Weds in East

READING, Pa., June 27.

MISS SARAH GILPIN BRIGHT, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Bright of Cedar Hill Farm, and Robert Burkham of St. Louis were married here today in the garden of the Bright home in the presence of the immediate families.

Mr. Burkham is the son of Mrs. Robert Burkham of the Park Plaza Hotel, St. Louis, and the late Col. Burkham.

Archdeacon James Fry Bullitt of Chestnut Hill, Pa., a cousin of the bridegroom, performed the ceremony at 4 o'clock, which was followed by a reception to which a few close friends were invited.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a white crepe gown. It was fashioned with a high slit back and a square neckline in front, and had short tucked sleeves. The long skirt had tucked panels in the front and the back. She wore a coronet of white braid in her hair, and carried a bouquet of white orchids and bouvardia.

Miss Louisa Bright, who served as her sister's only attendant, was the maid of honor, and was gowned in a turquoise net dress. She wore a leghorn hat, banded in turquoise, and her flowers were Joanna Hill roses.

Stanley Bright Jr., brother of the bride, was best man.

Mrs. Burkham, who with her daughter, Miss Margaret Burkham, attended the wedding, was dressed in powder blue, with a hat of matching shade. Miss Margaret Burkham wore a flowered chiffon on white background, and with it a large garden hat of red straw. Among the other out-of-town guests were Mrs. McBrayer Moore, a cousin of the bridegroom, of Danville, Ky.; Dr. and Mrs. Hayward Post of St. Louis, his cousins, and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Winfield Fordyce, also of St. Louis, whose marriage took place there June 12.

After a short wedding trip Mr. Burkham and his bride will spend a fortnight at Cedar Hill Farm, and will sail July 13 for a trip around the world. They will return to St. Louis in four months to make their home.

The bride was graduated this June from Bryn Mawr College. She prepared at the Springside School in Chestnut Hill. She is a member of the Philadelphia Junior League.

Mr. Burkham attended the Kent School in Connecticut, and is an alumnus of Princeton University. This past year he was a member of the faculty of Hill School, Pottstown, Pa. He is a nephew of Elzey G. Burkham and Mrs. E. Lansing Ray of St. Louis.

Miss Anne Kinnaird And A. E. Koelle to Wed

ANNOUNCEMENT was made yesterday of the engagement of Miss Anne Kinnaird, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Kinnaird, 5140 Enright avenue, and Arthur E. Koelle. The news was told at a swimming and supper party given by the prospective bride last evening at St. Albans Farms. The wedding will take place in the fall.

Mr. Koelle, whose home is at 7459 Stratford place, is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Koelle. He is an alumnus of Washington University.

Miss Kinnaird, who also was graduated from Washington University, is the assistant of Mrs. Nettie H. Beauregard, archivist and curator of the Missouri Historical Society.

Elinor R. Bronaugh Becomes Bride of Alex John Pagel

NEW YORK, June 27.

THE wedding of Miss Elinor Robbertson Bronaugh, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Lewis Bronaugh of this city and East Hampton, L. I., and Alexa John Pagel, of 290 Park avenue, took place here Thursday afternoon. The ceremony, with the Rev. Lockhart Amerman officiating, was performed in the chapel of Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church and was followed by a small reception at Sherry's.

The bride is a niece of Mrs. Oliver L. Garrison Jr., and Mrs. Hugh F. Cartwright of St. Louis, who arrived a week ago to spend a month with Mr. and Mrs. Bronaugh at their East Hampton home. Mrs. Bronaugh, was the former Miss Sue Robertson, whose family was long prominent in Mexico, Mo.

Mrs. Pagel was given in marriage by her father, and wore an ivory satin princess gown, a family heirloom which belonged to her great-aunt, with deep bertha and short cap sleeves of old rose point lace. The skirt was draped to form a train. Her lace and tulle veil was fashioned to form her cap and she carried white orchids and lilies of

Miss Nellie Caudle Becomes Bride of Henry Lake Meier

CANDLE light flickered from many candelabra to illum inate the Church of St. Michael and St. George for the wedding late yesterday afternoon of Miss Nellie Carolyn Caudle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stokely Massengale Caudle, and Henry Lake Meier. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Duncan Ivers Meier of Huntleigh Village.

The entire length of the nave was lighted by candles in three-way floor standards arranged in each arch against the side walls, and more tapers burned in a setting of woodwardia and cybodium fern in the chancel. Two vases of white flowers adorned the altar table. The Rev. Karl Morgan Block was assisted in performing the ceremony by the Rev. Dr. Edward B. Willingham, pastor of the Delmar Baptist Church which the bride's family attends.

Delphinium blue and chartreuse yellow were combined in the costumes of the bride's attendants, who included her sister, Mrs. Christopher L. Gredneaire, Scarsdale, N. Y., matron of honor, preceded by Miss Elizabeth Roosa, Buffalo, N. Y., and Miss Mary Bolland Taus-

Summer Visitors at Cape Cod, Mass.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WOODS HOLE, Mass., June 27.

CAPE COD, jutting foot-shaped from the shore of Southeastern Massachusetts, a summer playground for more than 25 years, will welcome the largest group of summer visitors for several seasons. There are no large, empty estates, with heavy wooden shutters barring its windows. Homes that have been closed for years have been reopened, either to owners or tenants.

Dr. George Moore's cottage in Woods Hole, with its beautiful view of Little Harbor, is open for the first time in two years. His daughter, Mrs. Boyle Rodes, and her children are its occupants, and Dr. Moore and Mr. Rodes will visit from time to time during the summer season.

Mrs. Lloyd Stark of Louisiana, Mo., former St. Louisan, and her children will arrive July 2 to occupy the Tinkham cottage on Millfield street, which overlooks one of the loveliest gardens in Woods Hole. Col. Stark will spend a short time during the season with his farmily, for it was in Woods Hole he courted Mrs. Stark (Katherine Perkins), while she was the house guest of Dr. and Mrs. George Moore.

Dr. and Mrs. Edmund Vincent Cowdry are occupying their cottage with its garden overlooking Eel Pond for the first time in several years. Mrs. Cowdry, Alice and Margaret arrived a few days earlier than Dr. Cowdry and Edmund Vincent Jr., who motored through from St. Louis to Woods Hole, arriving 10 days ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Plant are in the Ivy Lewis cottage of Woods Hole for another season. Mrs. Leicester Faust, Lilly Claire and Ann will join them early in July for a two-month visit.

Mrs. Thomas G. Ratcliffe is at present in her cottage, "Lotawana Lodge," where she will be joined over the Fourth of July by her son, Thomas G. Ratcliffe Jr. of 34 East Sixty-fourth street, New York, and her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Baxter Jackson. Later, Mrs. Ratcliffe will be with Mr. and Mrs. Eugene D. Nims at the Larches, Woods Hole, for the season.

Mr. and Mrs. Jackson have leased a small cottage overlooking the lake at Coonamessett Ranch, Hatchville. Hatchville is also a Falmouth village. Here Mrs. Jackson will spend the summer writing.

The Larches was opened June 12 for a house party given by Mrs. George Clifton Long of Hartford, Conn., sister of Mrs. Nims, for her daughter, Miss Elizabeth Flateau Long. She had as guests some classmates at Vassar of Miss Long and some Harvard graduates of this year. Swimming, tennis and bridge amused the group for five days.

Woods Hole is a village of the Township of Falmouth. Quissett lying adjacent, is another beautiful

PRINCIPALS AND ATTENDANTS IN JUNE WEDDINGS AND BRIDE-TO-BE

WASHINGTON SCENE

By the POE SISTERS

WASHINGTON, June 27.

WASHINGTON'S "Quartet of Perfect Secretaries," as they are called in official life here, were all in Philadelphia last night to hear President Roosevelt make his speech of acceptance. The membership of the quartet consists of Mrs. John Nance Garner, wife of the Vice-President and his private secretary for years; Miss Marguerite Le Hand, personal secretary to President Roosevelt; Mrs. Malvina Scheider, secretary to Mrs. Roosevelt, and Mrs. Henrietta Klotz, secretary to the Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau.

Washington organized the quartet when Secretary Morgenthau presented Mrs. Klotz with an autographed photograph, the inscription of which read, "To the best secretary from her boss." That started speculation as to the relative merits of the group of Washington unofficial officials, the private secretaries of notables.

Mrs. Garner has many pressing duties outside of those of secretary to her husband, but she never permits social demands to interfere with her important secretarial work. Through long years in this position, she knows best how to aid her husband in his work, a fact which he always acknowledges most heartily.

Next in line one must place Miss Le Hand, known to the White House family as "Missy," who has been the President's personal secretary since he was Governor of New York. Miss Le Hand lives at the White House, on the third floor near the suite occupied by the President's grandchildren, Eleanor and Curtis Dall, when they are in Washington. During the morning Miss Le Hand works in the executive offices, then goes to luncheon in the White House with Mrs. Roosevelt, while the President has lunch at his desk in his office from an electric lunch-wagon rolled in from the kitchens with hot dishes for his guests and himself.

At 2 o'clock, Miss Le Hand arrives with correspondence to which the President must give his personal attention. So familiar is she with the President's views and opinions that sometimes he need write only "yes" or "no" on a letter and she can dictate a suitable reply without additional instructions.

In the evening Miss Le Hand dons a party frock and takes her place at state dinners. She is one of the best-groomed women in Washington and attractive.

"Tommy," as Mrs. Scheider is called by Mrs. Roosevelt and half the newspaper women in Washington, is in every sense of the word Mrs. Roosevelt's "right hand." For many years she has been her secretary, mentor and friend. A wonder at shorthand, Mrs. Scheider can take down Mrs. Roosevelt's impromptu speeches in the dark on the back of an envelope or a program. Mrs. Scheider accompanies Mrs. Roosevelt on most of her trips, even those by plane, although "Tommy" is not partial to that mode of travel.

Mrs. Klotz knows the intricacies of financial dictation, can ward off a bore from occupying the time of the Secretary, is an example of what a well-dressed woman should wear, and behind the scenes, in her home with her music-loving husband and daughter, Elinor, 5, can give good account of herself as a musician.

Announcement that Count Johann H. von Bernstorff, Ambassador of Germany, in Washington from the last days of the Theodore Roosevelt administration to America's entry into the World War, is writing his autobiography, which will be interesting to Washington society.

The dapper little Count, now 74 years old, surely must include chapters of his Washington years in such a book. Aside from international and political angles, these should be most colorful, for Count von Bernstorff and his American wife, formerly Miss Jeanne Luckemeyer, daughter of a German-American banker of New York, reigned in the huge embassy on Massachusetts avenue during the most brilliant of recent Washington social life.

The pretty daughter of the Bernstorff household, Countess Alexandra, who afterwards married, added to the brilliancy of Washington's younger set by the parties she gave at the embassy. The story goes that the day the Bernstorffs arrived in Washington was the one on which Miss Ethel Roosevelt was making her debut at the White House. Mrs. Roosevelt heard there was a young girl in the Von Bernstorff family and sent a special invitation for her to attend and thus the young Countess made her bow to Washington society at the debut party in the White House of the President's daughter.

Social Events In Washington

WASHINGTON, June 27.

EACH day brings a change in the diplomatic corps here. Start speaking of a foreign ambassador or minister or secretary and most likely you'll have to put "new" in front of his name.

Close on the heels of the announcement that Ambassador Augusto Rosso of Italy will go to Moscow, and will be replaced by Fulvio Suvich, Undersecretary of State, comes more moving news.

Little seems to be known here about Fulvio Suvich, except that he has been Undersecretary of State and that he has a pretty wife. Both are reputed to have a gift for entertaining.

It won't be easy for any ambassador to fill Signor Rosso's shoes. Clever, distinguished, tactful, a bachelor, he has been enormously popular. And the wonder of it is that in spite of the enormous favor he has found in the eyes of Washington's lovely ladies, he is going home a bachelor.

In August, Minister Ferdinand Ververka of Czechoslovakia will go to Vienna to become envoy to Austria, taking with him his lovely blonde wife and their daughter, Nella.

There's a new Ambassador of Poland, Count George Potocki, just learning to know his way around, and a new Ambassador of France is promised.

Ministers from Bulgaria and Paraguay recently have been welcomed. A new envoy from Venezuela has been appointed and Dr. Juan Joseph Mendoza recalled almost before we had become familiar with his name. And now comes news of the appointment of the Hon. Herbert M. Marler as Canadian Minister to the United States, a post which has been vacant since the Hon. William Duncan Herridge was recalled when his brother-in-law, former Prime Minister Bennett, went out of power.

Minister de Bianchi of Portugal and Senhora de Bianchi are going to Mexico, but only for the summer. De Bianchi is a great traveler. He likes to take movies of his trips and has some excellent shots of scenery and people made during a cross-the-continent tour last summer.

Coincident with the departure of so many envoys, comes the arrival of two American diplomats and their wives.

Dapper Hugh Wilson, Minister to Switzerland, has reached Washington for a brief visit, accompanied by Mrs. Wilson. They will spend the summer on a ranch in Colorado with thier son, Hugh Wilson Jr., who will enter college in the fall.

The Ambassador to Belgium and Mrs. Dave Hennen Morris arrived this week in New York and will dash to Washington for a few days.

MRS. WILL MELVILLE GARTON, JR., who was married last week in Pasadena, Cal. She is former Miss Mary Eloise von Schrader, daughter of Col. and Mrs. Alleyne von Schrader, and a niece of former Judge Thomas Bond of St. Louis.

the valley. The wedding gown had been wore by three other members of the family.

The matron of honor was Mrs. Consuelo Vanderbilt Smith, the former Mrs. Earl E. T. Smith, daughter of William K. and the late Mrs. Graham Fair Vanderbilt. She was gowned in white organza embroidered with white daisies. In addition she wore a large white picture hat trimmed with a wreath of daisies. Her bouquet was composed of African daisies. Elinor Debevoise, namesake of the bride, was flower girl and she wore a Kate Greenaway frock of white organdie and a wreath of daisies in her hair. She carried a daisy chain.

Harry F. Pagel was best man for his brother, who is the son of Mrs. Alex Pagel, of Stockholm, Sweden, and the late Mr. Pagel. The ushers were Col. Oscar N. Solbert, of Rochester, N. Y., and the Messrs. Ernest H. Rice, Nils R. Johaneson and E. Myron Bull, all of New York.

The couple departed for a wedding trip to England, Sweden, Vienna and Budapest, following which they will make their home in this city.

The bride attended the Spence School, New York, and Miss Porter's School at Farmington, Conn. She made her debut several seasons ago at the Plaza. She is a member of the Colonial Dames of America, and of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

Mr. Pagel, a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania, is a member of the Racquet and Tennis Club and Squadron A of New York and the Maidstone and Devon Yacht Clubs of East Hampton, L. I. He is president of Pagel, Horton & Co., wood-pulp manufacturers, New York. His first marriage was terminated by divorce.

To Be Ordained by Bishop Scarlett.

The Rev. Mr. James Lichliter, who will occupy the pulpit during summer months at Christ Church Cathedral, will be ordained by Bishop William Scarlett at the Cathedral at 10 a. m. tomorrow. His father, Dr. Ilyar Hamilton Lichliter, formerly pastor at Maple Avenue Methodist Church here and now at First Congregational Church at Columbus, O., will preach at ordination services.

Burton-O'Neil Church Wedding

THE wedding of Miss Mary Frances O'Neil, daughter of Mrs. Elise Obear O'Neil and Laurence W. O'Neil, and Robert Robinson Burton was solemnized Friday afternoon at 5:30 o'clock at the Church of the Unity. Dr. George R. Dodson performed the ceremony.

The bride, who was led by her father to the altar which was banked by palms and lit by many candles, was preceded by her sister, Miss Jessie Bird O'Neil, as maid of honor, and Miss Althea Hickey as bridesmaid. Mr. Burton had his brother, John Gamble Burton, as best man, and his groomsmen were John O'Neil, brother of the bride, Dabney Waller, Dougla[illegible] Galbreath, Carl Shumacher, [illegible]thur Gaines Jr. and Joel Ledbetter of Little Rock, Ark.

Mrs. Burton was gowned in her mother's wedding dress. Of white satin, the bodice was cut with a square neck, edged in a frill of Duchess lace, and the skirt, draped slightly at the sides, fell into a long train. The short sleeves were of the lace. No changes were made in the dress since worn by her mother 26 years ago.

Her bridal veil was fastened [illegible] her hair by two gardenias at top of her head. She carried a bouquet of white larkspur.

Miss O'Neil and Miss Hickey were dressed alike in pale blue organza. The full skirts, worn over taffeta, were opened down the front. The neckline was trimmed with little turned collars of the organza, and the short sleeves were full and puffed. Their flowers were African daisies, in pastel shades, and leghorn hats, trimmed in blue velvet ribbons tied in front of the crown, completed their costumes.

The ceremony was followed by a wedding dinner at the bride's home, 6644 Washington boulevard, where the pair received relatives and friends informally.

Mrs. Burton prepared at John Burroughs School, and was graduated from Smith College. She [illegible] a member of the Junior League, and president of the Smith College Club of St. Louis. She is the granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Francis O'Neil, and the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas S. Obear. Her aunt, Miss Doris O'Neil, formerly of 51 Kingsbury place, now makes her home in Scarsdale, N. Y., as does another aunt, Mrs. J. H. Wallis.

Mr. Burton is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Perlee E. Burton, [illegible] East Swon avenue, Webs[illegible] Groves. He was graduated from Washington University, and is a member of Phi Delta Theta fraternity.

The pair have departed on a wedding trip of several weeks, and on their return will live at the Burton home until fall.

groom, received with the bridal pair, was gowned in a deep cream colored mousseline de sole afternoon dress with a gold ribbon belt tied in a tailored bow. Her brown leghorn hat was trimmed with a wreath of yellow and cream colo[illegible] daisies.

Mrs. Williams, whose mother, Mrs. A. C. Stewart, also was present at the wedding, wore a gown of organza, combining in colors dark blue and Alice blue. Her hat was of starched organza of the darkest shade, and a cluster of cream colored and deep rose flowers were pinned to the waist of her dress.

Mr. Williams and his bride departed after the reception for S[illegible] Francisco, from where they will sail Wednesday for Tahiti, where they will spend a month. Upon their return they will live at 555 North Central avenue, Clayton, where they recently purchased a house.

Among the out-of-town guests at the wedding were Mrs. Sidney Francis, and her daughter, Miss Emily Francis of Pasadena, Cal.; Mr. and Mrs. George Senseney from Chicago; Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Fulks of California, Mo., uncle and aunt of the bridegroom; Robert S. Williams of San Clemente, Cal., another uncle, and Mr. Williams' brother, Stewart Williams, of Houston, Tex., and Francis Findlay of Boston, guest conductor of the little symphony, both of whom were in the wedding party.

Miss Nancy Powell Weds in New York

MISS NANCY PATRICIA POWELL, daughter of Mrs. George F. Powell, 4440 Maryland avenue, and Joseph Harrison Humphrey Jr., 30 East Thirty-seventh street, New York, were married at St. Patrick's Cathedral yesterday morning at 11 o'clock.

Miss Janet Leahy of New York, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David P. Leahy of St. Louis, and Russell Jackson, Elizabeth, N. Y., were the attendants. John M. Robertson of the Senate Apartments gave his niece in marriage. A wedding breakfast followed the ceremony at Sherry's. The bride and her mother have been in the East for the past week.

Mr. Humphrey is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Joseph Harrison Humphrey, 4982 Tholozan street. He is a graduate of Washington University and the Harvard Business School. He has been living in New York for the past five years. Mr. Humphrey and his bride will live in Flushing, L. I.

Missouri Daughters of 1812 Will Seek to Restore Fort Zumwalt

To Petition Next Legislature to Buy Tract for State Park; Original Cabin of Frontier Post Still Standing

By FAY PROFILET.

RESOLUTIONS have been passed by the Missouri Division of the National Society, United States Daughters of 1812, to secure funds for the restoration of historic Fort Zumwalt on Highway 40, 30 miles west of St. Louis.

Last September the board of the organization voted at its mid-year meeting at St. Joseph, Mo., to investigate ways and means of the restoration, which was first suggested by Rose Lane Wilder, writer. Mrs. A. Lee Smiser, Warrensburg, Mo., state president, headed an investigating committee composed of Mrs. Arthur J. Burk, Kirksville, State chairman of memorial markers; Mrs. E. T. Smith, St. Louis, state historian, and Mrs. Eugene Maupin, Clarence, state chairman of historic sites.

Mrs. Frances Burkhardt, state registrar, presented resolutions at the Annual State Council held at Armstrong, Mo., this month to petition the next Legislature to buy the 87-acre tract surrounding the fort for a state park.

The organization has erected a monument on the site and if the land is bought and a fund established, will restore the original cabin which still stands surrounded by beautiful farmland and dense woods. Mrs. Smiser has appointed a special St. Louis committee headed by Mrs. Burkhardt, with the following members: Mrs. Josh Lowis Jr., president of the St. Louis Chapter; Mrs. Dudley W. Southward, president of the Pioneer Chapter and Miss Marcia Williams, O'Fallon, an authority on Missouri history, legends and folk lore.

History of the Fort.

Fort Zumwalt was built in 1798 on land which was a Spanish grant taken up by Jacob Zumwalt, who with his brother, Christopher, arrived in Missouri in 1796 from Virginia. The fort is full of interest and is rich in legend not only because it was the first hewn log house erected north of the Missouri River, and because its establishment as a frontier post at what was at the time one of the remotest edges of civilization in the United States, but because its story is also founded on other uses to which it has been put and concerns men and women, who have lived useful and eventful lives under its roof.

According to "The Pioneer Families of Missouri," by Bryant and Rose, the house with huge fire places, was made of white oak and roofed with heavy clap boards of the same wood. The main part consisted of two ground floor rooms duplicated to form a second story. A one-story wing to the east and another to the south, each with a loft completed the structure. The split oak floors which have worn away revealed the primitive method of fastening logs together with wooden pegs instead of nails. The house is on the brink of a low hill at the foot of which runs a spring. The wings of the house have been torn down and the remaining part has gradually succumbed to time and the elements. The portholes in the upper part, which were used in repelling Indian raids, may still be seen, although the stockade which surrounded the house disappeared long ago. A small private cemetery, shaded by ancient cedar trees, in which a mocking bird sings, gives a touch of pathos to the present scene as voices of the past seem to whisper around the old fort. As many as 10 families found refuge here at times of Indian unrest.

In 1807 the house was used for church services by the Rev. Jesse Walker, and later the Rev. John Travis, Missouri's first Methodist preacher, held services there and from this gathering was organized the Mount Zion Methodist Church.

Held by Heald Family 100 Years.

In 1817, after the Fort Dearborn massacre, Maj. Nathan Heald, commanding officer of the fort, came to Missouri, purchased the place and lived there with his wife, Rebecca Wells Heald, heroine of the War of 1812. Both are buried on the homestead. The land was owned by the Heald family for more than a 100 years.

In 1909 the Rebecca Heald Chapter, Daughters of 1812, was organized there by a granddaughter, Rebecca Heald McCluer and for many years the chapter held its meetings in the old fort. Mrs. Heald, for whom the chapter was named, was made heroine of "When Wilderness Was King," by Randall Parish, and for her heroic deeds in the War of 1812, a chapter in the book "Pioneer Women of the West," was dedicated to her.

Mrs. Frances Heald Ottofy, wife of Dr. L. M. Ottofy, 5228 Vernon avenue, and Mrs. Wright Johnson, who lives on a farm near O'Fallon, are granddaughters of Maj. and Mrs. Heald, and the only surviving of the seven children of Darius Heald, the only son of Major and Mrs. Heald, and who was born in the log house in 1822 and who later built the brick house standing near the fort. They have many documents of historical value and a fund of information concerning the lives of their noted grandparents.

Maj. Heald was born at New Ipswich, N. H., in 1775. He entered the United States Army when he was 24 years old and in the spring of 1801 left New England with some recruits to join the Western Army in Ohio. A year later he was stationed at Fort Vincennes, Ind., and still another year found him in Detroit, serving with Gen. William Henry Harrison, who was to become President of the United States. He was made a captain in 1807 and put in command of what was then the military post of Fort Wayne, Ind. Rebeccah Wells of Louisville, Ky., visited her uncle, Capt. William Wells, Indian fighter, where she met Capt. Heald. The result of the meeting is told briefly in the young soldier's journal: "In June, 1810, left Fort Wayne and went to Chicago to command that post. Went on furlough to Massachusetts in the fall of the same year and returned by way of Kentucky, where I was married to Rebeccah Wells, the daughter of Gen. Samuel Wells, on the twenty-third of May, 1811, and arrived in Chicago in June with Mrs. Heald."

Fort Dearborn Massacre.

Shortly after the outbreak of the War of 1812 Capt. Heald was ordered to evacuate Fort Dearborn and march to Fort Wayne. The troops convoying the caravan of civilians and the families of the soldiers were scarcely out of sight of the garrison when they were attacked by Indians. History relates the results of the attack as the Fort Dearborn massacre. Capt. and Mrs. Heald were both severely wounded. They were captured by different bands of warriors and each believed the other had been killed. However, the next day a chief, who was secretly friendly to Heald and was among his captors, discovered Mrs. Heald and arranged to return her to her husband. The chief traded a bottle of whiskey and a mule for her and effected her escape. Not long after the massacre, Capt. Heald was promoted to the rank of major and in 1814 he was released from the army because of wounds which kept him from active service.

He left Louisville with his wife and two young children for St. Charles County, Mo., March 22, 1817, making the journey in 24 days. Several months later he bought the Zumwalt fort and farm and two years later his wife's family bought the Christopher Zumwalt place adjoining. The Indian Chief, Chandonnai, who had been a benefactor to the Healds visited them there in 1831 accompanied by a delegation of chiefs. The old log house was the scene of a great feast that included a whole beef and a sheep.

Miss Marcia Williams, whose family has lived near the fort for many generations has made a life study of its history and legends. In a pretty story written by Miss Williams, a glimpse of the home life of the Zumwalts is poignantly revealed. The writer of the story said that it had come, an unbroken chain of evidence, as hand had clasped hand of the generation before, and listened to the story that they passed to the next generation, from one who had talked with Jacob Zumwalt, Daniel Boone and Black Hawk, the Indian.

The Story.

Parts of this story follow: "Jacob Zumwalt cleaned his musket as he stood in front of the big fire place at Fort Zumwalt, late one bright October afternoon. His good wife turned to the fire and bent low as she watched the ash cake glowing in the coals. She took the skillet from the trivet, where the squirrel had been frying for supper. A gourd of honey was on the table and there were earthen mugs of water from the spring at the foot of the hill.

"'Call the boys to supper Jacob,' she said to her husband, 'and then come yourself, for you are no doubt hungry. You were in the field from early morning with no stop at noon. Ah, the hounds are barking. Someone must be coming over the hill. It is the direction that Daniel Boone comes and it is not an Indian, for the dogs are afraid of them and always come slinking to the door if one appears' . . .

"A hearty welcome was given the hunter when he entered the log room. Daniel Boone did not pause when told that supper was ready but he came directly to the table and sat with bowed head as Jacob Zumwalt returned thanks. The little boys, Levi and David, watched the hunter as he ate quickly and silently. He did not remove his fur cap nor did Jacob. They seemed alert and watchful and their guns were never far from their hands. . .

"Lucy Anne Zumwalt had finished the tasks of putting to order her supper things. The remainder of the squirrel was given to old Trailer, the hound, that had come with them to the wilderness and now was almost disabled since fighting a wolf on Balleau Creek close by. The woman seated herself on a low stool well back from the fire that lighted the room well enough for her to take up her knitting. A lull came as the men sat and smoked and talked of the outside world, the loneliness of the winter months to come and of the prospect of Indian trouble . . .

Say Black Hawk Is Friendly.

"'But Mr. Boone,' said Lucy Anne, 'it may not be so bad, for Black Hawk comes at times and seems friendly. He brought the children a little pet coon and has helped them to make some bows and arrows and showed them how to shoot them. He likes my cooking, for he was hungry, and I gave him a big gourd of stew that he ate with some ash cake I made. We will have other families here during the winter. You see there are four large rooms here and with the loft over two of them there is much room for many other people. . . . We are safe at this place and while we have always been friendly to any Indian that came about we never know what may happen. The spring is not far distant and one can watch from the port holes as I go for water and shoot if an Indian is lurking near. When morning comes you and Mr. Zumwalt must talk of your hunting and the pelts you will have to take to the trading post, for the boys must not hear of trouble with Indians for, when Black Hawk comes, they might say to him some word that would lead to a bad feeling and now he comes with no fear from any of us and we can all give him a true welcome at Zumwalt Fort. He will know our hearts are kind, our walls are strong and sure and that our guns are ready and that our aim is true.'"

The farm is now occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Algie C. Rector. Romance seems always to follow Fort Zumwalt. Mr. and Mrs. Rector were not aware of the historic importance of the place when they leased it, and as they were turning into their new home they saw the marker erected by the Daughters of 1812 and much to their surprise and joy discovered that they were to live at the fort. Mrs. Rector is the great-granddaughter of little David Zumwalt, who ran so happily to meet Black Hawk and the great-great-granddaughter of Jacob Zumwalt.

village of this same township. It is here that Mr. and Mrs. Fred B. Ewing of Italy, Fred Ewing Jr., Mary Louise and George are to spend the summer in the Spinicker cottage to be near Mr. and Mrs. Plant and family. Mrs. Plant is Mr. Ewing's sister.

HYANNISPORT, Mass.

Hyannisport, the most popular place on the Cape for St. Louis people, is a little slow in opening this season. At present the only St. Louis family domiciled is Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth L. Green. The Scudder family, of which Mrs. Green is a member, helped to make Barnstable Township, of which Hyannisport is a village. The Barnstable pioneer of fine English descent was of a high order of intelligence, grave, severe and upright. Many Americans of distinction were born in Barnstable Township and every family boasted of one or two members who had sailed around the world once or more. In summer it is a gay fashionable place, and one may see more people one knows on the street in an hour than in two or three days in St. Louis, such a center it is for St. Louisans.

On the border between Osterville and Wianno in the Township of Barnstable is the summer home of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Biebinger which they opened a week ago after having visited for 10 days with Mrs. Clyde Eustick, their daughter, in Detroit, en route East.

Mr. and Mrs. T. R. Parkhurst of Maplewood, N. J., have been with them for a week. Mr. and Mrs. Edward Morris, another daughter and her husband from Rochester, arrive today for an extended visit.

Francis Seward is, at present, staying at East Bay Lodge, Osterville, until the Wianno Club is opened on July 2, where he spends the summer.

YARMOUTHPORT, Mass.

Miss Edith Souther and Miss Mildred McCluney of St. Louis are now at the Anchorage on a roadway of ancient elms in Yarmouthport, and have entertained this last week Mr. and Mrs. Richard Souther, the latter formerly Miss Francis Jones of St. Louis, from Pelham Manor, N. Y., and Miss McCluney's niece, Mrs. Cyrus Loutrel of Providence, R. I.

EDGARTOWN, Mass.

Across from the bottom of Cape Cod only four miles distant lies the long narrow island of Martha's vineyard. At its eastern end is Edgartown with its fine harbor. Here for the first time the New York Yacht Club will lie at anchor this summer instead of Vineyard Haven on Martha's Vineyard.

Mrs. Thomas H. Garrett is in her summer house there, late in the season. Mr. and Mrs. Rensselaer W. Lee and their children will visit her. They have been spending a year abroad and their children are in school in Switzerland.

Mrs. Robert Perkins Brown, another daughter of Mrs. Garrett, and her children are occupying their interesting old estate in Edgartown, acquired last summer.

Mrs. Charles W. Moore has leased the Johnson cottage on Starbuck's Neck at the end of Water street and is now in Edgartown for the summer season. Her daughter, Miss Frances W. Moore, is with her.

Firmin Desloge reached Nantucket Friday, June 19, and is in his spacious summer residence, No. 43 Cliff road, for the entire season. Mrs. Desloge and her son, Theadore Desloge, sailed Thursday from New York for Norway and Sweden. They will join Mr. Desloge in August. As yet no other St. Louis families have reached Nantucket.

This year the Howard Gambrill family of St. Louis are due to assemble for the first time in several years. One by one all are to converge on the New Ocean House at Swampscott, Mass., some time around July 4. This resort, near Boston, is popular with the Gatch family of St. Louis, and last summer was visited by Mr. and Mrs. Albert M. Keller.

sig; Mrs. Orrin Sage Wightman Jr. and Miss Gertrude Grove and Miss Elise White and Mrs. Parker T. Finch, walking in pairs. The bridesmaids were in blue mousseline de soie, made with colonial off-shouder necklines, puffed sleeves, and long skirts, the train continuing from fullness at the back. The contrasting chartreuse was used in velvet sashes which had streamers to the floor, and in trimming their shallow-crowned blue mousseline hats with pleated ruffle brims. The same color note was repeated in their unusual bouquets of chartreuse gladioli. The blossoms were removed from the stems and showered over the front of their gowns with matching ribbon. In Mrs. Gredneaire's costume the colors were reversed. Her gown and hat were chartreuse, with trimmings of delphinium blue, and she carried an armful of delphinium.

Duncan I. Meier, Jr., was best man, and another brother, Frederick Meier; Orrin Sage Wightman, Jr., Arthur S. Bland, Jr., Charlton Gunter, Stokely M. Caudle Jr., the bride's brother, Austin, Tex., and Edward Skae and William Joy, both of Detroit, ushers.

The bride was escorted to the altar on the arm of her father, and wore an imported gown of white net, its low, square-neck bodice with long tight sleeves puffed at the shoulder ending in a high waistline from which the long full skirt fell into a double train. The wedding veil, cut from an immense circle of tulle, was worn from a wreath of lilies of the valley, leaving her head uncovered, and fell to the floor all around. Beneath it she carried lilies of the valley.

The mothers of both bride and bridegroom were in blue. Mrs. Caudle's dress was pale sky blue chiffon, with which she wore a short full jacket designed with graceful sleeves, and a blue baku straw hat trimmed with chiffon, and a corsage of pink and white orchids. Mrs. Meier was in peasant blue marquisette, adorned with flowers of the material, and a leghorn hat with blue velvet trimming.

Out-of-town guests included Mrs. Caudle's sister, Mrs. Stephen Thompson of Dallas, Tex.

After the ceremony supper was served to the families and wedding party at the Caudle home. Mr. and Mrs. Meier will sail from New York for a cruise, at the end of which they will occupy the Huntleigh Village home of his parents during their absence in Harbor Point, where they have a summer place. They plan to leave here about July 4.

The bride is a graduate of Mary Institute, and after a year at Gulf Park College, Gulfport, Miss., went to study in the New York atelier of the School of Fine and Applied Arts. Later she studied in the Paris atelier of the same school. Mr. Meier attended Country Day School and was graduated from the Northwood School for Boys at Lake Placid, N. Y., entering Yale as a member of the class of 1936. He is a member of the University Club.

P. J. Von Weller Will Wed Washington Girl

WASHINGTON, June 27.

MR. AND MRS. WALLACE LINDSEY of Alexandria, Va., have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Elizabeth Deane Lindsey, and Philip Joseph von Weller, 3658 West Pine boulevard, St. Louis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold John von Weller of Albany, Ga.

Miss Lindsey, whose mother was the late Mrs. Lisa Anderson Lindsey, was graduated from St. Agnes Episcopal School and later attended William and Mary College. Mr. von Weller was graduated from the Georgia Institute of Technology and Randolph Flying Field.

The wedding will take place early in September. Miss Lindsey, who has been in Chicago for the past year, will return to her home in August.

Helen McFarland Is Married

THE wedding of Miss Helen C. McFarland, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John D. McFarland, 3814 De Tonty street, and Robert M. MacDonald, son of Mrs. Katherine MacDonald of Boston, took place yesterday morning at 11 o'clock in the parlor of the Church of the Unity. The Rev. George R. Dodson read the service before the mantelpiece, which was decorated with greenery, white gladioli, larkspur and lilies. The ceremony was followed by a wedding breakfast at the Park Plaza for the two families.

Mr. McFarland gave his daughter in marriage. She wore an afternoon dress of pink chiffon, trimmed with Valenciennes lace, a large white baku hat, white slippers and a corsage of gardenias and lilies of the valley. Mrs. Howard Sproull of Cincinnati, as matron of honor, was in an afternoon ensemble of an ashes-of-roses shade of crepe with the same shade lace blouse. She wore a white toko hat, white slippers and a corsage of gardenias.

Warren Clark of Burlington, Ia., was Mr. MacDonald's best man. Mrs. Clark and Mr. Sproull also attended the wedding.

Mr. MacDonald and his bride will tour the New England states on their honeymoon, after which they will make their home in Birmingham, Ala.

The bride is a graduate of Washington University and a member of Pi Beta Phi sorority. Mr. MacDonald was graduated from Dartmouth College and is a member of Delta Tau Delta fraternity.

Wright-Van Studdiford Wedding in Garden

MISS KATHRYN ELIZABETH VAN STUDDIFORD, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Van Studdiford of Grandview Farm, Warrenton, Mo., became the bride of Homer Lee Wright, son of Prof. and Mrs. Frank L. Wright, 707 North Forest avenue, Webster Groves, yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock in the garden of the Van Studdiford home. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. Loren M. Edwards of the Grace Methodist Episcopal Church, assisted by the Rev. R. N. Roberts of Jonesburg, Mo.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She was gowned in white lace fashioned on empire lines with a tulle veil held in place by a braided band of tulle and pearls, and carried a bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley.

Attendants were: Miss Mary Lee Aderson of St. Louis, maid of honor; Miss Elizabeth Van Studdiford and Miss Jean Nan Ness of Jonesburg, cousins of the bride, bridesmaids; E. H. Tenney of Webster Groves, best man, and Frank and Evan Wright, brother of the bridegroom, ushers.

Following a brief honeymoon, Mr. Wright and his bride will live at 623 Fairview avenue, Webster Groves.

Mrs. Wright attended Central College at Fayette, and was graduated from the University of Missouri. She has been teaching in Wellston High School. She is the great-granddaughter of the late Dr. and Mrs. Henry Van Studdiford, early St. Louisans.

Mr. Wright is a graduate of Washington University and a member of Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity. He also has been teaching at Wellston High School. Prof. Wright is head of the Department of Education at Washington University.

Clark Wilson Weds Lorraine Gilder

MISS LORRAINE ESTELLE GILDER, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward A. Gilder of Durant, Ok., was married yesterday afternoon at 5 o'clock to Clark De Witt Wilson, son of Mrs. Myra Weaver, 1957 Alfred avenue.

The ceremony was performed at the Second Baptist Church by the Rev. Dr. George Tolley, and was followed by a reception for 75 guests at the home of Mrs. Walter Krenning, 7534 Westmoreland drive. The bride is a sister of Charles Gilder, who married Miss Anna Lou Krenning, and lives with his wife at the Krenning home.

The bride and Mrs. Charles Gilder, who was her sister's matron of honor, wore chiffon afternoon gowns, Mrs. Wilson in pink and Mrs. Gilder in blue, with wide leghorn hats. The bride's flowers were pink larkspur and the matron of honor carried blue delphinium. Sidney Wilson was his brother's best man.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilson will go to Chicago on their wedding trip and will occupy an apartment at Grand boulevard and Lafayette avenue on their return. The bride attended Southeastern University at Durant, and the bridegroom is an alumnus of Washington University.

WISCONSIN PAGEANT DEPICTS HISTORY OF PIONEER DAYS

Exhibition Is Part of Celebration of Centennial of Territory; Manufacturers' Fair Also.

MADISON, Wis., June 27.—One hundred years of Wisconsin history were retraced today as the State started celebrating the centennial of the establishment of Wisconsin Territory.

For a week this city will be host to visitors at a celebration promoted by Congress and the Legislature, and representing 10 months of preparation by almost 10,000 persons.

Camp Randall Field, scene of the University of Wisconsin's football games, has been converted into an amphitheater for a pageant dating 200 years before 1836, when President Andrew Jackson made Wisconsin a territory.

About the arena have been erected wigwams, log cabins, stockades and a reproduction of the State's first Capitol. The field house has been converted into an exposition hall where 150 manufacturers display their products. Twenty-two university departments have been allotted space for exhibits.

SOCIETY IN WEBSTER GROVES

THE marriage of Miss Erdwine Holekamp, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Julius R. Holekamp, 205 South Elm avenue, to Robert Brookes, son of Mrs. Robert M. Brookes of Chicago, Ill., took place last evening at 8:30 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents, the Rev. George M. Gibson of the First Congregational Church officiating. The ceremony took place in a bay window of the living room where ferns and palms were banked to form a background for baskets of Easter lilies.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore her mother's wedding gown of rose point lace made with a full bodice and tiered skirt, the last tier forming the train. It had a high neckline and full elbow length sleeves terminating in two deep ruffles. A wide satin girdle ended in a large bow at the back. Her tulle veil was held in place by a rose point lace cap and orange blossoms. Orange blossoms were also placed at the end of the train. Her shower bouquet was of white roses and lilies of the valley.

Miss Edith Wilson, maid of honor, was gowned in white lace made with an Eton jacket with starched lapels. It had a low V-neckline and the gown was form fitting to the knees where the skirt flared into a slight train. Her flowers were talisman roses, yellow daisies and baby's breath. Miss Ruth Holekamp, cousin of the bride, was bridesmaid. She wore a gown fashioned like that of the bride and carried a similar bouquet.

Bobby Holekamp of Gray Summit, Mo., nephew of the bride was ring bearer. He wore a yellow linen suit trimmed in Irish point lace.

James Brookes of Chicago, Ill., was best man for his brother. Walter G. Hall of Chicago was groomsman.

Mrs. Holekamp, mother of the bride, was gowned in navy blue chiffon over a flowered crepe slip. Her flowers were gardenias arranged in a shoulder corsage. Mrs. Brookes, mother of the bridegroom, wore a chiffon gown and a corsage of gardenias.

A reception for the relatives and close friends who were present at the wedding was held after the ceremony. After a honeymoon of several weeks spent in Wisconsin, Mr. Brookes and his bride will live in Chicago.

The bride attended Washington University where she became a member of Gamma Phi Beta sorority. Mr. Brookes is a graduate of Grinnell College.

LITTLE PRINCESS SETS STYLE

Hairdressing of Duke of York's Child Copied in England.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, June 27. — Princess Margaret Rose, 5-year-old daughter of the Duke of York, has become a juvenile fashion leader.

When she appeared with her hair dressed a new way experts proclaimed it "most artistic and practical for summer wear," and Mayfair mothers hurried to have their children's locks done in similar fashion. Princess Margaret's hair was combed straight from the parting to the ears where two large Pompadour curls hung. They were set in a semi-circle from her face to the cluster of curls at her neck.

39th Wedding Anniversary Dinner.

Mr. and Mrs. George E. Dyson, 1227 Bellevue avenue, Richmond Heights, celebrated the thirty-ninth anniversary of their wedding Tuesday evening with a dinner for friends at the Mark Twain Hotel.

Social Affairs In the Churches

MEDICAL missionary work in Presbyterian stations around the world is the center of interest to women of the St. Louis Presbyterial Missionary Society in their second annual Dollar Day, which will be observed Tuesday afternoon in the various Presbyterian churches. The committee in charge consists of Mrs. Leo J. Vogt, president of the St. Louis Presbyterial; Mrs. Leo A. McLean, Mrs. Samuel F. Burnet, Mrs. Oliver B. Henry and Mrs. George H. Owen. Some of the groups will engage in making garments and other supplies for the hospitals at Canada, Arizona and Foulassi, West Africa. Other groups will present programs which will inform the members as to what the doctors and nurses in Presbyterian medical centers on the mission fields are accomplishing.

At a later date the groups will meet jointly at the Second Presbyterian Church. Guests of honor at this meeting will be Miss Estelle M. Chambers of Tyler Place Presbyterian Church and Mrs. Bessie M. Nurminger of Guatemala. Miss Chambers has recently been appointed by the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions to serve as a nurse at the Presbyterian Hospital at Teheran, Persia, and will sail for Teheran early in September. Mrs. Nurminger has served as a nurse in the Presbyterian Hospital at Guatemala City for 14 years and will return there in August. The women of the missionary societies in the Presbytery of St. Louis have assumed the support of Miss Chambers and Mrs. Nurminger.

The Young People's Society of Pilgrim Evangelical Church will hold an excursion Thursday evening on the President. Arrangements are in charge of Charles Klein and Frank Holdener.

The Young Men's Sodality of Holy Rosary Parish will sponsor an excursion on the President Monday evening.

The Young People's League of Redeemer Evangelical Church, 6452 South Kingshighway avenue, will have a party on the President Thursday evening. Robert Fehlber and Robert Rawizza are the committee in charge.

The Young People's Club of St. Philip Neri Church will have an excursion on the President Thursday evening. Arrangements are in charge of Bernard McDonough, Robert Specking and Miss Leona Warnus.

The sewing circle of the Ladies' Aid Society of the United Hebrew Temple will give a party this evening on the lawn of the home of Mrs. William Stecks, 5904 Cates avenue.

The ceremony was followed by a reception at the home of the bride's parents.

The bride was gowned in white satin made on princesse style with insets of Spanish lace in the sleeves and edging the train. Her hip length veil was arranged from a halo cap trimmed with orange blossoms, and she carried an arm bouquet of lilies of the valley and orchids. The bridesmaids were in powder blue mousseline de soie over taffeta with matching net turbans and they carried talisman

Ensign White attended the University of Missouri, where he became a member of Phi Gamma Delta fraternity and was graduated from the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis in 1934. His twin sister, Miss Melba White, teaches at the Overland School here.

McColgan-Bornman Wedding.

Miss Allie Mae Bornman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Fitzclarence Bornman, was married Wednesday, June 24, in the First Methodist Church of Clarksdale, Miss., at 7:30 p. m., to the Rev. Mr. William Lewis McColgan, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of St. Charles. The bride has been a member of the music faculty of Lindenwood College for the last year. She was graduated with the degree Bachelor of Music from Lindenwood in 1935, and in that season was May Queen besides being president of her class.

SWEDES HONOR MRS. OWEN

She Is Initiated Into Ancient Guild of St. Canute.

By the Associated Press.

MALMO, Sweden, June 27.—Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen, American minister in Copenhagen, has been initiated into the 800-year-old guild of St. Canute with Crown Princess Louise of Sweden.

When the two had spoken the ancient guild promises, they were invested with silver neck chains and toasted from a silver cup presented to the guild in 1608 by King Frederick II. The guild was founded in memory of the saint-king, Canute the Holy, and has numbered among its members several kings of Sweden and Denmark.

Parties and Meetings

THE Loretto Foundation of Webster College announces that the Rev. Daniel A. Lord, S. J., editor of the "Queen's Work," St. Louis, will speak on "What I Saw in Europe," at a literary garden party, to be held on the campus of Webster College Tuesday evening, July 7, at 7:45 o'clock. A short musical program will precede the talk. Refreshment will be served following it.

This will be Father Lord's first account of his European trip.

This third literary-musicale of the season marks the close of the fifth annual series of parties sponsored for the benefit of Webster College by the Loretto Foundation.

Dr. Henry J. Gerling, superintendent of St. Louis schools, will deliver the principal address at a Washington University summer session dinner Tuesday evening, in the Lee Hall Commons on the campus. Chancellor George R. Throop will preside. The dinner, which has been arranged by the department of education, will begin at 7 p. m.

Phi Omega Kappa sorority has elected the following officers: Miss Pearl Sakowsky, president; Miss Janette Weiner, vice-president; Miss Melba Kohn, recording secretary; Miss Frances Rosenthal, corresponding secretary; Miss Marie Galasy, treasurer, and Miss Sylvia Stern, pledge mistress.

Mrs. D. Seidel will sponsor an all-day boat excursion on the President Tuesday for the benefit of the Jewish Orphans' Home, the Old Folk's Home, and Haddassah.

The Jovials, a club of 16 girls, will celebrate its third anniversary tonight at Meadow Brook Country Club.

The St. Louis Mothers' Club of the Omega Chapter of Phi Sigma Sigma elected the following officers at its last meeting: Mrs. M. Glickman, president; Mrs. J. Blocker, vice-president; Mrs. L. Hemple, recording secretary; Mrs. M. Reichman, corresponding secretary; Mrs. J. M. Liebowits, treasurer; Mrs. S. M. Sterneck and Mrs. S. Bensinger, trustees.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. Fosterman, 3917 Sullivan avenue, were given a surprise dinner party Tuesday evening by their children, Mr. and Mrs. Harry B. Fosterman, and Leo T. Fosterman, in honor of their golden wedding anniversary.

Miss Armella Lierman, president of Kappa Chapter of Sigma Epsilon national sorority, entertained the members at a luncheon at her home yesterday.

The National Convention of Phi Tau Omega Sorority was held at the Coronado Hotel Saturday and Sunday, June 20 and 21.

Miss Alvera Haenel of the Gamma Chapter of St. Louis was re-elected national president. The other national officers elected were Miss Thelma Austin, vice-president; Miss Evelyn Lindblom, secretary; Miss Marge Lally, treasurer; Miss Emeline Nassif, scribe; Miss Aurelia Voelkert, national organizer and Miss Margaret Corrigan, sergeant-at-arms.

Delegates were present from all chapters with the exception of the Phi Chapter of Baltimore, Maryland, which chapter was installed by Miss Haenel, national president, two weeks before the convention.

Delegates remaining in St. Louis for a few days were entertained Monday evening by the Gamma Chapter of St. Louis and the Beta Chapter of East St. Louis with a dinner and bridge at Norwood Hills Country Club, and Tuesday evening by the Alpha Chapter of St. Louis with a theater party at the Municipal Opera.

Sigma chapter of Sigma Lambda Chi sorority will meet Tuesday night at 8 o'clock at the home of Miss Eleanore Harnecker, 5451 Bates avenue.

The Y. W. H. A. and the Y. M. H. A. are jointly sponsoring an excursion on the Steamer J. S. Wednesday night, when the Streckfus steamer will stop here for a single moonlight dance cruise. Gilbert Harris is general chairman of the arrangements committee.

The Baden Republican Club will hold an excursion outing and dance Friday night on the President. Mrs. Irene Fundeiss, Harry Parker and Mrs. Edna Kotterman comprise the committee on arrangements.

The Women's Patriotic Council of St. Louis will hold an outing party Wednesday night on the St. Paul. Mrs. Anna McVey is in charge.

Bethel No. 13, Job's Daughters, will hold an excursion dance Wednesday night on the President. Arrangements are in charge of Mrs. Mildred B. Westerman, Miss Mary Beyer, Miss Margaret Maher and Miss Edith Smith.

Units No. 16, 48 and 75, National Union for Social Justice, will participate in an outing Wednesday night on the St. Paul. Edgar Creech and Joseph A. Stamm are in charge.

Mrs. Walter Dittrich, founder of the St. Louis Beta Phi Chapter, Lambda Sigma Alpho Sorority, was elected national president at the annual convention held at the Jefferson Hotel, Saturday and Sunday, June 20 and June 21. Mrs. Dittrich, formerly Miss Elsa Winkler, is a graduate of Washington University. Mrs. Dittrich has been active in national affairs of the sorority, having served as vice-president last year. She was cofounder of the East St. Louis Chapter.

Beta Phi Chapter held its election at the June meeting. The following were chosen: Miss Edna Milius, president; Miss Margaret Kierer, vice-president; Miss Irma Klingel, treasurer; Miss Sarah Bowler, recording secretary; Miss Ann Edinger, corresponding secretary, and Miss Valeda Wetterau, sentinel. Miss Helen Kierer was appointed reporter.

Epsilon Omicron Chapter of the Delta Theta Tau fraternity will meet at the Forest Park Hotel tomorrow. Mrs. Virginia Killeen, delegate to the national convention held in St. Louis a week ago, will give her report.

Epsilon Chapter of Sigma Kappa Pi, national sorority, held a meeting last Sunday at Hotel Coronado at which the following girls received their degrees: Miss Ruth Bassler, Miss Thelma Novell, Miss Helen Ruzicka, Miss Frances Youngbluth, Miss Ann and Miss Toni Zib. Miss Loretta C. Murray, national president, conducted the ceremony, and was assisted by Miss Edna Mae Kalleman, both of Chicago. Tea was served.

Iota Chapter of Lamba Gamma Phi sorority gave a dinner dance at Meadowbrook Country Club Thursday evening June 18. It is planning a hay ride for members and escorts. The new officers are Miss Dorothy Krieger, president; Miss Jane Weismantle, vice-president; Miss June Kite, corresponding secretary; Miss Corinne Walters, recording secretary; Miss Betty Jean Kennedy, treasurer; Miss Mary Steele, sergeant-at-arms.

Mr. and Mrs. Julius Pankewer, 721 Interdrive, University City, will be at home to their relatives and friends this evening from 7 to 11 o'clock to celebrate their silver wedding anniversary.

Audree Peters and Dr. Hobbs Wed

THE wedding of Miss Audree Peters, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Peters Jr., 530 Donne avenue, and Dr. George Jerome Hobbs, East St. Louis, took place at St. Joseph's Church, Clayton, yesterday morning, at 9 o'clock, with the Rev. Victor Stepka officiating.

Miss Dorothy Wartig attended the bride as maid of honor and Miss Margaret Hoban and Miss Gladys Scharinghaus were bridesmaids. The bride's brother, Charles Peters III, flew here from New York to be best man for Dr. Hobbs. The ushers were Robert Cowie, John Warden, Louis Van Dan Elzen and Thomas Marlen.

The altar was banked with regal lilies, white gladioli and other white early summer flowers. The chancel was decorated with palms and ferns and two large wicker baskets of white blossoms were arranged at each side of the entrance to the chancel. White tapers illuminated the altar and the chancel.

Mr. Peters gave his daughter in marriage. She wore a gown of ivory toned satin designed simply on princess lines over which there was a coat of the satin combined with chantilly lace that fell into a long train. The coat was fashioned with a Queen Anne collar of the lace and full puffed sleeves to the elbow, where a long tight cuff pointed over the hand. Her veil was finger-tip length and was held in place by pearls. She carried a shower bouquet of white snapdragon.

The maid of honor wore apple green mousseline de soie over matching taffeta, a redingote model, with apple green grosgrain ribbon edging the bodice and slashed skirt. The bridesmaids wore frocks of shell pink mousseline de soie similarly designed. Their hats were of net to match their gowns and they carried pink snapdragon and blue delphinium. Mrs. Peters wore a gown of violet lace and a corsage of purple orchids.

Immediately after the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served for the immediate families and the bridal party in the Italian room of the Forest Park Hotel. The same evening a large reception was held in the ballroom of the hotel. The receiving party stood before a bower of huckleberry foliage and flowers.

The bride gave her attendants rhinestone clips and the best man and ushers received monogrammed tie holders and collar pins. Dr. Hobbs gave his bride a diamond dinner ring.

Guests, other than those from St. Louis, included the bride's uncles and aunts, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Seekins, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Mueller and their son and daughter, Russell and Arline Mueller, Los Angeles, Cal., Mr. and Mrs. George Cashel, Mr. and Mrs. William Heyward and Miss Lillian Heyward, Chicago; Dr. and Mrs. H. F. Martin, Lexington, Tenn.; Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Grace, Minneapolis, Minn., and Mr. and Mrs. James Ewing and Miss Janet Ewing, Kansas City.

Dr. and Mrs. Hobbs will spend the honeymoon in Bermuda and on their return will visit her brother in New York, before going to Lake George, Lake Champlain and other Eastern resorts. They will be at home after Aug. 15, at the Jett Apartments, East St. Louis.

News of St. Louis Visitors in Paris

PARIS, June 14.

THE Marchese and Marchesa Antonio Mattei have left Paris after a short visit and gone to London, but return here in a fortnight. Before her marriage the Marchesa Mattei was Miss Georgette Madill of St. Louis.

Students of the Beaux Arts gave a gala fete in the courtyard gardens of the school last night which was attended by President Lebrun. Stars of French stage and screen entertained and included Josephine Baker, St. Granier (who is taking the part of Satan in the Passion Play now being given in Notre Dame square). Among the St. Louisans noted were: Mrs. Louella Sayman and her daughter and Mrs. Rufus Lackland Taylor.

Miss Mary Howard Fentress of St. Louis is now occupying her new apartment on the Rue Bonaparte.

The engagement was announced this week of Mademoiselle Jacqueline de Clercq, daughter of Comte and Comtesse Guillaume de Clercq, and Baron Christian de Hennezel d'Ormois. Mademoiselle de Clercq is a granddaughter of Comte and Comtesse Louis de Clercq of Neuilly who are related to the La Beaume family of St. Louis.

Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Dean Jay were among the guests the other evening at a dinner party given by Clair G. Irish in honor of the Most Rev. James de Wolfe Perry.

Mrs. Louella Sayman has returned to her Paris apartment after a visit in Germany.

Miss Zelina de Macklot Thompson and Miss Adelaide Mahaffey attended the Paris Fair last week. Miss Mahaffey is expecting to join her father, Birch O. Mahaffey, and sister, Miss Katherine, for a European tour this summer after the school term in Paris.

A second performance of "The Whole Town's Talking," play by John Emerson and Anita Loos, was given this week at the American Students' and Artists' Center on the boulevard Raspaid before the Most Rev. James de Wolfe Perry, presiding bishop of the Protestant Episcopal Church in America. Miss Alice Mizner of St. Louis was in the cast.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Goldstone and their sons, Frank and Edward, of St. Louis were passengers on the United States liner, Washington, which arrived at Havre Thursday. They are having a summer vacation trip on the continent.

Bock and their son, John Bock, Ft. Madison, Ia.

ROBERT W. SERVICE WRITES NEW BALLADS FOR THE PARTY

"Mother, Don't Stab Father With the Breadknife," Sample Line From "Bathtub" Series.

By the Associated Press.

LANCIEUX, France, June 27.—Robert W. Service reveals that he has been working on ballads to enliven parties formerly entertained by his "Shooting of Dan McGrew."

"I hope, in spite of my profound aversion to work," he said, "to finish and publish this fall my Bathtub Ballads."

A sample chorus goes like this:

"Please, Mother, don't stab Father with the breadknife;
Remember 'twas a gift when you were wed.
But if you must stab Father with the breadknife,
Please, Mother, use another for the bread."

Service, now 62, says he is "cultivating a capacity for idleness."

"I live largely in the open air, swim, tramp, ride a motor bike, play the accordion, compose and sing my own songs and generally amuse myself," he said.

This he does either at his country home in the Brittany seacoast town of Lancieux, near St. Briuc, where he spends the summer; or on the Riviera, where he has a winter home at Nice, and often goes to Monte Carlo.

He has lived in France for nearly 25 years.

Service lives quietly with his wife and daughter.

German-American Press Club.

The German-American Press Club, central organization of German language societies, announced the election of a legislative committee at its last meeting, June 26, composed of Paul P. Hoegen, chairman, Carl Sievers, publicity, and Frank Hillig, secretary.

Fred J. Hoffmeister to Speak.

Fred J. Hoffmeister, former Circuit Judge, will speak on "The Value of Organization" before the Thirteenth Ward Republican Club at Rubicam Hall, Grand boulevard and Potomac street, at 8 p. m. Thursday.

Drummond-Davis Betrothal Announced

MR. AND MRS. RICHARD A. DAVIS, 4347 Forest Park boulevard, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Josephine Annette and Frederick Charles Drummond, son of Mrs. Mary Streuber Drummond, 7344 Melrose avenue.

Miss Davis attended Harris Teachers' College and was Torch Queen of the college in 1934. She is a member of Sigma Sigma Sigma sorority. Mr. Drummond received his education at the St. Louis University School of Commerce and Finance. The wedding will take place in the fall.

OLD TILBURY FORT FOR SALE

Structure Built by Henry VIII Said to Be Haunted.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LONDON, June 27.—The famed old Tilbury Fort, built in 1539 by Henry VIII on the Thames Estuary opposite Gravesend is for sale, complete with romance, history, moat and ghost. From the battlements, overlooking its 18 acres of ground, Queen Elizabeth bade farewell to her troops before they sailed to meet the Spanish armada. Sheep now graze over the area, while chickens pick their food along paths trodden by Kings.

Legend has it that the ghost of a woman, who appears in the dead of night, rattles chains. The Queen's bedroom may still be seen. In the sallyport, legend has it, condemned men were hanged from the colossal oak beam and then hoisted to the loft above, known as the dead house.

Text of Gov. Allred's Speech Nominating His Fellow Texan Garner, for Vice-Presidency

Describes "Cactus Jack" as Modern Personification of Old Hickory and President's Right Hand in Congress.

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, June 27.

FOLLOWING is the text of the address by Governor James V. Allred of Texas nominating Vice-President John N. Garner for another four-year term:

Mr. Chairman and my fellow Democrats:

Once more the Republican party of privilege seeks to regain a position of power. The American people are not going to stand for it. They are not only satisfied, they are well pleased with the job done under Democratic leadership. They believe in the sincerity of purpose of the President of the United States. They have felt and seen the result of his efforts in their behalf.

They know how his assurance of "greatest good to the greatest number of people" was no idle phrase-making. Their only regret is that the eight years during which he is to serve as President must be interrupted by the formality of giving him a vote of ratification and confidence.

"Three Long Years."

We have been hearing a lot about "three long years." I don't blame the Republican party for their expressed desire to change from "three blind mice" to "three long years." It has been so refreshing to the people of this country to have "three long years" of good Government after "three long eras" of the "see nothing, hear nothing, do nothing" Government with which this country was afflicted after our great war President Woodrow Wilson:

My fellow Democrats, during the "three long years" which have ensued from days of darkest depression to this good hour when happy days are really here again, we have reveled in the matchless leadership, the captivating charm, the radiant personality of Franklin D. Roosevelt. He has been the serene courageous commander, night and day, upon the vessel's deck, directing its course amidst the rocks and reefs, until now we have sighted sunshine and still waters.

The First Mate.

Throughout this stormy voyage the captain has had a first mate, one upon whom he has leaned heavily and who has never failed him. The American people, as passengers on the ship of state, are more than well pleased with both the captain and the first mate! By popular election in November they will again acclaim approval of the President and Vice-President of the United States! Already fitting tribute has been paid to our beloved President.

It now becomes my high honor, my privilege and pleasure to remind you of the life, the character and the ability of one of the greatest Vice-Presidents in our history. In keeping with the character of the man, the tribute I shall endeavor to pay to him will be simple and direct.

Not the least of the great principles upon which this Government was founded is equality of opportunity under popular government. Here in America, unlike the lands across the seas where "the accident of birth, not merit, shapes one's career," in the language of a former distinguished Governor of Texas, "our forefathers carved from the wilderness of the West a new republic, and with the blood of the American Revolution wrote forever into our country's traditions 'equal rights and equal opportunities to all.'"

Texas Pioneers.

Here the average man "to fame and fortune" unknown, born at the bottom of the ladder, need not remain there if his courage, his character and ability entitled him to climb. It has ever been a priceless heritage of the American people that from log cabins in the woods or sod huts of the prairies, or from tenements, through popular government, men could come to leadership and even to the presidency.

No character in all history better typifies the American spirit and tradition than he whom it is my privilege to nominate today. The story of his life reads like a novel. It is an inspiration and a challenge to American youth.

Mr. Chairman, a hundred years ago there came to the Lone Star State as brave and free a generation of men and women as God's sun has ever shone upon.

From everywhere they came—from Alabama and New Jersey, from Georgia and Pennsylvania, from the Carolinas and from New York State, from Tennessee and from Kentucky, from old Virginia and Massachusetts, from North and South alike, in crawling caravans of covered wagons, through trackless forests, across rivers and streams, and out on the broad plains and rolling prairies of the great Southwest—to build homes and lay foundations for the future state.

Born in Log Cabin.

One of these great families built a rude log cabin on beautiful Blossom Prairie near the Indian Territory in Red River County, Texas, where it had been ordained, unknown to them, should be born and reared a future Vice-President of the United States. It is significant that the Nances and the Garners, whose blood was blended in that humble log cabin, came to us from Virginia and Tennessee, the home of constitutional government and of Presidents; the states which likewise sent to Texas Sam Houston, Stephen F. Austin, Davy Crockett, Jim Bowie and others whose names shall be immortal.

In the veins of the little fellow born amidst the hardships of pioneer life in that rude log cabin, coursed the blood of colonial patriots of the American revolution and English nobility; yet one who has "walked with Kings nor lost the common touch."

The American people could not wish for a more worth while background than the humble boyhood of frontier life amongst the pines, the country schooling of readin', writin', and 'rithmetic in the good old fashioned American way, and the early urge of young manhood to "go West."

Journey to Uvalde.

On horseback he rode almost a thousand miles, through the black lands, across the trinity, the Brazos, the Colorado, past Austin and San Antonio to the ranch lands, the sage brush and the cactus of Uvalde County. There upon the great frontier he successfully engaged in business and entered the public service, first as County Judge, later as a member of the Legislature.

Thirty-four years ago he was elected to Congress from a Texas district geographically bigger than the State of New York. Modern writers have correctly likened him to Lincoln; and describin his first search for a boarding house, one has said: "He needed only a loaf of bread under each arm to suggest another Benjamin Franklin."

I shall not dwell upon his long career of distinguished service in the Congress where he became its outstanding authority upon taxation and later the nemesis of Republican Andrew Mellon's "soak the poor" tax scheme; where he displayed a legislative genius which led him inevitably to the Speakership; where men from every section of the country learned to love him as we do in Texas for his simplicity of habits, his utter disdain of formalities, his honest, conscientious, capable and wholesome approach to every problem.

"Homespun American."

When the country, grown tired of Republican misrule, threw off the shackles of the bosses and expressed an overwhelming desire for liberal leadership four years ago, it was but natural that they should avail themselves of the services of the greatest living authority on American law-making.

Faced with the necessity for action to clear away the debris of Republican mistakes and misrule, they demanded as a running mate for the leader of the Democratic ticket this new frontiersman, this determined homespun American, worthy of the finest traditions of Texas and the nation, this modern personification of Old Hickory and Sam Houston, this man of the common sense and honest judgement of Grover Cleveland, this valiant foe of privilege and plutocracy, chief exponent of middle class democracy, one whom the people instinctively trust.

That the choice was more than wise has been amply demonstrated in the achievements of the administration, the approval of the Chief Executive and the testimony of legions throughout the land.

President's Right Hand.

He has lifted the dignity of the Vice-President's office from a post, the principal duties of which were social and perfunctory, to one of transcendent importance in the administration. His ability, his uncanny judgment, his forthrightness, have made of him an indispensable member of the Cabinet, even though without portfolio. Unquestionably he has been the President's right hand in much of the legislation and relationships with the Congress. His sound horse sense, the general stability of his character, his service as speaker and as vice president have compelled the tribute of the nation. The country is now as proud of him as Texas has always been.

The name "Cactus Jack," affectionately given the Vice-President by his friends, is fully as meaningful as was Andrew Jackson's title, "Old Hickory."

The Vice-President of the United States is just as seasoned, rugged and individualistic as the giant cactus of the Southwest. This hardy plant is famed for its stamina, its durability and surprising power to bloom and flourish during drouth, depressions and hard times.

Republican F. F. F.

The Vice-President possesses an additional characteristic not common to the cactus. He can stand transplanting. He survived the blighting, deadening, "three long eras" of the Republican "F. F. F."—folly, fatuity and failure.

Throughout his long career he has kept his feet upon the ground. He has shunned social honor and acclaim, preferring rather to be the legislative work horse of this Administration.

Like the great Gen. Robert E. Lee, his name was not for sale. Throughout it all, he has remained modest, self-effacing, unpretentious, a natural leader of men.

Mr. Chairman and my friends, because his election will once more justify popular government, because he exemplifies American tradition, and because the welfare of this country requires his continued service, I am honored to present in nomination for the high office of Vice-President of the United States the name of our beloved John Nance Garner of Texas.

LEMKE'S CAMPAIGN PLANS

Chicago to Be Headquarters of New Union Party.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 27. — William Lemke of North Dakota, presidential candidate of the new Union party, said in an interview today he would begin his campaign in earnest next August. Lemke asserted he would "get on the ballot in practically every state."

"Where state laws make it difficult, different groups that have filed already have offered their support for our electors," he said. "In states where it is impossible to get on the ballot, we'll have sticker campaigns." Lemke said Chicago would be the party's headquarters. He will return to Chicago after July 4, he said.

HENRY B. PFLAGER TO HEAD Y. M. C. A. FUND COMMITTEE

To Have Charge of Advance Gifts Group; Held Same Post Last Year.

Henry B. Pflager, an attorney, has been appointed chairman of the advance gifts committee for the Y. M. C. A. Current Expense Campaign for 1937 which will be conducted next fall. He held the same position in last year's campaign.

Plfager is the son of Harry M. Pflager, former president of the Metropolitan Y. M. C. A. His interest in "Y" affairs dates from his participation in college "Y" activities at Princeton. Last year he was also chairman of the advance gifts committee in the Boy Scout campaign for funds.

SIAMESE CHILD KING BORED BY VOCATION

Prefers Bicycling and Roller Skating to Receiving Persons According to Rank.

By the Associated Press.

LAUSANNE, June 27.—They are teaching 10-year-old Ananda of Siam how to be King, but he doesn't like the lessons.

A delegation from the royal court of Bankok came to Lausanne on orders of Siam's Council of Regents to begin his youthful majesty's instruction in the elaborate ceremonies of the court.

The almond-eyed boy King let it be known, sources close to the household said, that he greatly prefers bicycling, roller skatinig and automobile riding to his arduous tutoring on how to receive persons according to their rank, on when to stand and when to sit, and on what to say and when to say it.

Besides taking his lessons in royal behavior, "the most illustrious of the royal house of Chakri" pursues general studies at a private school in Lausanne. He is taken there by a guard each day, usually clad in knickers and a pullover sweater.

Aptitude for Matematics.

He has displayed an aptitude for mathematics and mechanics and likes geography, his teachers say. He speaks English and French fairly well, in addition to his native tongue. His home work is supervised by a French tutor.

The King, whose health has been frail since birth, lives with his mother, Princess Mahidol, his older sister, Galyani and his brother Pumipal, 8, at the family villa, En Plein Vent.

The first change in his routine ordered by his precepters when the course in royal manners began was a session at 6:30 each evening at which he "receives" his mother, brother and sister, and sometimes his aunt, Princess Valaya.

He is visited frequently by members of the staff of the Siamese legation in Paris and other Siamese offcials in Europe. These he also "receives." Prince Bira of Siam, who has gained some fame in Europe as an automobile racer, is said to be his favorite caller.

Mother Guards His Health.

The young King is tentatively scheduled to return to Siam in November to go through the ceremony of "showing himself to the people," but his mother is vigorously opposed to the journey, believing it might affect his health adversely. She wants him to stay in Switzerland a year or two longer and then continue his education in England.

The Council of Regents is seeing to it that Ananda is brought up in the Buddhist faith. A recent rumor that his mother was embracing Christianity caused something of a furore in Bangkok and was quickly denied. It was explained the Princess, who as a girl lived for a time in America, attended Protestant services several times during that period, but always had been a Buddhist.

Ananda was proclaimed King after the abdication of his uncle, King Projadhipok, in 1934. Projadhipok, now living in England, has no children.

ST. CHARLES WPA PROPOSALS

City Given Choice Between Pool and Storm Sewers.

Works Progress Administration officials have given St. Charles a choice between construction of a $43,500 swimming pool and locker house in Blanchette Park and a $49,400 system of storm sewers.

Due to public pressure for the swimming pool, it was expected that the City Council and the Park Board would ask the WPA to build it. Work would begin in about six weeks, on completion of the current WPA improvements. St. Charles residents desiring to swim near home have had to go in the Missouri River or old stone quarries and there have been numerous drownings in recent years.

BUSSES TAKE OVER IN JOPLIN

Company to Abandon All Street Car, Interurban Service There.

By the Associated Press.

JOPLIN, Mo., June 27.—The Southwest Missouri Railroad Co., which formerly operated interurban cars from Carthage, Mo., to Picher, Ok., with branch lines to many district towns and street car service in several, announced today that it will abandon all street car service July 1, and all interurbans except from Galena, Kan., to Picher.

Car service from Webb City to Carthage was abandoned several months ago and busses substituted. Bus service also has been substituted on several Joplin street routes, but interurban service has been maintained from Webb City to Joplin and from Galena to Picher. Six new busses and two reconditioned ones will be added to the fleet now in operation.

CAN YOU MAKE A SUMMERY CHIFFON PIE?
Yes, indeed you can—in fact, you can make more than a dozen different kinds of Chiffon Pies with Knox Sparkling Gelatine. And, instead of baking the pie in the oven, you make a Graham Cracker Crust or a regular pie shell and put it in the refrigerator. A package of Knox Sparkling Gelatine will make pies (or other desserts or salads) on 4 different occasions, 6 servings each. Your grocer has it. Mrs. Knox
KNOX SPARKLING GELATINE
CHOCOLATE CHIFFON PIE
(One 9-inch pie)
1 envelope Knox Sparkling Gelatine
1/4 cup cold water 4 eggs 1/2 cup boiling water 1 cup sugar
6 level tablespoonfuls cocoa or 2 squares chocolate
1/4 teaspoonful salt 1 teaspoonful vanilla
Mix the cocoa or chocolate and boiling water until smooth. Pour cold water in bowl and sprinkle gelatine on top of water. Add to hot chocolate mixture and stir until dissolved. To this mixture add egg yolks, slightly beaten, one-half cup sugar, salt and vanilla. Cool, and when mixture begins to thicken, fold in stiffly beaten egg whites and the other one-half cup sugar. Fill pie shell and chill. Just before serving spread over pie a thin layer of whipped cream.
GRAHAM CRACKER PIE CRUST
(One crust for a 9-inch pie)
1 1/2 cups graham cracker crumbs 1/2 cup butter, scant 1/3 cup powdered sugar
Crush graham crackers and mix with butter and sugar. Pat mixture firmly into pie pan. Place pie pan in refrigerator or cold place. Allow to stand for several hours, then fill with the above pie mixture.
You Can Make a Quick Summery Dessert with KNOX JELL

$777,900 INDUSTRIAL INVESTMENT IN MAY

Chamber of Commerce Report on St. Louis District; Seven New Enterprises.

Industrial investments of $777,900 were added in the St. Louis industrial district during May, the Chamber of Commerce reported yesterday. The principal item of investment was a $550,000 contract by the Monsanto Chemical Co. for expansion of its power plant facilities at its establishment at Monsanto, Ill. Besides a structural additoin there will be two new boilers, with chain grate stokers and oher equipment.

The additional investments were made by seven new enterprises and in expansions by 14 existing concerns. They involved employment of 548 more workers and called for 37,500 square feet of new floor space and absorbing of 136,500 square feet of existing space.

Principal business barometer here for May, 1936, compared with May, 1935, were announced by the chamber as follows:

Building permits increased 2.17 per cent; debits to individual accounts 5.49 per cent; bank clearings increased 7.28 per cent; postoffice receipts decreased 4.45 per cent; local telephone calls decreased 2.57 per cent; industrial electricity supplied by the Union Electric Light & Power Co. to 199 identical customers increased 9.44 per cent; electric power produced for the St. Louis area by the Union Electric Light & Power Co. increased 6.28 per cent; industrial electricity supplied by the Laclede Power & Light Co. increased 16.27 per cent; water consumption increased 19.12 per cent; industrial gas consumption increased 18.09 per cent; revenue street car and bus passengers increased 5.34 per cent on the lines of the St. Louis Public Service Co. and the People's Motorbus Co. combined; value of milk production decreased 13.88 per cent; revenue cars handled by the Terminal Railroad Association increased 20.77 per cent; barge line tonnage increased 31.39 per cent.

Department store sales of the Eighth Federal Reserve District increased 10 per cent in May, 1936, compared to May, 1935.

PRESIDENT OF LIBERIA WELCOMES U. S. NEGROES

Says Republic Will Always Be Asylum for Those of African Descent.

By the Associated Press.

MONROVIA, Liberia, June 28.—President Edwin Barclay has formally denied reports that he is opposed to the movement in America for sending more Negroes to Liberia for colonization.

"This republic is and will always be an asylum for those of African descent, provided they are not opportunists or political agitators," he said.

There is a special demand, the president explained, for skilled artisans, trained farmers, business men with capital, and young physicians who are willing to go into the interior.

His statements were prompted by inquiries from several societies, including one from Chicago, which seeks to "return people of African descent to their motherland, Africa."

Two officials of the Chicago organization, Mrs. M. M. L. Gordon, president, and Miss Ethel Waddell, secretary, wrote to President Barclay, who has replied that Liberia definitely favors the repatriation of Negroes from the United States.

He added, however, that since Liberia is self-governing, he would take a definite position as regards the entrance of organized groups which might make the country a base for international antagonisms.

Inquiries also were prompted by the action of the Virginia legislature in memorializing Congress to permit the colonization of 40,000 American Negroes who petitioned President Roosevelt for Government aid in migrating to Liberia.

RAIL WORKERS' SECRET BALLOT

Six Crafts of Burlington Road Reject Affiliation of A. F. of L.

By the Associated Press.

LINCOLN, Neb., June 27.—H. L. Creviston, secretary-treasurer of the Mechanical Department Association of Birlington Railway Employes here, announced today the result of a secret ballot taken among Burlington workers since the the first of June disclosed the six crafts in the organization rejected affiliation with the American Federation of Labor. The vote included the entire Burlington Railroad, Crevison asserted.

The vote, Creviston said, was closest among the boilermakers. In addition to the six crafts, one class of workers—the coach cleaners—voted to affiliate with the M. D. A., while another class—the laborers—accepted affiliation with the A. F. of L.

Will of Mrs. Emma Seele.

The will of Mrs. Emma Seele, widow of Herman Seele, filed in Probate Court yesterday, left the bulk of her estate, about $4000, in equal shares to the Lutheran Orphans' Home, Des Peres, St. Louis County; the Lutheran Altenheim, 8721 Halls Ferry road, and Grace Evangelical Lutheran Church, 3117 St. Louis avenue. Wilhelm Bode, 1823 Laflin street, for whom she had been housekeeper for 16 years, was named executor. Mrs. Seele, 78 years old, died last Tuesday. Her husband died in 1912.

GRAY SUMMIT HIKING TRAIL BEING PLANNED

Would Start at Kirkwood and Have Branches—Other Paths Considered.

Construction of a hiking trail paralleling Highway 66 from the Kirkwood city limits to Gray Summit is being planned by the Missouri Walk-Ways Association. Branch trails along the route also are being considered.

Ralph E. Mooney, president of the association, which is sponsored by the Community Council, said his organization would co-operate with the Henry Shaw Garden-Way Association in developing the trail. Actual construction would be under direction of the State Highway Department and the National Park Service.

If the plan is approved, the footpath will be constructed far enough away from the highway to insure safety for hikers, Mooney said. Three branch trails are planned: one turning off at Allenton and leading to the Rankin tract, another at the Big River, which would lead over the hills to Washington Park and which would connect with Lemay Ferry road, and a third leading from Eureka to Glencoe, connecting with Highway 50 and with Wild Horse Creek road and ending at Babler State Park.

Mooney said increasing numbers of hikers have been using the Nicholas Bell trail in Forest Park, recently completed under auspices of the association. But many hikers and nature-lovers want longer trails leading through the Ozark foothills, he asserted.

Plans for several trails have already been completed, Mooney continued. One will be in the Cuivre River recreation area, which is a 5000-acre tract near Troy, Mo. A camp planned for the area is expected to be designated as the headquarters of the Walk-Ways Association, he said.

Another trail would lead from Creve Coeur Lake to the waterworks on the Missouri River and then to Babler State Park. It is also planned to have a trail leading down the Mississippi River to Jefferson Barracks and back over the River des Peres right-of-way to Forest Park.

All trails will be equipped at intervals with facilities for cooking lunches. As longer walk-ways are developed, hotel facilities will be provided by farmers along the route.

FALLING OFF IN IMPORTS FROM POLAND IS SHOWN

First Four Months of Year Show Contradiction From Year Ago.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 27.—Inability of the Polish Government to meet payments in dollars on its bonds has brought forward again the old question of international trade and its importance in the financial picture.

The United States Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce shows that during 1935 this country imported from Poland and Danzig a total of $9,811,312 in merchandise compared with $5,648,362 during 1934, a substantial increase. But for the four months through April of this year the imports from Poland dropped to $2,677,000 compared with $3,815,000 for the same months in the previous year. The month of April alone shows the same ratio, $944,000 in April, 1936, against $1,178,000 a year before. If the United States purchased more from Poland, it is stated by international traders, the latter should be able to utilize the dollar exchange to meet interest and principal payments on its dollar bonds. Many countries today are meeting bond payments in blocked currency, which means the money of account of that country is held to the credit of the bond owner until goods are exported to make dollar exchange available.

New York Still Largest City, London 2d, Tokio 3d

Japanese Capital, Overtaking Berlin, Chicago, Paris, Moscow, Seen as World's Most Populous by 1953.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 27. — New York now has 7,363,624 inhabitants and still is far in front as the world's largest city.

New York and London, which have been one-two for years, and somewhat undecided at times as to which is the larger because of differing methods of computing the city proper and the metropolitan territory, probably will remain in that relative position the next 20 years and then they will have to look out for Tokio and Shanghai which are advancing rapidly on the other side of the world.

The estimate of 7,363,624 for New York's 1936 population was made by the Health Department's bureau of records, using the new conservative methods of computation of the Federal Bureau of Census. Under the old method the figure would have been 7,722,712, by applying the average annual increase of population shown in the 10 years between the taking of the Federal census.

Jump in Ten Years.

The population of New York jumped from 5,683,765 in 1920 to 6,962,305 in 1930, an average of 127,854 a year. In its new estimate the New York bureau cut the indicated increase virtually in half for the first six years of the present decade because of a sharp decline in birth rate, the drying up of overseas immigration and "marked changes in the growth of the movement of the city's population."

The metropolitan population of New York recently was estimated at more than 12,000,000, with the district embracing the five boroughs of New York City proper, plus adjoining populous territories on Long Island, in Westchester County to the north, and in New Jersey and Connecticut.

The Regional Plan Association estimated that this metropolitan district would continue to grow until the year 2000, but that by 1950, with a count of 16,379,000, it would be close to its ultimate population.

Comparison With London.

How does New York compare with London and with other great centers of population? There really are three Londons. First the "city," small in territory and population. Then the county with 4,298,000 inhabitants. Finally there is the London of the metropolitan police district, with a population of 8,208,218. This includes London County and the outlying areas policed from London, a territory corresponding roughly to New York's metropolitan district.

The figure of 8,000,000 plus usually is given as London's official population, and it does top the figure of 7,363,624 for New York's five boroughs, but in turn it is only two-thirds of the 12,000,000 of New York's larger trading territory.

Dark Horse in the Race.

Regardless of how London and New York are placed on the list, a dark horse in the race has come forward in the East. Tokio now definitely is in third place with 5,486,200. A couple of years ago it annexed a lot of adjacent territory to go ahead of Berlin, Chicago, Paris and Moscow.

Charles Richet of Paris, international authority on population, predicts that by 1944 Tokio will contain 7,100,000 persons, and that by 1953 it will become the world's largest city with 10,536,000 souls against New York's 10,518,000 and Shanghai's 9,148,000.

Prof. Richet bases his predictions on the rapid expansion of the peoples of Asia. In 100 years, he says, "the yellow races will have become so numerous that Asia will no longer possess either the economic or physical means to contain them," and he adds that "Europe must develop greater fecundity if it is to be saved."

Berlin, Paris, Moscow.

Greater Berlin has a population of 4,236,415.

Paris counts 2,891,020 within the walls, and 3,783,000 with its outlying suburbs.

Moscow has grown tremendously since it became the Soviet capital and now has a population of 3,572,000.

Chicago had an estimated population of 3,524,700 in 1934 and a metropolitan count of approximately 5,000,000.

Shanghai rates 4,490,762, while Leningrad has about 3,000,000 and is making plans to care for a half million more.

The New York Bureau's report on Father Knickerbocker's increase reveals the same population shift that was noted in the 1930 Federal census, a movement outward from Manhattan Island, once the original New York.

Manhattan Losing.

Manhattan is steadily losing out as a residential territory and now has a million fewer people than Brooklyn. The big movement, however, is going into Queens, the city's largest borough, which covers a huge sweep of territory on Long Island.

By boroughs, New York's population increase in six years is shown, first for 1930, then 1936, and the increase, as follows: Manhattan, 1,859,570, 7,729,533, *130,037; Bronx, 1,275,134, 1,441,532, 166,398; Brooklyn, 2,570,440, 2,739,585, 169,145; Queens, 1,090,428, 1,280,805, 190,377; Richmond, 159,120, 172,169, 13,049. *Decrease.

UNITED CHARITIES CEDAR HILL CAMP TO OPEN TOMORROW

Thirty Girls From Congested Areas of Downtown Section Will Attend.

A summer camp at Cedar Hill, Mo., operated by the Neighborhood Association, a United Charities settlement, will be opened tomorrow with 30 girls from the congested areas of the downtown section of the city, J. August Wold, director of the association, said yesterday. During the remainder of the month, groups of girls ranging from 9 to 20 years old, will be taken to the camp for periods of one week or longer.

The camp program includes nature study, hiking and water sports. During August the camp will be turned over to boys under the supervision of adult leaders.

Furniture Sales Heavier.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 27.—With the latest survey today indicating retail furniture sales throughout the country in May were 19 per cent above last year and most recent manufacturers' figures showing orders 37 per cent greater in volume, the furniture industry approaches the big mid-summer shows at the best level of business in five or six years.

GAMBLING WARRANTS FOR 13 ON EAST SIDE

Defendants Arrested by St. Clair Deputies in Slot Machine 'Cleanup.'

Warrants charging violation of the Illinois gambling laws by possession of slot machines were issued yesterday by Justice of the Peace Walter W. Hinderberger of East St. Louis against 13 persons arrested by deputy sheriffs in a continuation of the mild seasonal "cleanup" resulting from the demands of John B. Gray of East St. Louis, a member of the St. Clair County Board of Supervisors.

Five of those arrested operated taverns and restaurants within a block of the East St. Louis police station. The East St. Louis police have taken little part in the "drive." They have seized, since the Sheriff's office became active last Monday, three slot and three pin ball machines, but have made no arrests and have applied for no warrants.

Eighteen slot machines were seized by deputies in raids Friday night. All were uncovered in defiance of orders to keep such machines covered and locked in their metal cases.

Those named in the warrants and their businesses were: Mrs. Georgiana Page, restaurant, 400 East Broadway; William Pickett, tavern, 216 East Broadway; Pete Zogorafos, restaurant, 300 East Broadway; Andrew Regis, restaurant, 336 East Broadway; and William Skidas, restaurant, 321 East Broadway, all of East St. Louis; Dominick Messina, H. L. Muskopf, Louis Stepping, Raymond Smith, all tavern proprietors in North Dupo; Joseph Hawson and Lloyd McLain, Negro, both Cahokia tavern proprietors; Joseph Reiss and Herbert Hannebrink, both of St. Louis, who were arrested in East St. Louis in an automobile with two slot machines.

SPEAKING BIDS TO CANDIDATES

Five Congressional Aspiriants Invited to Peace Meeting.

Five candidates for the Democratic and Republican nominations for Congress in the Twelfth St. Louis District have been invited to speak on legislation to help insure world peace at a meeting at Bellevue School, 1027 Bellevue avenue, Richmond Heights, Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock. The meeting is sponsored by the peace action committee of Greater St. Louis, of which Dale R. Johnson is chairman.

The speakers will be A. J. Pickett, Prosecuting Attorney C. Arthur Anderson of St. Louis County and Congressman James R. Claiborne, Democrats, and Harry P. Rosecan, former Prosecuting Attorney of St. Louis, and Harry W. Castlen, former Prosecuting Attorney of St. Louis County, Republicans.

JOBS FOR 11 HOMELESS BOYS

19 Others Preparing Selves for Employment or Going to School.

Jobs have been obtained for 11 of 30 boys on the relief rolls of the Bureau for Homeless Men, G. Myron Gwinner, executive secretary of the bureau, a United Charities agency, announced yesterday. The other 19 are carrying out plans to prepare them for employment, attending school, or are being treated for serious health conditions.

Of 31 other cases, closed by the agency during the last six months, 15 received employment in private industry. In most of these cases, as in those still on the agency's rolls, it was necessary to correct some physical or mental defects before the client was ready for employment.

RACE OF PALE-FACED PYGMIES REPORTED IN NEW GUINEA

Said to Be Ferocious But Not Cannibals: Expedition Headed by Lord Moyne.

HONG KONG, June 27.—A newly observed race of pale-faced pygmies, living in the hinterland of New Guinea, is reported to have been discovered by an expedition headed by Lord Moyne, who has been cruising in the Malay Archipelago. At first it is said the pygmies were ferocious, although, unlike the black tribes inhabiting the country around them, were not cannibals.

The country was described as wild, covered with a dense jungle and topped by snow-covered peaks which reach as high as 12,000 feet. No traces were found, however, of a mysterious white race reported to inhabit the high plateau of the interior. Among the specimens brought back by the party were two human shoulder blades, and two lower jaws, remains of a cannibal feast found tied up over the hearth of a house in a deserted village.

OUTING HOME CAMP OPENED

93 Children Registered for Ten Days.

Summer camp activities were begun last week at the Catholic Outing Home, Florissant and Gilmore avenues, with 93 children registered, sent by charitable and social service organizations.

Groups of girls and boys are taken alternately for periods of 10 days. Screened outdoors dormitories have been built and the activities include presenting plays, hiking, swimming and games.

CITY SWIMMING POOLS OPEN WEDNESDAY

Open Air 2 to 9:40 P. M. and Indoor 1 to 9 P. M. Week Days; Sunday Hours Also.

The two outdoor and six indoor municipal swimming pools will be opened for the season Wednesday.

Marquette Pool, Minnesota avenue and Osage street, and Fairground Pool, Spring and Natural Bridge avenues, open-air, will be open from 2 to 9:40 p. m. week days and from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. Sundays.

The indoor pools will be open from 1 to 9 p. m. week days and from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. Sundays. They are: Soulard Pool, Seventh boulevard and Soulard street; Buder, Ewing avenue and Hickory street; Concordia, Lemp avenue and Utah street; Sherman, Kingshighway and Easton avenue; Mullanphy, Eleventh and Mullanphy streets, and, for Negroes, Bath House No. 5, Jefferson avenue and Adams street.

There will be 40 life guards stationed at the pools, under direction of two captains and a supervisor. The season will close Sept. 1and the annual municipal swimming meet will be held at Marquette Pool early in August.

Last year the pools served 646,866 swimmers and officials anticipate a larger attendance this year. Fairground Pool, usually accommodating more than 14,000 persons daily, is said to be the largest artificial outdoor pool in the country, with a water capacity of 3,500,000 gallons.

HARVARD GERMAN ART STOLEN

Bronze Sculpture Taken from Glass Case in Museum.

By the Associated Press.

CAMBRIDGE, June 27.—Harvard University announced today that one of its best pieces of modern German art—a four-inch high bronze sculpture of an antelope—had been stolen from the Germanic Museum.

The little figure, by the contemporary German sculptor, Renee Sintenis, was stolen from a small cubical glass case on a pedastal in one of the galleries during public visiting hours, May 31.

SCOUT WATER MEET AT IRONDALE TODAY

Parents of Campers Invited to Carnival—Campfire on July 4.

The 260 St. Louis Boy Scouts attending the first of four summer sessions at Camp Irondale will present a water carnival today for their parents, who were invited to attend camp activities. Campmaster Sam C. Reaves said that the camp activities and avocations have never been more successfully carried out than this year at the first session, which will terminate with the breaking of camp next Saturday.

Activities at Camp Irondale for the last week included: Initiation of the new boys into the Order of the Arrow, Boy Scout honorary camping society; a general camporee in which the scouts competed in projects of signaling, identification of leaves, scout pace, tracking, star gazing, judging, scout code. A night swim and ice cream were the premiums for patrols making perfect scores in these projects. Last night a patrol treasure hunt was the chief activity.

A general campfire in which the entire camp will participate, a barbecue and a Fourth of July celebration with fireworks will be the highlights of this week's activities.

Swimming, bird study, camping, journalism, reading and handicraft proved the most enthusiastically received avocations of the first session. Out of the 35 boys who could not swim at the beginning of the camp last Sunday, more than five were able to join the ranks of "floaters," or beginning swimmers.

Thirty scouts qualified for the bird study merit badge under Leon Sharrock, nature study director. Lee Hall, director of pioneering, reports a large enrollment in classes of knot instruction. Baseball and volleyball tournaments are most popular in the athletic program.

A press club with the organization of a news staff has been organized at the camp with Bill Parks Jr. of Webster Groves 7 as managing editor and Pomeroy Groves of Troop 31 as city editor. The staff will change at each session of the camp, and will edit the Irondale Eagle Quill, a weekly paper for the Boy Scouts of the St. Louis Council.

Camp librarian reports a circulation at the camp library of more than 500 books, with merit badge books the most popular of non-fiction. Metal work in making ash trays is the most popular form of handicraft, according to Elliott Couden, director of handicraft. There have as yet been no casualties or sickness at the camp, reports Dr. Joseph B. Guccione of the medical staff of the camp.

The St. Louis Sea Scouts proved that their training in sailing during the year at Lake Creve Coeur was valuable, for on Wednesday the scouts were caught in a storm on the Mississippi River, where they were on their way to Lake Cooper at Keokuk, Ia., for the regional regatta of Region Eight. The storm scattered the scouts' boats along the riverbank, but not a boat was sunk and none was damaged.

The St. Louis Sea Scout contingent has 28 sailing boats in the regatta, and placed in many of the sailing contests. Commodore H. A. Brereton was commanding officer at Camp Eastman, on Lake Cooper, and John D. Wright, St. Louis scout executive, was navigating officer.

Mayor Dickmann will accept at a ceremony conducted by scouts a totem pole Friday night, at 7:30 o'clock, at the old Tourist Camp in Forest Park.

Scout Edward Schaeffer of Troop 104 of St. Stephen's Catholic Church received troop congratulations last night for his recent rescue from drowning of a woman at Barnhart, Mo. The woman had gone down for the second time when Scout Schaeffer arrived, plunged in and brought her safely to shore.

Girl Scouts.

The St. Louis Girl Scout day camps will open in various parts of the city and county this week with an attendance in each of more than 85 girls, including a staff of 12.

The following dates have been ascribed to the district camp openings: Tuesday, South District day camp at Tower Grove Park; Wednesday, West District day camp at old tourist camp in Forest Park; Thursday, North District day camp in Glasco Woods; County District day camp, Ferguson. Another County District day camp will open July 6 on Robinson School grounds in Kirkwood.

Each camp will meet from 10 a. m. to 4 p. m. once a week for eight weeks and will follow a definite program, which will include activities in crafts, athletics, trailing, nature study, the making of puppets, dramatics and outdoor cooking.

A unit of the St. Louis Girl Scout Camp Cedarledge, known as Outcamp, which is confined to a selected group, will open Wednesday with a limited enrollment of 12 girls, who have met the requirements of a minimum age limit of 14 years and experience in outdoor camping. Miss Margaret Lynsky, a public school nurse in Minneapolis, Minn., is director of the unit. At Outcamp all living is done outdoors. Meals are cooked on an outdoor stove, and at night the Girl Scouts sleep in hammocks.

Chamber of Commerce Luncheon.

Arrangements have been made by more than 400 business men to attend a Chamber of Commerce luncheon tomorrow at Hotel Jefferson, at which Kenneth Collins, vice-president of Gimbel Brothers, New York City, will discuss current merchandising and advertising problems in their relation to general business.

C. OF C. CRITICISES LAWS PASSED BY 74TH CONGRESS

Says Body Enacted Legislation "Vitally Affecting Business Without Mature Consideration."

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 27.—The Chamber of Commerce of the United States said today that Congress, in the rush for adjournment, passed legislation "vitally affecting business without mature consideration of the consequences."

A statement in the Washington Review, the chamber's periodical, added: "The final session of the twenty-billion dollar Seventh-fourth Congress devised new and novel means for the further regulation and restriction of business enterprise. There can be only keen disappointment with the nature of taxes imposed by the new revenue act. It is a deplorable measure, insupportable upon any ground of well-established principles of taxation."

The Review said that "new methods of industrial regulation are prescribed in the Walsh-Healey measure, giving the Government power to regulate hours and wages on Government contracts for goods and services."

The chamber commented that the so-called anti-chain store act "imposed restrictions upon business in the matter of prices," that Government authority to regulate commodity exchanges is extended in another measure and ship subsidy legislation "dictates wages and working conditions for seamen."

Veterans' Club for C. A. Anderson.

The Greater St. Louis Veterans' Club has been formed, with Harry Jansen, 6717A Michigan avenue, as president, to support the candidacy of Prosecuting Attorney C. Arthur Anderson of St. Louis County for the Democratic nomination for Twelfth District Congressman.

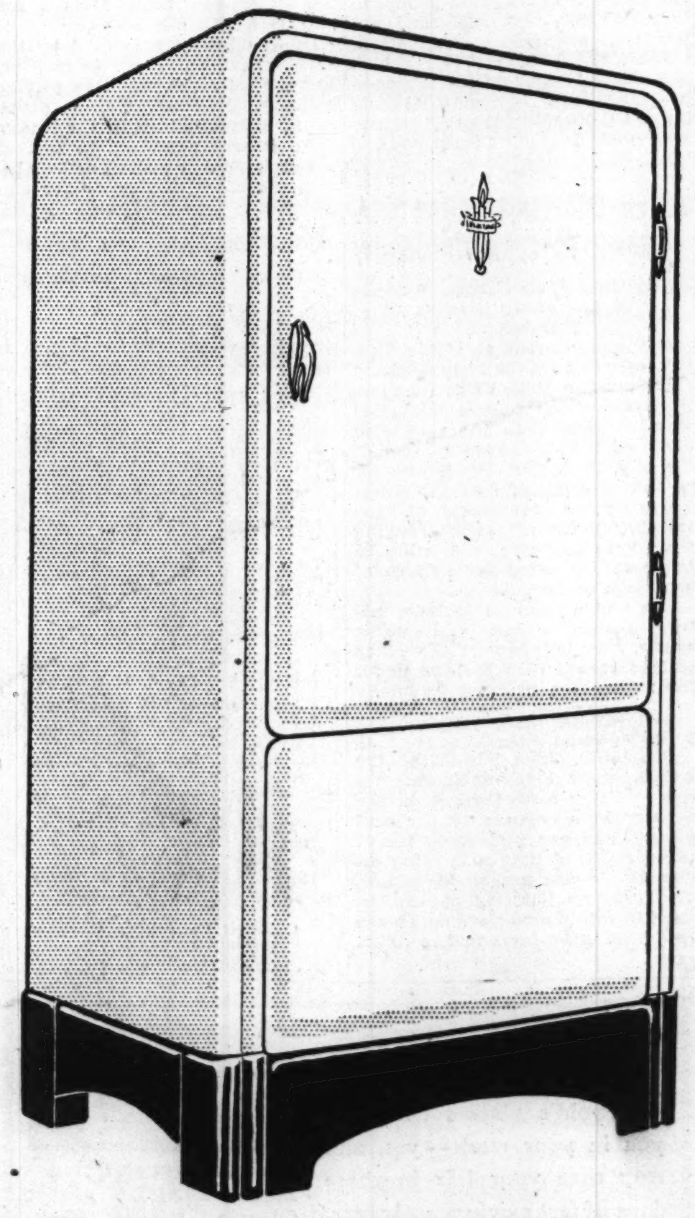
Electrolux dealers in St. Louis are offering a few 1935 models at especially large reductions in price. For instance, you can get a full family size Electrolux for $159.50 with a still greater reduction if you have an old refrigerator to turn in. Or you can get $70.00 for your old refrigerator when traded in on the large model F-100 Electrolux.

OPERATING COST—Automatic refrigeration is one of the cheapest luxuries modern science has brought to the home. Only a few cents a day for the convenience and comfort of safe, dependable refrigeration. Electrolux, the gas refrigerator, is exceptionally economical because of its simple method of producing refrigeration. This process was discovered and patented a few years ago by two young Swedish engineers. They developed a method of using heat to produce cold and thus were able to eliminate motors and machinery from the automatic refrigerator.



UP KEEP COST—Automatic refrigerators have been improved greatly during recent years. They last longer and give better service. But most of them operate with a motor and moving machinery. These moving parts get noisy and wear out eventually, but the one refrigerator that will give satisfactory service indefinitely, without repair, without replacement of parts is Electrolux, the gas refrigerator, because in Electrolux a tiny gas pilot light takes the place of all moving parts and machinery.

Predicts the League, Despite Its Setback, Will Become Stronger

Arthur Sweetser, Only American Director of Secretariat, Says Covenant Itself Has Not Been Found Wanting.

By ALBIN E. JOHNSON,
Special Correspondence of the Post-Dispatch.
NEW YORK, June 27.

"THE League of Nations stands today at a turning point. It is facing into both its most critical, and its most interesting period.

"Behind it lie 11 years of relative calm and five years of super-strain: in Manchurian, Abyssinian and Rhineland crises, disarmanent and economic conference failures.

"Ahead . . . on June 30th—lies the special assembly on the Italo-Ethiopian conflict and (in September) the regular assembly on the League's whole future.

"Many of the League's member states are unquestionably dissatisfied; much of world public opinion is manifestly discouraged in the League's deficiencies. It's prestige has been badly shaken.

"An extraordinary fact, however, is that no nation, not even non-members of the League, advocates scrapping it or returning to the old pre-war system; all discussion, on the contrary, centers in how to improve, strengthen or reinforce it.

"Those who carelessly toss off the verdict that the League is dead or dying deny the forces in world life which are driving the nations even closer together; the Zeppelins, the Queen Marys and Normandies, the radio and the airplane.

"The world is in flux; the tragedy is that public opinion does not generally appreciate it and thinks the nations can continue to live in water-tight compartments.

"Out of the present partial eclipse the League will emerge as a stronger and more realistic organization for the promotion and preservation of world peace because the necessity for a League has been demonstrated beyond all question of doubt by the experiences of the past few years."

Opinions From the Inside.

The above is the opinion expressed by Arthur Sweetser of Boston, the only American among the directors of the League's Permanent Secretariat, on arrival in the United States recently for a short visit. Sweetser is one of Geneva's veterans. He was with the League back in the beginning—when the covenant was being drafted in Paris in 1918-1919. At that time he was a member of the American peace delgation. With Raymond Fosdick, Huntington Gilchrist, Manley Hudson, Howard Huston and others, he became a charter member of the Secretariat when the League was established at Geneva in 1920. Before his promotion to director, he was acting head of the Information Section, perhaps the most important department of the Secretariat since it disseminates news which goes to make up the moral force of public opinion—the greatest weapon upon which the League of Nations relies. Now he is one of the small group of high officials who help formulate the policies of the Secretariat—the permanent staff of the League which is stationed at Geneva.

An Observer for 17 Years.

Being an American, Sweetser is not "cramped" by national policies, traditions or pre-conceived prejudices which might color the opinions of other League officials. For 17 years he has viewed the evolution of European and League affairs from the inside. He knows the League and those who have made its history—Briand, Stresemann, Gen. Smuts, Austin Chamberlain, ex-Premiers Edouard Herriot, Pierre Laval, Ramsay MacDonald, and scores of others—perhaps as well as any man alive. Consequently his appraisal of the League is interesting and authoritative.

Taking a realistic—and somewhat hard-boiled—view of the existing tangled situation, Sweetser frankly admits that the League's prestige has been badly battered; that the public has lost a great deal of the confidence it formerly had in the League. Disarmament is a dream for the moment and the League perhaps will undergo considerable alteration or "evolution" in the near future.

"But," he says, "it is not the League Covenant which has been found wanting in recent crises. The fault lies not in the instrument itself, but in the way it has been administered by the governments. The Covenant contains all the obligations and provides all the mechanism necessary. What has been lacking has been a willingness of governments, in some cases, to restrain their policies within the obligations of the Covenant, and in others to fulfill those obliga-

Though Some Are Privately Opposed to the New Deal, the Powers Who Can Get Out the Votes and Deliver Them Right Know on Which Side Their Bread Is Buttered.

By MARQUIS W. CHILDS.
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
PHILADLELPHIA, June 27.

BEHIND the facade of New Deal oratory Jim Farley has done the real work of the convention which closed here today. He brought the party bosses into line, using the persuasion of patronage, disciplining the rebellious and rewarding the virtuous, mingling like a genial lord among the barons of his feudal fiefdom.

That phenomenon of American politics, bossism, is, of course, not confined to either party. Indeed, in some of its most practical expressions it has been known to be bi-partisan. But it goes into a decline in the party that is out for want of spoils, and flourishes in the party which controls the offices and the public payroll. There have never been as many public offices in the history of the country as exist under the New Deal. Therefore, this convention affords a rich field for the study of bosses and their role in national politics.

The bosses who came to Philadelphia, Senator Guffey of Pennsylvania, Tom Pendergast of Missouri, Gov. Curley of Massachusetts, Mayor Kelly of Chicago—the whole company great and small—understand the language that Farley speaks. The National Democratic Chairman, who also is Postmaster-General and chairman of the New York State Committee, employs the same one-syllable vocabulary that these men have used to win—and lose—local elections for years past.

Thanks to the New Deal, the party bosses are now raised to national prominence. They are Senators and Governors, many of them; and even if they hold no national office, they have the privilege of a bow in the national spotlight because of the power they wield and the part they must play in November when the oratory, the cheering and the fine phrases of this ratification meeting have long been forgotten.

The Practical, Hard-Boiled Job That They Have to Do.

They must do a practical, hardboiled job. They and their lieutenants and underlings must go down the line, precinct by precinct, house by house, and see that the vote gets out and gets out right. They and their henchmen know where the patronage has gone, they know where they can give orders and be sure of getting results. The jobs go in one end of the machine and the votes come out the other end; and if for some reason they don't, then there are various kinds of fraud with which certain of these bosses are only too familiar.

With the avowed objectives of the New Deal the bosses have little sympathy or understanding, often a privately expressed contempt.

Who is to be Sheriff of the county or chief of police is a vital matter, for that touches the returns from gambling, slot machines, prostitutions, the numbers racket and other lucrative grafts. Who is to run for Congress is of little moment.

They'll Go Down Line As Long As They're Fed.

But the bosses will go down the line for the Roosevelt New Deal, at least so long as the patronage holds out. Two or three of them have a personal loyalty to the President and his ideals. In other instances there are persistent reports that income tax charges have been used to whip the rebellious into line. Social favors—an invitation to the White House—have had a softening influence on some stubborn holdouts.

The bosses are to the New Deal circus what the lions and tigers are to the show under the big top. So long as they are fed the raw meat of patronage, and plenty of it, they will behave. They can even be wheeled into the center ring and made to jump through a hoop, as has been demonstrated here in Philadelphia, to all appearances as tame as house cats. Under the cracking whip and genial smile of the Boss of bosses, Ringmaster Farley.

Bossism within the Democratic party takes a more or less familiar form whether in Pennsylvania or Tennessee, New Jersey or Minnesota. The vote-getting power of the boss is founded on a submerged section of the population. The Negroes in Tennessee and other border states, the masses of low paid or unemployed workers in the cities. Because he controls these voters, the boss is in a position to levy tribute from the ruling economic forces in the community. He cuts himself in on a real estate deal, he is put on the inside of a promotion scheme. In return, he makes sure that the tenement precincts vote right on local issues. To the masses that make up his machine the boss hands along some benefits from government and indirectly from business, making sure always that the people know who has obtained these favors for them.

There are bosses in the Democratic party who fall outside this pattern. Some men love politics for the sake of politics—they go in for it instead of golf—but the deviations are rare. The lines of power run from the submerged masses through the boss to the economic overlords.

Missouri's Pendergast A Stark Realist.

Missouri's Pendergast summed up the business of politics and the function of the professional politicians very well in his interview with the Post-Dispatch this week. He said:

"National elections, national politics, are just Kansas City on a big scale. It boils down to the wards and precincts. The whole thing is to have an organization that functions in every ward and precinct. That's where the votes come from. The fundamental secret is to get the vote registered—and then get it out after it's registered. That's all there is to it."

If Farley's role during the convention has been like that of a feudal lord among his liegemen, the bosses have in turn had their courts surrounding them. They were to be found at the three or four leading hotels, established in the parlor of a big suite with an entourage made up of members of the delegation from the boss' state, friends, hangers-on. Trays of ice, seltzer and whisky were placed conveniently about, constantly replenished. The great man would hold a whispered conversation in the corner, there would be chuckling laughter, a mysterious phone call. This was the business of the convention. For the most part the bosses, even though they were delegates or chairmen of delegations, treated the proceedings in Convention Hall with a cavalier disregard.

Gov. Curley of Massachusetts and Ed Crump of Tennessee did not show up until Thursday night. Others—Pendergast was one—maintained hotel suites in New York or Atlantic City and appeared on the convention floor for only a brief time during the day. When they spoke publicly of politics and Democratic prospects for the fall it was with an easy confidence of victory, a boastful assurance of their own power to deliver the vote, thinly disguised in platitudinous prophecy. Issues? The New Deal? They'd leave that up to Washington.

The Bosses: Who They Are, How They Got That Way

Here are four or five of the more spectacular Democratic bosses. Their biographies would make an excellent appendix to any textbook on political science except that the rest of the book would have to be thrown away because these men ignore textbook rules for the conduct of government.

In the better graveyards of Philadelphia there must have been a vast stirring during the past week. The bones of those Republican super-bosses, Boise Penrose, Quay and Vare, could not have rested easily with so many Democrats tramping the earth. In the state that Penrose held in the hollow of his hand a Democratic boss—Senator Joseph F. Guffey—has triumphed. Guffey is the new type of boss, a streamlined, New Deal model. He brought the convention to Philadelphia. He is the first Democratic Senator from Pennsylvania in more than 50 years. He says he will deliver Pennsylvania's electoral vote to Roosevelt in November. With many victories to his credit, he has enjoyed to the full this convention, managing to be everywhere at once and always with a serene smile on his shrewd, unlined face.

The Senator inherited his political power, or a fraction of it, from his uncle, Jim Guffey. It was said of Jim Guffey that he was the best Democrat the Republicans ever turned out, meaning that the school of politics in which he was educated was closely allied with that of Quay-Penrose-Vare school and given to co-operation rather than unseemly dissension. At any rate, both schools had the same curriculum, which was a practical, dollars-and-sense one.

Jim Guffey had an organization possessed of considerable potency in his native Pittsburgh where he not infrequently won local elections, and when the Democrats were in power in Washington, Jim Guffey and his machine fattened on Federal patronage.

Guffey of Pennsylvania and $406,001 Indictment

Joe, who was Democratic national committeeman, was made sales director of the Alien Property Custodian's office. He served from 1918 until March, 1921, and during that time sold more than $150,000,000 of what had been German property. Interest on this amounted during the term Guffey was in office to $406,001. There was considerable confusion and mystery over what happened to this interest and in 1922 the then Attorney-General, Harry M. Daugherty, went before a Federal grand jury and had Guffey indicted on the charge that he used the $406,001 in his own business affairs.

As proof of the fine spirit of co-operation that prevailed between Republicans and Democrats in the face of such threats, Guffey was able to retain for his defense the Reed law firm, headed by Judge Reed, father of Senator David A. Reed, the Mellons' attorney and a Republican power in Western Pennsylvania. Nothing was done about the indictment. In 1930 a Republican United States Attorney moved that it be nolle-prossed.

Jim Guffey had been a comparatively rich man, having made a small fortune in Pennsylvania's oil fields. Joe started in oil but branched out into public utilities. He became secretary of the powerful Philadelphia company, a utility holding company, vice-presi-

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Senator Robinson's Misstatement.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

AS I was listening in on the speech made by Senator Joseph Robinson to the Democratic national convention Wednesday night, I was astounded to hear him make the statement at least three times that the United States Supreme Court in its recent decision (Morehead vs. People of the State of New York, 56 S. Crt. 918) had decided that the State was without power to prescribe minimum wages and maximum hours for women. In the speech as reported in the press appears the following:

> The decision in the Guffey Coal Act case held that the Federal Government has no power to prescribe maximum hours and minimum wages for workers in coal mines, because, among other things, it constitutes a transgression of the rights and functions of the states. In the New York maximum hours and minimum wages case recently handed down, the majority held that the states cannot prescribe maximum hours and minimum wages on the theory that to do so violates the right of contract secured to our citizens by the Federal Constitution.

The decision of the Supreme Court in the Morehead case involved only the question of minimum wages for woman employes. The only reference to maximum hours in the decision is in the minority opinion of the Chief Justice, in which he calls attention to the fact that the Supreme Court had already sustained maximum hours legislation by the State of Oregon. The Adkins case upon which the majority relied also dealt only with minimum wage legislation.

From previous decisions of the Supreme Court, it is clear that maximum hours regulations by the states will be sustained. In fact, they have already been sustained by that court. In Muller vs. Oregon, 208 U. S. 412, maximum hours legislation for women by the State of Oregon was held by the Supreme Court of the United States to be within the constitutional power of the State. In Bunting vs. Oregon, 243 U. S. 426, the Supreme Court upheld maximum hours legislation for both men and women employed in mills and manufacturing establishments.

In the Adkins case (261 U. S. 525), the court carefully distinguished between minimum wage and maximum hours legislation, holding that maximum hours legislation was well within the police power of the State for the protection of the health of its citizens.

The Morehead decision denying the power of the State to fix minimum wages for women is being discussed and debated by laymen and members of the bar. It would, therefore, seem indefensible for a man who occupies the position of Senator Robinson to misstate the decision as one involving not only minimum wages, but maximum hours. This is particularly true when we consider that Senator Robinson is an eminent member of the bar of the State of Arkansas, is the majority leader of the Senate and is being spoken of as the man most likely to receive the next appointment to the Supreme Court.

Gift for Landon.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

A SUGGESTION to Jim Farley: As long as you did not give Landon anything for Christmas last year, why not give him Al Smith and Jim Reed now?

HOWABOUTIT.

Our Discourteous Guests.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

THE attitude of foreigners toward our country, its people and its ways, has long been a puzzle to me. The English and Germans are the greatest offenders.

Some of my dearest friends are English and Germans. As persons, I am quite devoted to them and (apparently) they to me. But as Englishmen and Germans, I resent them. The Germans believe that all Germans are right, that all the stories we read about Hitler's brutality and murderous ways are propaganda of a Jewish-controlled press. When I tell them that very few papers in this country are owned by Jews, they disbelieve me. Their country, their leader, their people, are all a step above God, and we are a country of morons. Yet they are here because they did not like Germany.

The English are by nature a sarcastic people and probably do not realize how their rapier tongues cut through our good intentions toward them. They ridicule us to our faces, belittle our government, our amusements, our literature and our manners—everything American to them is just "utterly utt."

In our family, we were taught from infancy to be gracious and considerate guests, and to regard our host highly or else cease to be his guest. We Americans share our country, our hospitality, our jobs and our relief with these people from other countries, and I can see us in no other light than their host—and a good one. And with this in mind, I should like to ask the British: "What are good manners?"

I feel strongly on this subject. They should either be courteous and appreciative or else go back to their own countries. But maybe I am wrong. Anyway, I should like to hear from some of these foreigners who think we are all wrong as they may have a different viewpoint and change my mind.

POSTSCRIPT.

May we suggest to the managers of both the major political parties that the kind of national convention typified by the incredibly inane performance at Philadelphia and the equally inane performance at Cleveland is offensive both to the taste and common sense of the American people?

For five long days, delegates milled about in Philadelphia to "yes" a platform and a pair of candidates whose nomination was a foregone conclusion. The task should have required not more than 48 hours at the outside. For four long days, delegates whooped it up at Cleveland for a candidate whose nomination was assured and for a platform whose terms were accepted without debate.

Both conventions were perfectly geared to the radio, so that the whole country was made privy to the mock emotion, the trumped-up demonstrations, the adolescent howling and all the rest of the depressing phenomena that go with the alleged showmanship of a national convention.

It is said that conventions are more effective over the radio than they are at the scene. At least, the radio audience is spared the sight of the horribly crowded hall, filled with sweating delegates, many of whom, including persons prominent in the nation's affairs, see fit to act like clowns and lunatics.

But even the skill of radio announcers cannot transform what is essentially a ham show into anything else. From the keynote address to the last boresome seconding speech, the public's ears are assailed with lurid denunciation and exaggerated praise, with all of the stale platitudes of spread-eagle oratory, with tommyrot that no sensible man would think of saying in private conversation with other sensible men. The principal performers, for the most part, differ only in degree from the minor participants in their offenses against sober utterance.

Why is it deemed necessary for national conventions to borrow their technique from the circus—indeed, from outmoded circus devices that Ringling Brothers would scorn to use today? In past years, perhaps, there has been some excuse. We have had national conventions—like the dramatic one at Chicago in 1896, when Bryan's celebrated cross-of-gold speech swept him into the nomination; like the equally dramatic one of 1912, when Theodore Roosevelt stood at Armageddon and battled for the Lord; like the fierce, bitter struggle at New York in 1924—we have had conventions when the show was a real one, when the enthusiasm was genuine, when men's passions were really aroused.

But in 1936, at Cleveland and Philadelphia, there was no reason why the conventions should not have been held in simple dignity. In 1936, when the country has given nearly seven years to serious thought on unprecedented problems, it is in no mood for horse-play and horn-tooting and farcical speeches. How much more impressive it would have been if both Republicans and Democrats had cast aside the absurdities of convention "showmanship" and given the people a serious, thoughtful discussion of the country's dilemma!

Their failure to do so is an insult to the people's intelligence.

It took the politicians years to discover that the country was overwhelmingly opposed to prohibition. How long will it take them to find out that the people have sickened of the ballyhoo that degrades our national conventions?

"A CHURCH ON A HILL."

A regretful might-have-been in the letter column last Thursday must have engaged the kindly attention of many readers. The correspondent, recalling a meeting with Father Dempsey long ago, pictured "a church on a hill," surrounded by a fine acreage, where, with a Government grant, this unwearying, hospitable host to the world's unwelcome could have put the unemployed to work in that first and last workshop, the land.

The fanciful project is related, of course, to the plan proposed by Upton Sinclair for ending poverty in California. The basic idea is production for use. In any other than exceptional hands, such an enterprise would be impracticable. Father Dempsey, it may well be believed, was the exceptional man and exceptional spirit to operate such a plant. It was inevitable, perhaps, that St. Louis should have been so impressed with the man's humanitarianism that we failed to appreciate the extraordinary business ability demanded by the extent and variety of those charities.

In the seven years of depression, we have failed to solve the problem of unemployment, and until that problem is solved, the depression will be here, regardless of statistics and sophistries. If the colonial experiment sentimentally presented in the letter column should eventually win public approval, we shall be fortunate, indeed, to find someone with a measure of Father Dempsey's robust, expansive chivalry to assume its management.

TO CURB THE STRIKE-BREAKING INDUSTRY.

The recently enacted bill aimed at professional strike-breaking, just signed by the President, should help to end one of the most despicable rackets that this country has ever tolerated. By the new law's provisions, a fine up to $5000 or imprisonment up to five years, or both, may be imposed upon those who transport in foreign or interstate commerce "any person with intent to employ such person to obstruct or interfere, in any manner, with the right of peaceful picketing during any labor controversy affecting wages, hours or conditions of labor, or the right of organization for the purpose of collective bargaining."

This will seriously cripple, if it does not put out of business, the hundred or more strike-breaking agencies, which recruit professional scabs, agents provocateurs, labor spies and guards for use in breaking strikes. They have given employment to all manner of criminals, and have sent them, often equipped with arms, into strike areas to terrorize striking workers and the public. Their violent tactics have caused many deaths in industrial conflicts. And it has been an immensely profitable business. Edward Levinson, in a book published last year exposing the activities of one such agency, wrote:

> Breaking a strike is a costly affair for employer as well as worker, but a fabulously profitable enterprise for the strike-breaking agency. There are few other lines of endeavor in which a person with no special training, no credit or standing in the business world and no investment whatever can gross from $100,000 to $1,000,000 in a month.

The Federal law, of course, cannot interfere with strike-breaking activities of this sort within states. It is therefore up to the states to supplement the legislation with laws of their own if they wish to exterminate the practice.

It is not the business of government to interfere in labor controversies. It is a legitimate step, however, to end a practice whereby greedy promoters have enriched themselves at the expense of the public welfare.

MR. GARNER OF TEXAS.

The selection of John Nance Garner of Texas as the candidate of the Democratic party for Vice-President was almost as inevitable as that of Mr. Roosevelt for the first place on the ticket. That he was chosen rather than some other man can make no difference in the election result, just as the nomination of Col. Knox on the Republican ticket rather, say, than Senator Vandenberg can make no difference.

It is a rare circumstance when a vice-presidential candidate becomes an issue in the campaign, or when his words on the stump carry more weight than those of the general run of party spokesmen. Who remembers what Calvin Coolidge said or did when he was the running mate of Harding, or the words and deeds of Charles Curtis when he was the tail of the Herbert Hoover kite? One needs to cudgel his memory to recall that Senator Joe Robinson ran with Al Smith in 1928 or that Franklin D. Roosevelt was on the ticket with Cox in 1920. An exception that proves the rule is the case of Charles W. Bryan, whose candidacy with John W. Davis in 1924, after that weird Madison Square Garden convention, permitted the Republican orators of that year to indulge in horrendous speculation as to what might happen if, because of the La Follette candidacy, the election should be thrown into the House of Representatives.

Mr. Garner has made a capable presiding officer of the Senate and has fully upheld the dignity of the vice-presidential office. He deserved renomination. If fate should call him to the presidency, he would bring to it a rich legislative experience—and he would bring also, we make no doubt, independent views of the New Deal that have been blanketed by the political requirements of his office.

Did Gov. Allred, we wonder, intend to convey that thought when, in his nominating speech, he described the Vice-President as being "just as rugged and individualistic as the giant cactus of the Southwest"?

TIME FOR A CLEAN-UP.

Serious dangers to public health in St. Louis are disclosed by the report of two physicians, Dr. James R. Nakada and Dr. William G. Beck, after an inspection tour of alleys with Maj. Albert Bond Lambert of the Police Board. Squalid living conditions; alleys littered with garbage; stray cats, dogs and huge gray rats scurrying about are described in their report. The physicians warn of possible epidemics resulting from these conditions.

Effective ordinances, to permit police to see that these filthy surroundings are cleaned up, are needed, but they are not the whole cure. Citizens themselves can do much, if aroused to the danger, to remove these perils. Poverty is a contributing factor, but not the only reason, for bad conditions were found in the West End as well as in the poorer districts east of Grand boulevard. The scattering of garbage is attributed in part to the inadequate appropriation for collection.

An immediate clean-up certainly is in order if the city is to have living conditions fit for human beings, and to avert the danger of filth-borne plagues. The Medical Society's committee deserves praise for calling attention to the danger. Eliminating it is the joint responsibility of the city government, medical authorities, the police and the citizens.

TRAGIC ANNIVERSARIES.

It was 22 years ago today that shots were fired in a street of Serajevo, capital of Bosnia, that have not yet ceased to echo and re-echo throughout the world. Shouldering his way through a crowd, Gavrilo Prinzip, a 19-year-old Serbian student, reached the motor car bearing the Austrian Archduke Francis Ferdinand and his wife. He fired quickly, and both were killed.

It is often loosely asserted that this tragedy caused the World War. More exactly, it precipitated the war. Behind Prinzip's mad act was a great network of underlying causes: economic rivalries, ancient hatreds, trade ambitions, excessive armaments, diplomatic treachery, territorial disputes, etc. His shots fired the mines already laid. Austria seized the opportunity for a settlement with Serbia, Germany gave her ally a "blank check," other alliances pulled in other combatants.

The cost was 8,538,315 lives and billions in treasure, not yet fully computed, for it is a cost that continues. Millions of these lives had been lost before Prinzip himself died, in prison, several years after the war began.

By coincidence, another significant anniversary occurs today, that of the Treaty of Versailles, signed June 28, 1919, proclaiming the official end of the World War. Not unlike Prinzip's pistol shots, it, too, loosed reverberations which still resound. What was written at Versailles in a mood of revenge now is being erased by the upsurge of the defeated nations.

"Conditions are far worse than in 1914," a British statesman remarked a few days ago. Few of the underlying conditions that caused the assassin's bullets to set off a world cataclysm have been remedied. The hatreds called into being by the rigid terms laid down at Versailles are an added factor in the new crisis. Far greater armaments than existed in 1914 are being built by all the nations. Few of the European governments are as stable as they were 22 years ago.

The mines again have been laid. Now Europe fears that all its frantic efforts to keep the peace will go for naught if another Prinzip appears somewhere with his deadly pistol.

BARRICADED LINDELL.

For how many long years was that stretch of Lindell boulevard from the Jefferson Memorial to Skinker road scarcely navigable? At last the bumpy, bobbing terror was officially recognized, and work was started on the south half of the street. Eventually the administration decided to make a complete job of it and closed it against traffic. Springs bloom and bow out, summers smile and wilt and wither away, autumns blaze and brag, as autumns will, only to be seized in winter's fierce embrace, and winter roars and rages, but Lindell boulevard, as hereinbefore located, is as dead to transportation as the road that once led to Damascus. Forward St. Louis!

THE CIRCUSES TAKE TO THE ROAD.

Hurdles for Civil Service Reform

Misconceptions and conditions that have blocked complete adoption of merit system include "vainest hope of all," that abuses can be cured by specific laws; basis of sound civil service is described as attracting capable workers and paying them properly; public first must be convinced of need for reform to promote efficiency.

From "Our Government—For Spoils or Service?" Public Affairs Pamphlet No. 3, Published by the Public Affairs Committee.

TODAY the civil service is faced with the problem of meeting the expanded and changed demands of modern government. The speed with which the tasks of government expanded was determined by the quick and sensitive reaction of the voters. In their business life, the people came to the conclusion that they needed some sort of banking control. The Federal Reserve System was the immediate result.

That was an addition to the exterior of the Government. The civil service works inside the Government. The voters do not directly feel a reaction to what it does. Because the civil service carries on this less obvious work, the voters have been less conscious of it and they have not insisted that it grow with the Government.

In order to catch up with the demands of an expanded Government, the civil service must clear 11 hurdles:

1. The spoils system. Despite all reform efforts, it is alive and flourishing today.
2. The ingrained belief that the duties of Government employes are, as Jackson said, "so plain and simple that men of intelligence can readily qualify themselves for their performance."
3. The idea that public payrolls should be used to support those in need of charity.
4. The belief that patronage is the price of democratic government.
5. The impression that a good man in the public service destroys democratic government. In 1928, the president of the United States Chamber of Commerce said: "The best public servant is the worst. . . . A thoroughly first-rate man in public service is corrosive. He eats holes in our liberties. The better he is, the longer he stays; the greater is the danger." In 1934, the Commission of Inquiry on Public Service Personnel found no evidence of this corrosion.
6. The firmly fixed idea that public servants are merely "tax-eaters," "bureaucrats."
7. The vain hope that laws regulating tenure of office are the cure of the spoils system.
8. "Home-town jobs for home-town boys." This in spite of the fact that frequently the "home-town boys" haven't the vaguest idea of how to do the job.
9. The baseless notion that public service is always less capable and efficient than private business.
10. The indiscriminate criticism of public officials.
11. The vainest hope of all: that abuses in the public service can be cured by specific laws against specific evils.

The reformers of 1883 (when the Pendleton Act was passed, following the assassination of President Garfield by a disgruntled office-seeker) were victims of the last fallacy. They believed that the spoils system would be swept out once a Civil Service Commission was created. But they had made no provisions to supply that system with the proper material to carry out its work. They attacked the symptoms of the spoils system, not the cause. They did not foresee the necessity to provide and keep in the civil service able young men who would have ample opportunity to develop and advance with fair pay and a prospect of security. This is the career service.

Recognizing the defects of the earlier reform measures, the Public Service Inquiry Commission has concentrated attention on making Government employment a career service.

The term "career service" means five things: (1) A rigid system of examinations for entrance to the civil service; (2) finding the right man for the right job; (3) careful supervision of civil servants to assure rapid promotion, a fair wage, an adequate pension system; (4) opportunity for good men to develop, and a means of eliminating the unfit; (5) most important of all, laws placing under strict civil service regulations all Government employes outside the policy-determining and military categories. The career service is primarily designed to recruit good men to the service and keep them there.

This is a cure aimed at the root of the disease. It takes Government employes out of the hands of short-sighted politicians. It insures good work by drawing good men into the service, keeping them satisfied and unseating the drones.

The English boast that 1500 scholars run the British Government. The difficulty with the American system is not that the United States does not have 1500 available scholars, or that there are not 1500 Government positions they might fill. The trouble is that our present Government service does not attract the proper people. If they happen to be in it, they frequently and rightly conclude that it is impossible to do good work or advance without "pull."

To establish a career service, it is first necessary to convince the general public that such a reform is necessary. Today, the need for Government service reform is not so obvious as it was on the day Charles Guiteau took the problem of party patronage into his own hands. None the less, the real need remains.

Young workers recruited for the civil service, immediately after completing their formal education, should constitute the keystone of a career service. They would feed the higher and more rewarding positions with a constant supply of good material. At the same time, the prospect of promotion and security would bring the right men to the Government service. In making it worth the while of good young men to find a career in the civil service, the voters would also be making efficient government.

ET TU, HOMER?

From the Pittsburgh Press.

ATTORNEY-GENERAL HOMER CUMMINGS, decrying the "hullabaloo" about the quashing of income tax fraud indictments against the Huey Long henchmen, says the Louisiana cases "are as dead as Julius Caesar."

Recalling the circumstances of Caesar's passing, that seems an apt historical analogy.

A Southern Paper's View

From the Richmond (Va.) Times-Dispatch.

IF "Cotton Ed" Smith is so excited over the presence of Negro delegates on the floor of the Democratic national convention, why doesn't he walk out of Congress because of the presence there of Representative Arthur W. Mitchell of Chicago?

Representative Mitchell is a Negro Democrat who represents Negro constituents. The Negro delegates at Philadelphia likewise represent members of their race. Apparently Senator Smith, who is "sick and tired of the whole damn thing," feels that Negroes aren't entitled to representation in Congress, at national conventions, or anywhere else, unless they are represented by whites.

Most particularly, he objects to being prayed over by a Negro minister, although Chairman Sapp of the South Carolina delegation remains unperturbed at the thought of having a colored pastor invoke the divine blessing upon him.

Fundamentally, Senator Smith is proceeding on an erroneous premise, namely, that "political equality means social equality." What makes him think so? Does the fact that a Negro mail carrier or barber exercises the franchise, after paying his poll tax and registering, mean "intermarriage and the mongrelizing of the American race," as was so luridly proclaimed by the South Carolina Senator, as he took a walk?

We do not think so. Senator Smith has the ante-bellum attitude which holds that the Negro must always remain a helot, exercising few civil rights, taking no part in the affairs of his Government, content to leave all such matters to the white race. The Senator is not aware, apparently, that times have changed in the last three-quarters of a century—that the Negro is a citizen, entitled to the rights of a citizen.

If the Negro is able, in the face of the manifold handicaps which beset him, to improve his business, educational, economic and political status, we say, More power to him! We are not quaking at the thought of Negro delegates at Philadelphia, and neither should we feel that Southern civilization had been endangered if a colored pastor asked the Almighty to forgive us our sins, which probably are far too numerous anyway.

"DER TAG" AGAIN.

From the Cincinnati Enquirer.

LIKE the Bourbons, the officers in the German army never learn anything. Once they drank to "Der Tag," and now they seem to be doing pretty much the same thing over again.

In a recent number of the Deutsche Wehr, the professional journal of Hitler's officer corps, this was set down in cold type: "A new world has come into being in which war must be taken frankly for granted, the measure of all things, in which the soldier lays down the law and rules the roost. Every human and social activity is justified only when it aids preparations for war."

Attila the Hun would have subscribed to that philosophy. So would the Goths and the Vandals. We boast that the world has progressed and that the high ideal of the brotherhood of man means something. But in Germany, only the doctrine of the mailed fist is current. To the German soldier, war is not hideous and cruel; it still is glorious and splendid; it still is the instrument that will subjugate the world and make the Reich supreme.

BUDGET INSURANCE UNDER FIRE AFTER LEAKAGE SCANDAL

Move in Commons for Legislation Making It Unlawful to Issue Policies Based on Tax Changes.

OUSTED MINISTER HEAVILY CRITICISED

J. H. Thomas Also Assailed for Winning Money From Lloyd's on 1935 Election While in Cabinet.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, June 27.—Whatever else results from the budget leakage scandal, authoritative observers here think a serious effort will be made to keep Lloyd's famous old corporation of underwriters who accept risks on nearly anything under the sun from issuing insurance on events affected by Government policy.

There is a strong demand in the House of Commons for legislation making it unlawful to place insurance against tax increases, or indeed against any kindred action that is influenced or decided by political groups or the Government.

The reason is that the budget scandal has left a thoroughly bad taste throughout Britain, and many responsible persons think that the affair should not end with the expose of the facts that drove James H. Thomas from the Cabinet and the House, but should result in steps that would prevent such an affair ever happening again.

This could only be done by proscribing insurance companies from accepting risks involving the budget.

Election Bets Opposed.

The wave of revulsion is so great that betting against the holding of an election also may be forbidden for Thomas is criticised almost as much for winning money on the holding of last year's election as he is for the fact that two of his cronies cleaned up thousands of pounds in the insurance market on the tax provisions of the budget.

It is pointed out that Thomas, as a Cabinet minister, was in a position to help influence the decision to hold an election, when he placed bets whereby he would profit if an election were held. Lloyd's gave him good odds there would be no election in 1935.

The scandal, moreover, may go far toward reformation of the morals of all men in public life. Thomas also has been scolded for gambling on horse races, and for presumably using up time he owed the public in receiving race tipsters in the colonial office.

Sir Alfred Butt, another horse backer, who also resigned from Parliament, also is being severely criticised for spending so much time figuring the ponies, and for allegedly cashing in on information he obtained from Thomas on the budget situation.

The situation emphasizes that for thousands of Englishmen the prime interest in life is to risk a few shillings daily on a dog, a horse, an athlete or a football game.

Heavy Football Betting.

Gambling on football became so obnoxious recently that the football association tried ineffectively to stamp out the practice by withholding announcement of the schedules until the night before games were played. The theory was that if the public did not know what teams were meeting each other, pools would collapse and bookmakers could not record so many bets.

The public outcry, however, together with confusion in football clubs, forced the abandonment of this effort.

To the outsider it appears that almost everyone in England bets either steadily or occasionally on horse or dog races, or places money in the countless football pools or other diverse forms of risking money that are available.

No big golf match or tennis tournament is played without money being laid on the results. Newspapers publish the odds, bookmakers do a thriving business, and there is a big money turnover on even the most "simon-pure" sport events.

Newspapers reflect the public attitude, quoting advance odds together with sometimes as many as 20 selections by dopesters on horse races. Several pages of some newspapers are turned over to form charts, while Saturday's late editions are filled with scores on which thousands of pounds change hands.

dent of the Equitable Gas Co. and the body and soul of the highly profitable Guffey-Gillespie Oil Corporation.

Joe Breaks With Jim And Goes Right Ahead.

Joe was destined to outstrip his uncle not only in finance but in politics. They broke when Joe, contrary to Uncle Jim's wishes, supported Wilson in 1912. In 1916 Joe was named Democratic State Chairman and in 1920 National Committeeman. He was so skillful a politician that he remained one of the few big shots in the party with whom Wilson rarely found fault.

The building of the Guffey machine from 1921 forward was a matter of painstaking care and the judicious expenditure of not too large sums of money. Guffey had a personal "public relations director" who also ran a trade paper devoted to the interests of building contractors in which most contractors and dealers in building supplies in the Pittsburgh area felt it was good policy to advertise. In 1928 the Guffey machine rolled up 1,000,000 votes for Al Smith.

But it was not until the depression and the New Deal that the Guffey organization really flowered. With the political intuition which most of the bosses have in great or less degree, Guffey had cast his lot with Roosevelt comparatively early. Pennsylvania went Democratic in 1932. What was even more miraculous, Guffey got himself elected United States Senator in 1934, beating Reed, and installed his candidate at Harrisburg as Governor.

That candidate, it is interesting to note, is George H. Earle III, one of the wealthiest men not only in Pennsylvania but in the entire country, having inherited an enormous fortune from his father, a lawyer-banker, and close friend of Boies Penrose. Earle made a large contribution to the Democratic campaign fund in 1932, was rewarded by being made Minister to Austria, returned to become Governor and is an ardent New Dealer, now mentioned as a presidential possibility in 1940.

Guffey Machine Controls Relief in Pennsylvania.

The Guffey machine has controlled the distribution of relief in Pennsylvania. The Senator turned the Works Progress Administration over to his man, Edward Jones.

Recently Assistant Attorney-General John Dickinson, one of the most capable men in the Department of Justice, accompanied by two or three aids, went to Harrisburg for the purpose of getting an injunction in a Federal court preventing the State Legislature from investigating WPA in Pennsylvania. In Washington Harry L. Hopkins, WPA chief, issued an order forbidding all employes from responding to State subpena-servers.

This is a measure of how far the administration will go to prevent any investigation. Administration spokesmen say, of course, that the State Senate is Republican and merely interested in trying to "smear" WPA. Nevertheless the lid has been clamped on and clamped on tight in the face of serious charges of corruption and favoritism from a variety of sources.

Guffey has been extremely shrewd. Under his rule all patronage, both Federal and State, has been pooled in the offices of the Democratic State Committee. One purpose this serves is to keep down the ambitious who might use patronage for their individual advancement rather than for the good of the party and the advancement of Joe Guffey.

John B. Kelly, Able Lieutenant of Guffey.

He has developed some very able lieutenants. The outstanding one is John B. Kelly, known affectionately to the humblest hod-carrier in Philadelphia's river wards as "Jack." Jack Kelly has come close to carving out an independent political province since he achieved the miracle of rolling up 333,825 votes as the Democratic candidate for Mayor of Philadelphia last fall. This was only 23,000 less than his Republican opponent received. You almost have to be a Philadelphian to understand what that means. In 1931 the Democratic candidate for Mayor got 30,000 votes and the difference between that figure and Jack Kelly's total is a measure of his extraordinary success.

Kelly, too, is a new type of boss. He is young, an Olympic champion oarsman a few years ago, with a warm Irish smile and a good word for everyone. He has been very active in organizations made up of younger men, particularly the American Legion. He comes of a humble but a brilliant family. One brother is George Kelly, the playwright, another is Walter Kelley, the actor. Jack Kelly began as a bricklayer. Today he is head of what he says is the largest brickwork company in the world with an all-time speed record for building brick buildings. This personable young Irishman has a long political career ahead of him. In his turn he may be United States Senator from Pennsylvania.

One thing may be noted here which applies to virtually all these bosses. They own all or part of a business in which their political influence will be most useful—some form of contracting, a builders' supply business of real estate. By virtue of his political power the boss builds up his business at a geometric rate.

Boss Pendergast, King of Kansas City.

Missouri's Pendergast is in the tradition of the nineteenth century bosses. A former saloon-keeper, he looks like a picture of the masters of the old Tammany, short, thick, in his late 50s, with fierce blue eyes. His word in Missouri is absolute. National policies concern him not at all and state policies almost as little. Kansas City is his kingdom. It is a wide-open town, with gambling, organized prostitution and slot machines existing at the sufferance of the political organization—for a price, of course. A close friend of Farley, Pendergast is loyal to the administration although privately he reviles the New Deal.

Pendergast, life Guffey, inherited the rudiments of a machine from his brother, James M. Pendergast, and it is said that he would like to pass on political rule to his nephew, James M. Pendergast Jr. Boss Pendergast owns a highly profitable cement business. He has sold to the State a great deal of the cement that has gone into the highways. He owns the T. J. Pendergast Liquor Co., a wholesale firm, and, since a Pendergast henchman, E. J. Becker, is liquor commissioner in charge of issuing all dealers' permits, it follows that most of the retailers in Kansas City buy their liquor from the Pendergast firm. Pendergast also owns the Riverside race track near Kansas City.

How this man works, how he lives, how he thinks illustrate the phenomenon of bossism in its elemental form. He is up and at his office ordinary mornings by 5 o'clock. Not long afterward a procession of visitors begins to file past his desk—business men, politicians from Jefferson City, a woman who wants to ask for a job for a son, the head of a family who can't live on his relief allotment, the sales agent for a big liquor syndicate. Humanity in all its manifold forms passes before him and he says yes or no. He rarely sees less than 300 persons—usually it is nearer 400—and Tom Pendergast's word is as good as his bond.

His Family, Church, Politics and Horse-Racing.

When the race tracks open, Pendergast's working day is over. He ranks his family, his church, his politics, and horse racing, in the order named, as the major interests of his life. A racing journal printed recently the report that he had lost at the race track last year between April and October a very large sum of money. There is much speculation as to the size of his income, some guesses putting it as high as a quarter of a million dollars a year. Certainly it is well over $100,000.

Pendergast is a devout Roman Catholic. His younger daughter recently graduated with honors from a Catholic convent to her father's great pride. Mrs. Pendergast is fond of travel, and when they go abroad, they have the finest suite obtainable on the newest and fastest ocean liner. In New York the management of the Waldorf-Astoria reserves for them the same apartment in one of the towers of the great hotel. In Kansas City the Pendergasts have a handsome home in one of the best residential sections.

There is nothing in least subtle or Machiavellian about Tom Pendergast. He thinks of himself, according to those close to him, as a good American who has risen in the world in the American way, by dint of hard and useful work. There is no sense of apology for his machine. It carries on, in his belief, a necessary business and does a most thorough and efficient job. Too, he regards himself as pretty much a private citizen, coming as a delegate to national political conventions, yes, but inclined to be annoyed if asked for his views on the conduct of public affairs in Missouri. In the very sincerity of his attitude there is a paradox which has baffled the reformers who have tried to oust him. They have found it hard to make such an innocent man appear the embodiment of all the evils of machine politics.

Tammany: Dooling Slick New York Product.

The head of the present-day Tammany, James J. Dooling, is another type altogether. He is a slick product of New York City where the Democratic machine is geared to an old and consistent corruption on the basic principle that every man has his price. Dooling's rise from the sidewalks to the night clubs of his native city has left its mark on his face which is cadaverous and hard. His has been an orthodox rise, from precinct captain up, step by step, with a faculty for knowing the right people at the right time.

Farley's success in bringing Tammany into line despite the Al Smith split is one of the great achievements of his career. It has taken everything that Farley could put out. Dooling was the first Tammany chieftain to be invited to dinner at the White House since the Civil War. Bigger and better jobs and more of them, have gone Tammany's way as a result of the New Deal. Just before Congress adjourned, in the confused last-minute rush, two new Federal Judges for the Southern District of New York were named at the command of Boss Dooling and with the approval of Boss Flynn of the Bronx. Tammany has hardly ever reached so high as the Federal judiciary. The names of Samuel Mandelbaum and John W. Clancy were forced through the Senate Judiciary Committee and the Senate itself with scarcely the minimum observance of form. The New York Bar Association was not even consulted. Party leaders were reminded privately that this was a campaign year. Federal judges can pass along rich gifts to Tammany in the form of receiverships.

Hague of New Jersey Another Farley Convert.

Similarly the conversion of Mayor Frank L. Hague of Jersey City is one of Farley's major accomplishments. Hague, like Dooling, is a city type boss, but more hard-boiled and blunt. The boss of New Jersey was a conspicuous holdout against Roosevelt at the Democratic convention in Chicago in 1932. About the time that Roosevelt was being nominated he issued a statement calling him a weakling. Taking virtually no part in the campaign, he continued for a long time after the election to sulk. His control of the Democratic organization in New Jersey was so complete that he could not be ignored.

A year ago he issued a glowing statement praising President Roosevelt and predicting his re-election. Rumors have persisted that an income tax matter was held over his head to compel him to come into camp. Not long after his statement he was invited to the White House for dinner and the conversion was complete. He has been here not as a delegate but as a genial host in his suite in the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel.

Ed Crump of Tennessee Easy-Going, But Look Out!

Edward H. Crump of Tennessee is in the rustic pattern, a slow-spoken, easy-going Southerner who came from the back country of Mississippi to Memphis, but appearances are deceiving. His admirers say that he is the most efficient of any of the bosses. If 14,863 votes are called for, then 14,863 votes will be cast, no more and no less.

It is said of him that he votes the Negroes by the truckload and if anything goes wrong with his calculations, corrections can be made through the returns from the remote mountain districts in the eastern end of the state, where the result is largely determined by the man with the best imagination.

Politics for Ed Crump is a pastime, a never-failing source of pleasure. His friends say he is not interested in obtaining any direct reward from his political activities. The boy who came from the Mississippi backwoods has made a fortune handling real estate mortgages for insurance companies. Always lucky, he has taken his good fortune with a humorous nonchalance.

Shunning any honors for himself, he went to the House of Representatives for two terms but only to settle a quarrel between two leaders, both of whom felt they were entitled to the place. Washington bored him. He announced to a friends one day that he had $2,000,000 and he guessed he and the wife would go to Europe—never had been there, wanted to see what it was like. The Tennessee boss visited Monte Carlo in the course of his tour and, the report is, returned from Europe with more money than he had when he started.

Crump is one of the few bosses who is enthusiastic for the objectives of the New Deal. Some years ago he acquired a strong bias for the public ownership of utilities. Thanks to Crump when Memphis voted on the question of establishing a municipal light plant, public ownership won 17 to 1. Crump does not care for Senator Kenneth McKellar, according to report, but he tolerates him rather than precipitate a fight, for McKellar has built up a formidable machine through the Federal jobs he has dispensed. Crump has had the good sense to draw into his organization bright young men from the best families of Memphis. Taking it all in all, the Crump organization has held a far more wholesome influence than its counterparts in the urban North.

Joe Wolf of Minnesota, Ex-Barber, Real Estate Man.

Of the same homespun variety but less astute is Joe Wolf, of Minnesota. A former barber, more recently (and more profitably) a real estate dealer, Wolf had been Democratic national committeeman from Minnesota since 1924.

He took the credit for carrying Minnesota for Roosevelt. As a reward he was made Collector of Internal Revenue in St. Paul, an office he held for 14 months. A collectorship is one of the most lucrative plums that can be passed out. Retiring from such a post, even the most mediocre lawyer can become a tax expert and make a fortune if his party stays in power long enough. There has been a revolt in Minnesota against Joe's rule and while he was defeated in a fight within the delegation at the convention, he claims to have won at the primary on June 15. Although bossism was an issue in the election, Wolf says he carried all but 30 counties in Minnesota, his candidates leading in the Twin Cities by more than two to one.

Mayor of Stapleton, his home town, is the only public office that Wolf has ever held. He had devoted his time to perfecting his organization and to running other people for public office. His specialty, and the reason he has been so useful to the Democrats nationally, is rounding up the Farmer-Labor vote for Roosevelt and the New Deal.

Numerous such small-time bosses have made their mark in the Middle-West during the past five years. One of them is John Byrnes of Nebraska who fell heir to his job when his chief, Arthur Mullen, former national committeeman, left for Washington to practice political law. That was with the advent of the New Deal. Under Mullen's watchful eye, Byrnes is said to be doing a good job, gaining a reputation as a hard worker, a plugger. Mullen, meanwhile, is cashing in on his political reputation in Washington.

Another Big-Timer, Curley of Massachusetts.

These sand-lot organizations look decidedly amateurish beside the machine that has been built up by Gov. James M. Curley of Massachusetts. It is probably the most sinister political force in America today, the most ruthless, the most arrogant. Curley's dictatorship in Massachusetts has been compared with that of the late Huey Long of Louisiana.

Jim Curley has bobbed about like a cork on the political tides of the Bay State, he has been in jail, he has been Mayor of Boston, he has been pronounced politically dead time and time after time, he has been accused of every form of graft; but by means of his masterful platform manner—the glowing, rich, warmth that he pours out upon his audience—he has always managed to come back, several times building up a personal following in the face of bitter machine opposition.

On a train from New York to Boston, Curley in 1931 by chance encountered Gov. Roosevelt who was enroute to the Magnolia, Mass., estate of Col. E. M. House, "Maker of Presidents." Curley insinuated himself into the Roosevelt compartment and long before the train reached Boston he had charmed Roosevelt, and Roosevelt, presumably had charmed him. From that day forward he began to work for the Roosevelt cause and in 1932 he was elected Governor on his boast that he had done more than anyone else to nominate Roosevelt and initiate the New Deal.

Hardly had he been inducted into office when he started an orgy of spending which made even his previous terms as Mayor, during which he had been personally enriched, seem like a miser's old age. By opening wide the State Treasury, and with the aid of the Federal patronage that fell to him to apportion through the administration's hostility toward Senator Walsh, the new Governor rapidly assembled such a political organization as Massachusetts has never seen.

Backed by this organization and with the personal popularity that he seems always able to command, Curley has defied public opinion by a series of brazen acts. He succeeded by the dispensation of better jobs in packing the Executive Council, theoretically a check on the powers of the Governor. His daughter was married at a wedding reported to have cost $100,000 to head of a billboard firm, and Curley 10 days later demanded that the Legislature repeal the State's model anti-bill board statute. He favored the notorious teachers' oath law and his henchmen in the Legislature insulted Harvard professors who appeared at a public hearing to ask its repeal.

On Thursday night of the convention armed Legionnaires paraded in a demonstration for Curley, the first time, it is said, that men bearing arms have ever appeared on the floor of a political convention. Other demonstrations carried banners that read "Philadelphia Welcomes Gov. James Michael Curley—Man of Destiny—Watch 1940."

Big, handsome, with a distinguished thatch of white hair, Curley has boundless ambition and he is unhampered by any political scruples. So long as the State Treasury remains solvent and the New Deal benefits continue to flow he will flourish.

Chicago: Mayor Kelly And Boss Pat Nash.

As with Tammany, the Democratic machine in Chicago is old and well oiled, under the control at present Mayor Edward J. Kelly and Boss Pat Nash. The lines of political and economic power in Chicago are strangely interwoven, with curious jealousies and rivalries.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, publisher of the Chicago Tribune, has an almost ruling influence over Kelly and Nash. At McCormick's behest to facilitate publication of his newspaper, it is said Kelly recently had Chicago adopt Eastern time. It was widely said after the last primary election that on the order of Kelly and Nash numerous Democrats voted in the Republican primary in order to nominate the Tribune's candidate, Wayland Brooks. In view of the bitter feud between Gov. Horner and the Kelly-Nash machine, it is now being suggested that the national and State ticket may be knifed in November although the talk here in Philadelphia has all been of harmony and party loyalty.

Kelly began as an axman for the Sanitary District which in Chicago is a principality all by itself with the right to issue bonds—a source of tremendous graft for years. He became chief engineer and in 1922 was appointed also to the South Park Commission. Chicago was pushing through new boulevards and creating new parks at a fabulous rate and Kelly, as a real estate man, was in an excellent position to know what land values would appreciate.

Under his administration Chicago has been a fairly wide-open town as to gambling, saloons and a limited type of prostitution, but the cruder rackets and the gangs have been curbed.

Nash is a more elemental specimen, of the type of Bathhouse John Coughlin, who is still on the Board of Aldermen in Chicago, the official sponsor of the recent time change. The Kelly-Nash machine has few modern gadgets, being built on the familiar principles of painstaking precinct organization, the voters "taken care of" in the old-fashioned way.

This does not pretend to be a catalogue of the bosses who have attended the Democratic convention. It does not get in all the big ones even, and it ignores the host of small fry, men who rule over half a dozen wards or three or four counties; but whatever the scope of their power, they have in common a prosperity founded in part at least on the flow of benefits that has come from Washington since 1933.

The New Deal has done nothing to alter the basic political and economic relationships on which bossism thrives. Indeed, the huge expenditures of recent years have provided in greater measure than ever before that which builds up bossism. The boss delivers the vote of the submerged masses and is handsomely repaid by powers which want the vote safely directed. The procession of the bosses at this convention made the idealistic New Deal seem scarcely more than an intellectual gloss for the realistic view which Tom Pendergast voiced—"It's a business like anything else."

Marseille Sets Pace for Growth.

PARIS, June 27.—Marseille is one of the fastest growing cities of France, census figures show. The population for 1936 is 914,232, an increase of 110,000 over 1931. Marseille is France's second largest city.

ITALIANS PROSPECTING FOR GOLD IN ETHIOPIA

Coffee, Cotton, Rubber and Grain Expected to Be Other Products of Land.

By the Associated Press.

ROME, Jan. 27.—Italians, under the direction of Premier Mussolini, are making studies in Ethiopia to determine the economic possibilities of the land conquered by Italy's armies. It is hoped that Ethiopia will produce gold, coffee, rubber, sugar and wheat.

Mining engineers have been working for several months in the northern regions, prospecting, analyzing, assaying and reporting back to Mussolini. They arrived while the blackshirts still were at Makale and said they were hopeful. Now that Italian troops are in Addis Ababa and pushing to the west and southwest, they will transfer their prospecting to those richer regions.

Other mining experts, financed by the National Council of Research under Guglielmo Marconi's presidency, have left Rome for Addis Ababa to help them.

Britain and Gold.

Said Mussolini's newspaper Popolo d'Italia recently: "A good part of the British policy in favor of the Negus and against us has been dictated by the assured presence of gold in Ethiopian zones which Great Britain wanted to make her own and which Marshal Badoglio's sword has transformed into Italian possessions."

Having obtained these zones, Mussolini intends to see them developed as fast as possible. The Bank of Italy needs the gold.

Gold has been found in Ethiopia for thousands of years. There even are Egyptian hieroglyphics on monuments of the Pharaohs in the Valley of the Kings which speak of gold in Ethiopia, between the rivers Balassa and Abar.

In Ethiopia everything grows. Sometimes there are three crops a year. Around Lake Tana, says Maurizio Rava, former Governor of Somaliland, there are 2,000,000 acres of land, among the most fertile in the world. Cotton grows; so do wheat and other cereals.

Farther south but still in the west is Caffa, now being penetrated by Italian troops. Here coffee—it gets its name from this very region—will be cultivated on a far greater scale than at present. Likewise cotton and rubber. The regions of Sidamo and Jimma, south of Addis Ababa, produce the same products.

Plans for Farming.

Founding of the first Italian agricultural settlement in Ethiopia is imminent. Within a year it is expected the half-million Italians there will be virtually self-supporting in food.

Mussolini has given his countrymen to understand that 400,000 of the 500,000 men sent to East Africa will be left there. Another 100,000 will join them.

The gold mine development will be under Government control with probable semi-state financing.

Platinum is also certain. Italians in recent years, working under precarious concessions, have produced platinum in Western Ethiopia.

Natives extract platinum from the alluvial sands of the Barbar River, in the Yubdo region. They did not know what platinum was, or its value, until two Italian engineers told them 15 years ago.

HEIDELBERG OBSERVES 550TH ANNIVERSARY

Representatives of 24 American Colleges Among Guests From 30 Nations.

By the Associated Press.

HEIDELBERG, Germany, June 27.—The ancient University of Heidelberg began its 550th anniversary festivities tonight, with visitors from 30 nations, including official and unofficial representatives of 24 United States colleges and universities.

Opening ceremonies were held on the square before a new white stucco and glass building built with American money. After that the guests were treated to an illumination of the castle ruins, known throughout the world.

English colleges apparently were the only ones to enforce a tight boycott on the exercises by concerted action. No English universities sent official delegates, but there were several private visitors from England.

Old Traditions Passing.

Heidelberg students retain some of the traditions of the medieval university, but others have faded. In many quarters the "Schmiss," or scar across the face, which gave evidence of a duelling wound, has lost its popularity. A few years ago good fencers were known to drop their defense to receive such a gash.

Gone are the high patent leather boots, white pants, dark coats and gay little skull caps worn on one ear. A year ago the "Corps" organizations which continued these traditions were given a severe jolt and some were reprimanded. Later all were disbanded at Heidelberg.

Nowadays the duelling scar is regarded by some as a pretty sure sign of questionable political beliefs. However, the organizations of students which are arising now at the university—the "Kameradschaften"—are veering back toward the tradition of duelling "as a sport."

American Visitors.

Official and unofficial United States college representatives were Birmingham (Ala.) Southern College, Thelma Hendrickson, Ora Lazenby and Prof. Charles Ray; Carleton College, Northfield, Minn., Dean Lindsey Blayney; Columbia University, New York, Prof. Joseph Frank Remy; Cornell, Ithaca, N. Y., Prof. Bennet Noland and Prof. W. A. Boesche; Davidson College, Davidson, N. C., Prof. Guy Vowles; Dickinson College, Carlisle, Pa., Prof. Cantler Lazenby; Harvard, Davis George Birkhoff; Johns Hopkins, Prof. Johannes L. Hoops of Heidelberg; Louisiana State, Prof. Karl John Arndt; Municipal University, Omaha, Neb., Dr. V. What Gautama Taught

THE DHAMMAPADA. Translated with an Essay on Buddha and the Occident by Irving Babbitt. (Oxford University Press, New York.)

WHEN Matthew Arnold defined religion as "morality touched by emotion," he seems to have expressed, with the perfection of a subconscious mental operation, the fundamental difference between the characteristic Occidental view, and the essential Oriental conception, of religion.

In the teaching of the Orient, the expression "emotional religion" is a contradiction in terms. For it is precisely the emotions, which pertain to the isolated self, that the Oriental insists upon suppressing, to the end that the self may be lost in an abiding, impersonal sense of the universal—a state of peace which is termed Nirvana. Accordingly, an Oriental seer would say that our intensely individualistic temper has led us directly away from the shining goal, as evidenced by the familiar Western conception of individual salvation for some future state of bliss. Not the salvation of self, he would insist, but the loss thereof, is the way to that well-being which all men seek by diverse means, and most in vain.

Those who are at all interested in such matters—and current literature of recent years has seemed to indicate a rapidly growing and deepening interest—might spend their time less profitably than by studying the work here listed. "The Dhammapada" (meaning "The Path of Virtue") is well known to Western students of Oriental thought through Max Muller's translation, which appeared in 1870. The present version, upon which the late Irving Babbitt of Harvard worked for some years, is a revision of the former in keeping with the original Pali, a dialect of Sanskrit. "The Dhammapada," written in verse, but here presented in prose, sets forth in simple form the teaching of Buddha. Those who, being persuaded to believe in their own intense "practicality," may approach the volume expecting to find a fantastically impractical dissertation, are likely to read with increasing surprise, proportionate to their understanding of what, in the final analysis, is not only simple but useful in every day contacts, even though one cannot hope to achieve complete acceptance and practice.

There is no intention here to suggest this teaching as a possible substitute for that of Jesus of Nazareth. But even to the confirmed Christian, and especially if he be one of the many for whom the spirit has been lost in the form, "The Dhammapada" may prove of great value, serving to emphasize the essential in his own creed; for there is a vital idea in Buddhism that is central in the teaching of Jesus.

But without Irving Babbitt's illuminating essay, "On Buddha and the Occident," at the back of the book, there would be far less reason for recommending this translation. Therein the translator has made clearer many questions concerning not only Buddhism, but, what is more important, essential religion itself; and in so doing he has made much of the opportunity to throw a searching light upon our commonly unconsidered Occidental persuasions in general.

With regard to Buddhism as a system of thought, one important point may be noted here. It is commonly assumed that Buddhism is pessimistic, that Nirvana, its goal, is annihilation. But the state called Nirvana, we are given to understand, is that in which selfish desire is annihilated—a state of luminous serenity, described by the Christian as "the Kingdom of Heaven Within," "the peace that passeth understanding," "the pearl of great price." According to this view of Buddhism, the initiate does not wait to die into some future state of bliss; rather, he lives into it now by throwing away self-regard, by identifying himself with universal humanity and the largest cosmic scheme he is able to conceive. Morality is not regarded as the end of this process, but rather the disciplinary approach. The achieved state of Nirvana, it seems, is one in which not only hate and resentment and cruelty are rendered impossible by a sense of universal identity, but even pity loses both its meaning and its uses—since pity connotes a sense of separation and of difference. It is a state, we are told, "beyond good and evil," since both are separatist terms.

It is commonly inferred that the state in question amounts to an individual escape from life by denial thereof. But in its pure form the conception seems to be concerned, not with a passive, but with a dynamic, peace beneficient to others.

Happily, those of us who seek a scientific sanction for our persuasions may find in modern psychology something strikingly similar in general direction, though not in extent, to this timeless teaching.

Oh, Listen to the Nightingale!

FORTY YEARS. By Theodore Laer. (G. P. Putnam's Sons, New York).

THE subtitle of this book is "The Evolution of a German Immigrant Into an American Citizen," but there is less about what happened to the writer than what happened to the United States in the 40-year period, 1892 to 1932. He has nothing but thanksgiving and hope for the world today.

There are no nostaglic tears wasted on the New York or Chicago of 40 years ago. What were they really like? They were ugly, dingy cities, he assures us, and takes the reader walking with him to describe just how they looked. He dwells upon the inadequate schools, the trials and uncertainties of travel, the meager attempts at art and music. Sweat shops and child labor flourished. Men were hired by contract in central markets, sent like cattle to various states to work long hours at small pay. The spoils system in politics and the flotation of fictitious railroad securities were in full swing.

He delights in the modern America. Signs of progress and culture, he thinks, are all about us. He plies the reader with statistics taking into account trade, resources, transportation, public institutions, the arts, education and building.

A pessimist in his youth, the author has become a convert to what is sometimes known as "the American spirit."

He says in conclusion:

"On the heels of the present depression, which had its very necessary sobering influence on human nature given to exuberant excesses, will come a newer, a better, a finer, a healthier, a more brilliant and beauteous age. Humanity—America in particular—is very similar to a tall, straight, graceful, symmetrical cypress tree, growing higher and higher toward the sublime ideals of Elysium; with a nightingale sitting on one of its top branches, singing and thrilling gloriously of the joy of life!"

Good for What It's Good For

THE FAR HORIZON. By Polan Banks. (Lee Furman, Inc., New York.)

THAT large part of the novel-reading public that gobbles its fiction as though it were a chocolate sundae is sure to be delighted with Polan Banks' book. It has everything they like best. There is the cold, unscrupulously ambitious woman of wealth, the talented, struggling, sensitive girl, and the inevitably gullible male, blind to the truth till the last chapter. And just for good measure, there is a baby, represented to a trusting father as the child of one woman, but in reality that of the other. They all become involved in a moderately original plot which offers just the proper amount of "soul-misery" and "heart-hurt," the author's own words for it.

The tale would make excellent Hollywood material. With very little tinkering and a trio of silver screen favorites, it might easily become one of next season's big hits, and all the movie audiences could just cry and have a perfectly lovely time.

The writer's attempts at stylistic fancywork obstruct the story, and her self-conscious use of unusual words and word combinations is awkward. There is also an annoying habit of repeating favorite words—for instance, all memories appear to the heroine as vignettes . . . " jumbled vignettes" . . . "sharply delineated vignettes" . . . "each vignette suddenly etched on her consciousness." C. A. G.

THE NATIONAL FAVORITES

ACCORDING to reports received from 69 leading booksellers throughout the nation, the books now most in demand stand as follows in the order of their popularity:

FICTION.

Sparkenbroke, by Charles Morgan, reported by 63 out of 69 stores; The Last Puritan, by George Santayana, 56; The Doctor, by Mary Roberts Rinehart, 51; The Weather in the Streets, by Rosamond Lehmann, 37; Clansmen, by Ethel Boileau, 21; Honey in the Horn, by H. L. Davis, 18.

NON-FICTION.

Wake Up and Live, by Dorothea Brande, 56; Around the World in Eleven Years, by Patience, Richard and John Abbe, 52; The Way of a Transgressor, by Negley Farson, 41; Man the Unknown, by Alexis Carrel, 34; Inside Europe, by John Gunther, 29; North to the Orient, by Anne Morrow Lindbergh, 25.

Among fiction titles, it will be noted, "Jamaica Inn," in fifth place last week, has been displaced by "Clansmen," which stood eleventh in sales in the previous report.

In non-fiction, Dorothea Brande has again taken the lead, with the Abbe children hot on her trail. Apparently the reading public (known to be overwhelmingly feminine) is finding difficulty in deciding between its interest in youngsters and the lure of success to be achieved by a miracle-working formula.

Hot Time Due In Old Town

VILLAGE CHRONICLE. By James McConnaughy. (Farrar & Rinehart, New York.)

IF Churchill is anything like the village that James McConnaughy says it is, and the villagers are as easily identified as the village, there is going to be as big a stir when his chronicle is read in those parts as there was the time when Jerome Adams edited the Churchill Weekly for a while and twisted the tails of the campus conservatives. "Churchill" is palpably the North Carolina University town of Chapel Hill, and it may be surmised that the characters of the chronicle are such examples of portraiture that the villagers, recognizing themselves and others, and naming names, will give slight heed to the author's defensive reservation that his types might exist, and probably do, in almost any town or city in the country. So they might; but what of it when they are made to exist for the purposes of the chronicle in the village of Chapel Hill?

They are all there—the faculty men and their wives, certain students, the doctor and the editor, the grocer and the barber, the girl who runs the beauty shop and runs around with the boys—all probably easily recognized by any "Churchillian" who knows his "Churchill." If they are not persons whom the author has known, they ought to be, for they are all definitely alive and individual, persons that the author must have known and liked, and persons as well known but not as well liked.

Two that the author knew and liked were Jerome Adams, who made himself disliked around the university, and his wife, Eleanor, who suffered from the dislikes that he bred. These two emerge as the important persons of the chronicle. Jerome, an instructor, is a noncomformist with a reputation for bucking the system, almost a campus radical, prone to tear into anything or anybody that he doesn't like, as he once tore into a fraternity brother who was too rude at an initiation, and as he did from time to time, tilting at everything that did not win his exacting approval. What with a physical infirmity and an unsettling experience in his earlier years, he was the next thing to being a psychiatry case.

It was unfortunate that when his editor father died and Joel took over the Weekly for a while, there was an embarrassing incident in the university involving the color line, and Editor Adams cut loose in the Weekly against the university rule that barred a brilliant octoroon from its benefits and drove him to suicide. This was in North Carolina, remember, and Jerome got precisely nowhere with his crusade. Where he did get, as he was finally compelled to admit, was into a hell of a fix. He may have been the next thing to a psychiatry case but he knew when he was licked.

While Jerome is taking his licking, and his wife, although disapproving of his course, is sharing his discomfiture, and they are drifting apart, McConnaughy turns literary and creates an unconvincing crisis to straighten things out. That part of it, which might happen in any fictional town or city, will not matter, but when some of the things in "Village Chronicle" are read in Chapel Hill there will be something like what happened when one of the students, tight again, played the carillon out of tune. The World in Epitome

TALL GREW THE PINES. By Sigmon Byrd. (D. Appleton-Century Co., New York.)

DRAMA, tragedy, mystery, the foibles, prejudices and passions of mankind—these constitute the stuff of which life and literature are made.

In "Tall Grew the Pines" the author has effectively used these basic ingredients against a small town background. Actually a series of nine short stories, the book is divided into as many episodes related by the son of the village schoolmaster.

It is not just another small town chronicle, but a composite of events which might occur in any given place, so long as human beings are what they are. For it presents a vivid portrayal of human lives, of the eerie and unsolved quirks of circumstance and fate.

In a city the strange occurrences related in this unusual book would have been focussed and lost in the lives of a small circle distracted by other matters. In the village, a veritable human laboratory where the smallest act is subject to common comment, they are made the more telling because affected by the paradoxical mixture of bigotry and tolerance, hatred and love, which exists in every small community—and as a disturbing and often unrecognized factor in every man's heart.

In spite of its episodic character, the narrative is cleverly constructed. The young author evinces not only a "seeing eye" but a personal philosophy that should carry him far, realizing as he does, that the elements which make of human existence a great drama, directed by an unseen destiny, may be found anywhere close at hand.

He Scores Again With a Story of Napoleon

MANUEL KOMROFF.

Cannon-Fodder at Waterloo

WATERLOO. By Manuel Komroff. (Coward-McCann, New York.)

THE Battle of Waterloo was one of those turning points in the lives of nations wherein history surpassed imaginative invention in the dramatic force of the event. Writers, for this reason, often have used its stirring sequences as a framework for their own designs. So Manuel Komroff, constructing his novel around the period between Elba and St. Helena, with emphasis on the bloody 18th of June, 1815, takes up material already masterfully handled by Hugo, Thackeray, Stendhal and lesser lights, and in a manner that successfully withstands comparison with his illustrious predecessors.

It is the fine restraint and simplicity of his style that gives power to the narrative. The reader at first may feel that it is too simple, better suited to an anecdote for juveniles than to world-shaking events. But as the story progresses, with its swift movement, its unerring selection of detail, its simple sentences and short words and realistic conversations, it grows in power. The tragedy of the little man Napoleon and of his cannon-fodder is made all the more significant because it is told without purple passages.

This might have been a much longer book. It requires three pages for the writer to list his source-works, and it is obvious that he encountered an embarrassment of riches in the facts at his disposal. But he chose with fine discrimination and, it is plain, pruned ruthlessly. Of all Napoleon's battles, he says, "this was certainly the most concentrated, the most brief, the most bloody." The scheme of narrative preserves those essentials of the conflict.

In "Coronet," Komroff had previously treated another phase of the Napoleon saga, in his vivid description of the retreat from Moscow. His success with that episode led to his venture in retelling the story of Waterloo. In the new work, his manner has developed in economy and in rigid evaluation of words and effects. The result is a novel less than half the length of "Coronet," and no whit less powerful in its cumulative impression, although of course the earlier book covers a far longer period, ranging from 1600 to modern times.

There are two varieties of historical novels. The first, and more common, is that in which authentic events are a background for a tale of romance and adventure, whose characters occupy the stage with their affairs at intervals and blot out the atmosphere so carefully created by the writer in previous pages. The second category, in which "Waterloo" belongs, makes of its characters an integral part of the historic episodes it depicts.

It is historical fact, for instance, that when Napoleon returned from Elba, he recruited peasants for his army. As typical of these, Komroff has Emile Henry, a veteran of the Emperor's earlier campaigns. It is true, too, that the prolonged wars had so depleted the manpower of the contending nations that both sides filled up their ranks with mere children. So Komroff creates Pierre Dubus, a French soldier aged 14½, and Charlie Moneypenny, a 14-year-old British warrior. The characters are fitted into other historical details, such as the Duchess of Richmond's ball, on the eve of Waterloo, where revelry and romance were interrupted by marching orders and the rumble of distant cannon.

Then the climax, the great battle, in which all the figures of the story have a part. With cinematic effect, attention centers first on one, then another, then on the smoky panorama of dying horses and men, on the fatal absence of Grouchy, the timely arrival of Bluecher, the catastrophe of the sunken road. Always the camera's eye goes back to the author of the scene—the successively hopeful and desperate and despairing Napoleon. At length, more than half his 61,000 men lost, the star of his destiny in eclipse, Napoleon rides away, to exile, while a French lad and an English lad, forgetting they are soldiers, sail a boat in a ditch in a remote corner of the bloody field.

Komroff does more than retell the story of Napoleon and Waterloo. He makes it real with his personal accounts of various participants and their wives and sweethearts, the ebb and flow of their fortunes as affected by the battle. It is as if the reader had witnessed the historic scene both through their eyes and from the viewpoint of an omniscient observer. And the net effect, without a word of moralizing, is an overwhelming sense of the futility of military and dictatorial ambitions. F. G.

The Fringe of the Unexplained

STRANGE HOUSES. By Cora Jarrett. (Farrar & Rinehart, New York.)

THERE is a realm of twilight and of mystery that lies just beyond the borders of what we complacently call reality, and it is by penetrating to this region that Mrs. Jarrett's novel obtains its unique flavor. From time to time we catch glimpses, through the veil of our five senses, of that dim unknown; but the glimpses are fragmentary and as fleeting shadows. "Strange Houses," however, touches more nearly than we are used to do "that fringe of the unexplained that we go through life resenting and learning to put up with."

One insists, first of all, that this book is not a "mystery," though there is mystery on every page. Nor is it a tale of terror like Poe's stories or "The Turn of the Screw." The author, it is true, makes some use of conventional terrors—the dreadful scream, the face at the window—but these are presented not as ends in themselves, but as suggestive of a deeper spiritual horror. For horror haunts the book and diffuses itself subtly through it, like an odor of the graveyard. One cannot always lay a finger on the exact spot where shuddering fear of the not-quite-natural becomes explicit. Indeed, it seldom does become wholly explicit, but is held for the most part in a solution, as of salt in water, and permeates thus inescapably the whole book. The horror is impalpable and hidden, and throbs for that precise reason potently, with an intimate dread, against the secret hidden parts of the reader's spirit.

"Strange Houses," then, is a double book, for two patterns run through it—together, somehow connected, and yet distinct each in its own sphere. There is, first, the obvious cleverness of construction, the jig-saw puzzle of physical action. And there is behind, or over, or beneath this a second pattern which, in its cold terror of man's loneliness, contains the book's true meaning.

For Mrs. Jarrett's book is a true book, and, in spite of its supernaturalism, it is not unreal. The situation upon which it is based is—please God!—impossible, in a sane world; but the truth of that second and less obvious pattern cannot be evaded. The book goes beyond common experience into a region unknown to it, a region where the standards of our reasonable daylight minds cannot be applied. Yet it is no mere flight of an irresponsible imagination—it is a novel, a study of character, and it is strongly rooted in reality and the enduring elements of human life.

Not a Single Psychosis!

TOO GOOD LOOKING. By Gelett Burgess. (The Bobbs-Merrill Co., Indianapolis.)

THIS pert little story by Gelett Burgess confers the dignity of an artistic novel form on "good old-fashioned melodrama." Readers will be amused and a bit troubled by the audacity of a novelist who, in this day of dismal delvings into fictional souls, writes about happy, simple people without taking a single poke at a psychosis.

The Pennsylvania farm, which is the setting for the exciting plot, is not a place of dark red earth and ramshackle barns, peopled by sullen human beings bound to the earth by mysterious ties, but a sunny spot, "generous, comfortable, of pleasant proportions," with an orchard and squealing pigs. And although the learned, urban Mr. Burgess has an affectionately patronizing air toward his characters, he refuses to throw one single sop to sophisticates in the way of analyzing their actions.

To the Gammel homestead, in the early T-model era, comes a handsome, debonair young man of many aliases whose absolute efficiency in all fields has led him halfway down the Primrose Path. In his brief hide-out at the farm he teaches a brilliant but impractical clergyman to "sell himself" to his flock; shows his farmer host how to mend fences; utterly enthralls Miss Flossie Cudlick and ingratiates himself with all and sundry. His ultimate reform and marriage to Flossie are deeply satisfying.

"Too Good Looking" does not stand on plot alone, however. Its background of country life, meticulously but unobtrusively drawn, will make you long with all your soul for ice cream socials, a hammock in an orchard and chicken on Sunday; and its characters will amuse and startle you in their uncompromising reality. For Mr. Burgess likes his characters as he finds them; and the fact that most readers prefer their heroines with some intellectual curiosity and their heroes a bit less fresh, doesn't alter Miss Flossie—or her city beau—one iota. "Take it or leave it," smiles Mr. Burgess, well knowing that no one ever yet closed the cover on a good combination of wit, crime and love. S. F. K.

THE SHOW CASE. By Charles Grayson. (Green Circle Books, New York.)

IT'S Hollywood again, and it's exposed again. The same old stories of directors seducing actresses, writers cuckolding producers, extras loving each other, are thrown together in a disconnected and slightly nauseating jumble. Even the fact that Charles Grayson often shows flashes of sharp, intuitive writing does not justify such minute consideration of the trashy actions of trashy people. Living in a "show case" with "the public" as a constant and harsh kibitzer does not deter them from doing as they like, but only prompts them to try and keep it out of the papers. We've heard time and again that Hollywood is a "den of iniquity," but who cares? M. E. M.

Astute Mr. Tolefree

THE CORPSE WITH A DIRTY FACE. By R. A. J. Walling. (William Morrow & Co., New York.)

MR. BROADALL had been nervous and highly irritable for several days. Though his secretary, Mr. Pollerby, knew this and was a bit worried when his chief did not appear at his accustomed time, still he was distinctly shocked when the reason for Mr. Broadall's tardiness was discovered. He lay dead in his private office, and upon his face was a dark stain.

Tolefree, the private agent whose work supplemented that of the police, was perplexed by the number of possible murderers: Mr. Pollerby who had quarreled with Mr. Broadall the previous day, the young squire who was an unwelcome suitor for the hand of Miss Broadall, Mr. Silverbridge, a nephew, who was often in difficulties of one sort or another, and Mr. Cleve, who had owed a large sum of money to Broadall. After much investigation and reflection, Tolefree found the clew to the mystery in the odd smudge on the face of the corpse.

This novel is logically constructed, credible in its solution, and contains a good deal of suspense and excitement. His admirers will find the astute Mr. Tolefree as clever as they have grown to expect him to be. M. S. McD.

A Conservative on War

ON THE RIM OF THE ABYSS. By James T. Shotwell. (The Macmillan Co., New York.)

PROF. SHOTWELL of Columbia University, recognized authority on international relations, first wrote this book two years ago, "before the defeat of the World Court in the Senate and the defiant actions of Mussolini and Hitler." He rewrote it to include the effect of those events, but is again left behind by such developments as the failure of the League's Italo-Ethiopian policy, and the Republican party's acceptance of the Borah anti-World Court position.

The title, possibly a publisher's suggestion, is a case of thundering on the jacket, where it is lettered in lurid red. The reader soon learns that the rim on which the United States stands is the outer-rim—not beyond the danger of war, but not immediately within that danger. However. isolation is not insurance against involvement, and ultimately "the only hope for our peace is peace among others;" hence a necessity for "peaceful co-operation in building up the alternatives to war."

Matters have been over-simplified, Prof. Shotwell says, and "history has been prostituted to prejudice," by current legends making Wall Street the cause of American participation in the World War, and ascribing the troubles of Europe to the Treaty of Versailles, when most of them are due to the war.

"History will surely show," he says, "that much of Germany's suffering was due to the war itself, a kind of suffering that was shared in by the victors, including ourselves. But those who suffer tend to concentrate on their own troubles and explain them by the faults of others."

The present Neutrality Act, amended last February and effective until next May, is deemed likely by the author, if put to the test, to make the United States "a perfect picture of doctrinaire contrariness," this being due to provisions in which Senator Hiram Johnson "registered once more his vindictive hatred of the League." He holds that the problem of neutrality cannot be settled wholly by domestic legislation, and calls for treaty action.

Senator Borah, loudest demander of the outlawing of war, is held responsible by the author for the failure of the Kellogg Pact to contain a definition of self-defense, a lack which renders it largely ineffective.

Surveying the European scene, Prof. Shotwell holds that France has furthered peaceful methods of international dealing to an extent not appreciated by Americans; and that "pre-Hitler Germany, and even the Germany of Hitler, has participated in the ameliorating procedures on which peace rests." Another fault in the American view, he holds, is the current willingness to assume that "have-not" nations should have the increase of colonial territory or other supposed advantages which they demand. This, he says, "would only result in further maladjustments, with war as the perpetual readjuster."

"To get rid of war as the instrument of policy," the author says, "is the hardest and greatest task that the civilized world has ever set itself. Generations, or even centuries, will pass before the new era of a warless world will be firmly established. But the events of today do not yet justify the pessimistic outlook which accepts a return of war in Europe as inevitable. If Europe presents an ominous aspect today, it has after all kept the peace for 17 years after the conclusion of a political overturn without parallel. The cause of the League is by no means hopeless, but it is at a crisis that calls for the strictest realism. Until the League and the United States can work as one, the peace of the world will continue to be insecure."

The American "good neighbor" policy, Japan's acts affecting peace and security, and the earlier aspects of the application of sanctions to Italy, are among other important phases of world affairs discussed.

By the Author of "Lolly Willowes"

SUMMER WILL SHOW. By Sylvia Townsend Warner. (The Viking Press, New York.)

TEN years ago a first novel, "Lolly Willowes," made its appearance. Amid the realism that was being turned out at the time, this book was summed up by most readers as "delightfully different," probably because so few understood its import and were able to follow the real meaning through its maze of fancy.

In this latest novel by the same writer, the first in almost eight years, there is no fantasy to clothe the neat structure. It stands on its own merits, coldly and brilliantly intellectual and, by the same token, aloof. The time is that of the collapse of the Restoration in France. What one sees has a quick beauty, glimpsed briefly through the morbid gloom of life-denial. The characters who move about in this intellectualized reality have an air of caricature. They are drawn with taut precision, each stroke telling, and rarely favorable.

An intensity marks even the most trivial actions of Sophia Willoughby, whose soul was laced into the tight stays of convention and prerogative of birth. Her husband, a good-natured stallion who had come to her saddled with debts, had long ago sought comfort across the Channel with a highly dramatic Jewess. When her children died of cholera in England, Sophia went to France with the hope of having another child on which to spend some of her intensity. She was caught in the political upheaval of '48 in Paris, deprived of possessions and almost of her life. Here she concluded that life was a terrible jest at which she might laugh for lack of something better to do.

The book, because of its unusual treatment, is decidedly off the beaten path. Every situation has been intellectualized until it gleams with unearthly light. The one flicker of fantasy comes in the person of Caspar, half-caste son of an uncle who sends him to Sophia asking that he receive a merchant's training. The little blackamoor has one attribute, a monkey-like devotion to Sophia, and he skips nimbly about in the pages, singing, jigging and playing a guitar. He is a mannikin whom the flute of an enchanter brings to life for brief intervals. Here, as in other calculated spots, the kobold face of wit, bobbing up, serves to heighten the intensity of the entire piece. F. D.

Truly a Giant In His Day

CHARLES COULSON RICH. By John Henry Evans. (The Macmillan Co., New York.)

THIS is the story of a Kentucky farm boy who took the spiritual torch from the hand of an itinerant Mormon zealot and helped build a faith and an empire in the desert. With the subtlest sort of humor, John Henry Evans, one time professor of Church History and dean of the Department of English in Latter Day Saints Univrsity, writes of the Mormon struggle for a place in the sun. He gives us a clear, frank picture of Mormonism, from the first vision that came to the prophet, Joseph Smith, on a western New York farm, to the planting and prospering of a people in the virgin West.

This volume is more than a biography of a worthy man with six wives, 50 children and uncounted later descendants. It is also a dispassionate discussion of Mormon philosophy and Mormon practice, including plural marriage. The early Mormons, it appears, were not ogres; they were simply people of predominantly Anglo-Saxon origin. There are many new and illuminating facts on the settlement of Nauvoo, Ill., and on the troubles in the central western counties of Missouri, along the Missouri River.

Charles Coulson Rich's spiritual nature seemed only to reinforce his practical self. He preached sermons, swayed the faithful by precept, shod oxen, commanded an army, made and enforced laws, colonized the wilderness and pacified the tribes. There is much amazing information in the book about domestic relationships among the Saints, particularly in the Rich household, where there never was a family quarrel.

This is a civilized book, wise and breath-takingly fair, that, unless the reviewer completely misses the mark, is destined to rank as one of the very best of all the works on Mormon history. Despite the author's expressed intention to avoid eulogy, he does not by any means succeed in doing so. There are some few errors of fact. For example, the puffy John Jacob Astor is called a trapper. These little slips are overshadowed by the book's general excellence.

THE 1936 BOOK OF SMALL HOUSES. By the Editors of The Architectural Forum. (Simon & Schuster, New York.)

THIS book of dozens of small houses—and some large ones—is the work of architects in every section of the country. It represents architectural problems and their solutions, and includes floor plans, photographs and intriguing interiors and exteriors. Approximate cost and cubic contents of each house are given, in addition to materials used in construction, suggestions for decorating and landscaping. In short, this is the prospective home builder's catechism, and the reader is dared to look inside and still be content with life in a city apartment. F. D.

Land for Grandsons

STRANGE HARVEST. By Mildred Burcham Hart. (The Caxton Printers, Ltd., Caldwell, Idaho).

THIS story of life on the prairie farms of Nebraska shows a portion of America, at the beginning of the century, still in the process of creation. The merging of two disparate forces in the community about Rhineburg constitutes the theme.

Old August Spengler, from the vantage point of a strong box containing the deeds of his children's farms, attempts to direct the destinies of his family. He is the perfect example of the settler that Old Jules sought in his building of Nebraska back in 1880—land-greedy, ready to sacrifice himself, children, everything, for more farm acreage. With Old August, only sons counted, sons who could plow deep, sons who could give him grandsons.

But his son, a born farmer like himself, gives him one grandson only. And Heinie, a weakling and no true Spengler, fathers girl children only. For six years his daughter, Marta, has been married to his good friend and neighbor of many acres, Adolph Finkle, but still she has borne not even a girl child. August's plea, now insistent, "Gif me grandsons, I gif you money," helps not at all.

Sons come, in time, to mean more than land to August. An accident seriously crippling Heinie is followed shortly by the fatal runaway in which both of Little Paul Spengler's parents are killed. Then the final blow—the Tobins refuse to surrender their orphan grandchild to his Spengler grandfather. The Tobins, of native-born pioneer stock, have no intention of submitting any child, certainly not their daughter's son, to land-slavery. And so Old August begins to drink himself to death, but not before he writes a will, leaving his land to Spenglers—but to grandsons only.

The leaven of the novel lies in the tender love idyl of the shy and reckless Danny Murphy and the wistful love-hungry Marta. Adolph's demand that Marta have a son to inherit the Spengler land is satisfied, though the child's difficult birth proves to be a supreme test of the strong will of even August's daughter. Only the secret knowledge of her son's parentage sustains her. Adolph's spirit is mellowed by her travail, and he at last becomes tender with her; for now a son means much more to him than an addition of acres to the Finkle farm. Though neither Adolph nor Danny knows it, little August Finkle, legal son of Adolph and Marta Finkle, is a "strange harvest," the union of the two bloodstreams of the community, a tiny bit of new America.

Despite the brutality of land-bitten men like Adolph and August, there is no sordidness in this tale of clean, windswept farms. Simple dignity and quaint humor characterize the dialogue.

A Great Boer

GENERAL SMUTS. By Sarah Gertrude Millin. Vol. 1 (Little, Brown & Co., Boston).

TO Mrs. Millin, J. C. Smuts is the greatest of the Boers, and much more than a Boer: he is one of the wisest men of his generation. There is evidence to support this belief in her account of the first forty-seven years of his life. (His career from 1917 to date will be the subject of a second volume.)

In the history of the Dutch in South Africa, perhaps the most important date is 1870, for in that year Rhodes landed in Natal and England laid claim to the Kimberley diamond fields. The end of the Boer republics was then inevitably marked out. But in this year also Jan Christian Smuts was born, and in him, according to his biographer, was the seed of the greater South Africa of today.

The son of a Cape farmer, Smuts received no schooling until his twelfth year, when the death of his older brother made him his father's heir. Presently he went to Victoria College, Stellenbosch, won the Ebden scholarship to Cambridge University in 1891, read law there for three years and took the highest honors. Returning to Cape Town he supported Rhodes (whose favorable attention he had won some years before), until the Jameson Raid disillusioned him. He then moved to Johannesburg, practised law, married, and in 1898, though two years under the legal age, was made Attorney-General for the Transvaal Republic. He distinguished himself as a commander in the war and as an adviser in the negotiations. Later he strove for responsible government for the Boer Provinces, and when this was granted in 1907 he took office under Botha, for a time holding three portfolios. His public life was spent in fighting for his own people. He opposed Chinese labor for the mines, opposed the Indians, suppressed the rebellion of 1914, and led the South African forces against the German colonies. Finally, in 1917, he took a seat in Lloyd George's War Cabinet.

One doubts a little that Smuts dwarfs all other South Africans, as the author believes. Nor is one convinced that Chamberlain can be so completely relieved of all responsibility for the Boer War. (Milner here bears all the burden). Nevertheless, Mrs. Mullin is effective in her account of South African history, and one closes the book deeply impressed with the genuine greatness of Smuts. J. F. DIVIDENDS FOR CITIZENSHIP. By J. L. Dobbins. (Suttonhouse, Ltd., New York.)

OFFERS yet another plan for a more equitable distribution of the nation's income. Guaranteed to work and yet neither "soak the rich nor harness the poor."

A Tragic Life

ELIZABETH, Empress of Austria. By Count Egon Corti. Translated by Catherine Allison Phillips. (Yale University Press, New Haven.)

IT was really Helene, eldest daughter of Duchess Ludovika in Bavaria, who was to have become Empress of Austria. It had all been arranged between Mama and Mama's sister, Archduchess Sophie, for Helene to marry Sophie's son, Emperor Francis Joseph. But Elizabeth, Helene's sister, went along to Austria on a visit, and—she and Francis Joseph fell in love. Mamas Ludovika and Sophie acceded to the demands of romance, so Elizabeth, at the age of 17, became an Empress.

Romance lingered but briefly, for with her imperial crown Elizabeth also acquired a mother-in-law, an ambitious, domineering one with great aspirations for Austria, which she ruled through her pliable son. To Sophie, Elizabeth was a mere chit of a girl, to be molded to Sophie's idea of a regal, pliant, but purely decorative Empress.

Already an introvert, restrictions increased Elizabeth's neuroses and impulse to withdraw into herself. She saw in everyone an enemy, exaggerated restrictions into persecution, and alienated most of the court. Her love for Francis Joseph added to her unhappiness, for affairs in the empire were discordant, and during her lifetime he lost the Italian provinces, and was defeated by Prussia. There were family tragedies—deaths and madness—which increased her melancholy, and culminated in the suicide in 1889 of her own son, Crown Prince Rudolf.

Yet, in spite of all her egocentricity, Count Corti has revealed Elizabeth as a lovable, decidedly superior personality; a kind, idealistic woman thrown into a world to which she was maladjusted, and from which she sought escape by the only avenues open to her. Those who saw her marveled at her beauty; the very few who knew her intimately marveled at her charm and gentleness. She had liberal leanings, and espoused the cause of Hungary. Her efforts had much to do with Hungary's release from the ignominious position of a subjugated province. She showered kindnesses on those she felt were her friends; risked herself to aid the unfortunate, and counterbalanced considerably the reactionary group of the Empire.

Nevertheless, her entire spiritual and material life was permeated with tragedy. She saw only futility, predicted Francis Joseph would be the last Emperor but one of Austria, regretted her marriage and often wished for death. The author comments that she would probably have forgiven the assassin who, with a pointed file, ended her life in Geneva in 1898.

Count Corti in compiling his biography had access to archives little known, and letters, personal diaries, and state records have enabled him to acquaint us with a human, understandable Elizabeth.

In Cockleshells

SOUTHERN CROSSING. By Philip Rigg. (E. P. Dutton & Co., New York.)

LIS SAILS THE ATLANTIC. By Lis Andersen. (E. P. Dutton & Co., New York.)

THESE two books bear witness that the breed that braves the savagery of the sea in cockleshells has not died out. Philip Rigg, an American in his early 20s, and Lis Andersen, 12-year-old Danish girl, both crossed the Atlantic in ketches 50-odd feet long and 20-some tons in displacement.

Knud Andersen, his wife, two sons, 6 and 3 years old, Lis and three helpers (serving for fun and no pay) put to sea much as motorists hit the highway in America. As Lis says, "We sold all our furniture and bought the Monsoon because father wanted to go to sea. * * * When we left Copenhagen we hadn't a penny." Lis gravely tells how the Monsoon and its crew accepted all things as they went on their way to Rio, Buenos Aires, Tristan Da Cunha, Cape of Good Hope, St. Helena, Barbados, New York and back to Copenhagen.

Despite storms, lost anchors, sails that fall to pieces, and the difficulties her father has in scraping money together by lecturing and selling articles to newspapers, Lis is always confident that all is well. When the tiny craft is in danger, she notes in her diary that the "enormous rushing waves" which make it "almost impossible to hear a word" are a "beautiful sight."

Rigg, sent by the owner of the Stortebeker to sail it back to Florida from Perama on Salamis Bay, where Greeks and Persians once struggled for supremacy, engaged a crew of three and set out on a trip that was to last six months. A sirocco from the African coast hit the Stortebeker, and Rigg found the Mediterranean "a lovely painted lady, falsely colored, gay, conceited, but charming with it all * * * a real sea, as vicious, hard and cruel as any other." The Stortebeker, however, stood up to blows that would have buried a smart, cranky yacht.

There were moments when Rigg forgot his hardships—as, for instance, when he saw a brilliant orange-red sun under a black sky with all the mountains of Sicily bathed in purple glory, and a full-rigged sailing ship appearing suddenly through a bank of mist, like an apparition from the past!

Only an insensitive reader will miss the tang of the sea or fail to appreciate the real craftsmanship with which Rigg tells his entertaining tale. R. R.

Says League Will Grow Stronger Despite Setbacks

tions in respect to a transgressor state."

Perturbed, Not Pessimistic.

Asked what were the real feelings of those behind the scenes at Geneva, Sweetser said:

"Naturally they are perturbed but they are not pessimistic nor discouraged. The necessity for some kind of international organization is so obvious and the progress that has been made in these past years is so striking that they see the future through a perspective of rapid but helpful evolution. The League is no more static than the world in which it finds itself. It is, on the contrary, open to change and adaptation in the freest possible way. It has existed for the briefest few years; it is, as it were, merely an embryo; unquestionably it will change greatly with the development of world life.

"The present picture presents several paradoxes. On the one hand, the League is in some ways weaker and in some ways stronger than ever before. It is weaker in the sense that many people have lost confidence following the Manchurian and Abyssinian crises in its efficacy as a force for preserving the political and territorial integrity of its members against aggression. It is stronger, on the other hand, because as a result of recent crises, it has been brought down from the rarefied atmosphere of pure idealism into the realm of stern realities. Governments and people who in the beginning lauded the League did so at a time when it meant no great sacrifice or risk. The League was an ideal to which it was easy to render lip service especially in the halcyon Briand-Stresemann-Locarno period. It was easy to be enthusiastic when problems were hypothetical and did not have to be materially defended. More recently, however, the League has come to grips with realities and its members have had to make definite sacrifices. The League has definitely gained in the process."

Another Paradox Presented.

The second paradox noticed these days, according to Sweetser, is the growth, side by side, of nationalism and internationalism. "It is an odd fact," he said, "that the world is more nationalistic and more international than ever before. Both tendencies have increased noticeably in the past few years. On the one hand, the individual nations are increasingly drawing within themselves, building up armaments and raising customs barriers. On the other hand, they are being driven always closer together by the development of industry, finance and communications.

"Just after the war there was a period of relative freedom and spaciousness when the various nations had room in which to move about and when trade flowed fairly freely. More recently, however, this spaciousness has tended to disappear; the nations have come into greater proximity and there has been a deep pressure on the one hand for self-sufficiency and on the other for wider co-operation. There is, as it were, a race between two conflicting tendencies and it is already only too clear that the triumph of the one means the certainty of war, while the triumph of the other will entail a great extension of the League and at least a possibility of peace."

Most Immediate Problem.

The most immediate problem, Sweetser said, was the Italo-Ethiopian dispute, which will come before the Special Assembly at the end of this month. While it is almost impossible to predict what will happen, there would seem to be several possible courses. The League might (a) reaffirm its denunciation of aggression by Italy and call for a continuation or even intensification of sanctions; (b) take note of the changed circumstances by adjourning any decision to September, leaving sanctions as they are; (c) recognize the new situation created by Italy's occupation of Ethiopia, and the apparent termination of war and thus rescind the sanctions as no longer pertinent, or (d) while rescinding sanctions, adopt a policy of non-recognition as in the case of Manchoukuo.

The next and more permanent problem, Sweetser said, is the best method of organizing international life in view of past experiences. That question probably will come up in September when the ordinary Assembly meets for its seventeenth session. Statesmen all over the world are now giving thought to it and definite proposals probably will be appearing shortly.

"The view at Geneva seems to be," according to Sweetser, "that it is not the Covenant but rather the policies of government which need reforming. More and more, indeed, the Covenant is being accepted abroad as an extraordinary political achievement. Any idea of scrapping it, of changing it fundamentally, or of abandoning it in the hope of creating a new document has ceased to exist. People realize that by no human possibility would it be likely that the nations would arrive at a new agreement as good or as practical as the present one. The tendency, therefore, is to hold on to what is in hand and try to start from that point with improvements.

No Opposition to Evolution.

"This is very far from meaning that there is any opposition to evolution or development. It is recognized that, whether rightly or wrongly, considerable elements within governments and public opinion desire changes to be made. The best procedure, therefore, is to recognize and even capitalize on this desire and to move forward with the times. It would be surprising indeed if the experience of these past years did not point a way to improvement.

"It is in the method of these changes, however, that the situation is becoming clearer. It seems to be increasingly felt that the right approach would be to regard the Covenant in the same exalted way as the Constitution of the United States, as a broad statement of general principals which should not be put in jeopardy except in most extreme crises, but which would be amplified and interpreted by special treaties, agreements or resolutions, which could in turn be amended without danger to the central edifice. Thus the Covenant itself would be, as it were, above dispute. If another crisis came, the impact would not be so much against the Covenant, which is the heart of the system, but against the interpretative agreement or resolution.

"In addition to this general question of method there seems to be an increasing clarification as to sanctions. There a sharper line than heretofore is being drawn between economic and financial sanctions on one hand and military sanctions on the other. The former must be approximately universal if they are to be successful; they can be so in that they are rather negative than positive acts which can be taken by each state within its own jurisdiction and without the use of force—a kind of definite non-intercourse, refusing to buy or sell in case of the violation of certain vital principles. Military sanctions, however, can best be local and in all probability will, at least at the outset, be only local, in that only those states which have direct material interests in the conflict are apt to risk their armed forces.

"While, as in the Abyssinian dispute, states all over the world will in certain circumstances agree to economic non-intercourse, it seems increasingly clear that it will not be possible to send Rumanian troops, for instance, to Latin America, or Argentine soldiers to Asia or Africa. It is quite possible that a clarification of these problems might greatly strengthen the League and remove certain hesitations and objections.

Points of Development.

There are many other points of possible development of the League, according to Sweetser, one of the most interesting of which is the growing tendency toward regional agreements.

"Another point of possible development," he said, "lies in the regional principle. Undoubtedly there is need in the world for co-operation amongst nations both within a given area and universally. The two principles are not at all in conflict; on the contrary, they are complementary. For that reason League circles look with interest and sympathy on the forthcoming Pan-American Conference called by President Roosevelt.

"Given all these circumstances," Sweetser concluded, "League circles in Europe are definitely optimistic for the future. They see clear possibilities of development and growth. The necessity for the League has, in their opinion, been amply proved; even the setbacks it has undoubtedly had can be turned to its advantage.

"Great Britain, still the world's largest empire, is centering her foreign policy around the League.

"Italy, despite all difficulties, clings tenaciously to its membership in the Geneva organization.

"The new French Government has turned decidedly toward the League and Premier Leon Blum has decided to seek again a general limitation and reduction of armaments.

"Soviet Russia is increasing her collaboration with Geneva and for the first time has sent a workers' delegate to the International Labor Conference.

"The neutral states—Sweden, Norway, Denmark, Holland, Switzerland, Spain—and others, have reacted violently against the possibility of losing the League.

"Germany has officially proposed rejoining.

"President Franklin D. Roosevelt, in calling the Pan-American Conference, has expressed the hope that it might help the League.

"In all these circumstances, despite the crises and disappointments, those intimately in touch with the League, its history and evolution, express the fullest confidence in its strength and its development."

CORONER'S VERDICT NAMES PEDDLER IN FATAL STABBING

Edward Wheeling Said to Have Admitted He Used Knife in Self-Defense.

A Coroner's verdict of homicide, returned yesterday, named Edward Wheeling, 46 years old, a peddler, in the fatal stabbing of Julius Lehmann, 41, a laborer, of 5115 McKissock avenue.

Lehmann was found cut in the abdomen at Broadway and East Prairie avenue June 16. He died at City Hospital Friday without making a statement. Police learned that Lehmann and Wheeling had been drinking together, and reported that they found a blood-stained knife at Wheeling's home, 2003A East Grand avenue.

Wheeling admitted the stabbing, according to officers, stating he drew a knife in self-defense after Lehmann struck him during an argument over matters involving their relatives. Wheeling did not testify at the inquest.

Police, in their report to the Coroner, said Wheeling told them he killed a man in 1912 and served two years in prison on a manslaughter charge.

Sing-Song Girls Must Go to School.

By the Associated Press.

PEIPING, China, June 27. — The Peiping Municipal Government has decreed all sing-song girls must enter school for at least three months. After that they will receive a "diploma in culture." Proprietors of the ancient capital's night spots protested bitterly against their girls being educated, arguing they would be "harder to control" and school attendance would interfere with their work.

"Sons O' Guns" Arrives To Celebrate the Fourth

Military Musical Comedy to Go on Municipal Opera Stage Tomorrow Night—Gil Lamb Returns as Dancing Star.

LOOKING forward to the patriotics of Independence day at the end of the week, Municipal Opera at 8:15 o'clock tomorrow night will present its first performance of "Sons O' Guns," musical comedy dealing with doughboys, Germans, pretty French girls and frolicsome kind of war Over There. "No, No, Nanette," third show of the season, finishes its run tonight.

"Sons O' Guns" will mark the return of Gil Lamb, dancing comedian who scored an outstanding individual success last season. Armida, Mexican singer and dancer, and Eddie Garr, stage comedian, will make their Municipal Opera debuts with the show, and as an added flourish, the production department has arranged for 50 soldiers from Jefferson Barracks to help out with the warfare, marching and such.

The musical comedy, new to Forest Park, was seen at the Shubert Theater in the last week of September, 1930, with Jack Haley and Gina Malo in the roles Lamb and Armida will have. William Frawley, now a featured player in pictures, had the part now assigned to Garr. "Sons O' Guns," through a run of nearly a year in New York, starred Jack Donahue, but Donahue became ill in Cincinnati, just before the show was to reach St. Louis, returned to New York and died there a few days later.

Donahue and Fred Thompson wrote the book, J. Fred Coots and Benny Davis the musical score and Arthur Swanstrom the lyrics. Among the songs the best known is "Why," with "It's You I love," "Cross Your Fingers," "Red Hot and Blue Rhythm," "I'm That Way Over You" and "May I Say I Love You" as the others featured.

Producing Director Laurence Schwab himself collaborated with Bobby Connolly in the original staging of the show.

Gil Lamb will portray Jimmy Canfield, the happy-go-lucky hero of the show, Armida will be Yvonne, his little French sweetheart and Garr will be Hobson, Jimmy's valet who later becomes his top-sergeant. In the recent, and unmusical picture version, Joe E. Brown, Joan Blondell and Eric Blore formed the same trio.

Armida, whose full name is Armida Vendrell, is a discovery of Gus Edwards, contributor of many famous theatrical stars, and visited St. Louis several years ago in his stage show. She toured the Orpheum circuit, appeared in various motion pictures, including "General Crack," "On the Border," "Under the Texas Moon," "Border Romance," "Under the Pampas Moon" and "The Marines Are Coming." When the Shuberts staged "Nina Rosa" in the indoor theater, she played Corinna. Lately she has been on the radio in the program called "Night Life in Paris."

EDDIE GARR, featured in "Strike Me Pink" and "Thumbs Up," has been in vaudeville for the last year, in the East and in London. He will play leading roles in "Libel," "Parnell" and "Hamlet" at Robert Henderson's Drama Festival at Ann Arbor, Mich., this summer.

Gil Lamb, too, has been in vaudeville since his last Municipal Opera appearance. His role in "Sunny" last summer was another which Jack Donahue had originally, and the two dancers have been compared frequently.

In two acts and 11 scenes, "Sons O' Guns" centers around a playboy, Jimmy Canfield, who has no desire to enter into the fracas in Europe until a designing lady, Bernice Pearce, gets on his trail with a breach of promise suit. Then he joins the colors, becomes a private and wakes up to a ludicrous existence in uniform. Involved in one escapade after another, he is suspected as a spy, is arrested, gets away and captures most of the German army single-handed.

Audrey Christie plays Bernice Pearce; Noel Francis is Mary Harper, society girl also interested in Jimmy; Earle MacVeigh is Arthur Travers; Bertram Peacock plays General Harper, Al Downing the easy-going Major Archibald Ponsonby-Falke, and John Cherry a British tommy. Victor Casmore, character actor well-known to opera audiences, returns to be a German spy, and Maury Tuckerman, of last season's casts but lately in the "May Wine" company in New York, will be his confederate. The Nonchalants, an acrobatic trio, will be seen as three captured Germans.

Going from one extreme of its repertory to another, Municipal Opera will follow "Sons O' Guns," a week apart tomorrow night, with Balfe's light opera, "The Bohemian Girl." Helen Gleason, young Metropolitan star, will sing Arline, Albert Mahler will do Thaddeus, and Detmar Poppen, Bertram Peacock, Inez Harvot, Earle MacVeigh and Zamah Cunningham, a newcomer, will make up the cast.

"Henry VIII" Reissued.

"The Private Life of Henry VIII," voted one of the 10 best pictures of 1933, is being reissued this summer, and will be played locally at the Ambassador Theater, beginning next Friday. In the cast are Charles Laughton, Robert Donat, Merle Oberon, Wendy Barrie and Binnie Barnes.

Little Symphony To Be Conducted By Hans Lange

HANS LANGE, associate conductor of the Philharmonic-Symphony Orchestra of New York and also of the Philharmonic Chamber Orchestra, of which he was the founder, will direct for the first time in St. Louis Tuesday evening when he takes charge of the Little Symphony, in the fifth of its current garden concerts at John Burroughs School. Lange, a nationally recognized authority on music of the small symphony orchestra, has arranged programs here that will consist largely of offerings from his concerts at Town Hall, New York, last winter.

The soloist for Tuesday's concert will be Laurent Torno, solo flutist of the summer orchestra as well as the St. Louis Symphony. Torno will play Luigi Boccherini's concerto for flute and strings, a work of simple charm and some brilliance which is characteristic of the polite music of the late Eighteenth Century in Italy.

Although the major offering on the program is Haydn's Maria Theresa symphony, Lange considers the Purcell string fantasias of equal or greater musical importance. They are miniature in proportions and are regarded as a delightful novelty, as well as a profound study in the technique of composition.

The modern work on Lange's program is Daniel Gregory Mason's "Scherzo Caprice," a light and animated piece, characterized by intricate rhythms and simple harmonies.

The complete program:

Sinfonia— — — — — — —Francois Gossec
Four Fantasias from "Three, Four and FivePart Fantasias for Strings," Henry Purcell
Concerto for Flute and Strings, Luigi Boccherini
Symphony No. 48 in C Major—Josef Haydn (Maria Theresa)
Scherzo Caprice — Daniel Gregory Mason

Harry Hill at Highlands.

Harry Hill, who weighs 300 pounds and is therefore billed as "the world's heaviest dance band director," will open a week's engagement with his orchestra at the Forest Park Highlands ballroom tonight. Isa Foster, singing trumpet player, will be featured.

Professional Jealousy, Canine.

Outdoor pictures, in which dogs play prominent roles, have caused a new type of annoyance in Hollywood. Casting offices are beset by pet owners who insist that Fido has just as much ability as Buck or Prince, the featured canines.

Amusement Calendar

MUNICIPAL OPERA—"Sons O' Guns," with Gil Lamb, Armida and Eddie Garr opens tomorrow night; last performance of "No, No, Nanette" this evening.

Motion Pictures

AMBASSADOR—"Parole," featuring Henry Hunter and Ann Preston; the Jones Family (Jed Prouty, Spring Byington and others) in "Educating Father"; also Louis-Schmeling fight pictures.

FOX—"I Stand Condemned," featuring Harry Baur, Laurence Olivier and Penelope Dudley-Ward; Douglas Fairbanks Jr. and Elissa Landi in "The Amateur Gentleman."

LOEW'S—Clark Gable and Jeanette MacDonald in "San Francisco," with Spencer Tracy and Jack Holt.

ORPHEUM—W. C. Fields in "Poppy," with Rochelle Hudson.

A Barbary Boss Is Reformed

"San Francisco" Quake Sets Clark Gable Right.

By COLVIN McPHERSON.

TURNING again to the days when San Francisco was "splendid and sensuous, vulgar and magnificent," the screen, at Loew's, takes new inspiration from the colorful bustlings on Barbary Coast, the social distance to Nob Hill and the terrific event of April 18, 1906. The treatment is not greatly different from that of "Frisco Kid" and "Barbary Coast" of recent memory, except that these latest producers have spent a great deal more money, have gone more into detail and have arranged an earthquake that is truly one of those miracles which only motion pictures can accomplish. "San Francisco," in the annals of the art, is not a great picture, but if it should be called such, here and there, it will be for its last 25 minutes. Every camera capacity is employed to show a great city falling to ruins. Huge sets go crashing into dust, panoramic destruction is achieved with cleverest process manipulation, and striking montage effects catch the horror of the inhabitants.

Until the town goes tumbling, "San Francisco" is only better-than-average entertainment. Clark Gable runs the Paradise, Jeanette MacDonald comes there looking for a job. One of the most notoriously sinful streets in the world becomes a vulgar but kindly place (thanks to movie censorship) where drinks are on the house, group singing is permitted and one may have the company of lovely blondes with birds on their hats. Clark himself is not wholly damned. His instincts cause him to give Jeanette a square deal all along; he endows Father Spencer Tracy's mission with a pipe organ, he grows righteously enraged at the lack of fire protection, he even, with poetic feeling, likes the fogs over the bay. Tracy sums it up: Clark is just a force for evil, instead of good, and the odds are that the shake-up is going to do something about it. Love with Jeanette helps some, but Jeanette has soon attracted an operatic impresario who comes to the Coast. She moves uptown and has not quite made up her mind about Clark when the earth gets nervous. Her singing, of course, grabs the spotlight now and then, much as prima donnas do while the delegates are quieting down at a political convention, since she must pinch-hit until the tremors get going. Her Jewel Song and Trio from "Faust" are thrilling, her "Holy City" a restored delight. And naturally, her rendition of "San Francisco," the title song, knocks the house down.

Spencer Tracy, as Gable's spiritual guardian, is a revelation. Quiet, soft-spoken and deeply reflective, he sounds overtones of devotion and loyalty that make "San Francisco" now and then unique. In the hour and 55 minutes that the film runs there is time, too, for a fine performance by Jessie Ralph as a Frisco washwoman-dowager, and a nice bit by Margaret Irving as Della, who would be, of course, Clark's castoff cutie.

Poppy.

THAT suave, shiftless and time-wasting old fraud that W. C. Fields always plays on the screen is back at the Orpheum in "Poppy," a vehicle which has served the gentleman on several other notable occasions. The public, I venture, has learned by now to accept Fields, as it does most of its comedians, for certain, shabby tricks that he does exceptionally well. With "Poppy" set in the 1880s, movie-goers will ready themselves for Fields in tall hat and Victorian manners, selling sarsaparilla tonic at a carnival and working the shell game on the side. In praising the wonders of nature or feminine beauty, he still wields the pseudo-scholarly vocabulary, the flights into metrical and foreign language. He still trips over croquet wickets, fumbles with a stiff shirt and suspenders and fiddles along with hat tricks. The movement of the piece centers about his efforts to get a fortune for his ward, Rochelle Hudson, and her romance with the Mayor's son. Catherine Doucet matches Fields' nonsense with a flighty portrayal of her own. The Orpheum uses the remainder of program time in displaying short subjects, chief of which is a color version of how "The Star-Spangled Banner" came to be.

I Stand Condemned.

ALTHOUGH its players may not be recognized by American film patrons, "I Stand Condemned," at the Fox, will occupy their leisure rather well. A triangle affair taking place in the Russia of 1916, it guards its direction quite carefully until the climax is reached. Laurence Olivier, who has played opposite Gloria Swanson, Ann Harding and Elissa Landi at times and was once mentioned for a Garbo picture, is cast as a Russian soldier who comes to Moscow to recuperate, falls in love with a pretty nurse and loses everything at the gaming tables of his hated rival, a war profiteer. The nurse is Penelope Dudley-Ward, who will be remembered, if at all, from "Escape Me Never," in which she chased around with Elisabeth Bergner's husband and brother-in-law. The war profiteer is Harry Baur, French character actor playing his first role in English. It is to Baur that honors go, for the opening of a peasant heart on the inside of a gross, baleful money-seeker. Espionage and counter-espionage form the theme of "I Stand Condemned" so a fancy bit of spying is done by Athene Seyler as the gray-haired Madame Sabline of the piece.

Second of the Fox listings is "The Amateur Gentleman," of which Douglas Fairbanks Jr. is star and co-producer. Rather too long for comfort, it tells of an innkeeper's son who sets out to prove his father innocent of robbery.

Parole.

ANOTHER of those plots fished from newspaper headlines is at the Ambassador. "Parole" offers the clean young man back of the great, gray walls; the old prisoner with a daughter on the outside and crooked work everywhere. How Henry Hunter frees the city from the oppression of political octopi is told without originality from one reel to the next. Alan Baxter again is the nice, murderous youth that he has been many times before. "Educating Father," second film, is for those who liked the Jones Family in "Every Saturday Night." It has to do with aviation and saving the lease on the old drug store.

The Louis-Schmeling fight pictures are still to be had, at the Ambassador, and the news-reels at various houses offer grasshoppers, caterpillars, horse races, and in one instance, a big-eared lad gulping five or six cups of water back of Senator Barkley during his Democratic convention speech.

Harry Baur and Penelope Dudley-Ward in "I Stand Condemned" at the Fox.

Marion Davies' Film Trimmed to Length Audience Thinks Best

WHEN "Hearts Divided," the new Marion Davies—Dick Powell picture is shown throughout the country, it will have a different ending than the one its producers originally planned, all because of the way a preview audience reacted.

There is one scene where an early American girl pleads with Napoleon Bonaparte in the cabin of a ship, telling of her true love for Napoleon's brother. Her efforts are in vain, and the film shows her departing, getting in a small boat, and then a fade-out, with the boat moving away in the distance. The audience thought it was the end of the entertainment and got up to leave, but sat down again as the feature proceeded 20 minutes further to a happy ending.

After the picture was over, a hasty conference was held. Without hesitation, the last 20 minutes were cut off to give the public what it logically would expect. History gains a point, too, for the story thereby is made to conform to actuality.

Charity Follows Stage Stars' Path Westward

Actors' Benefit, Traditionally of New York, Goes Hollywood This Year—Frohman Absolves Movies of Ruin to Legitimate Theater.

By H. H. NIEMEYER.

HOLLYWOOD, June 27.

YOU can get some idea of the importance of Hollywood to the stage, although few stage productions are made out here and fewer road shows venture this far from Broadway, in the announcement that the annual Actors' Fund benefit show will take place in Flickerville next Wednesday night instead of in New York, where it has always been held up to now. At admission prices ranging from $1 to $3, more than $50,000 will be raised for the fund which, under the direction of Daniel Frohman, is used to aid old actors whose acting days are over. There are more active actors from the stage in Hollywood than there are in New York and these, with the movie stars available, are expected to put on a show such as New York never saw even in the palmy days of the drama.

Mr. Frohman has been here for several weeks. The last of the really big producers of the golden era of the stage—his brother, Charles, the Haymans, Abe Erlanger, Marc Klaw and his other associates have all gone—does not admit that motion pictures played the chief part in the downfall of the older form of entertainment. What hurt the stage most, he declared the other day, was the practice of sending out No. 2 companies on the road minus the stars which made the plays famous in New York. In the old days the great stars looked upon their tours as part of their life. Without the modern comforts of travel they took to the road, after their New York runs were completed, and liked it. With the advent of higher salaries and the opportunities for a life of ease just around the corner from Broadway a newer generation of stage stars refused to leave the Big Town and turn their parts over to younger and unknown actors. Audiences around the country resented this but kept on going to the theater because it was the only theater they had. When the films came along the new entertainment was welcomed. Not as satisfactory entertainment, of course, but very good and much cheaper.

The movies, after a fashion, have adopted No. 2 companies also. That is, they make inferior pictures at a comparatively small cost and send them to the cinema palaces to be played in off seasons and to fill out the double feature programs. Call 'em "Class B pictures." Frequently they might be better termed Class G or K but, so far they have made a lot of money. Customers pay the same admission prices to see them that they pay for the established star offerings. Sometimes a picture, designated by the studio as a "B" offering, shows up so well at a Hollywood preview that it is moved into the "A" class right away and the price charged the exhibitors around the country is moved up at the same time.

Jeanette MacDonald in "San Francisco," Loew's Theater.

Some wag out here has suggested that the studios might send out real No. 2 companies by using the "stand-ins" for the stars. The lowly stand-ins face the cameras, go through all the motions and get $30 a week. Why not make the picture both ways and sell the starless casts at a cheaper price? The stage did it.

QUITE a few pictures could be made, however, out of the film cut from a single celluloid drama. All star offerings, too. For, contrary to general belief, "the face on the cutting room floor" is not the unknown likeness of a bit player. Rather it is a shot, or succession of shots, of Clark Gable, Greta Garbo, Claudette Colbert, Bette Davis, Dick Powell and other high-salaried actors. Many miles of such pictures are clipped out every year and not a tenth of the film devoted to the star of a picture is ever seen by the public.

Cutting room executives have, at times, written plays for their own amusement around the clippings from a dozen big pictures, pasted them together and made pretty consistent affairs out of the wasted material. None of these has ever been shown to theater patrons but it is an inexpensive possibility any time.

For that, and other reasons, the cutting room floor is rather closely guarded. Film pirates could reap a harvest, in other countries, if they could just be left alone in the room for a few minutes. Think of what a clean-up could be made with a film in Japan or Czechoslovakia or even Germany or France if it boasted a cast made up of Gable, Dietrich, Errol Flynn, Kay Francis, Mae West and Shirley Temple. The jerky dialogue, being in English, wouldn't make any difference for the printed and superimposed titles could, and probably would, tell a thrilling story. There were plenty of get-rich-quick boys on the fringe of the big studios who would pay a half million dollars for just a mile of such clippings and be certain of handsome returns.

HEARD ALONG THE BOULEVARD—England, which refused to permit a presentation of the stage play, "The Green Pastures," has also placed a ban on the film version and Canada has followed suit. . . . Picturization of "De Lawd" is the reason. . . . "The Beloved Vagabond" is to be made by a London company, with Maurice Chevalier as the star, for American consumption. . . . "Tish," which M-G-M had ready for Marie Dressler at the time of her death, is finally to be made with Edna May Oliver in the title role. . . . Dorothy Lamour, well known to radio audiences, has been given a contract by Paramount. . . . Joan Woodbury, working in "A Son Comes Home," was a Spanish dancer known as Nana, who succeeded Margo in a floor show at Agua Caliente when Margo was catapulted into the films. . . . Joan Blondell will have the leading feminine role in "Three Men on a Horse," which goes into production next week. . . . Sammy White, well-known to Municipal Opera audiences in Forest Park, has been cast for a dancing role in "Cain and Mable." . . . W. C. Fields is reported well on the road to recovery in a Riverside hospital but still spends several hours every day in an oxygen tent.

New Features and Changes Scheduled on Station KSD

Dr. Dafoe to Tell About Quintuplets on Morgan L. Eastman Program—Lamp-Lighter to Take Place of Voice of Experience—Himber Orchestra Shifts to Monday—Writer Takes Over Phillips Lord "Thrills".

DR. ALLAN DAFOE'S first talk on KSD's Morgan L. Eastman program as physician to the Dionne quintuplets is scheduled at 8 o'clock tomorrow night. He will speak once a month during the summer on this program, and is expected to deal chiefly with the quintuplets and their life in the hospital at Callender, Ont. He will go to Toronto for the broadcasts.

Franchot Tone and Joan Crawford, the movie actors, and Dixie Lee, wife of Bing Crosby, will make their appearance on Smith Ballew's KSD Chauteau program at 7:30 next Saturday night. They were billed for last evening, but the Ballew program was canceled because of the Democratic notification ceremonies and President Roosevelt's speech.

"Chopin," a drama with music of the life of the great composer, will be broadcast for the third time, from 8 to 9 p. m. next Sunday on the WEAF network and KSD. Milan Smolen will play the piano in the interludes devoted to Chopin's piano virtuosity.

Fibber McGee on KSD Tomorrow.

FIBBER McGEE AND MOLLY'S weekly program, with Ted Weems' orchestra furnishing the music, will become a KSD feature at 6 o'clock tomorrow evening. The mythical town of Wishful Villa, locale of much of the funmaking, will open its election during the program tomorrow. The role of Fibber is played by Jim Jordan, comedian and tall story teller, while his wife, Marian Jordan, plays Molly. Don Quinn, author of the Fibber and Molly scripts, uses situational comedy to bring out Fibber's talents at stretching the truth and Molly's competence as a heckler. Fibber was recently acclaimed as world's champion liar by the Liars' Club of Burlington, Wis.

Beginning tomorrow at 7:30 p. m. Richard Himber's orchestra will play on KSD Mondays instead of Fridays. Himber has established a reputation for musical innovations. His harp interludes and use of the celeste have made his dance music concerts distinctive.

Frankie Masters, his orchestra and entertainers are scheduled again this week on KSD, at 10:30 tonight, 11 p. m. Monday through Friday and 9:30 p. m. Saturday.

Tarshish to Substitute for Voice of Experience.

JACOB TARSHISH, known to listeners as "The Lamplighter," will substitute for the Voice of Experience on KSD during the latter's vacation, from next Thursday until Aug. 19. Tarshish, born in Lithuania, was brought to this country as a baby, lived in Baltimore and with degrees from Hebrew Union College, the University of Cincinnati and Lehigh University. He began broadcasting at Columbus, O., won a large following with philosophical talks, and has been featured on WLW and the Mutual network. This will be the second summer that he has taken the place of the Voice of Experience.

William Hirth, candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor of Missouri, will speak on KSD at 8:30 tomorrow night.

Gov. Guy B. Park, Mayor Dickmann, Walter P. Chrysler and Frank A. McKowne are among speakers scheduled for a broadcast on KSD at 2 p. m. Wednesday, when air conditioning will be the topic.

Charles Martin, a radio writer, has taken over Phillips Lord's three-minute thrill feature on KSD's Tuesday night Leo Reisman program, and plans to present well-known persons who have had thrilling experiences as well as those from the ordinary walks of life. This week, he will introduce Art Caperton, a World War ace, a close friend of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and formerly pilot for William K. Vanderbilt. Caperton will relate the rescue of a crew whose plane fell into the sea when battling a typhoon 70 miles off Tahiti.

A Salute to Canada program, including a brief dramatization of the history of the Dominion, will be a KSD and WEAF net feature at 10:15 a. m. Wednesday.

A half hour of Fourth of July music and entertainment will be broadcast on KSD and the WEAF net and short-waved for Britain at 1 p. m. Saturday. The 48-gun salute to the States at Fort Jay, on Governor's Island in New York Harbor, and a military ceremony will be carried on the WEAF chain at 10 a. m. Saturday. The senior events at the A. A. U. championships will be covered on the WEAF or WJZ net Saturday at 1:45 p. m., on the WEAF net and 3:45 and 5 p. m. on the WJZ net. Another Fourth of July feature will come on KSD and the WEAF and WJZ nets at 5:30 p. m. It will be a dramatization by the Canadian Radio Commission of incidents in the life of George Washington.

Anne Amison, the lyric soprano, will rejoin the Hollywood Hotel cast Friday night in her original role of "Virginia," replacing Jean Dickenen, who has had the part for the past few weeks.

Buenos Aires Station Now On Air Daily

A CANADIAN Dominion day program is set for 5 p. m. and 8 p. m. Wednesday on the British stations. The entertainers and speakers will be Canadians.

An interesting Travel Talk program is carried by EAQ, Madrid, at 6:15 p. m. Saturdays.

After many weeks of experimenting, "Radio El Mundo," at Buenos Aires, is now broadcasting regularly on 15.28 megacycles, according to an announcement from the station. "Radio El Mundo" has for its call letters, LRU. Its sister station, LRX, on 9.58 megacycles, has not yet gone into regular operation because of interference with GSC, at Daventry. The schedule announced for LRU is from 6 a. m. to 2:45 p. m.

A communication just received from Inna Marr, chief editor of Radio Centre at Moscow, reveals that the Soviet stations are now broadcasting in English on 9.52, 15.10 and 15.18 megacycles, in addition to 12 megacycles. DR. ALLAN ROY DAFOE

PHYSICIAN to the Dionne Quintuplets who will speak at 8 o'clock tomorrow night on KSD's Morgan L. Eastman program.

Gold Mine Broadcast Tuesday.

THE first broadcast from a gold mine in operation is set for 12:30 noon, Tuesday, on the WEAF and WJZ chains. It will come from the Portland Mine, in the Cripple Creek region of Colorado, and will begin with a description of the scene at the entrance to the mine.

The second set-up will be in the skip, or elevator, in which an announcer will travel down the 3100-foot shaft to the present base of operations, describing the drop and the control of the two ore buckets attached to the bottom of the skip.

The third set-up will be at the end of the deepest tunnel where the actual mining of gold is under way, and the fourth will be in the middle of an ore tunnel midway to the surface.

The Portland Mine is situated on the south slope of Battle Mountain, 10,000 feet above sea level. It is one of the oldest in the Cripple Creek district.

Frazier Hunt will review the Democratic national convention at 3 p. m. tomorrow on the WJZ chain. His talk also will be short-waved for reception in England.

Gossip of the Studios

BENNY FIELDS.

FRED ASTAIRE'S fall program, scheduled to begin Sept. 8 and to be broadcast Tuesdays at 8 p. m., will be carried by KSD and the WEAF network. Astaire will be supported by Johnny Green's orchestra. . . . The fourth anniversary on the air of KSD's Vic and Sade serial will come tomorrow. Written by Paul Rhymer, the script roles are played by Art Van Harvey, Bernardine Flynn and Billy Idelson. . . . Charles Lyon, an actor who has become one of the featured NBC announcers, has been selected as master of ceremonies for Clara, Lou and Em's new series at 7:30 Friday nights on the WJZ net and KWK. . . . Henry Burr, the tenor known to millions for his records, who has been singing for more than two years on the National Barn Dance program is taking a vacation in the Adirondacks. . . .

Approval of the Star-Times' purchase of KFRU, Columbia, Mo., has been given by the Federal Communications Commission . . . The final episode of the Boy Edison CBS net series was that of last Friday. A second series of much the same character is planned for the fall. . . . Louise Massey and the Westerners, now on KSD's Thursday Show Boat, have been engaged for weekly programs that also will feature John Milton, a character actor, in the role of an old cow hand on a dude ranch. . . . Mary Pickford, whose radio programs were concluded last Sunday, expects to sail for Europe early in July and to remain abroad most of the summer. . . . Winifred Cecil, the soprano of the Show Boat, departed the other day for Europe. . . . KSD's O'Neills serial, broadcast at 1:45 p. m. Monday through Friday, has been renewed by its sponsor for another year. . . .

Harry Salter and Harry Sosnick's orchestra will succeed Freddie Rich's band on his Hit Parade programs, beginning Aug. 1. Salter will be featured the first seven weeks, then Sosnick for six weeks, after which Salter's band will play for six weeks and then Sosnick's for seven. . . . There is more than a possibility that the Good Will Court, now on WGN, WLW and the Mutual net, may become a coast-to-coast network feature. This program comes from WMCA, New York, and brings true experiences of people submitting their problems to various New York magistrates. . . . The title of the serial which has been broadcast by KSD at 1 p. m. Monday through Friday as "Forever Young" has been definitely changed to "Pepper Young's Family." The change resulted from a suggestion by Fred Allen. . . . Ed Wynn expects to conclude his current series on Aug. 4. . . . The Jack Armstrong serial will be back on the WEAF net Aug. 31 three times a week.

The First Nighter dramatic series will be back on KSD and the WEAF chain Sept. 4, but probably only for half an hour weekly. A program similar to the Grand Hotel, which went off the air a while ago, is being considered, but this, too, is likely to be restricted to half an hour. It is planned to start it early in October.

Talk in New York, the magazine, Variety says, is that WSM, the 50,000 station at Nashville, is preparing to cut loose from the WEAF and WJZ networks and to join WGN, Chicago; WLW, Cincinnati, and WOR, Newark, N. J., the Mutual network. WSM is expected to apply for an increase of power to 500,000 watts. Other stations which already have asked for 500,000 watts are WJZ, New York, key station of the WJZ chain; WGN; WHO, Des Moines, Iowa; WHAS, Louisville; KNX, Los Angeles, and WJR, Detroit. Several other stations, among them WSB, Atlanta, may join the rush of clear channel stations for super power. At present, WLW is the only station using half a million watts power.

H. V. Kaltenborn, the CBS political commentator, will sail for Europe this week to interview leaders of the various governments, and will broadcast the first of a series of interviews at 4 p. m. Saturday, July 11, when he will speak in London. . . . Robert L. Ripley's final program for the summer will be that of next Sunday. He plans an airplane trip around the world to collect more "Believe It or Nots" for the fall radio season. His time on the WJZ net and KWK for the next three months will be taken by "Husbands and Wives," in which listeners will be taken before microphones for interviews on every day problems of domestic life. . . .

When Kate Smith returns to radio in September, she will be her own impressario for an hour-long variety hour at 6 p. m. Thursdays on the CBS network. . . .

Stoopnagle and Budd Take Over Fred Allen's Period — Crumit and Sanderson, Benny Fields and Rupert Hughes Head New Programs.

By J. L. S.

FIBBER McGEE AND MOLLY, who will go on KSD tomorrow evening, will be featured at 12 noon today on the WJZ net and KWK with Rudolph Ganz, the pianist, formerly conductor of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra; Ruth Etting, and Frank Black's symphony orchestra.

Stoopnagle and Budd are slated to take over Fred Allen's Town Hall Tonight program on KSD next Wednesday. Allen and Portland Hoffa, his wife, plan to go to Maine for a long vacation. Amateurs will continue to be featured on the program, and Peter Van Steeden will remain as leader of the orchestra.

A new "Ma and Pa" serial, built around a lovable couple who operate a sandwich shop somewhere on Cape Cod, will be carried by the CBS net and KMOX at 4 p. m. Sundays. Parker Fennelly, who will play "Pa," will be remembered for his work in the Stebbins Brothers radio series and in other "Down East" roles.

Morton Bowe, the tenor, has been added to the cast of the show, starring Don Wilson as master of ceremonies; Tim and Irene, the comedy team, and Don Voorhees' orchestra, which will replace Jack Benny at 5 p. m. today for the summer.

Frank Crumit and Julia Sanderson, the Seven G's and Hal Kemp's orchestra will take over Phil Baker's program for the summer at 5:30 this afternoon. Crumit and Sanderson plan to feature burlesque song sketches as well as sing. Today their skit will be based on "You're a Heavenly Thing," indicating what might have occurred if the girl of the song had not turned out as perfect as she was supposed to be.

New Programs On the Networks.

JEANETTE MacDONALD, the movie actress, will be starred in "Irene," the play with music, in the Radio Theater tomorrow night. Cecil de Mille will direct the performance.

Irene Wicker, in New York for the summer, will broadcast her Singing Lady programs from the Radio City studios of the NBC, beginning tomorrow. She is scheduled on the WJZ net at 3:30 p. m. Monday through Friday. Milton Rettenberg will replace Alan Grant as her accompanist while she is away from Chicago.

A "Salute to the Modern Newspaper" is set for 6 p. m. tomorrow on the WJZ net. It will feature a radio play, written by Charles A. Wright, an instructor in journalism at Temple University, which won a contest for newspaper men throughout the country.

Fred Waring's program Tuesday nights on the CBS net and KMOX will be shifted this week and throughout the summer to the 7-7:30 period the same evenings.

The opening of the new series featuring Rupert Hughes, the novelist, as master of ceremonies with Nat Shilkret's orchestra and Benny Goodman's "swing band," is scheduled at 7:30 Tuesday night. Each program will be for a full hour, and will come from Hollywood. Clark Gable and Madeleine Carroll are billed for the opening program, as well as Gladys Swarthout.

Ted Hammerstein's Music Hall of the Air will become a CBS chain and KMOX weekly feature at 6 p. m. Tuesday. Hammerstein will continue as master of ceremonies, and Lucy Laughlin will sing as in the past. A newcomer to the period will be Jerry Mann, vaudeville and radio comedian.

Jefferson Barracks Broadcast July 4.

A FOURTH OF JULY broadcast from Jefferson Barracks, St. Louis, is set for 11:30 in the morning on the CBS network and KMOX. It will include a description of guard mount, music by the Sixth Infantry band and the 48-gun salute to the nation. There will also be a dramatic sketch, played on the parade ground and depicting briefly episodes in the history of Jefferson Barracks and in the lives of Gen. Robert E. Lee, Gen. Sherman, Jefferson Davis and other historical personages.

Patsy Kelly, the young film comedienne, is billed with Ben Bernie for next Tuesday evening.

Benny Fields is not to replace Kate Smith after all. His new program on the CBS net and KMOX is now set to begin at 5:30 p. m. next Wednesday and to be broadcast at that time each Wednesday and Friday. Kate Smith's time Tuesdays and Thursdays will be filled by an orchestra under her name. Fields will be supported by Lud Gluskin's orchestra.

Andre Kostelanetz' new dance music series, Wednesdays, will start this week. Kay Thompson, the Rhythm Singers and Ray Heatherton, baritone, will be the featured entertainers.

Television Experiment This Week

Out-of-Laboratory Tests of Picture Sending and Receiving May Begin Tomorrow in New York.

FOR the field tests of television scheduled to begin this week, possibly tomorrow, in New York a 7500-watt ultra short wave transmitter has been erected in the Empire State Building with an aerial designed for low angle radiation within a radius of about 30 miles. Television studios have been built in the NBC Radio City studios, which is about a mile from the Empire State Building. These studios are connected to the Empire State Building transmitter by a wide range coaxial cable and a very high frequency radio service.

A hundred or so special 33-tube receivers have been installed in homes within the 30-mile transmission radius. The carrier frequency used will be somewhere above 42 megacycles, and the pictures will be transmitted 343 lines, 30 frames per second in the two-to-one, odd-line method.

The tests will be wholly experimental, and will be made with every effort to simulate conditions under which practical television transmission and reception must be carried out. They will include listener reaction and progress in studio picture technique.

Everything to be learned about the tests and the stage of development in television reached, to say nothing of the probability that soon entirely different standards may be adopted, supports the belief that television in the home will be only something to dream about for several years, if not longer.

When television sending and receiving apparatus do reach the stage when listeners in New York and Philadelphia, and later, possibly, Chicago, can enjoy home television, it may be several years later or longer before there will be practical television in other cities.

Spokesmen for the Federal Government told representatives of the radio industry that Governmental agencies were not trying to monopolize new channels in the radio spectrum which also must serve television and other radio facilities.

E O. Sykes, a Federal Communications Commissioner, explained this to the fact finding hearing called by the Commission to establish a background for television and other radio uses when high-frequency channels are assigned.

Some speakers at the conference criticized the demand by Federal agencies for much of the space in this new field.

Sykes also is a member of the inter-department radio advisory committee which assigns radio channels for Governmental use. He said that suggestions made by a Government spokesman when the conference opened were not intended to exclude private interests, but were of a preliminary character, and that the Federal agencies were anxious to co-operate with private and non-Governmental representatives.

Police-radio spokesmen told the conference of the need of law enforcement agencies for more radio facilities.

Lieut. George Kinsey of the Ohio State police, said 10 State radio systems now were in use and that eight other states planned networks soon.

He said that only four of the 12 radio channels now assigned for State police work were clear.

Another Rapee Concert This Evening on KSD

Virginia Rea and Jan Peerce Soloists — Two-Hour Symphony Broadcast at 6:30 Today on KMOX.

ONE more Erno Rapee symphony concert will be broadcast, at 8 o'clock tonight on KSD, with Virginia Rea, the "Olive Palmer" of several years ago, and Jan Peerce, the tenor, as the soloists. Miss Rae will sing the "Bird Song" from Pagliacci and Peerce, Rudolfo's great aria from "La Bohme," and they will join the orchestra in songs and other music from Friml's "The Firefly." The overture to "The Marriage of Figaro," Albenitz' "Tango in D," the Berlioz "Rakoczy March" and the waltzes from Strauss' "Der Rosenkavalier" are programmed for the orchestra.

Albert Spalding, the violinist, will be the soloist in the first of the CBS network's Sunday symphony concerts from Robin Hood Dell, in Fairmont Park, Philadelphia, which will begin at 6:30 this evening. with KMOX listed to pick it up at 7 o'clock and carry it until 8:30. He will play the Mendelssohn E-minor concerto. Alexander Smallens, who will conduct, also has programmed Schubert's "Rosamunde" overture, the Wagner "Siegfried Idyl" and Strauss' "Don Juan" tone poem. The orchestra is made up mainly of members of the Philadelphia Symphony.

The Radio City concert, at 10:30 this morning on the WJZ net and KWK, will be played by a string quartet and Henrietta Schumann, pianist. The program includes Dohanyi's Quintet in E-flat minor, the second movement of Schubert's quartet No. 6 in D-minor, the Tschaikowsky "Andante Cantabile" and the first movement of Brahms' Quintet, Opus 34.

A concert by the London Symphony Orchestra will be broadcast from England over KSD and the WEAF network at 2:30 this afternoon. The conductor will be Eugene Ormondy, director of the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra, who has been selected to succeed Leopold Stokowski as regular conductor of the Philadelphia Symphony.

Other concerts today include one by the Kreiner Quartet at 12 noon on the CBS net; Howard Barlow's symphony concert at 1 p. m. on the CBS net (at 1:30 on KMOX); the Canadian Grenadier Band on KWK at 4 p. m. and KSD'S Fireside Recital at 5:30 p. m.

Broadcasting of the concerts in Grant Park, Chicago, will begin this week, with the Chicago Symphony Orchestra opening the series. These concerts are scheduled regularly on the WJZ network from 7 to 8 p. m. Wednesday and 8 to 8:30 p. m. Friday. Parts of the concerts Thursday and next Sunday also may be broadcast by the same chain. WGN, Chicago (720 kc.) and the Mutual network plan to broadcast these concerts regularly from 7:30 to 8 p. m. Mondays, Wednesdays, Thursdays and Sundays, beginning July 1. The soloist in Wednesday's concert probably will be Vivian della Chiesa, the young Chicago soprano who has been featured in network concerts and engaged for the Chicago City Opera season.

Margaret Speaks will sing as usual at 6:30 tomorrow evening on KSD. Lily Pons probably will conclude her radio series at 7 p. m. Wednesday on KMOX. Another concert by the Portland Symphony Orchestra is scheduled from 6 to 7 o'clock Thursday night on the CBS net. KMOX and WBBM (670), and the Boston Symphony "Pop" concert at 6:30 Saturday over KWK.

A Pan-American Union concert by the U. S. Army Band and Rolalmira Colomo, a Mexican contralto, will be carried by the WJZ chain at 8 p. m. Thursday.

Negotiations to add the Don Lee network in California and a station in Denver to the Mutual network have been completed, and the chain plans to begin transcontinental operation not later than Dec. 29.

An American Legion Fourth of July program is scheduled on KSD and the WEAF network at 5:15 p. m. Saturday. It will include an address by National Commander Ray Murphy.

Stunt and Formation Flying on Program of Jimmie Allen Air Races

Elaborate Aerial Circus and Model Plane Competition at Lambert Field on July 4.

The schedule of events for the Jimmy Allen Air Races and aerial circus on Fourth of July afternoon at Lambert-St. Louis Airport will start at 12 o'clock noon. There will be stunt and formation flying by noted aviators and the Naval Reserve and 110th Observation Squadron of the Missouri National Guard for two hours before and after the model plane races for boys and girls, which will occupy the time from 2 to 4 o'clock. The program will continue until 10:30 p. m., concluding with a fireworks display and an illuminated parachute jump.

The races will be sponsored by the Lambert-St. Louis Airport Association and St. Louis Post, No. 4, of the American Legion. Boys and girls can learn all about the rules and other details at Skelly filling stations.

The afternoon's program follows:

12 noon to 12:45 o'clock, formation flying by the 110th Observation Squadron.

1:00-1:30 p. m.—C. B. McMahan, acrobatics and stunt flying.

1:30-2:00 p. m.—J. Malone, spinning, snap rolls, slow rolls, inverted flying, bursting balloons and ribbon cutting.

2:00-4:00 p. m.—Jimmie Allen air races.

3:30-4:00 p. m.—C. B. McMahan and J. Malone, double acrobatics exhibition.

4:00-4:45 p. m.—U. S. Naval Reserve, formation flying, machine gun approaches on towed targets, dive bombing.

5:00 p. m.—Jimmie Allen prize awards and take-off of delayed parachute jumper.

6:00 p. m.—Delayed parachute jump by Al Harmon from 10,000 feet, opening parachute at 2000 feet, using smoke trailer.

6:30 p. m.-8:30 p. m.—Special program by Lambert-St. Louis Airport Association.

8:30-10:30 p. m.—Fireworks display.

10:30 p. m.—Illuminated parachute jump.

The model plane races will be for members of the Jimmie Allen Flying Clubs, which have a large membership in this region. Flying Cadets, as the club members are called, will compete with one-ounce Sky Raider planes. Competition will be in two divisions, one for boys and girls 16 years old and younger, the other for youngsters over 17. It is expected that at least 150 competitors will be on hand for the start of the races.

It requires skill, pains and usually 75 to 100 hours of careful work to build one of these model planes. The motor of the plane is 30 feet of rubber band. The wing spread of the plane is 26 inches. The winner in each division in the races will get a one-cylinder gasoline motor and materials with which to build a model plane with a wing spread of eight feet.

Hudson-Frampton Co. Again Gets Sales Award

The Hudson-Frampton Motor Car Co. has again received a special award from the Hudson Motor Car Co. factory for achievement in the sale of Hudsons and Terraplanes.

The Hudson Frampton Co. won a special merit award for sales performance in April and got the second award for having exceeded April sales in May.

Auto Test Startles Spectator Who Thinks Driver Has Gone Mad

Besides its 500-acre proving ground at Utica, Mich., where most of the Packard testing is done, the Packard Motor Car Co. has a "junior" proving ground inside of its plant at Detroit. It is equipped with roads designed to impose terrific shocks on a car.

All day an engineer had been testing front springs by driving a car at high speed over the roughest kind of a Belgian cobble stone road and applying brakes with their maximum power just as the front wheels struck an especially hard bump. Each time the whole car leaped into the air, all four wheels clear of the road. After each crash the test driver, Ray Barrow, made a careful inspection of the springs.

A spectator on a street which runs past the "junior" proving grounds watched the performance for a half hour, then ran to the watchman at the gate of the plant and breathlessly reported: "One of your drivers has gone crazy. He's going to smash one of your new cars all to pieces and probably hurt himself. You'd better get some cops out here in a hurry and take care of him."

The watchman, who for years has seen Packard cars put through all kinds of tests, refused to become excited. The test continued for several days with amazed spectators lining the fence most of the time.

Goodyear Advertising In 4000 Newspapers For Touring Season

The advertising columns of more than 4000 newspapers throughout the country are lending impetus to the current nationwide Goodyear "Blue Ribbon" campaign, according to C. M. Van Epps, manager of Goodyear Service, Twenty-second and Locusts.

The Blue Ribbon campaign is designed to emphasize to motorists the safety factors behind the purchase of new tires at the beginning of the touring season, as well as the "Blube Ribbon" aspects of the Goodyear line.

"The Goodyear advertising schedule in newspapers for May was 10 per cent greater than in the corresponding month a year ago, and materially increased over April," he said.

"With a new Double Eagle Airwheel just announced, and such exclusive features as supertwist cord and the Goodyear margin of safety built into every tire, and with a flood of plus business forecast by such indices as increased car sales and higher manufacturing payrolls, we feel safe in predicting for Goodyear the best touring season sales since 1929."

Chevrolet Co. Sales by June 12 Exceed 1928 6-Month Peak

W. E. Holler, vice-president and general sales manager of Chevrolet Motor Co., announces that on June 12 the company's sales this year had surpassed 582,964 units, a figure that has stood since 1928 as the company's all-time record for the entire first half of any year. By the end of June, said Holler, 1936 sales will have exceeded any previous record for the first six months by approximately 80,000 units.

Sales in the first half of last year were 436,669, a total that was passed this year before May 10. This figure will be exceeded by 50 per cent, it is estimated, in the same period this year.

Driver Handicapped Physically Avoids Any Accidents for 20 Years

Twenty years ago, Barney Oldfield gave driving lessons to a friend, Alfred Leroy, who had one arm and no legs. Oldfield and his pupil met again recently while Leroy was taking delivery of a new Dodge coupe equipped with modified controls enabling him to manipulate clutch, gear shift, steering, throttle, etc., by means other than are provided for the average driver.

Of special interest to Oldfield was the information that his pupil had driven throughout the 20 years without figuring in a traffic accident.

Auto Caravans Travel 1200 Miles of Desert Despite Rough Going

Sometimes Cars Can Make Only 60 Miles in Day—Stop Wherever Nightfall Finds Them.

Motor caravans are now being operated across 1200 miles of desert in China. Mail, passengers and freight are transported by the caravans between Suikiang Province, 350 miles northwest of Tientsin, and the more remote Sinkiang Province, in Chinese Turkestan, to the West. This "Sin Sui" line, maintained by the Sinkiang Suiyuan Automobile Transportation Co., is the only practical connecting link between Suiyuan Province and the interior.

Sandstorms and blizzards must be battled by caravan vehicles, running on well-nigh impossible surfaces. There is travel one day across and through the ice of a desert stream, the next day on sand, and the following day on sand blanketed with six inches of snow. Progress is sometimes limited to 60 miles a day, and often a driver cannot shift into high gear more than three or four times in nine hours of driving.

The caravans, comprising 12 Ford cars,, leave the line's East and West terminals simultaneously, passing in mid-desert. They are usually en route 12 or 14 days. In that time the only habitations seen are infrequent, lone huts of felt and wood frame.

Drivers and passengers must bundle in voluminous garments for protection against the severe cold. Overnight stops are made wherever nightfall finds them, and all caravan members prepare their tents and bedrolls. The ground may be coated with snow or ice, but there is no choice of sleeping quarters.

The Chinese crew displays an amazing esprit de corps in the face of great difficulties. The Sin Sui route follows the Hami road which, while it is the longest single highway in the world, has never seen a grader or other road-improvement device.

Snowdrifts frequently halt the leading car, but shovel-wielding drivers and truckers toss them aside speedily, and the Fords push on, loaded high with every imaginable article traded in by the peoples of Suiyuan and Sinkiang. Despite chilled hands and sand-stung eyes, the Chinese mechanics are rarely halted more than 10 or 15 minutes when breakdowns occur.

While the Sin Sui line has on regular schedule two 12-car caravans, it has ready for use more than 20 other Fords, for emergency trips are often necessary.

West-bound passengers must procure from Sheng Shih-tsai, Governor of Sinkiang, his permission to enter his province. None may enter it without his approval.

Modern Auto Repair Named Distributer of Oil Clarifier

The Modern Auto Repair Co., 4601 Olive street has been appointed distributer in St. Louis and surrounding territory by the W. G. B. Oil Clarifier Co., Inc., of Kingston, N. Y., both for sales and service on the W. G. B. Oil Clarifier.

It is claimed that with this new improved cleaner a considerable saving in car costs is possible.

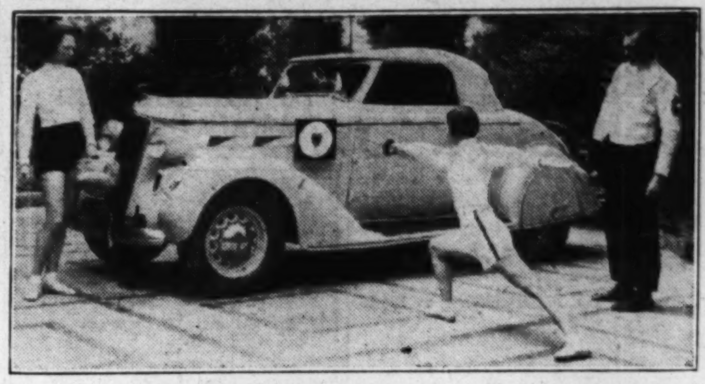
Novel Fencing Experiment



Bela E. de Tuscan, nationally-known fencing coach and developer of American and Canadian women national fencing champions, instructing one of his pupils in the full lunge. With the engine of the De Soto Airstream convertible coupe turning over at a 40-mile-an-hour clip, de Tuscan registered a perfect 10-out-of-10 score lunging at the target at a distance of nine and a half feet. De Soto's patented floating power engine mountings cushioned the car frame and body from motor vibration and the target did not move.

Colorful License Plates.

In Hawaii, where colorful foliage and bright dresses are plentiful, motorists will become comparatively sedate with their 1937 license plates. Orders specify blue lettering on a field of white, replacing this year's green background.

Large Attendance at "Family Parties" Held by Chevrolet Co.

More than 120,000 Chevrolet workers throughout the United States and their families and friends have gained a greater understanding of the Chevrolet Motor Co., its policies and its products as a result of the "Family Parties" which have been held in 14 of the company's manufacturing and assembly plant cities in the past two months.

Forty-two separate performances were held, each lasting two hour and requiring a company of more than 40 performances for its presentation. Eight acts of big-time vaudeville and motion pictures showing the craftsmanship which enters into the building of Chevrolet cars and trucks, composed the program in each instance.

Performances were held in Saginaw, Bay City, Flint and Detroit, Mich.; Buffalo, N. Y.; Norwood, O.; Muncie and Indianapolis, Ind.; Janesville, Wis.; Kansas City and St. Louis, Mo.; Atlanta, Ga.; Baltimore, Md., and Bloomfield, N. J., the number of shows in the various places ranging from one to seven, and the attendance ranging from 1800 at Bloomfield to 27,500 at Flint. In Detroit, 22,600 persons saw the performances, which were held in the Masonic Temple auditorium over a three-day period.

New County Road Map Issued By Auto Club

A new road map of St. Louis County and vicinity, with State, county and farm-to-market roads corrected to May 1, has just been received from the press by the Automobile Club of Missouri, and is ready for distribution, according to H. N. Baur, manager of the club's travel department.

This 1936 map includes approximately 100 changes since the last edition, Baur said. It shows the location of all farm-to-market roads in St. Louis, St. Charles, Jefferson and Franklin counties, and also the location of the new Babler Park and the Alton Dam. All changes in State highways are likewise shown on the map, with overhead crossings indicated and the character of roads.

NEW PONTIAC DEALERSHIP ON LOCUST STREET

Hamilton has been active in the auto business for ten years, five in retailing and the last five with General Motors Corporation.

C. A. Chayne Made Chief Engineer of Buick Auto Factory

Into Buick engineeriing development three men have put the best parts of their lives in the 33 years of the company's existence.

For the fourth man to take up the task, President H. H. Curtice has chosen one who has for more than six years shared in the development of the Buick car. He is Charles A. Chayne, new chief engineer of the Buick Motor Co., successor to Walter L. Marr, E. A. DeWaters and Ferdinand A. Bower.

The history of the company began in 1903 when Walter Marr drove David Buick in the first Buick car from Detroit to Flint to bring into being the Buick Motor Co. Marr and Buick covered 115 miles on that trip and every mile was an experience. Dies and patterns were placed in the small shop of the Flint Wagon Works and the two concerns merged to start automobile manufacturing.

Marr clung to the valve-in-head principle throughout his career. He is credited with having coined the name following a test with his two-cylinder car in which he set a record. Asked how his small car could defeat the larger and higher-powered cars entered in the race, he replied: "It's the valve-in-the-head motor." The phrase stuck.

In 1905, the year that Buick produced 750 cars, E. A. DeWaters joined the engineering staff. Four years later, Bower, then and still called "Dutch," came into the organization as engineer.

Years before Marr retired from active service, DeWaters helped carry the load for him. Gradually the newer man took over the task until in 1918 he assumed the title of chief engineer.

Bower became chief engineer in 1930, but he, too, had already become a veteran at the post.

Six months ago the condition of his health forced him to leave his post, and finally to take an indefinite leave of absence.

Since 1930, Chayne has served with Bower, first as motor engineer, then as assistant chief engineer.

Precision Cooling for Tests of Pistons in Plymouth Plant

A new system for cooling pistons during testing has been developed by the Plymouth Division of the Chrysler Corp.

The new units provide accurate temperature control at the moment the pistons are checked by sensitive electric gauges, for size, and eliminate the possibility of minute variations in piston size which might be due merely to differences in temperature.

In the new system, all pistons reach the gauges at a temperature of exactly 78 degress. The uniform temperature controls have been installed and are now in operation on the four piston conveyors which run to the final inspection tables.

Plymouth aluminum alloy pistons are given a special Anodic coating to harden the surface, and then pass through a cold and a hot water rinse to remove traces of chemicals. As they come from the hot water tanks, the pistons register temperatures ranging from 100 to 125 degrees. Previous to the installation of this new cooling equipment, they were set aside to cool to room temperature.

Airplane Credit Firm Organized Here for Financing of Sale

Articles to an aviation credit firm to operate under the title of "The Aviation Credit Corporation of St. Louis," are being filed, according to W. W. Kratz, vice-president and general manager of the new organization. The Aviation Credit Corporation, he says, will have its headquarters at Lambert St. Louis Airport and will begin work immediately. The company declared an immediate capital of $50,000.

Under present plans, money will be available to persons and aeronautical dealers in the continental United States for financing sales of new and used airplanes, general aircraft remodeling that involves engine repairs, airplane parts replacement and purchase of instruments Kratz said.

The officers of the corporation, Kratz said, will be W. R. Shillington, general manager of the Shillington Box and Lumber Co., president; W. W. Kratz, president of the St. Louis Flying Service, Inc., vice-president and general manager; Dumont Dempsey, senior member of the Newhard-Cook Brokerage Co., treasurer, and Lazear Baker, secretary.

Rural Roads Planning Survey to Be Topic at Jefferson City

Project To Be Explained at Meeting of Citizens' Road Association.

The rural highway planning survey, now being conducted under joint supervision of the United States Bureau of Public Roads and Missouri Highway Department, will be fully explained at the annual meeting and election of officers of the Citizens' Road Association in Jefferson City at 10 a. m., July 7.

Besides a report by Hugh Stephens, president of the Association, speakers on the program will include Maj. Roy F. Britton, president of the Automobile Club of Missouri; George F. Olendorf, chairman of the Highway Commission; T. H. Cutler, Chief Engineer of the Highway Department; Matt S. Murray, Director of WPA; Harland Bartholomew, Correlating Engineer for the Association; J. H. Long and C. T. McGinley, who are in charge of the survey for the State and Bureau of Public Roads, respectively.

Both the Citizens' Road Association and the Automobile Club sponsored the road survey as the soundest method of establishing a new long range road program to follow expiration of the constitutional limitations on gas taxes and license fees, adopted in 1928 with the passage of the $75,000,000 road bond amendment.

The meeting will be a statewide gathering, Stephens said, in issuing the call. He urged citizens from all sections of the state to be present. The membership of the Citizens' Road Association is informal and voluntary and without dues, he said. Representatives of Chambers of Commerce, county courts, farmers' organizations, women's clubs, newspapers, and various other civic organizations interested in the state road program are urged to attend.

Britton will explain the provisions of the present road laws and the situation which will exist after November, 1938. Cutler will present figures on estimated future revenues and fixed charges of the highway department; and the others will discuss various phases of the survey now under way.

England Seeks Non-Skid Road.

England is spending about $250,000 a year trying to find a non-skid road.

Pontiac Lets Buyers Save Freight Cost by Getting Cars at Plant

A plan whereby new car purchasers from all parts of the country can obtain vacations in or around the State of Michigan has been inaugurated by the Pontiac Motor Co.

According to C. P. Simpson, vice-president and general sales manager for Pontiac, this plan is a simple one by which a new car purchaser living in one part of the country may order his car through an authorized dealer and take delivery at Pontiac, Mich., thus saving the freight charges.

"We wish to make it clear," said Simpson, "that this is not a 'surprise package' merchandising idea in which we are promising anything out of the ordinary. It is merely a plan to give purchasers of new Pontiacs a chance to take delivery of their cars at the factory and use the savings which result from the omission of the freight charges to finance their round-trip transportation costs to the factory.

"Our reason for publicizing this plan is that, without any urging or planning, hundreds of residents in many parts of the country at this time of last year made the trip to Pontiac, took delivery of their cars and drove home for the same price the car would have cost them delivered there."

The Pontiac company says there is a mistaken impression that this vacation plan of factory delivery is available only to those paying cash for their automobiles. This is not true, it says, as the plan is available to those using the GMAC financing plan.

New Super Busses Run From St. Louis On Kansas City Route

Streamlined Coach Has Engine in Rear and Wholly New Features.

Greyhound is placing its new "super coaches" into operation as fast as they can be gotten from the factory. St. Louis, and the cities on the St. Louis-Kansas City run, are among the first in the United States to get the service of these new busses, which are so different from any previous type that they involve radical departures in almost every detail.

This new super-coach is a blunt-nosed, modernistic vehicle in the familiar blue-and-white Greyhound colors, with glittering metal trim. It is not grotesquely streamlined, but has smooth and flowing contours.

Passengers Ride High.

The most noticeable feature of the new bus is the absence of a hood. The front end rises straight up from the rubber bumpers, and slopes back smoothly into the roof line. The driver is well up in front, high enough to look clearly over approaching cars, and with a far more complete view of the highway than in present types of busses.

The passenger deck is much higher than on present busses, above the vibration line, further removed from dust and noise. Travelers can look over the tops of passing and oncoming private cars, through wide shatterproof observation windows.

There are no "wheel-housing seats," which means that all seats are equally comfortable, free from axle or wheel vibration.

The construction swings the weight of the vehicle lower than ever, thus increasing the safety factor and ease of handling.

Four-Position Chair Seats.

The deeply cushioned individual chairs, entirely redesigned, have frames of magnesium and aluminum alloys. They can be made to recline in four optional positions for sightseeing, reading, relaxation or sleep. The cushions are deep and comfortable, with a scientifically designed headrest and movable center arm rest.

In spite of the additional leg room, the bus seats 36 as compared with 33 passengers in older type busses.

A new and more powerful type of engine is mounted in the rear of the bus, parallel with the rear axle, a change which increases power and efficiency, and means quieter operation, less vibration and absence of exhaust fumes and engine noise. The engine space is completely and heavily insulated from the passenger compartment.

'Car in the Clouds' Featured by Ford in Great Lakes Exhibit

The Ford Motor Co. has an extensive exhibit in the Great Lakes Exposition at Cleveland, which opened yesterday and will close Oct. 4.

The Ford exhibit will be in the Automotive Building front section, at the main entrance. Its principal novelty feature will be "the car in the clouds," in which through an optical illusion a Ford V-8, driven by a pretty girl, is seen driving through the clouds above a model town. The car is a real Ford V-8 and a living girl drives it, but, by means of the optical illusion, they are reduced in size so that car and driver are in miniature.

The Henry Ford Trade School, in which thousands of boys are being given vocational education at the Ford Rouge plant, is well represented at Cleveland. Trade school students carry on machine operations and lecturers explain how the boys are trained.

A miniature model of the wood distillation plant at Iron Mountain, Mich., where Ford manufactures charcoal briquets from hardwood scrap, is in the exhibition. Other Ford by-products are displayed as well, including ammonium sulphate fertilizer. An exhibit of Johansson gauges made in America by the Ford Motor Co. and used as a standard of measurement by industry everywhere, will be included.

H & H Machine Co. Equips to Make Tools on Production Basis

The H. & H. Machine Co., 4216 West Easton avenue, which has been rebuilding automotive engines for a number of years, has just completed arrangements with one of the largest parts manufacturers in the country to distribute the new patented H. & H. tools, equipment and method for rebuilding automotive engines on a production basis.

The exchange service on the popular small size engines keeps this type of equipment running almost continuously, as old motors can be removed and rebuilt motors immediately installed.

The company, whose president and general manager is Henry Haacke, has completed improvements to enable it to start immediately manufacturing these tools on a production basis.

Haacke says that the production of these new tools will be the means of operating the company's plant on a 16-hour basis for an indefinite period.

Chart Aid in Finding Auto Fuse Locations

The Bussman Manufacturing Co. of St. Louis producer of Buss fuses, has published a chart giving the exact location of all auto, truck and auto radio fuses.

The chart shows what each fuse protects, where it is located, how it is mounted and the correct size and amperage fuse to use.

Highway Accidents Costly.

It is estimated that automobile accidents in the United States cause an annual loss of $2,500,000,000.

On St. Louis-Kansas City Run

One of the new super coaches new being operated by the Greyhound Lines on the St. Louis-Kansas City run. It is designed to take all the advantage possible of streamlining.

Millions for Auto Deaths.

More than $35,000,000 was paid out during 1935 by life insurance companies of the United States and Canada in death claims directly attributable to automobile accidents.

Trailer Travel Popular.

It is estimated that about 1,000,000 people will spend their vacation in trailer-travel in the United States this summer. Many will use this means for business also.

Auto-Railway Car Can Leave Tracks To Seek Passengers

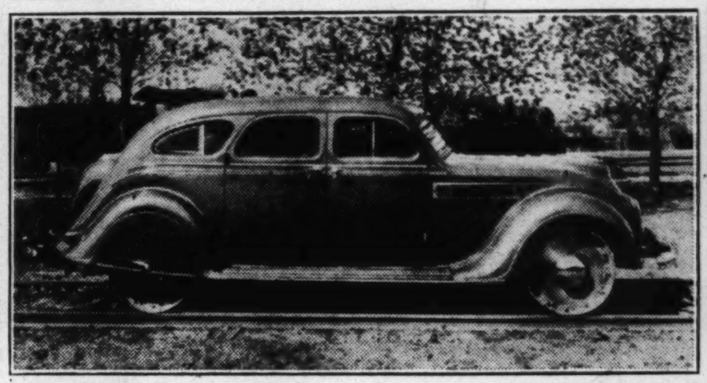
The Evans Products Co., Detroit, is now making a combination rail-highway vehicle.

Several of these units, called auto-railers, are in operation on Mid-Western and Eastern railroads, and demonstrations have been held in all railroad centers of the Far West and South.

Equipped with retractable pilot axles front and rear, the auto-railer travels on the rails on pneumatic tires, being held there by flanged wheels on the pilot axles. The vehicle mounts and leaves the rails at any grade crossing without coming to a stop.

The car can leave the rails at pickup points to load passengers or freight. After loading it returns to the rails. It can pick up passengers at hotels or other local loading points. Freight auto-railers can load and deliver merchandise at factory or store.

Used on Railroad Inspections



Chrysler Airflow Imperial used on the Missouri, Kansas and Texas Railroad by Matthew Sloan, president and chairman of the board, on inspection trips over the line. The regular wheels were removed and replaced by steel flanged wheels. A permanent jack placed under the frame makes it easy to lift the car from or onto the rails. On a recent 3000-mile rail trip the Airflow averaged about 18 miles to the gallon of gasoline.

Worth of Average Auto.

Fifty dollars a car is the average tax valuation of automobiles in the United States.

Leases Filling Station.

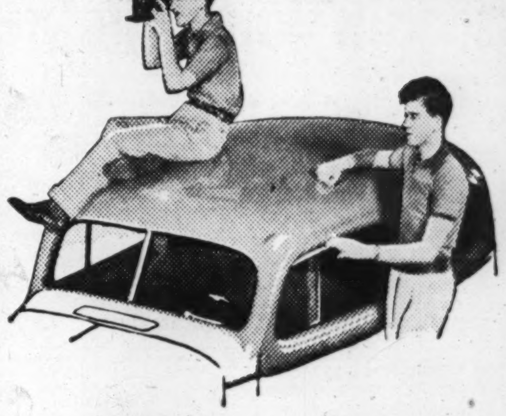
CHEVROLET

. . . and these owners are right, as we believe you will agree when you consider the following exclusive Chevrolet features:

Think of the extra dollar value in one great Chevrolet feature alone—NEW PERFECTED HYDRAULIC BRAKES! These are the safest and smoothest-acting brakes ever developed—always equalized—always dependable. The extra security which they will give you and your family is really priceless—and, of course, they're available only on this one low-priced car.



There is also plenty of extra value in Chevrolet's SOLID STEEL one-piece TURRET TOP. It puts the safety of solid, seamless steel over your head—is smarter looking—keeps the car cooler in summer and warmer in winter. Chevrolet is the only low-priced car that has it.

Another feature that will be worth a great deal to you is Chevrolet's IMPROVED KNEE-ACTION GLIDING RIDE*. It smooths away bumps and holes—assures perfect comfort for both front and back seat passengers—is recognized everywhere as the world's smoothest, safest ride. Only Chevrolet brings it to you at low prices.

Also extremely valuable, also exclusive to this one low-priced car, is GENUINE FISHER NO DRAFT VENTILATION. Think of how convenient it is to be able to scoop in refreshing breezes on the hottest days—eliminate drafts—prevent clouding of the windshield in bad weather. . . all at a touch of the regulator!

The extra value in Chevrolet cars mounts still higher when you consider the advantages of SHOCKPROOF STEERING*. It eliminates steering wheel vibration, protects your hands and arms from constant shock, makes driving easier and safer than ever before. It, too, is exclusive to Chevrolet in the low-price range.

And, finally, there is Chevrolet's HIGH-COMPRESSION VALVE-IN-HEAD ENGINE. Not only does this engine give the finest all-round performance, but it will also save you many dollars a year in gas, oil and maintenance. Insist on having all these modern features—buy a new Chevrolet—the only complete low-priced car!

Radio Science Making Police More Efficient

STEADILY the radio scientists are improving apparatus for the police to use against criminals. One of the tricks in radio sleuthing is a method of changing one-way systems into two-way communication so that cruising patrolmen can talk to their superiors as well as take orders from them.

The two-way transmission makes the communication similar to ordinary telephone communication. The chief of police or the dispatcher can cut into the conversation without any switching operations under this new duplex system. Under the so-called simplex system of two-way conversation, it is necessary to wait until the man at the other end is through talking. Even the chief himself must wait patiently until the policeman is through saying his piece before he can give him orders.

A "talk-back" receiver does the trick. It has a filter that allows simultaneous transmission and reception at headquarters yet uses only one transmission line and one antenna. Higher frequencies are used for this reception.

An important step was taken recently by the Federal Communications Commission when it assigned a number of frequencies for intercity police use. In the fall the International Association of Police Chiefs will hold their annual get-together, and they will have before them complete plans to set up a radio code system tying in cities all over the nation.

The FCC took nine frequencies used by a group of early television experimenters to provide police with room to set up their code system. In recent years, television experimenters have turned to the ultra-high frequencies for their sight transmission efforts, most of them now using cathode ray tubes instead of the earlier scanning disc systems.

A radiotelegraph system will be set up by the police, and perhaps in a year or two it will be used to send facsimile portraits and fingerprints. At first, however, it will be used mainly to supplement the automatic teletypewriter systems that many states have.

For example, a police message in New York could be sent by radio to adjoining states, which, in turn, could relay it to other states, and these could continue the relays until the entire 48 states had been reached, all within minutes. At the same time, the New York police could be sending the message on the present teletype system, which links five other nearby states.

A little farther in the future is the plan of J. Edgar Hoover, the U. S. Department of Justice's director of the G-men. Hoover has been tinkering since last November with a plan to set up a powerful broadcast transmitter in Washington. He sends regular messages from a Bureau of Standards station, and is checking reports from listeners who pick up the test broadcasts.

One of Hoover's fondest dreams is of a radio communication system by which he will be in constant ear-and-eye communication with the whole nation, whether he be in his Washington office or in his bullet-proof limousine. This dream envisions the day when he can apply television and facsimile and broadcast communication to his drive to rid the country of professional criminals.

Walter Winchell will have as his guest at 7:30 tonight Cornelia Otis Skinner, who next Sunday is to take over his period for the summer. Winchell will be back on the program in the Fall.

Dr. Karl Morgan Block, rector of the Church of St. Michael and St. George, St. Louis, will speak over the CBS network and KMOX at 8 o'clock this morning in the interest of the Episcopal Church's "Forward Movement." His topic will be "Forward With Christ." Music on the program will be by Paul Friess, organist and choir master of the church, and the church choir. Dr. Black is secretary of the Forward Movement Commission.

Horace Heidt's Brigadiers program will be switched July 6 from Thursdays to 6 p. m. Mondays on the CBS chain and KMOX.

The Radio Guild play at 2:30 p. m. Thursday on the WJZ net will be "She Stoops to Conquer."

John O'Hara, recently with WJJD, WIND and WBBM, Chicago, has joined the KWK staff as baseball announcer and sports reviewer. He has covered World Series baseball and important football games. . . . .

Few of the featured radio entertainers won their network chances by "pull." Deane Janis started on a small station to please a music publisher, and won her way on listener response. Phillips Lord met many rebuffs when he was trying to launch his Seth Parker series. Only a small station was willing to take a chance on him. Harry Horlick of KSD's Gypsies concerts, came to this country unheralded, with only a violin as an asset. A sponsor heard him playing in a small cafe, and hired him. He has headed a radio program for more than 12 years. Ken Murray refused to use the name of his father, Don Court, to get a stage job, and started as an unknown. Phil Baker started as an amateur, and struggled for years before he could convince vaudeville managers that he was entitled to featured billing. Peter Van Seeden, the orchestra leader, also began as an amateur. Fred Allen at one time was an apprentice to a vaudeville juggler. Rosaline Green, who recently appeared in her 2000th radio performance, received only enough money to pay her carfare to and from the studio when she first went on the air.

Radio Trade Notes

New Features Stressed in 1937 Philco Sets.

NEW 1937 Philco radio sets were shown to dealers Monday and Tuesday at the new headquarters of the Artophone Corporation, distributer, at 4200 Forest Park boulevard, where the firm now has 30,000 square feet of display, service, parts and warehousing space.

Built-in automatic tuning is a feature of the de luxe models. In this system, the call letters of as many as 18 stations can be placed on a dial similar to that of an automatic telephone.

A foreign stations tuning system is a feature of all the new sets. It combines a new Philco high efficiency aerial, the Philco aerial selector and a new band spread dial which spreads the stations far apart for easier tuning. The tuning dial is calibrated and marked with the names of the countries in which the desired stations are located.

The standard 675X, 116X and 690X, the last a 15-tube set with three speakers, have "magnetic tuning." As soon as the set is tuned close to the channel of any stations, at home or abroad, the magnetic tuning takes charge, puts the circuits on the exact frequency and holds them there.

Improved high fidelity reproduction also is featured. This is insured by audio design, provision for lessening the set's selectivity when quality reception is desired, use of the Philco acoustic clarifiers to prevent cabinet resonance, continuously variable treble tone control and variable bass compensation control for use when the volume is turned low, improved speakers and the Philco inclined sounding board. Wide-angled tone diffusion is built into the larger models.

There are more than 50 models in the 1937 line, including a number of AC-DC table and console sets, five automobile sets, battery sets designed to rival electric set performance, and AC sets of all types from little personal compact and baby grand models to the 12 and 15-tube types.

All the sets, except the smallest, give all-wave reception, and even the smallest models cover the police calls in addition to the American broadcast band.

Cabinets have been restyled, and all are unusually attractive.

Three of the automobile sets have two speakers, and all are designed for performance comparable to that of home receivers.

The 15-tube model 116X, both standard and de luxe, has 27 tuned circuits, a "cathedral speaker," and comes with or without automatic tuning. The largest of the new Philcos, the 690X, has 20 tubes, three speakers and all the other features of the new line.

In addition, several of the new Philcos cover the ultra short waves, from 26 to 42 megacycles, which include the channels used by such stations as W9XPD.

The building where the Artophone Corporation has established new quarters on Forest Park boulevard is on a railroad siding, which greatly facilitates unloading of sets from freight cars. A large parts and service department, with booths for testing, is located on the first floor with the offices, and there is ample space for auto parking. The two-story, concrete building provides warehousing capacity for sufficient sets to insure speedy distribution.

Four-Day Dealer Showing Of General Electric Sets.

The new General Electric 1937 radio sets, which were introduced at a meeting of company distributers and field men some days ago, will be displayed by the General Electric Supply Corporation for dealers tomorrow, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday at an "open house" showing in the Park Plaza Hotel, from 9 a. m. to 9 p. m. Additional showings of the 1937 sets will be held July 7 and 8 at the Abraham Lincoln Hotel in Springfield, Ill., and July 14, 15 and 16 at the McCurdy Hotel in Evansville, Ind.

Fairbanks, Morse Sets For 1937 Exhibited

DYNAMIC speakers whose diameter is extended by a special rim are among features of the new 1937 Fairbanks, Morse radio sets which were shown to dealers Monday and Tuesday at the Mark Twain Hotel. These speakers are called tone projectors.

A novel semaphore band indicating dial is a feature on some of the sets, as well as a visual volume indicator, which tells in advance the volume with which a station will be received, and a visual tone and voice control which employs a spot of light. There is also a tuning eye to indicate when a station is tuned exactly for best reception and a short wave station separator with two-speed tuning for easier, more accurate tuning of distant stations.

The new electron beam power tube is used in the audio stages. Signal to noise ratio has been improved. A feature on which stress is laid is the "turret shielded" chassis, which is unusually substantial and well designed to bar interference.

Several of the new Fairbanks, Morse sets cover the ultra short wave bands as far as 70,000 kilocycles, so can tune in such stations as W9XPD.

The line includes all types of personal, table and console models with circuits ranging up to 12 tubes, and also battery sets of a wide variety which can be operated with a special gasoline charger or with a wind charger.

NATURE HAS BEEN KIND to WISCONSIN

● A few hundred miles may span a period of fifty years and more, if you head up into the northwoods of Wisconsin.

You can follow the forest and stream-side trails, first made by caulked boots of the loggers. You can roam forests never touched by axe or saw. You can be lulled to sleep by the whisper of the cool night breeze in the pines and be wakened in the morning by the waves upon the shore.

If you'd like to get back to nature, come to Wisconsin this summer.

PAGEANTRY MARKS MANY TERCENTENARIES

Maine and Rhode Island Will Celebrate Their Founding With Colorful Festivals.

Those of us who have a casual knowledge of American history and a tremendous interest in Americana have probably never realized that all the New England States were not among the original Thirteen States at the time of the Revolution. Thus it happens that a number of them are celebrating the 300th anniversary of their founding this year.

The month of August will be marked with pageantry for York County, Maine, which this year commemorates its 300th anniversary and founding of the first organized city on the North American Continent. This region is particularly rich in historic lore and scenic beauty and every city and town in the county will participate to make the tercentenary an outstanding celebration.

Rhode Island Celebrates.

Rhode Island this year celebrates the establishment of Providence by Roger Williams. For 300 years this tiny state has been justly proud of its spirit of independence and its tradition of religious freedom.

Portsmouth, Newport and Providence are vivid reminders of early Colonial days. Famous old homes in Newport, Commodore Perry's birthplace at South Kingston, fling up memories of the old privateering days along the coast and British occupation. With these towns as a setting many interesting events will be staged during the summer. Bristol will open on July 3 and 4 with a huge military and naval display. A pageant depicting the history of Rhode Island from the time of its founding will be enacted at Coddington Point, Newport, beginning July 17 and lasting through the month.

Newport and Portsmouth share the distinction of being the earliest settlements in Rhode Island with Providence. While Roger Williams and his band of religious "outcasts" settled Providence in 1636 another group under the leadership of William Coddington and Anne Hutchinson settled at Portsmouth. Coddington later moved on to Newport in 1639. Many of the famous old houses in Newport will be opened during the "Old Port Days" celebration which will be held from July 27th to August 2.

Harvard's Third Century.

Harvard University will also complete its third century of existence this year. Springfield, Mass., likewise looks back through 300 years from a lone log house on the banks of the Connecticut River, through Indian and Revolutionary Wars to its present development as one of the industrial centers in New England.

Throughout the New England States early American history still moves. Historic buildings have been preserved. Tablets mark the spots of important battles and scenes of muster. The quiet dignity of white faced New England colonial houses back of fragrant gardens and picket fences still carries with it the early American traditions that move the visitor to intense feeling even though his ancestors did not come over in the Mayflower.

TO OBSERVE RAILROAD WEEK

Western Railroads to Celebrate One Hundred Years of Progress. Progress.

The second annual observation of "Railroad week" will take place July 13, in something like 500 communities. The success of last year's celebration prompted a general request that it be made an annual affair.

Railroad week this year will celebrate 100 years of progress and 750,000 workers of Western railroads and their allied industries will take part in it.

ANNUAL STATE SKEET SHOOT

Championship Match to Be Held at White Sulphur Springs.

Plans are being made for the second annual individual State skeet championship which will be held at White Sulphur Springs on Sept. 6 and 7 under the auspices of the Greenbrier Skeet and Trap Club. Approximately 150 entries, including 35 women, have been made. The event is being arranged by Carl Bradsher, nationally known marksman, who is director of the Greenbrier Club.

Mausoleum of Kings.

On the little island of Riddarholmen in Stockholm stands the Westminster Abbey of Sweden, a Gothic thirteenth century pile which serves as the mausoleum of Sweden's kings and heroes in all walks of life.

WOMEN'S SUNDAY MAGAZINE

PART EIGHT. ST. LOUIS, SUNDAY MORNING, JUNE 28, 1936. PAGES 1—8-J

In the HOLLYWOOD WHIRL

by

Margaret Post Niemeyer

A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., June 27.

OF COURSE Katharine Cornell just had to pick the hottest night of the year, or of many years it seemed like, for her opening in "Saint Joan" but, since it was the theatrical event of the season, the movie colony turned out last evenings, en masse, de riguer, tres gene and all that sort of thing. You see, "Saint Joan" being all about the Maid of Orleans we came from the theater direct to the typewriter full of French ideas.

At all events everybody was there from Garbo, who was very inconspicuous, to Mae West, who displayed all of the West family plate. It was Norma Shearer who wore the most stunning costume of the night. She was a symphony in gold, her gown of gold lame being designed in the sheath silhouette manner, the right arm having a long, full sleeve and the left entirely bare except for two wide banded gold bracelets. Over her "Juliet Bob," which is fairly long and a little pointed in the back with sculptred curls at the side, she wore a turban of cocque feathers. Gold sandals were on her feet.

Gladys Swarthout, who is back in town for another picture, came direct to the theater from a dinner party wearing a French vionnet gown which combined a rather daring design with an adequate degree of modesty. The fabric was gray taffeta. The skirt was fulled through an inverted pleat treatment and the bodice had widened shoulders, long tight sleeves and an unusal surplice arrangement which crossed both in back and in front. Nothing out of the ordinary when Miss Swarthout was seated in her orchestra chair but when she stood up—well her once fellow townsfolks at Deepwater, Missouri, would have gasped at the typical vionnet touch.

—o-o—

Another attractive gown was seen on Una Merkel. Una, who is very partial to soft shades of blues, greens, and browns and likes them a little "off shade" rather than in a definite color, was wearing one of these off-the-shoulder, period models of a brownish taffeta between chocolate and rust. The waistline was high and under the very, very full skirt was worn a full, "half-length" petticoat, which as Una explained to me, between acts, was designed to make the dress stand out.

—o-o—

A FOURTH lovely gown worn by an equally lovely lady was that of Claudette Colbert. Cut from shimmering white satin gaily printed with a large floral design in brilliant green, red, yellow and capucine, it had a softly draped waist and an exceedingly full skirt which were held firmly in place by a wide laced girdle. The long sleeves were slightly puffed at the top but snugly fitted at the wrist. Claudette's feet were shod in tiny sandals of silver shot with green.

—o-o—

● IF YOU ARE not one of those women who scream at the mere sight of a bug you may be interested in some of the novelty clips fashioned in their likeness. Rosalind Russell has quite a collection of them. The bugs, done in enameled metals, appear as musicians, jockeys, polo players and have been imbued with all manner of humorous personalities. The insects have jeweled eyes and in some instances jeweled wings. They are strikingly clever as scarf pins with sports clothes, that is—as I have said before—if you do not scream at bugs.

—o-o—

MAUREEN O'SULLIVAN has just returned from San Francisco, where she went on a visit. Yesterday I met her out for a walk near her Westwood home looking particularly fetching in a navy wool sheer. The snug-fitting basque had covered buttons of the same material running bell-hop style down the front to the waistline, where it joined the peplum which was slit down from this point and faced with white pique, these pique slits were repeated at the cuffs of the short sleeves and in the collar. Of unusual interest was the treatment of the neckline, which was gathered and tied with a small bow.

—o-o—

Betty Furness has all Hollywood in stitches over her hats. They are bizarre to an extreme and she has appeared at all the better night clubs in them trimmed with everything from birds in nests to a "vegetable-plate." I saw her stop the orchestra leader dead in his tracks when she came into the Trocadero the other night wearing a bonnet of the Victorian era set well on the back of her head with a huge bunch of variegated, deep pink roses perched directly on its top and tied under the chin with a velvet bow.

SAW BILLIE BURKE dining at the Brown Derby in a formal suit

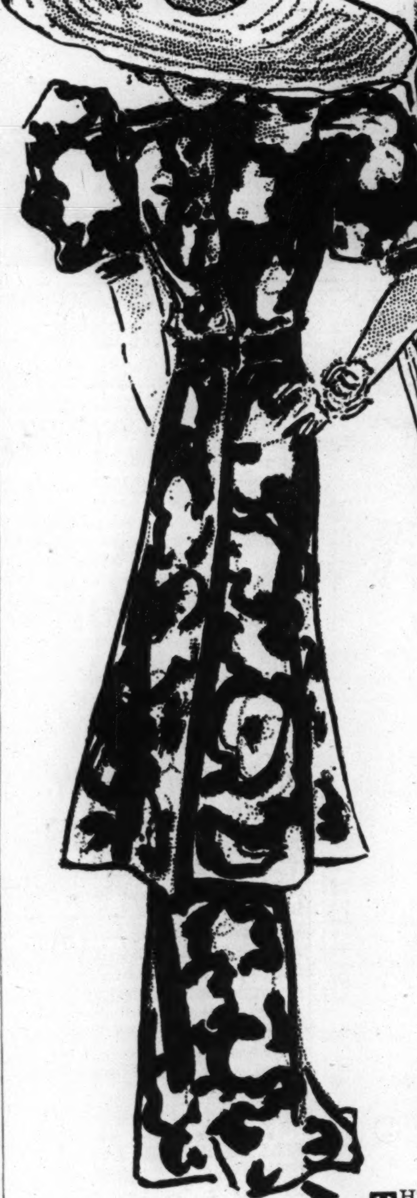
At the right is a Heim beach dress of white cotton printed in canary yellow and black. The front of the skirt is cut in pajama effect, and the tied bodice leaves the back entirely bare.

A knitted romper bathing suit with a pert bow at the neckline and a polka-dotted knit suit with pearl buttons down the front and a halter neckline.

The two figures at left, and above left, illustrate three views of a cotton beach ensemble printed in navy blue, wine color or green. The matching coat is cut like a smock, with raglan sleeves.



One of Heim's Mariflore cotton ensembles printed in red on a white background. Red velvet makes the collar and sleeve bands and the crushed belt.

Ventilated Felt Hats for Women

● When men's straw hats came out with air holes to let in the summer breezes the men thought they had something rather exclusive, but this didn't continue very long. Women also have ventilated hats, if you please, and these chapeaux are made of felt rather than straw.

The millinery feature of the current travel season is designed for comfort as well as for style. Although of lightweight felt and therefore quite comfortable on warm days, the crowns are punctured with tiny holes to make them more airy. Certain porous materials are used for other hats to add to their summer popularity.

The collapsible quality is another which is being stressed in vacation millinery this summer. The most successful hat for packing folds into a small space and comes out as trim as when it went into the traveling case.

Eiderdowns should be washed in a tepid soap flake solution. Press and squeeze as when washing woolens. Add a cup of vinegar to the final rinse to brighten the colors. Dry out of doors.

FLOWERED COTTONS on BOTH SIDES of OCEAN

PARIS, June 27.

THE "Mariflore," as Heim names his latest beach models, is, in reality, a gay cotton dress, the name being derived from the very flowery fabrics whose source is Bali and the other South Sea Islands. These were adapted by Heim for his exclusive use in Paris, though other designs from the same source have been reproduced by one of the foremost cotton houses in America.

Mariflore seems to be a generic term for a type of dress that many Paris dressmakers have been searching for—something to make lunching, dining and dancing at the seashore both more and less of a rite, speaking from the dressing angle. Little dance or dinner dresses and coat dresses of cotton prints, wild in their huge sprawling motifs and the rawness of their colorings, are worn over little swim-suits, or nothing at all, and they make dressing for the evening very easy from the angle of the devotee of beach life.

In these costumes are embodied the most becoming lines for figures of many types. The heavy cottons, greatly in demand, are as stiff as the firmest linens and there are more delicate percales that lend themselves to the splashy Mariflore prints, and that are used for costumes with draping across the bust or dress front. The same huge scrolls in several colors are printed on wool-and-cotton jersey for the popular little pareos which Heim continues to develop. Some of these have sashes that are brought around and tied in the front to hang down like a Scotch sporran.

Salt-proof velvets are also used by Heim for bathing suits and for bright crushed belts to cover the space between brassiere and skirt on these tropical type suits.

The big note at the house of Patou is the trouser skirt. This is made on many different lines and used for every sort of sport life. Whether they are long or very short, Patou's divided skirts have a flare at the bottom.

Schiaparelli believes in the extra short and very colorful bathing and beach outfit made of cotton fabric and with a parasol to match it. She introduces oilskin and oiled silk in brilliant hues into these beach ensembles with the utmost success.

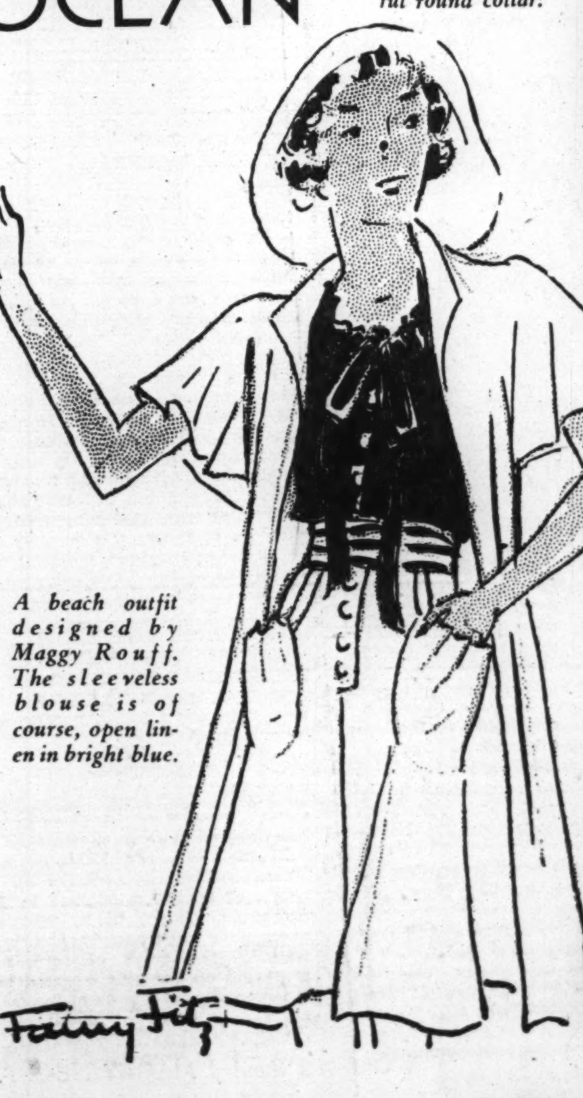
Tied-on hats are popular in the workrooms of Molyneux and Schiaparelli. Straw hats with visors, or fantastically upturned brims emanate from the latter house. At Molyneux's the glossy straw hats are so extravagant in size that they must be firmly tied on. Two shades of ribbon are used for the trimming and for the tie under the chin, and the big brim is allowed to blow back from the face in a most spectacular manner.

Molyneux has devoted considerable attention to contrasted materials for beach ensembles, introducing two colors into his capes and short beach dresses to complete the ensemble effect.

Worth uses bright plain lines for beach shorts with matching tops and shows them with long white woolen capes.

Dilkusha sees her playtime beach dress with a backless waistcoat top, and makes these up in polka-dotted cottons. Seacrepe is a pliable cotton that comes in gay Scotch tartans and is much wanted by the Scotch and English. Cautious visitors to the "plages" of France have discovered the advisability of getting these polka-dotted suits made up in light wool jersey.

At right, the Paisley printed bathing suit is equally at home on the beach or in the water. The short matching coat has a youthful round collar.



A beach outfit designed by Maggy Rouff. The sleeveless blouse is of course, open linen in bright blue.

This New York

Lucius Beebe

NEW YORK, June 27.

IT is some years new since Stanley Walker has done anything drastic about what is known in newspaper circles as l'affaire Peter Stuyvesant and we wish he would use his influence as an editor of "The New Yorker" to get to the bottom of the mystery. The mystery, of course, is which one of that first citizen of Manhattan's legs was the wooden one?

Nobody really seems to know, and there is no agreement among artists, sculptors and illustrators, so that sometimes the aged gaffer is shown peg-leg right and sometimes artificial limb left. The two schools of thought come into frequent conflict and old friendships have gone on the rocks over this point of scholarship. The debate has raged with inextinguishable fury along the bar in Bleek's Fortieth street saloon for years; members of the historical societies have been interviewed; archives have been conned with meticulous care, but nobody yet knows whether it was the gam dexter or the dog sinister that was shot away at the Battle of St. Martin.

The only person who can solve the mystery is the Rev. William Norman Guthrie, rector of St. Mark's in the Bowery, where Stuyvesant's remains are waiting for Judgment day in the crypt, and he won't allow the embattled historians to investigate. Says the idea is indecent, sort of.

Three or four years ago Stanley Walker retained a celebrated archeologist, named Ownie Madden, to effect entry into the St. Mark's vaults, purely in the interest of scholarship, of course, but Mr. Madden never found time to consummate the investigation. Mr. Walker despaired of solving the mystery through mortal agencies and is now trying to raise Stuyvesant's ghost with mediums.

—o-o—

TWO topnotch places these summer evenings, in mid-Manhattan and out in the countryside, respectively, are the Starlight Roof of the Waldorf and John Perona's Westchester Bath and Tennis Club, out in Rye. Between them they seem to get most of the prosperous hoofing and hoisting trade that remains this side of Long Island, and both of them are glamour spots of the first order, each in its own way.

Mr. Perona's El Moroccon has been doing such a business back in Manhattan that he kept it running after he opened the Bath and Tennis, which presented something of a problem in management, since his staff is a closed corporation (a highly geared organization of waiters, captains, chefs and barmen, known as "Perona's family"). The Rye establishment is beautifully laid out, with magnificent shrubs and trees, terraces, open-air bars aud a swimming pool of generous proportions, and on a fine Saturday night is a Cecil de Mille midst of casual, suburban opulence. It goes as long as any one will pop a cork, and nobody thinks of leaving until broad daylight.

The Waldorf is perhaps the dressiest summer roof in town, nearly every one there being conscious of formal good manners, and has as its most notable gustatory asset the finest wine list in Manhattan. Gen. Lodijensky, whom you will remember from the old Russian Eagle years ago in Fifty-seventh street, is in charge and the music is by Wayne King. If you don't care about dancing there is a fine terrace outside, quite open to the stars, where you can hear the music more faintly and really be in the open air, even though right spang on Park avenue. The only defect discernible the evening we were there last week was in the service in the cocktail lounge, inside. We commend to Gen. Lodijenski's attention that 20 minutes is too long to wait for a Martini.

—o-o—

THE reappearance in the newspaper pages a week or so since of an odd character named Marmaduke Mizzle, the Mincing Lane Caraway Seed Merchant (he hadn't been heard of for two years), reassured Manhattanites that the Skipper Williams, dean of ships' news reporters and himself an individualist of renown, was still a practitioner of whimsy. Mizzle, a fictitious droll of legendary proportions, is the Skipper's contribution to the tradition of newspaper fabrication and exists in a sort of state of errant catalepsy, only vague en rapport with reality and cropping up in print at infrequent intervals, but his creator, T. Walter Williams, is a harborfront institution ranking with Governors Island and the Barge Office.

He never has been known by any name save that of Skipper, and he has been covering "sail and arrive" for more years than he cares to think. If nothing else served to identify him as a personality, his

THE WORLD AS WOMEN SEE IT

MY OPINION

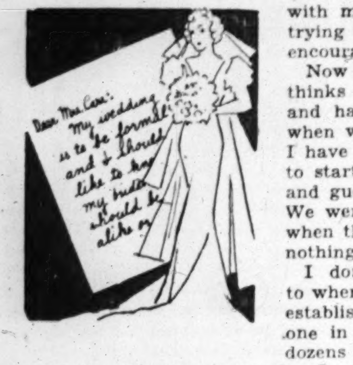
by

Martha Carr

Letters intended for this column must be addressed to Martha Carr at the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. Mrs. Carr will answer all quesitons of general interest but, of course, cannot give advice on matters of a purely legal or medical nature. Those who do not care to have their letters published may enclose an addressed and stamped envelope for personal reply.

Dear Martha Carr:

I AM WRITING to see if you can help me out of a situation I am in. I am a college graduate of 1933. I secured a position with a firm which went out of business last year and since that time I have been unable to secure a position anywhere, except a few jobs of peddling soap or magazines. I have been going with a girl for five years and she has stuck with me through all this trying time, also trying to get work for me and giving me encouragement when I was about to fold up.



Dear Mrs. Carr:
My wedding is to be formal and I should like to kn my bride should be alike or

Now she has gotten a good position and thinks we ought to go to expensive places and have a good time as we used to do when we had money. I cannot see this, as I have never been a gigolo and don't want to start now. I don't know where to turn and guess the Eads Bridge is my best bet! We were engaged and had plans to marry when the depression set in and there seems nothing left but to give her up.

I don't know what the world is coming to when the young people cannot marry and establish homes. I know I am not the only one in this situation as I have talked to dozens of young men who, like myself, are trained and willing to work. Luckily, I have parents who are fairly well off or I probably would be sitting on one of those benches at the Library.

Well, I just wanted to put my thoughts into words and see if you have anything to say on the subject. E. L. K.

I know that yours is no isolated case by any means—so many, too many young chaps like you, have felt like giving up in despair, even though they really had too much backbone and grit to carry out this idea. The urge of youth for employment and the longing (a perfectly normal one) to make a business place for themselves and establish a home is a legitimate one—but the arguments against the situation have done little good. You can but keep up every effort, mental and physical, to beat the game and get the work; and this seems hopeless to you now. But do not, even though you feel your mental training is lost in it, refuse work of any kind; peddling from door to door is not, of course, your metier. But do this or die if it is the thing that presents itself right now. You do not know whether one of these doors might open to something else better suited to you.

You have the right attitude about going to expensive places when you cannot afford them (and those who are there generally know your circumstances), they will not only think less of you, but will not help you get work. And, especially, would it be bad taste and bad judgment for you to go as the non-paying guest of this valiant girl. There are many resources and much recreation (especially for those with cultivated tastes) not dependent upon the amount you spend. Try to convince the girl of this but do not desert her in a way that she will know is unworthy.

—o—o—

My dear Mrs. Carr:

● I HAVE A PROBLEM which I would like you to help me with. I have been going with a boy three years, but we cannot always agree. This causes us to quit for a few months, during which time, he dates others just to hurt me.

Now, Mrs. Carr, I love this boy very much and I am sure he feels the same toward me. My family and his are very close friends and approve of our going together. But about six months ago we quarreled and I asked him never to come back. I am so sorry now, because it has dawned upon me that I care more for him than I ever realized. He is now dating another girl. Do you think I can ever get him back? Please send me your pamphlet on "Popularity." THANK YOU.

Your case doesn't take much guessing; but, as to giving you a positive answer, I will have to say that I am not really and not strictly a mind-reader. The longer he stays away and the more devotion he shows to someone else, the more you care for him—eh?

You probably went farther than usual in being trying to him. Young people grow tired of each other through seeing each other too often.

And both take chances if they are too sure. A little self-control of temper and a careful avoidance of the ennui which comes with an overdose of the presence of the adored one is a safe remedy. Probably he will come back, especially if the other girl knows as little about tact and strategy as you. But you will have to date other boys some.

I shall be glad to send the "Popularity" article if you will send me self-addressed and stamped envelope. But I guarantee nothing.

—o—o—

Dear Martha Carr:

WHEN A GIRL marries a man living in another country, may I ask who pays for her passage? Since she must buy her passport and have the expense of luggage and tips, I wondered if it was not his place to take care of her steamer fare. So far, he has not thought of this or else he feels it not his duty.

I would like you to print only the answer to my question.

Thanking you kindly, I am, J. H. S.

It is impossible for me to leave out questions and give only answers in this column, since to the readers, it would make many letters unintelligible.

The custom is for the girl or her family to bear all expenses until after the marriage ceremony, except minister's fee, the wedding gift to the bride and to the men attendants. Doubtless the custom is the same in the country to which this girl is going and that, probably, is the reason the groom-to-be has said nothing about paying the steamer passage.

—o—o—

Dear Mrs. Carr:

● AS YOU HAVE helped me before, I have the courage to come to you again.

I am a woman, 30 years of age, and married a second time. My husband and I get along fine, but I do become irritated over having to pay a relative some back board which is due her for my husband's living when he was out of work. I knew he owed this, when we were married, and I am more than willing to pay it for him, but I think the amount asked is all out of proportion to what he received. These relatives never treated my husband right.

My husband is not lazy, he sometimes goes to work half dead; he cannot rest or stay at home when he is out of work, and is a good man.

Mrs. Carr, shall I ask this relative to take a hundred or so off her bill as it is so hard to pay all she wants or say nothing? Or is it my husband's place to ask her? Could she be made to allow for the work he did? W. R.

I am afraid your husband is a little too easy going. He should have had some agreement with this relative about the amount he was to be allowed for work as well as the amount he was to pay for board.

If your husband had no legal agreement on the price for board, she cannot, I should think, force him to pay a stipulated amount, even though they had what is called a "gentleman's agreement."

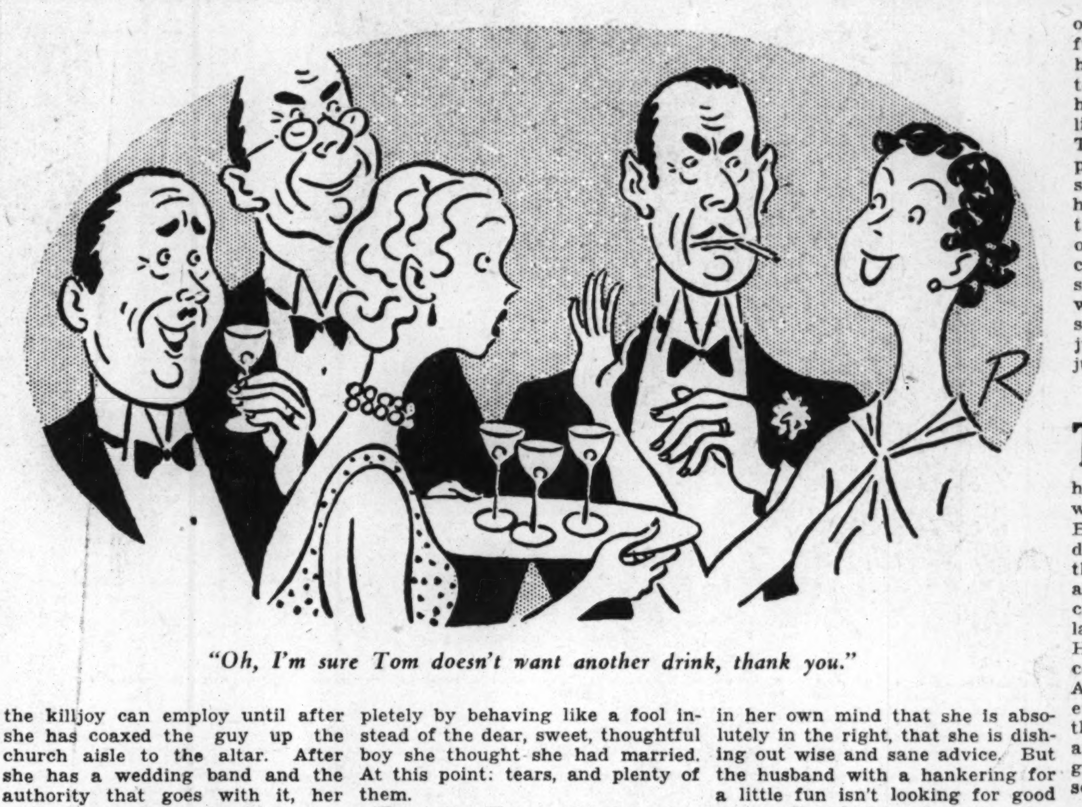
Assuredly, your husband is the one to talk to this relative, telling her he feels that he cannot impose upon you by asking that you pay an unreasonable amount. But, of course, I could not specify the amount for you.

I believe if she realizes that she cannot compel you to pay a stated amount, because there was no agreement in writing, she will be willing to compromise and so settle the question amicably.

SLOW DEATH at the Hands of KILLJOYS

Countless Husbands Have Died (in Spirit) Through Rough Handling From Their Bitter Halves

By Virginia Irwin



"Oh, I'm sure Tom doesn't want another drink, thank you."

THE next time the city is in need of a good, first-class monument to decorate a plaza, traffic circle or the lawn at the City Hall, the suggestion is hereby made that a cenotaph be erected in honor of all men, living and dead, who have had the misfortune to pick out a female killjoy for a girl friend or wife. The statue atop the marble base could be the likeness of any sad-faced man who ever murmured bravely, "Yes, dear," when his better-half announced within hearing of all and sundry at the party, "Come, now, we're going home. It's 11 o'clock, and besides, you've had enough fun for one evening."

The erection of the memorial, in all probability, would not have to be financed by either the Chamber of Commerce or the WPA. The browbeaten brotherhood would, no doubt, be glad to furnish the funds for a mnemonic structure to every unsung hero who chivalrously resisted losing his temper when the little woman informed the host. "Oh, of course, I don't mind if Henry plays cards. He knows that—what I won't let him do is play for money."

The ladies, of course—I mean the spoil-sports—would never appreciate this touching tribute to the martyrs who retired from the world of fun to spend the evenings of their best years on the living-room sofa, simply because they couldn't cope with the ingenuity of a woman whose main object in life seemed to be spoiling everybody's fun—including her husband's.

—o-o—

AND, speaking of ingenuity, a gal who has put any amount of study into being a wet blanket, can invent more ways to spoil a party than a Forest Ranger can think up to put out a brush fire.

We'll say, for instance, that the celebration in question is just a harmless get-together of young unmarried folks on a Saturday night. At a gathering of this kind, the female killjoy is in her best form when she sits quietly on a sofa in a corner and absolutely refuses to shift for herself. She must be waited on. Or, better still, when someone asks her if there's anything she wants, she answers, "Oh, don't mind me. I'm really having quite a good time." And she says it in that I'm-really-above-such-shenanigans tone that makes everybody within earshot feel ill at ease and wish that her boy friend would take the dear little thing to an ice cream social instead of towing her along with the gang.

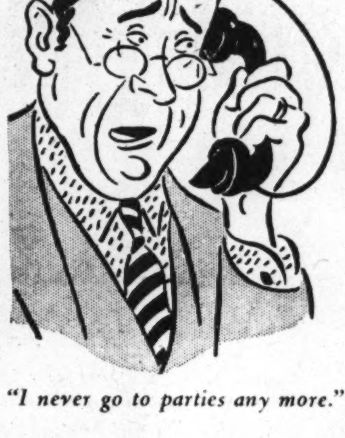
The I'll-just-sit-here-on-the-sofa attitude is not only quite effective, but by all odds the safest method the killjoy can employ until after she has coaxed the guy up the church aisle to the altar. After she has a wedding band and the authority that goes with it, her methods can be, and usually are, more direct. Before marriage, she can say, "I'm afraid I'm not a very good sport, Tom," and the misguided male will congratulate himself on having a girl friend who can learn something from him. It isn't until after the last strains of Mendelssohn's moan have died away and the gang meets for a house-warming that she pulls off her false face. Then she gives the alleged master of the house the surprise of his short married life by answering for him, when the cocktails are passed around, "Tom doesn't want another drink, thank you."

Poor Tom probably feels like he has been caught in a figure-four trap, but he might as well give up and go play the victrola. If he ignores the edict and pretends that it isn't that the little woman objects to a few drinks but that she just takes such marvelous care of him, and then has himself a couple more Martinis, he may as well put on his shin-guards and bullet-proof vest when the guests depart, because the battle is on.

—o-o—

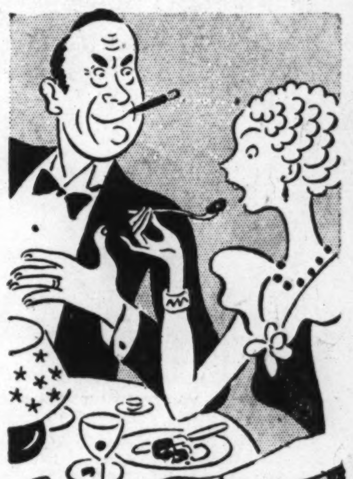
THE minute the door is shut on the last visitor, poor Tom will hear how he has made a fool of her, how he proved conclusively by taking that last Martini that he doesn't care one teeny-weeny bit about her feelings, how he demonstrated to her just what she can expect through the long years that are to come, and, last but not least, how he ruined her evening completely by behaving like a fool instead of the dear, sweet, thoughtful boy she thought she had married. At this point: tears, and plenty of them.

By putting Tom on the defensive, the killjoy has circumvented the possibility of Tom's accusing her of ruining his evening. And once she assumes the I'm-so-abused attitude, Tom may as well put the cocktail shaker away in mothballs, learn to say "I'm sorry, we have other plans" when the old gang calls up, and prepare to devote the rest of his life to schmoosing the gal who couldn't learn to be a good sport.



"I never go to parties any more."

It is only fair to admit that the killjoy is almost always convinced in her own mind that she is absolutely in the right, that she is dishing out wise and sane advice. But the husband with a hankering for a little fun isn't looking for good advice. He's looking for relaxation and a little excitement to break the tedium of earning a living. And so far as he's concerned, the purpose of the evening is defeated when he has to slip into the kitchen to take a sip of scotch-and-soda or listen to a curtain lecture when the fun is over.



"A girl who wouldn't even pay her way by listening to him."

It may not always be a man's own wife who ruins the evening's fun. It may be just his luck to have some other gal attach herself to him and practically demand that he listen to the sad story of her life. Perhaps she enjoys bad health. Then he must sympathize and appear interested in the recital of her symptoms. Or perhaps an ingrate husband is the topic of conversation. Then she recounts endless occasions when the dinner grew cold and tasteless while she, poor soul, sat in the front window and waited patiently for the errant spouse. Or perhaps she has several just-too-too-darling babies that she just has to talk about.

—o-o—

The poor fellow probably has a couple of kids of his own at home, but he must listen to her ideas on child raising, just why she is sure that young Bobby will grow up to be President, and innumerable stories about the cute things little Penelope says at the age of two. Of course, no chivalrous male ever says, "Say, lady, you're boring me to death." He just sits there and tugs at his collar, looking for a way to escape. And there usually isn't any, because everybody else in the room knows the gal's capacity for punishment and while they feel sorry for the guy in her clutches, they figure somebody has to be the goat.

Besides the gal who does nothing but talk about herself, there is the one who says nothing, but won't listen either. Her beau for the evening takes her out to dinner for a little lobster thermidor and the chance to talk to somebody besides his customers. He talks for a few minutes while she stuffs forkfuls of lobster into her mouth, and then when it comes to the point where he challenges her attention with "And what do you think of that?" she gulps twice and says, "Huh? Oh! What were you saying?" The poor guy is out $4.20 worth of lobster for a girl who wouldn't even pay her way by listening to him. And then she wonders why he ends the evening with "Well, I'll be seein' ya," instead of asking her for a date for a week from Wednesday.

THESE depressing habits of the lady spoil-sports have driven many a man to the expedient of taking his fun at the club, or in a smoke-filled room with a few poker players. Rather than risk the pain of an evening made boresome by some female killjoy, he eschews the company of the fair sex as much as possible and rears like a mustang when his wife suggests even a bunco party at the Joneses. He learned long ago that a bum party is worse than none at all and so he sits by the fireside with a detective story and the moth-eaten memory of the days before he was disillusioned by a gal who meant well but simply couldn't learn to be a good sport.

GIRL ABOUT TOWN

RIDING downtown in a service car during the slack hour the other day we found ourselves alone with the driver, a situation likely to bring on an exchange of confidences. Not that we divulged anything of importance — just enough to set him talking. After all, there were no signs overhead about not talking to the motorman.

It all began with a chance question as to how little money there must be in those trips in the middle of the day.

"Yeah, but you gotta expect that," the driver replied, shoving his cap even farther back on his head. It was his only concession to a uniform and a rose stuck in the visor made that look frivolous.

"If we make three full trips down in the morning and three back in the evening," he continued, "we call it a good day. How much will that net us? Well, you figger it. We take in eight, maybe nine bucks a day, but out of that we kick in $1.25 to the United Service Car Co. That covers insurance, helps pay rent on that terminal at Second and Levee, and goes for union dues in Local No. 408. Sure, we're A. F. of L., because the local belongs to the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, Chauffeurs, Stablemen and Helpers. Fancy title for us guys, ain't it?"

—o-o—

"THEN YOU'VE got to buy your own gas and oil. That comes to about $1.50 a day, depending on how big an appetite your car's got. If you want to figger in depreciation on the cars, that'll come to about $1 a day. You see, most drivers own their own buggies. You can pick up these seven-passenger babies for about three or four hundred bucks. They won't last more about a year, the treatment we give 'em. Call it a buck a day for the car. Then what've you got? A net profit of maybe five bucks a day if you're lucky. Six days outa the week, unless you're on the Sunday run."

With a cavalier gesture not lost on us, he took a bus or two in stride. The traffic lights were with us at Grand avenue, and a yelp of his horn got no reaction from the people on the corner. We were going to have to fire questions to get all the answers before we reached Twelfth street.

—o-o—

"DO THE fees vary on the different routes?" we asked.

"Sure, you gotta take into account the kind of passengers in your neighborhood. Some 'spots'—that's what us guys call a route—you can only get a dime. Now out the Lindell-Waterman run, you could probably collect two bits, if you tried.

"Breaking in a new 'spot' is tough going. Maybe you drive for two months before people tumble to the idea that you're in business. Quite a while back there were some independent fellows who thought they could muscle in on the trade just about the time we got the passengers trained to line up on the curb for us.

They'd have the whole union on their necks if they tried it now. We've got 18 supervisors out on the street corners to look out for our interests. You've seen 'em—those uniformed fellows. They're supposed to keep us in line, too, 20 seconds apart during rush hour, and three minutes between cars in the slack time. Yeah, and then they're four more supervisors trailing us all the time. That's to check up on the way we drive. If a guy gets caught breaking the operating rules—and that includes courtesy to passengers, no smoking at the wheel, and all the rest of it—he gets laid off for a day or more. Then if he don't knuckle under he gets fired out of the union."

—o-o—

WE WONDERED how many drivers there were.

"Oh, about 425, and they tell me that we haul around thirty thousand passengers to work or shopping every day. Sounds like a lot, don't it? Naw, it ain't such hard work. You start at 7 in the morning and run until 6:30, unless you're on the late shift on the big 'spots,' then you're out till midnight. But you always get some time off in the middle of the day. We usually just hang around the terminal. They've got a recreation room, lunchroom and all, down there for us."

We swooped in to the curb at Twelfth street. As he made change for a quarter—the ride had been worth that and more—he grinned, taking the cap clear off only to put it on again at a more rakish angle. "Well, I guess you got an earful all right"

A WOMAN'S NEW YORK -o- -o-

By Alice Hughes

NEW YORK, June 27.

AMONG the best-dressed women I've seen lately—yes, I'll include men—are those who toil at radio stations, both at the mike and away from it. Ever since I timorously took up a "career" as a national broadcaster for CBS a few weeks ago I've been amazed at the dog put on by air artists. Odd, too, for it is the profession of all where adult kiddies are heard and not seen.

I lay it to the fact that it is a new business, and its people are mostly young, vital, smart and on their toes every moment. I never heard such gayety and joshing—until the mike goes on, when all is deadly earnest. The men all seem to be sartorial sharks, and the girls right out of "Vogue." I always feel, as I start for the station on Tuesday mornings, that I should be wearing that elegant satin number I've been saving for the class reunion. Never mind what class.

And helpful. My two particular chiefs, Nila Mack and Margaret LeWerth, know every air trick, and are marvelous to novices. And I'm grateful now to a dear old soul named Henrietta Prentiss who, long ago, taught me "oral English" or "elocution." Strangely, I paid attention—and it's the only straw I can grasp now as a radio-spieler. And that's a tip for youngsters. No matter how boring or silly it may seem, listen well to such courses if you have them. For radio is an art and industry even more of tomorrow than of today, and there'll be thousands of good jobs for those who enter it somewhat prepared!

—o-o—

WELL, THE girl grads these days never know where a Bachelor of Arts degree is going to land them. In my time it was a matter of teaching school, or bending over a cook-stove, or running for your life, which I chose. This year an arts degree, by some strange hocus-pocus, led pretty young Eva Ortego, 21, and still dewy from Hunter College, to the Rainbow Room on top of the world, where she warbles snappy French and Spanish songs nightly for a good fee!

I talked to Eva (a real Latin beaut), a few nights ago. "When I was graduated," she told me, "some pals dared me to audition for Maj. Bowes' amateur hour on the air. I did. He liked me, put me on a program and then sent me on tour for six months with one of his units. I gave Elkhart and Dubuque plenty of French and Spanish numbers with zip to them, and seemed to get over. Now look where I am! Up in the air!"

Yes—a job in the most sought-after night club in town! That's all little Eva got for four years of of boning! Break your brains on trigonometry and French verbs next year, girls! Who knows—you may turn out to be a hotcha warbler in Radio City!

BEAUTICIAN Goes Mad as Thousands Cheer! Guro, Madison avenue hairdresser, has just finished 32 coiffures precisely alike, to the hair. These carbon copies were on the heads of the 32 musicians in Phil Spitalny's all-girl band, who also dress alike. All bobbed, identically waved. The stock coiffure, now, is parted on the side, swirled back in two regimental rows of "sausage" curls held down by small curved comb. The job done, Guro quietly had a nervous breakdown.

—o-o—

MANY GAY and pleasant memories of the opening of the Texas Centennial at Dallas still churn in my skull after my quick trip there, but I think the drollest concerns Elizabeth Arden, eminent beautician and my friend.

The soft-hearted Arden let out clucks of pity as she noted the viciously sunburned shoulders of the handsome and stalwart Texas University lads who hauled visitors to and fro in rickshas. She scudded away and soon returned with an armful of her own sunburn cream, which she passed out to them, for all the world like a Salvation Army lass distributing doughnuts during the late war.

Some of them giggled a bit, but they all took it with thanks, and probably used it, too, for they were lobster-red on opening day. And it was a cute sight to see little Arden handing out her pet nostrum right and left to the big boys!

—o-o—

I HAD A frightful shock the other day. I saw Queena Mario, the Metropolitan Opera canary, step under a shower wearing a chinchilla wrap tagged $96,750! But my fears came to nothing when I learned that the thing was a stunt for a rain-proofing process. They shouldn't do such things to a girl who isn't as young and sturdy as she was in the old days in Manchester, N. H.!

—o-o—

THERE ARE girls who can wear hats, and there are those who just put something on their heads. I think the finest hat guinea-pig in this town is Helen Cornelius, of one of the big fashion mags. She has what milliners call a perfect "hat face," and they love to try out their new creations on her. I saw her the other day wearing a natural straw-colored beret as big as a barrel-top, and she looked marvelous in it. You and I might have been embarrassed in it—unless we too have perfect "hat faces."

—o-o—

REAL FASHION news, direct from the feed-box and by special wire: The tip is out that the casual sports type of dressing, which has been firmly established so long among us as the most popular style, is actually on the way out. That the tide turns soon to the more prettified type of rigging, more feminine things, more color and less mannishness!

True, we shall still cling to simple, essential lines which display the figure (if any) to advantage; but over those basic lines will be softly draped effects that denote womanliness in the old sense of the word.

This, which I have on the best authority, comes under the heading of real news. If it breaks as predicted, it will do us all over, with frills, in a few months' time. We'll rest on our haunches and see!

● BILLY LEEDS, whose money came from tin plate, and his pretty bride, the Olive Hamilton who used to trill "number, plee-uz" at an Atlantic City hotel, are now spreading sunshine and cash through our midst. After giving the girl a good impolite and satisfying stare on the Waldorf Roof the other night, I don't wonder he shackeled her. She's lovely! They're in the Leeds pent-house on the East River....

MRS. LEEDS

I saw a young thing on the avenue yesterday wearing a black patent leather belt with the alphabet written in white all the way around it—no doubt to remind her of her P's and Q's. Well, there are plenty of waists that would take two alphabets and a few spare consonants!... Speaking of novel get-ups, Helen Koues, fashion editor of "Good Housekeeping," is sporting a printed silk dress all written over with a Chinese word that is long. She looks like a walking laundry ticket. And Helen swears the word is just Chinese for "tea"....

Joy is mixed with the faintest tinge of disappointment at the house of Song King Irving Berlin, whose lovely wife just gave birth to an eight-pound girl to be called Elizabeth Irving. Six and a half years ago lovely Ellin Mackay Berlin had a boy who died a few days later—and how they've prayed for another! Three girls, now. That marriage, called ridiculously hopeless at its start, is one of the most magnificently successful I know—giving a deserved knock to those croakers who stand around weddings muttering!

Washing Lace

When washing white lace, soak it in unboiled lukewarm milk for at least two hours, then press between the hands and do not rub. Change the milk and keep the lace soaked in it until clean. Rinse in warm water to which castor sugar (one tablespoon to two pints of water) has been added.

Planning Party For Bride-to-Be

IT'S a lucky hostess who is planning to entertain for a bride-to-be. For the bride herself and the occasion make the party a success. All the hostess has to do is to plan and prepare refreshments that are tempting and attractive.

Ice cream and little cakes are sure to appeal. And so far as the mechanics are concerned, we recommend sweetened condensed milk as the foundation for both ice cream and cake frosting.

As for a menu, we would suggest a fruit juice cocktail served with a cherry and a little chopped mint in each glass, followed by jellied chicken or chicken patties with dainty, little sandwiches and rolls and small tomatoes filled with chopped celery for salad. These, with the ice cream and frosted cakes for dessert, make a tempting luncheon. Hot bouillon after the fruit cocktail, and hot peas or asparagus and French fried potato balls served with the chicken turn the menu into a simple but appropriate dinner.

Evening Dresses Of White Chiffon

ANYONE who is weary of so many printed evening frocks and is seeking something different should consider the chic of white chiffon accented with a very vivid tone. The color note appears at the waistline where a sash of wide grosgrain or velvet ribbon is tied with an extravagant bow or on the bodice where flowers ally two or three different hues.

Bright green, fuchsia, royal blue and purple are among the most popular accent tones for these white evening dresses. A more subdued trimming is provided in the pale lilacs in shades of lavender and pink that are arranged as a corsage on one attractive gown.

If your child is at the age where he talks too loudly, turn on the radio as loud as it will go—and teach the child that you can no more understand what he is saying, than can he know what is going on over the radio when it is blaring.

● MOSS HART ALMOST got into a scrap with a Hollywoodite the other day by merely mentioning that he missed New York. The native son immediately got hot under the collar and tried to convince Hart that Hollywood had more to offer than Manhattan.

"I'll admit," Moss finally conceded, "that there's one thing you can get in Hollywood that you can't get in New York."

"Yeah," growled the local, "and what's that?"

"Homesick," was the retort.

HARPO MARX ADMITS it might have been told before. Not here, at any rate. A stranger approached one of the Rothschilds of the banking tribe during a roulette game and asked if he could let him borrow 200,000 francs.

"What's your collateral?" asked the banker, "Going to inherit a fortune? Going to marry a rich woman? Or have you property and gems?"

"Haven't a thing," was the frank reply, "Just me—my personality and word. I'll pay you back in three months plus 6 per cent interest."

The banker took the risk. To his amazement, a month later the stranger walked in and returned the 200,000 francs and interest.

"Now," said the man, "would you please lend me 100 francs?"

"Not me," ejaculated Rothschild. "You fooled me once."

THE DEPRESSION HIT the theater as hard as anything was struck. Many tumbled from the financial heights and great changes came into the lives of the once mighty and mightier-than-thou.

"Hello," greeted Blackmer. "Been buying cigars?"

"No," was the dejected reply. "Moving."

PERHAPS NO PARAGRAPH written in a long spell was clipped, carried, shown and discussed so much as Irving Hoffman's on Hannen Swaffer, a visiting London drama critic. Swaffer is known for his dislike of American actors in England. Many of them now in Hollywood never forgot his merciless abuse. The Hoffman item appeared in the Hollywood Reporter, as follows:

"Hannen Swaffer is now in your midst. In New York he proved a real disappointment. Long heralded as a caustic critic, he arrived and proceeded to let loose a constant flow of remarks considered trite. He acted like a George Bernard Shaw without a beard or brain."

CLOSE-UP of ST. LOUIS FASHIONS

MUNICIPAL Opera Chorus GIRLS RELAX

They Are Shown Seeking Sun and Shade at a St. Louis Swimming Pool Between Rehearsals

Right — "The water's fine" . . . Miss Dorothy Steidemann tries it.

Pink Dominant Summer Tone

PINK is the dominant tone in summer's fashion symphony, say Paris cables and New York dispatches, and there's no denying the flattery of pink against the coppery tan of summer complexions.

At Belmont, fashion's very last word is dark dresses with touches of pink in a coral shade, so the predictions are pink for summer into autumn. What could be more appropriate than a dark frock's saluted to autumn, at the same time making its obeisance to summer with touches of pink that is summer's owns.

"Coronation red," too, is on the tongues of the fashion wise, with the coming coronation of King Edward giving royal recognition to red. Sufficient reasons, these, for the continued alliance of pink and red in shades that consort well together.

Continuation of Tailored Theme

● The tailored theme continues as the overtone in summer styles, with tailored frocks going everywhere by day and appearing again at night in long skirted versions

"The most tailored Ascot in years" was the cabled phrase describing the opening of the British race meet during the past week. There were tailored satins, tailored nets and taffeta and wool combinations. Of course there were ensembles on the ultra-feminine side, too, and with some of these were seen the new hats of stitched tulle.

Speaking of Ascot reminds us of the annual horse show at Tuxedo Park where the culotte costume made its initial appearance. It was developed in a culotte skirt of dark flannel worn with a sports jacket of light and dark plaid, a silk neckerchief and felt hat.

Color Combinations

If you are seeking an unusual color alliance that will cause plenty of comment, try the new combination of dark green and rambler rose.

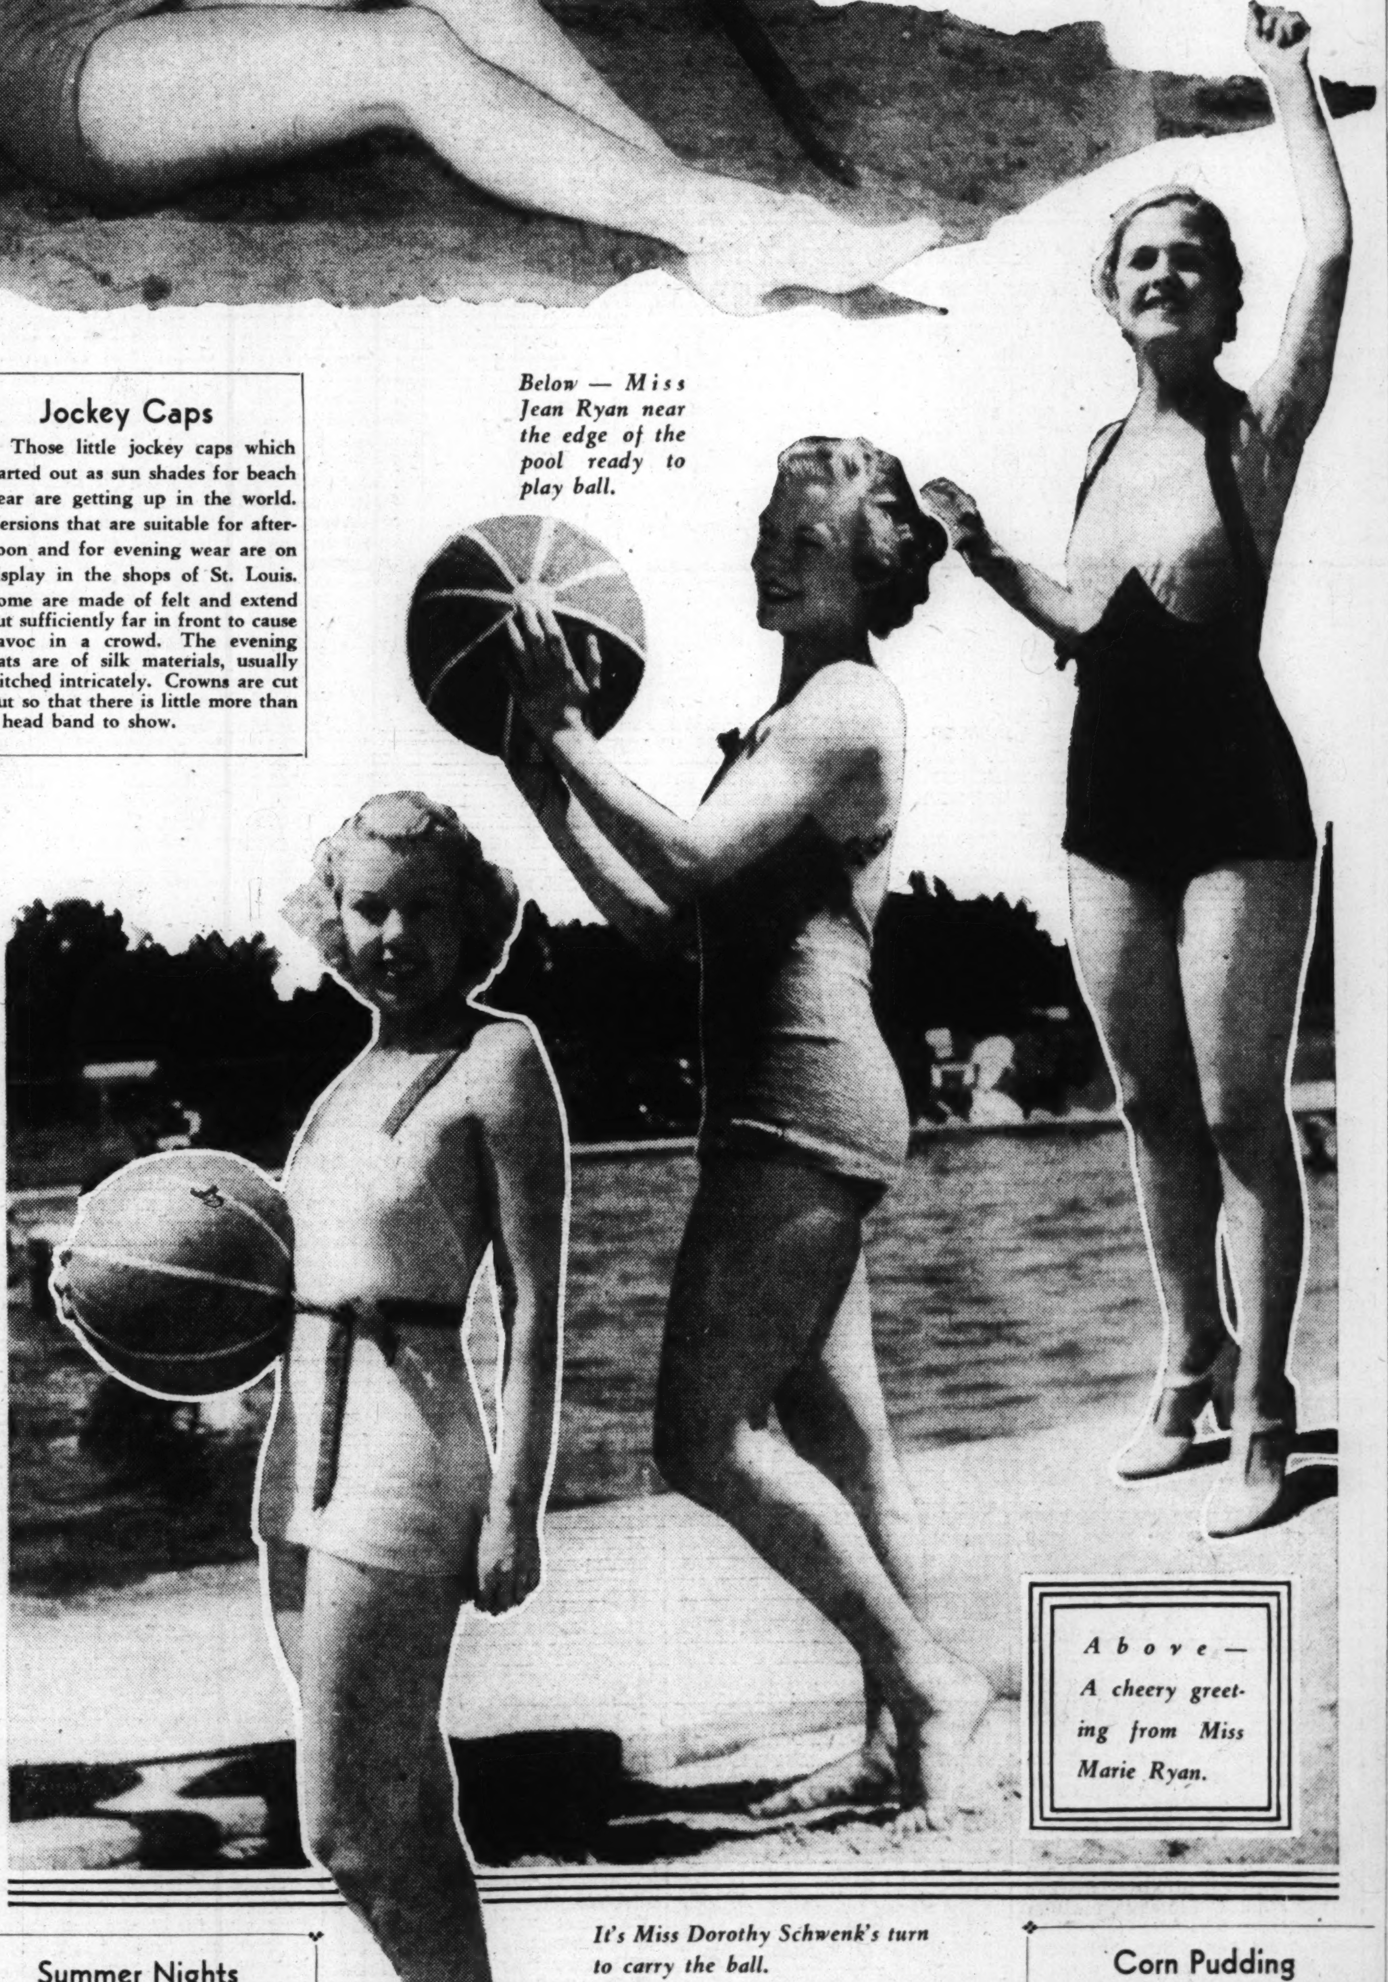
The scheme has been taken from the color of the flower and the stem of the popular rose which is now in bloom. It appears in all sorts of summer costumes and injects plenty of striking effects into conventional attire. A linen suit, for example, is made of the rose-tinted fabric, while blouse and hat are of the dark green linen. Equally arresting is a reversal of this theme, especially when developed of knitted materials.

For Dude Ranch

After investing in a plaid sports shirt, a pair of blue jeans and a 10-gallon hat, a vacation on a dude ranch is the least that a girl could demand. The shirts are made of knitted cotton and are as wild as any which real cowboys ever dared to wear. Cotton gabardine slacks that are brown or navy may be substituted for those of the overall material, while the wide-brimmed hat may be replaced by a bright bandanna with satisfactory results.

Jockey Caps

● Those little jockey caps which started out as sun shades for beach wear are getting up in the world. Versions that are suitable for afternoon and for evening wear are on display in the shops of St. Louis. Some are made of felt and extend out sufficiently far in front to cause havoc in a crowd. The evening hats are of silk materials, usually stitched intricately. Crowns are cut out so that there is little more than a head band to show.



Below — Miss Jean Ryan near the edge of the pool ready to play ball.

It's Miss Dorothy Schwenk's turn to carry the ball.

Summer Nights

Nothing yet devised has the romantic appeal of pastel moussseline or organza for a young girl's summer night dancing. Seen under the sky on one of St. Louis' roof tops a recent night was a pink organza, very full of skirt with three deep tucks circling it above the hem, and with a cluster of violets at the throat. The small stitched pink taffeta hat of the Dutch cap style had another cluster of violets smack in the front. Wood violet is one of summer's very good colors.

Corn Pudding

Two cups of corn; three eggs; three cups of warm milk. Grease baking dish, place corn in it; mix warm milk with the beaten eggs and pour over the corn, mix gently. Place baking dish in pan of hot water, bake 45 minutes in slow oven. Chopped pimentos, green pepper, or left-over ham, finely chopped, may be added to this. Any left-over meat, finely chopped, may be used.

FACING the FACTS

By Helen Jameson

WHEN a woman realizes that emotional storms—even passing flurries—play havoc with health and good looks she has solved at least half her beauty problems. Let her look about her, visualize the people she knows and meets in daily life. Among them will be many who are afflicted with the worrier's face. You can spot them every time.

Fear destroys beauty. Worry is fear, fear of something terrible that might happen and which seldom does. Jealousy is fear of losing one's loved one. Selfishness is the fear that one can't always have the best of everything, or that somebody else will have more. It is a dragon that breathes out fire to consume happiness and burn up the forces of life.

—o-o—

THINK NOT, you fretters, that these emotions don't undermine the health. They do. Consider sudden rage. The mouth goes dry, the throat contracts. Eyesight is blurred. That expression "blind rage" isn't nonsense. The skin becomes cold and moist. Digestive functions cease. The heart beat quickens. The after-effect is exhaustion and collapse, trembling and nervous excitement.

Wise is the woman who has learned her lesson, keeps a tight rein on herself, goes her way in a state of tranquility.

—o-o—

EVEN LITTLE rages are bad for one. There are women who get boiling mad over trifles. The upsetting of a coffee cup, a grocery order that hasn't come on time, a run in a stocking, the wrong telephone number, what the woman next door has said. Well, what of it? Learn to laugh. Nothing like laughter to oil the wheels of life.

Why throw oneself in a state of panic over matters that are of no importance. Giving way to annoyance pulls the eyebrows together, digs in frowns, interferes with physical well-being. It uses up energy, no doubt about it. It produces fatigue. With a sufficient number of small upsets in the day, the average woman can go to bed a wreck.

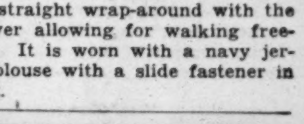
—oo—

NOT SO WITH the woman who is captain of her life. The watch dog of her beauty house is courage, the robber fear can't get in. She tells the world that she is no weakling, shows character by erect carriage, firm step, mental poise and a countenance that is alight with the fun of being alive.

Small difficulties should be minimized, yet a lot of women magnify them, present themselves as martyrs. They fall into the habit of whining. No matter what happens in the family circle it is somebody else's fault. Their faces get lemonated. Their figures lose spirit. Nothing surprising about that. They have dimmed the radiance of youth, got old before their time because they have not seen themselves clearly as they are, and not as they vainly fancy themselves to be.

Resort Clothes

OUR MINDS are set on resort clothes and the designers have done well by us. Suits for resort wear are casual enough in appearance, yet they have the careful tailoring and meticulous attention to detail that we associate with the suit for town wear. One exceedingly smart resort wear suit is made of very thin navy and white diagonal tweed with a two-button closing. The oddly cut pockets are finished with little arrows and are bound in navy woolen with an interesting little arrow motif placed inside the right angle of each pocket. The skirt is a straight wrap-around with the lapover allowing for walking freedom. It is worn with a navy jersey blouse with a slide fastener in front.



AND SO . . . . .
He Kissed Her

Of course, we can't guarantee the perfect ending, but we do say that Cunningham's clothes help.

The dresses, for instance, are so young, so gay, so insouciant . . . that we can't imagine even a moderately susceptible man who could resist kissing the girl who wears one.

The House You Live In

LET ME SUGGEST

by Josephine Walter

IN looking around for ways to make our summer interiors more gay and refreshing in appearance, let us not forget the lowly radiator. Decoratively always a problem, in winter at least, we may feel grateful enough for the warmth it provides to forgive its ugly duckling appearance in our rooms. But during the summer months, when we are apt to forget its practical advantages, it rapidly becomes an eyesore.

Radiator shields are, naturally, the simplest solution and, where these are already installed, they may be improved by utilizing the top for some type of decorative treatment. A series of china birds or figurines set in a row on the top will add a dash of color to any summer scheme while even a group of magazines spread out on top will give the shield a table-like appearance.

For those radiators which do not boast shields, a flower box effect may be achieved very simply and inexpensively. Get a regular flower box, with good drainage facilities, the exact size of the radiator and after planting it with some tall growing plants and some trailing ivy, place it on top of the radiator. Then, conceal the radiator itself with a box-like structure fashioned of plywood or some other inexpensive construction material, being sure that it is built up to where the planting starts, thus hiding the flower box. Painted the color of the woodwork, or, if preferred, one of the colors used in the room, and with the ivy hanging down and silhouetted against its plain surface, such an arrangement would provide a gardeny atmosphere in any room.

More expensive but most effective would be a shield made of twisted, painted wire or tole made with a series of projections to hold gayly colored pots of greenery. Such a shield would provide the same decorative interest as the many charming plant stands to be seen in the shops and, in addition, would hide the unsightly appearance of the radiator.

Household Hint No. 687—If you are having trouble keeping your slip-covers in place the minute someone sits on the couch or chairs, try this: Rescue a broom handle from a discarded broom and place it as deep down in the crack between the back and seat as possible. A full handle will be large enough for the average couch and one split in two will suffice for two chairs.

● JUST HOW nomadic we Americans are may be judged by a comparison between the average leases here and in England. We feel that we are doing the landlord a great favor if we take a two-year lease on his property but an Englishman feels that he is getting a great break if he is only required to take one for seven years, as most leases there run for either 14 or 21 years. And guaranteed to produce shrieks of horror is the fact that in the swankier apartments in London the tenant has to promise to redecorate for the in-coming occupant. I trust I'm not putting any bad ideas into the innocent heads of trusting American landlords.

—o-o—

I DON'T KNOW why the summer season arouses nautical notions of decoration in even such a land-lubber's haven as St. Louis but, nevertheless, it does. One of the most charming accessories for a marine scheme which I saw recently in a St. Louis shop was a candlestick spread of white, unbleached muslin with a huge navy blue anchor as the center motif. Around the edge were stars in the same tone and then bandings of deep blue with touches of red. A perfect magic carpet for helping some young lad sail out over the seas, away from a sweltering St. Louis night.

—o-o—

This Week's Decorating Term: Shades and Tints—In the former, black is added to the pure color to produce a darker tone while in the latter white is added to produce a lighter tone. Tone, incidentally, is the gradation of color produced by the addition of another color.

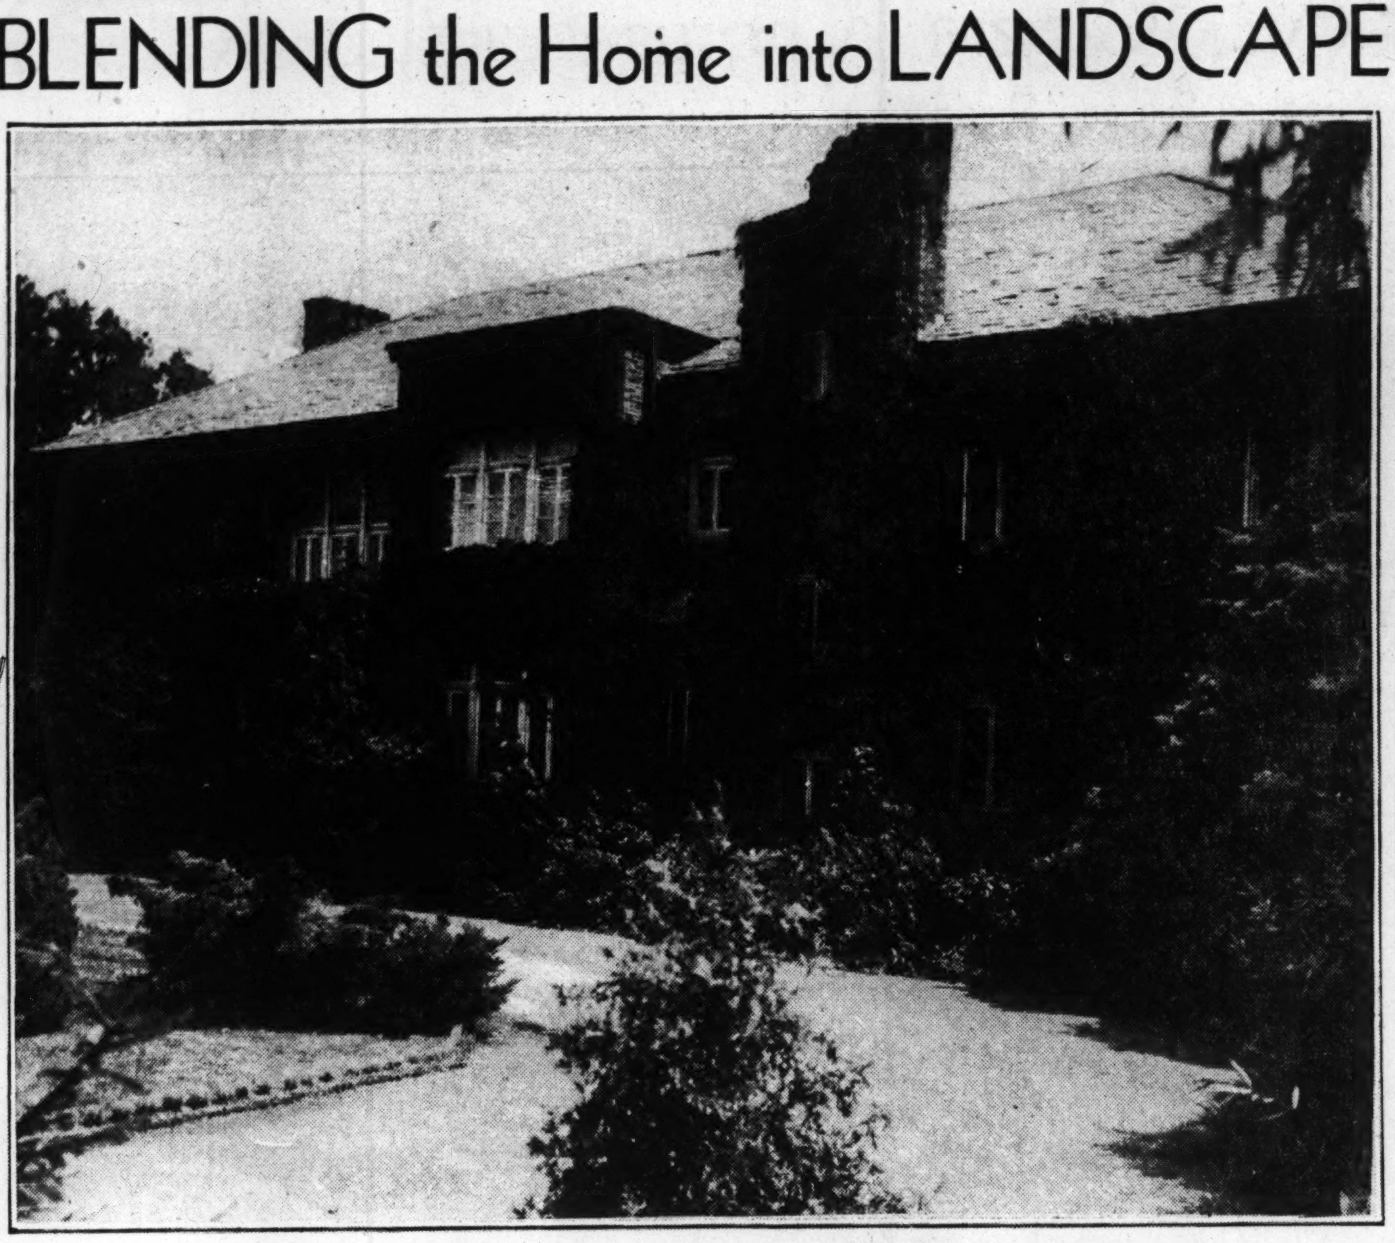
● QUESTION: I would like some information about Venetian blinds for my house. It is of Colonial type and as I have quite a few antiques of this period, I wondered whether these blinds would be appropriate for an interior of this type. Also, I have one round-headed French door in my living-room and would like to know if such a door could be fitted with Venetian blinds or if it would be all right to put them on the windows and not the door. MRS. E. S. W.

Answer: Venetian blinds are appropriate for most interiors and would be quite charming, I think, for your house. They are exceedingly practical, especially in a place like St. Louis, where it is frequently desirable to keep the sun out and yet have the windows open. In regard to your door, it is perfectly possible to have it fitted with a Venetian blind. The top slats remain stationary and the bottom part pulls up to the top of the door. I always think it advisable to treat windows and French doors alike, wherever possible.

BLENDING the Home into LANDSCAPE



The St. Louis home of Joseph Werner, where vines "tie" the house to the setting.

Joseph Werner's House in St. Louis Typifies Value of Ivy and Creeper Vines.

By Amy Lu Schmitz

BEING "at home" is the best thing a house can do, but most houses are by no means at home in their setting—they plainly need tying down, blending. Foundation plantings help a lot, but it is the work of vines to tie in flat wall spaces, turrets and chimney tops. The Joseph Werner home is a good example; here the close-growing Boston ivy and Virginia creeper cling to the walls, outlining and softening the vertical sweep of facade. The height of the house is tied in perfectly with the green setting, and the beauty of the architecture is intensified.

Vines are also wonderously effective in covering architectural errors, breaking up monotonous wall spaces and hiding ash pits, garages, service entrances, compost piles and other necessary evils around a house. They do their work naturally, gracefully and quickly.

The kinds of vines are legion and fitting for every natural or unnatural planting problem. The textures vary from those delicate ones, as fine as lace with small leaf patterns to tall heavy ones with trunks like twined ship's hawsers and quantities of leaves. There are vines that will cling close to a wall (Boston, English, Russian ivies, and Virginia creeper); and there are billowy ones that completely disguise a bad angle or sharp corner (Dutchman's pipe, moonflower, trumpet vine and wistaria).

—o-o—

THERE are lovely flowering ones to shade a porch or trellis and trail over a garden wall (roses, clematis, matrimony vine, morning glories, scarlet runner-bean and honeysuckle), and there are others that bear bright fruits in fall (euonymous, bittersweet, honeysuckle, balloon vine, and hyacinth bean). There are the evergreen sort that will do their work all year (euonymous, Russian and English ivy, Japanese honeysuckle, myrtle and bearberry), and others that will grow fast and furiously to please you each summer, (moon vine kudzu vine, hop and nasturtium).

A vine is a tree that needs support, and because it gets assistance from something else it can throw all its energy into growing rampantly. In the Amazon forests the lianes (woody climbers) are often found coiled and twisted, rising many feet without any visible support because the young tree which formerly held it had been strangled and had died.

However, the fight is two-sided and many times the supporting sapling is the stronger, and as its trunk expands the coils of the climber are stretched tighter and tighter until at last the liane and not the tree is killed. But in our gardens there does not have to be a struggle for existence because we can supply non-living supports and by pruning we can keep the vines under control.

—o-o—

IN supplying supports neutral toned or creosoted wood will be less conspicuous, except, of course, around a white house, where white trellis is the best. Wire trellis is very cheap and durable when made of properly galvanized iron. They are adaptable in many sorts of situations, and the wire may be purchased in any width, height or strength. The fan-shaped trellises are hard to use properly and not suitable for vines of rampant growth, as they become top-heavy. The most satisfactory wood supports are made from cedar, oak, chestnut or locust and the bark is left on; the part of the posts that are sunk in the ground should have the bark removed and be soaked in creosote.

Vinces climb in four different ways: the weavers, the lattice formers, the twiners and tendrill bearers; and if you will select the best sort for a certain place nature will do all in her power to cover it. The weavers, such as roses, myrtle, matrimony, vine and jasmine weave in and out of the trellis as well as among its old wood. The roses use their hook thorns for additional anchorage. The lattice formers build themselves up by their mass of branches such as forsythias, cotoneasters and fuschias.

The tendril bearers send out sensitive feelers to catch hold of support and wind around it (moon flower, clematis, nasturtiums, grape vines and others). In the case of wall-clinging ivies, short tendrils are sent out and the pads at the tip secrete a cement which will cling tightly—in fact, the tendril will break before the pad will pull away.

—o-o—

THESE wall-clinging ivies will need no additional support if they are growing on brick, stone or rough stucco surface. There is no basis for the criticism that ivy will make house walls damp or the roots will separate the bricks. The overlapping leaves tend to throw off moisture rather than hold it; and brick or stone fragile enough to be forced apart by the small tendrils would not stand up anyway.

As one would judge from the tall top growth of vines, they are very deep-rooted plants that will dig far down for their food and moisture. In planting any of the woody climbers that will not die down and have to be replaced each year, dig holes two or three feet in diameter and equally deep and fill with top soil and well rotted manure.

A nurseryman can supply you with various vines in fiber containers which can be planted at any time. They are vigorous growers and will want lots of food; manure, both liquid and dry, as well as nitrate of soda will supply the nitrogen for the strong leafy growth. Climbing roses will require the same sort of culture as garden roses; with particular care that the trellis for them is far enough away from the house or wall to allow circulation of air at the back. The annuals will usually grow with very little attention except for large drafts of water.

"LET'S GO SHOPPING" --O-O--

By Fay Profilet

PICNICS have been the basis of many jokes, what with ants, vagrant cows and irate farmers, but they nevertheless retain their popularity and the discomforts exist primarily in the jokesters' imaginations. People, plenty of them, still go on picnics and here are some suggestions that may help make them more enjoyable and comfortable—suggestions for regular good-time picnics, not the picnic deluxe.

—o-o—

The first requisite is the hamper or a basket for the lunch. Among many shown are inexpensive wicker hampers that come in two sizes, medium and large. They are fastened by stout leather straps and have a double handle. Then there is a picnic basket, also inexpensive and also of wicker. This is metal lined with one side for liquids and another for food.

—o-o—

For a picnic of four there is a special picnic basket. This one is deep but narrow and may be carried with ease. It contains a small thermos at each end, set upright, and a box for sandwiches fills the intervening space. There is room for a small bottle and a container for cream and sugar, which, with four cups, knives, forks and spoons, completes the compact equipment. This basket is of light wicker with a bright blue handle.

—o-o—

There is a picnic table which looks, when not in use, like an umbrella. Made of slats of wood it is rolled up and fitted into a thin rubber case. Four thin rods are slipped into the case, and when the table is unfolded, they are attached to the ends and stuck firmly into the ground. Nothing wobbly about this table. And what's more, the reverse side of the table is covered with felt. Picnickers can thus play bridge after picknicking.

—o-o—

Everything imaginable in the way of paper table cloths, napkins and dishes for outings may be obtained. They are all gay and bright and come either in sets or separately. Several sizes and types of plates are available and different sizes of cups from tall coffee cups to little nut cups are offered. There are paper spoons and forks in different colors and sheets of fancy waxed paper for the wrapping of sandwiches. Metal trays, from which may be served the entire picnic lunch, are decorated with gold filet lace and have refills that are practical and may be easily packed and disposed of.

—o-o—

For the jaunt far into the country, the Bombay cooler will hold ice cubes intact for 36 hours. These coolers hold a half-gallon and come in black enameled with ivory trimmings. They are interlined so that the cubes do not melt into one another.

—o-o—

A popular item for picnics is the quart food jar. These jars are made like a thermos jar with wide tops with chromium fittings and handles. They will keep a salad cool and crisp or will retain the heat of vegetables or liquids.

—o-o—

Next in importance to the picnic lunch is some kind of vacuum bottle. The ones sold to the majority of picknickers this summer come in the pint, quart and two-quart sizes.

—o-o—

On any sort of outing the water jug is important. There is one that holds a gallon of water; it is of crockery, with an insulated lining and a cool green metal covering and a metal spigot. This jug may be set in the bottom of an automobile or easily carried about.

—o-o—

Handy gadgets are the pickle and olive forks. The handles are decorated with either a pickle or an olive, which when pressed release tongs that reach to the very last pickle or olive in the bottle.

—o-o—

Grills for many purposes are suggested for picnics. The charcoal grill for steaks and chops is interesting. There is a small charcoal pit of iron, with red enameled legs, covered by a metal grill. Also for steaks is a flat grill with a two-foot handle. The grill is of heavy wire and is heat-resisting. A smaller one is for frankfurters and still another, with a solid metal grill, is the size and shape of a hamburger. Forks with long extension handles made on the same order as the grills may be used for toasting marshmallows or removing roasted potatoes from the fire.

Bamboo Wood Is Popular in Garden Pieces

Fine Selection of Furnishings Available for Summer Homes.

IF you have put off buying things for the summer home, porch, terrace or garden until now, you will find a marvelous selection in the shops.

A walk through the garden department of the furnishing sections reveals that bamboo is decidedly the wood for the new garden pieces. Simple varnished bamboo with water-proofed cushions in various fabrics and bright colors are eagerly purchased. We liked a portable awning of Venetian red fabric with a frame of bamboo-covered metal.

Breakfast tables, game tables, bars and refreshment carts on wheels, tea wagons, nests of tables, comfy chairs, all are of bamboo, some of them with cushions of a grand fabric that looks just like glazed chintz but is water-proof. There are also long, roll or sectioned mattresses of this fabric. Unvarnished bamboo and rattan furniture, and light hickory furniture that can be transported easily from house to garden or anywhere round the garden, also is shown.

—o-o—

THOSE BIG sun top chairs with low seats that first appeared on European bathing beaches now are popular for home use and have been developed in various woods and patterns. The tables are especially charming, our favorite being a low, long table with wrought iron frame painted white, with a blue glass top. Under the top is a ring to hold a pot, vase of flowers or a plant. Iron mesh also is used for some pieces that are quite expensive but extremely handsome and different. A smart breakfast set is made with this mesh and glass. Black wrought iron furniture done in very delicate designs is another idea that is a success.

Venetian blinds continue to be a summer accessory and now are offered with tapes of various colors. We saw some in pale yellow with green tapes that just made a porch. But if Venetian blinds are a little too steep for the budget then consider the claims of a new shade made of the outside bark of bamboo in deep yellow with brown markings.

Again we find bamboo on the scene, this time fashioned into a tall screen made of flexible poles woven together. We can think of ever so many uses for such a practical accessory. We admired, too, a screen fashioned of wire work painted white with panels of the iron mesh set into wood frames. The panels could be backed with silk, either plain or pleated, in any specific color.

THIS NEW YORK

attire would do so, for, winter or summer, nobody has ever seen him in anything but a derby hat, satin-faced overcoat, wing collar and black knitted tie, clasped by a gold elephant.

His British origins incline him to substitute an umbrella for his walking stick when it rains, but otherwise he never varies his dress and going up a rope ladder or climbing a narrow plank from a heaving cutter never even fractionally impairs his dignity. Trans-Atlantic voyagers know him of old and veteran sea captains welcome him to their bridges with flagons of Bass and tales of 90-foot waves off the Grand Banks.

An old dog at the calling of spotting incoming celebrities and whisking exclusive stories from under the noses of less ingenious reporters, he is watched with an eagle eye by the other ship news lads at the Barge Office and the moment he feigns elaborate disinterest in the arrival at Quarantine of the Bremen or the Empress of Britain they can be certain that some traveler of account is aboard. The revenue cutter would no more leave its berth without the Skipper aboard on such occasions than it would fly the Russian flag or than the Skipper would tell the truth about Marmaduke Mizzle, which is unthinkable.

ONCE the leaders in the field of flash and noise in men's attire, the Broadway shirt shops are now hard put to it to keep up the pace set by the conservative haberdashers of Fifth and Park avenues. Not many seasons ago the shirts of Times Square were regarded as florid parodies of the attire of gentlemen, but now the position is reversed and well-dressed fellows of the town's more exquisite faubourgs flaunt ties, collars and hankies that would give a vaudeville hoofer the moomies.

Never have there been such ribald shirtings parading the Plaza lounge and the library of the University Club. Black and white checks and overplaids, red squares as big as those on the kitchen tablecloth. Gloucester green, raspberry, Dubonnet, henna, canary yellow, lavender, polka dots, red sunbursts on orange backgrounds, ensembles that resemble a cross between a Turner sunset and Paine's fireworks are every-day effects. A Park avenue shirt carpenter displays evening shirts made with black cuffs to contrast with the white cuffs of summer dinner jackets. McCrory Brothers build most of their dress shirts with the conventional white cuffs and bosoms, but with screaming colors for the bodies. Peyton sells cummerbunds and colored ties to match by the score, and even Tripler has some whisk-elegant pastels in scrammy combinations.

It's all too bewildering to Odd McIntyre, for years the sleekest and most colorfully dressed of boulevardiers. He isn't any bolder around the neck than the next fellow nowadays and is reported to have spies continually on the lookout for new and breezier ties. There's competition on every hand in these times.

Staking Plants

STAKING plants should be done before the need is obvious, so that the plant will have guidance while growing. Most plants more than 18 inches tall will need some support to arrive at a graceful old age. Three lengths of stakes are useful—18-inch bamboo canes, three-foot wire stakes, and six-foot heavy wooden stakes, all painted green. You will also need some raffia and soft twine for tying.

The stakes may be used individually or in groups of three with the twine running around notches near the tops to support a clump of plants. Tie raffia firmly to the stake for individual support and run stake in the ground beside the main plant stalk, then loop raffia loosely around the plant and then back to the stake and tie firmly. Stakes will have to be changed as plants grow.

The Problem Of Decorating Your Bedroom

It Must Fit the Personalities of Both Husband and Wife.

By Elizabeth Boykin

A BURLY athletic looking man just doesn't do well in chiffons, no matter what. And he doesn't look well or fit comfortably in a too pretty bedroom, no matter how dainty his wife may be. That's always a problem in decorating a bedroom for husband and wife . . . to get it substantial enough for him and yet feminine enough to be becoming to her.

We saw a room the other day that did this very attractively, we thought. The walls were papered in a lovely pattern of yellow roses with green leaves on a soft gray ground. At the windows yellow taffeta draperies were used with glass bead fringe . . . these draperies were looped back at the sides over crystal tiebacks.

The carpet of the room was in gray slightly deeper than the gray in the wall paper but still quite a light shade. The furniture was mahogany with twin beds . . . on them were placed spreads of ivory taffeta with the tops quilted and the sides made with full ruffles with quilted bands around the bottom.

—o-o—

A CHAISE LOUNGE was in the same green as the leaves in the wall paper and then for accent, an easy chair was in a brown covering. The dressing table skirt was also made of ivory taffeta with the quilted band around the top and bottom. Yellow lamps and a green enamel toilet set finished off the dressing table prettily.

But most important of all from the point of view of the man's comfort was a high chest of drawers with a high mirror so that he could tie his tie and part his hair without any gymnastics. And that brown upholstered chair was man sized, too, and pleased the man in this case very much indeed.

Training Plants

Any plant allowed to grow one leader with all side branches and leaves striped off is known as a "standard form." After it reaches a maximum height, the leading shoot is pinched out and side branches develop into a bushy head. Roses, privet, wistaria are often trained this way and put in decorative pots for formal gardens, as well as lantanas, heliotrope, altheas, fuchias, plumbago, and ornamental fruit trees. This type of plant makes an unusual addition to a garden.

When you go to the flortsts,' buy plants in season. You will find them more economical, and of better quality.

Exercises in Breathing for Better Looks

They Help Clear Up Complexion and Also Refresh the Spirit.

IT is the way of woman to wail about the time that is necessary for that never-ending fight against the old man with the scythe and the long white whiskers. There is always an excuse. She is busy. She is tired. She never has a moment to slather her face with cream. Yes, she intends to. The spirit is willing but she has the house, the papa and the children to look after. What can she do about it?

In that war against Time she need not battle, she can just skirmish. Many a woman has won out without hours of devotion to the cause of pulchritude. A wild spree at the beauty shop now and then, that's fun. A relaxing, luxurious diversion, but there's no need of making it an occasion.

Spare moments come into the busiest lives and these can be utilized. Everyone who isn't bed-ridden has some outdoor life. Well, what's the matter with pumping air into the lungs and growing blushes while walking? Do breathing exercises. Nothing like them for clearing mildew from the spirits, toning the chest muscles, making blood streams step on it.

Pull up the spinal column, let the arms hang easily at the sides, inhale deeply, exhale slowly. Remember to hold in the tummy muscles, that's important.

—o-o—

DEEP BREATHING is not only a physical stimulant and tonic, but it is mental refreshment. The blood streams rushing to the cerebral cells cry out "all out" to worrisome thoughts. Outdoor life is a priceless element in the beauty quest.

There are times when the eyes can be rested—while waiting for an appointment with the doctor or dentist. Much better than fiddling the fingers and wriggling the toes, giving way to nervous jitters. There are women like that. They're tense, on the move, can't sit still.

Eyes work for long hours. Never a let up until the little shutters close in sleep. While resting the eyes, rest the mind. Let your thoughts fall in pleasant places. Think of joyous holidays of the past. Browse. Easing up makes for mental health.

—o-o—

THE NIGHTLY beauty ritual need not take more than 20 minutes; that much is due oneself, for beauty's sake.

Ten minutes in the bath with muscles relaxed. Ten minutes for creaming the complexion, massaging the hands, lifting the nail cuticle, combing and brushing the hair, giving the scalp a brisk little treatment with thumbs and finger-tips. If you do all that you are entitled to read your detective story before you go to sleep. It is your reward for being a good girl.

You'll have a beauty bonus in the morning. It will appear in the form of brighter eyes, clearer skin, hair that has luster and life.

Lupines

Lupines need alkaline soil, and also nitrate-depositing bacterial for good results. Soil can be inoculated with these bacteria, but it is far simpler to borrow a few scoops of ground from a friend that has successfully grown lupines. Just a little soil will carry enough "friendly" bacteria to get a large colony started in your lupine bed. For alkalinizing your soil use lime, or to spare expense get some leftover plaster from a new building.

Velvety Lawn

For a smooth velvety lawn—crab grass must be dug out. Use a sharp tined tool. Dandelions can be killed by plunging an iron wire dipped in creosote, caustic soda or strong acid into the heart of the rosettes. They will wither quickly and can be removed. If there are too many earth worms in your lawn, thinned slaked lime or corrosive sublimate will kill them.

Goldenrod

The hay fever ban on goldenrod has been lifted as a result of research, so it can be safely cultivated here as it is abroad. They are beautiful golden headed flowers which need practically no attention, and will bloom from July to November.

Shredded red cabbage, on green leaf lettuce, with a tart french dressing, is an attractive and healthy salad.

Food and Drink

SAUCE for the GOOSE

by Irma S. Rombauer

AT the recent conference of the Associated Country Women of the World, in Washington, D. C., a bulky book was circulated containing hundreds of international recipes. It included such oddities as kangaroo tail soup, passion fruit tart, braised cockatoo and acacia flower fritters (rules that are definitely not for our emergency shelf).

We are content to peruse their esoteric titles confident that we can produce dishes that are equally alluring, although, perhaps, handicapped by names that are less romantic.

What is there about some foods that causes them to create an instantaneous appeal? There is nothing, apparently, about three egg whites and a cup of sugar to stir the pulse unduly, but combined in a certain way they always do.

The recipe I am about to give to you (this sounds like a fairy tale—"the secret I am about to unfold") has qualities that will win your man as infallibly as love potions of old.

—o-o—

● SINCE PART of its potency lies in the faith you have in its efficacy, no written guarantee goes with it, but do not let this disturb you. Whatever your avowed or your secret motive, take this recipe into your collection, for it is a thing to conjure with.

Meringue Tart—"Pinch Pie"

Sift:

One cup sugar. Place on a platter.
Three egg whites.
One-half teaspoon any baking powder.
One-eighth teaspoon salt.

Combine in a small pitcher or cup:

One teaspoon vanilla.
One teaspoon vinegar.
One teaspoon water.

Whip the egg whites until they are stiff. Add the sifted sugar very slowly one-half teaspoonful at a time, alternately with a few drops of the combined liquids. Beat constantly. When all the ingredients have been added continue to beat the meringue for several minutes. Heap it upon the platter or dish from which it is to be served. Subsequent baking will not affect the platter or dish. Shape the meringue like a pie or tart with a heavy edge, using a spatula or knife. Bake it in a very slow oven 225 degrees for about one hour. When ready to serve the meringue fill the center with:

Sweetened fresh or stewed fruit* Top it with lightly sweetened and flavored whipped cream or with ice cream. Combinations of fruit are good for this purpose.

*Fresh strawberries or raspberries and sliced bananas or canned peaches or apricots, pineapple and bananas. The tart is delicious filled with orange or pineapple ice topped with whipped cream.

When making meringue tart with an electrical beater, combine all the ingredients except the sugar. Use high speed. When the egg whites are stiff, add the sugar, a tablespoonful at a time. Six servings. This is a sure-fire hit as a dessert. It deserves all the asterisks in the printing press. I never serve it to strangers without sending them home happy, replete and with the recipe in their pockets.

—o-o—

● WHILE THE preceding mixture is unexcelled as a tart, I prefer the following rule when making individual meringues:

Meringues

This is an easily made, delicious dessert. Its success depends upon beating the egg whites until they are stiff, adding the sugar very slowly and in baking the meringues as directed. Meringues may be made several days in advance.

Sift one and one-half cups sugar.

Add one-eighth teaspoon salt to seven egg whites.

Beat them until they are stiff.

Add the sifted sugar very slowly, one-half teaspoonful at a time. Beat the eggs constantly. Continue to beat for several minutes after the last of the sugar has been added. Add:

One teaspoon vanilla.

Fold in three-quarters cup sugar.

Place large spoonfuls of this mixture on a baking sheet or shape the meringues with a pastry bag into ovals. Bake them in a very slow oven, 225 degrees, from 45 to 60 minutes. Remove them from the sheet. If they are to be filled (this is optional), crush the smooth side with the thumb while the meringues are warm.

Shortly before serving the meringues fill the hollows with:

Sweetened and flavored whipped cream or a frozen mixture.

Place two filled meringues together. Eight servings.

If you want a gala dish, serve the meringues with ice cream flavored with rum and pour raspberry sauce over them.

Meringues filled with ice cream and served with chocolate sauce are less expensive and equally good.

Baked Custard

Your baked custard will be a success if you place your custard cups in a pan of hot water—not boiling—place pan in a cold oven, and cook with the lowest possible heat. For every egg use one cup of warm milk and one tablespoon of sugar. Beat the eggs and sugar until light and fluffy, stir in warm milk, add a dash of vanilla, and pour into individual custard cups.

Dinner Menu With Snapper and Dressing

Blackberry Batter Pudding Makes the Dessert for This Summer-Time Meal.

Summer Vegetable Soup

TO one and a half quarts of clear beef stock add one-half cup of thinly sliced carrots, one-half cup of chopped cabbage, three chopped onions, one-half cup of grated beets and one-half cup of shelled fresh peas; add salt to taste and two tablespoons of prepared mustard. Cover tightly and simmer until the vegetables are tender. Do not over cook. Serve with crisp toasted crackers.

Baked Red Snapper with Shrimp Dressing

One teaspoon of grated onion.
One-half cup of chopped celery.
One-fourth chopped green pepper.
One cup bread crumbs.
One cup of minced cooked shrimps (crab meat may be substituted).
One and one-half teaspoons of salt.
One egg.
Two tablespoons of melted butter.
Pepper, paprika and one tablespoon of prepared horseradish.

Add the chopped celery, green pepper and onion to the melted butter and let simmer a few minutes, then stir in the bread crumbs and seasoning. Blend well. Remove from fire, add the shrimps and egg and mix all together. Have the backbone removed from the fish. Place dressing on one side of fish and sew fish together. Salt and pepper fish and spread with creamed butter and a light sprinkling of flour. In the bottom of the roasting pan place slices of bacon or salt pork. On this place the filled fish. Bake in a moderate oven for about an hour, basting frequently with drippings in pan. Remove to a heated platter and surround with cucumber sauce. Garnish with watercress.

Cucumber Sauce

Slice four large cucumbers thinly and parboil in salted water for 10 minutes, then drain. Over the cucumbers pour one cup of sour cream. Season with salt and freshly ground pepper and let cook slowly for one-half hour.

Tomato and Okra

Cut unpeeled tomatoes in one-inch slices. Sprinkle generously with salt and pepper and a light sprinkling of sugar. Dot each slice with a lump of butter. Poul boiling water over tender, young okra and let stand for 15 minutes. Drain and slice. Fry in bacon drippings very slowly for 10 minutes, add salt and pepper. Top each tomato slice with the sauted okra. Place on a buttered sheet and put in a slow oven and bake about 20 minutes.

Corn Gems

One cup of corn meal.
One cup of sifted flour.
Four teaspoons of baking powder.
One teaspoon salt.
Two teaspoons sugar.
One egg, lightly beaten.
One cup milk.
One tablespoon of melted butter.

Sift the dry ingredients, beat the egg lightly, add the milk and melted butter. Beat well. Pour into greased muffin pans and bake in a moderate oven about 25 minutes.

Blackberry Batter Pudding

Cream one-third cup of butter with two heaping tablespoons of sugar, add two well-beaten eggs, then alternately add one cup of milk and two cups of flour sifted with four level teaspoons of baking powder and one-half teaspoon of salt. Beat well. Place a layer of the batter in a round cake pan which has been well buttered and lightly floured, cover with two cups of sugared blackberries and over the berries pour the remaining batter. Bake in a moderate oven from 25 to 30 minutes. When done spread over top creamed butter and a sprinkling of brown sugar. Run under flame a moment to melt the sugar. Serve with a hard sauce or heavy cream.

Spinach

Spinach should be washed in luke warm water to remove all sand. Let it soak for five minutes, then lift gently out of the water. Place in more water for a moment, again lift out; repeat this process twice. If the spinach is especially sandy an additional washing or two may prove necessary. By lifting the spinach from the water—rather than pouring the water off—the sand will have settled to the bottom of the continer in which you washed it, and not poured back into the spinach.

Not what it looks like but a shaker of sparkling Borscht soup.

Sophisticated COCKTAIL SOUP!

Frosted fruit soup is served in a glass punch bowl.

Launch Your Summer Dinner Party Full Sail Toward Success to the Tune of Ice, Tinkling in a Cocktail Shaker of Sparkling Cold Soup. . . .

By Clementine Paddleford

JUNE twilight stretches silver shadows across a roof-top terrace. Below, lights are spattering into bloom. A little party of dinner guests lounge in drooping poses; conversation languishes. Dread closes around the hostess like a sheath of frost. It is that moment of moments when the party goes dead or sets forth full sail on a billow of laughter toward a gay evening ahead. Now is the moment to be dramatic, to spring a clever surprise—to announce the dinner with a flash of color—an ice-tingling cocktail soup.

Yes, soup—a soup as sophisticated as the setting, a soup cool as silver. It may be a ruby Borscht in a tall, super-tall, cocktail shaker, with sparkling ice cubes made of the blood of beet. Pour the soup into cocktail glasses, for it is a soup to drink. The vegetables and beef, which gave their juices to the brew through long simmering, have been strained out, leaving the beverage rich and smooth.

Courting the soup is a bowl of chilled whipped sour cream. Add a snowy cap of this to each cocktail. Now, too, is the time to usher in that enormous tray of crisp vegetable tidbits, paired with the savory meaty kind. The tall shaker holds "seconds," and even thirds will be in demand, for cocktail glasses have limited capacity and that Borscht, of garden flavors and the rich juices of beef, is rarely delicious.

Frosted fruit soup does credit to summer hospitality. Serve it like punch from that handsome bowl which has spent its days in idleness on the top cupboard shelf. If you haven't a punch bowl, there are lovely ones in the shops at big and little prices. One of clear, glass, with a fitted lid, as shown in the photograph, figures with distinction for open terrace meals. The snug lid keeps passing cinders out; the cool frostiness it holds within. A glass punch ladle serves the soup. For the photograph here, we have selected a beauty in garnet, of the same shade as the handles of the glass punch cups.

—oo—

FRUIT JUICE ICE CUBES keep the contents of the bowl to a tingling chilliness. These cubes, of course, are made of one or another of the juices used in the soup. A silver bowl of fruit ice, tagging along with the soup punch is another cooling idea, a small dip to be added to each glass before the drink is dipped into. Chaperoning the soup goes a tray of fragrant fruit hors d'oeuvres. No fruit soup is worth a wink without these fruity accompaniments.

Make them simple. Fruit is so handsome in itself, it needs no fussing over. For a starter, seed large, black cherries, leaving their stems intact. Into the seed cavity, press a salted almond or any salted nut. Fill peach quarters with tangy mashed cheese or cream cheese and crown with a red raspberry.

With the largest French vegetable-cutter, scoop an avocado into balls, and with the smallest cutter, dig a cavity from the side of each one. This is to be filled with cream cheese mixed with tomato ketchup or a fragrant chutney. Fashion melon balls in the same manner, marinate in lemon juice and fill with wine jelly cubes.

Small sections of halved banana, marinated in lemon juice, then spread with tart jelly and sprinkled with coconut, lay worthy claim to our affection. Stuff pasteurized prunes with orange marmalade mixed with chopped almonds; roll them in bacon strips; fasten with toothpicks and grill. You can't make too many of these.

Do you know the wheedling way of spiced pineapple sections? Roll them in chopped, salted nuts for extra goodness. Strawberries, wearing their hulls, are viewed with eager anticipation when dusted with powdered sugar and rolled in chopped mint.

Notice that two-toned jellied soup in the bowl with the emphatic edges. There is a dish to please the eye and bring a shower of compliments. For the lighter jelly, we used a new broth made from coquinas, a rare and delicate shell fish found in Florida's coastal waters. Jellied, the broth is very shimmering, especially so when served in a milk-glass bowl with contrasting cubes of rich tomato consomme.

—o-o—

SEVERAL EXCELLENT soups come prepared to jelly in their container when thoroughly chilled. But don't expect the jelly to stiffen enough to cube; it is of soft and tender texture, scarcely collectable. However, if the can is opened before the soup is chilled and gelatin is added as in the two-tone recipe here, the resulting jelly will either cube or mold.

Soft jellied soups should arrive on the scene accompanied by a bowl of salted whipped cream sprinkled with paprika. Finely minced pimiento blended with the cream gives the same rosy tone and superior flavor. Add minced parsley for a cool green.

You can make the soup bowl very beautiful. Border the jelly with macaroni seashells, cooked in a tastily seasoned meatstock or in boiling water tinted in pastel colors. Shells cooked without coloring may be sprinkled with paprika or parsley, or rolled in grated cheese.

Lemon slices give a dandified air to the bowl when crested with paprika. Custard cubes, cut in fancy shapes, do a first-rate decorating job, so does a bouquet of radish roses topping the bowl in a nest of watercress. A nosegay of flowerettes of cauliflower is quaintly different!

When platters and bowls begin to look like the ruins of Athens, the soup course is ended and dinner will be served inside or on the terrace—it really doesn't matter for your party has forgotten the heat of the day's limping hours. There is quiet talk and contented laughter. June dusk has given way to night.

Chicken Cordiale

Six cups canned chicken broth
Six eggs
Five tablespoons lemon juice
One-half teaspoon salt
One-quarter teaspoon pepper
Two tablespoons sherry

Strain chicken broth if it contains rice. Bring to a boil over low flame. Beat eggs thoroughly, add lemon juice, salt and pepper and continue to beat until mixture is light and frothy. Gradually beat in the boiling broth. Add sherry. Pour into thin china bowls and serve at once. This recipe yields six portions. This soup is equally delicious when chilled.

Two-Toned Jellied Consomme

Dark part:

One and one-half (16 ounces) cans consomme madrilene
One tablespoon gelatin
Two tablespoons water

Heat consomme madrilene to boiling point. Soften gelatin in cold water and dissolve in hot soup. Chill in shallow pans in refrigerator until firm. Cut in one-inch cubes to serve.

Light Part:

Three cups clam broth or similar canned broth
Dash of pepper
Two and a half tablespoons gelatin
One-quarter cup water

Heat broth to boiling point, seasoning lightly with pepper. Soften gelatin in water and dissolve in hot broth. Pour into shallow pans and allow to chill in refrigerator until firm enough to cut. Serve in one-inch cubes in a bowl with jellied consomme madrilene. This recipe yields six portions.

Frosted Sherry Fruit Soup

Three tablespoons quick-cooking tapioca
One and one-half cups boiling water
Two cups grape juice
Two cups pineapple juice
One-half cup granulated sugar
Grated rind of one lemon
One (two-inch) piece stick cinnamon
One cup fresh raspberries
One-half cup sherry

Stir tapioca into rapidly boiling water. Cook until clear, stirring frequently. Add grape juice and pineapple juice, bring to a boil again, and stir in sugar, lemon rind and stick cinnamon. Cook 10 minutes over low heat, remove from flame, add raspberries, and chill. Add sherry before serving. This recipe yields six portions.

Chilled Borscht

Three carrots, chopped
Three small onions, sliced
Three stalks celery, chopped
One pound beef, cut in cubes
One (four-pound) fowl, cut up
Three quarts hot water
One-fourth teaspoon peppercorns
One-half bay leaf
One sprig thyme
Two laurel leaves
One sprig parsley
Salt
Pepper
Two uncooked beets, chopped
One cup sour cream

Combine carrots, onions, celery, beef and fowl with hot water. Bring to a boil and add spices and herbs tied in a small cloth bag. Simmer two hours on low heat. Strain and season to taste with salt and pepper. Add beets, simmer 15 minutes longer, and strain. Chill thoroughly. Serve with a topping of sour cream whipped until it holds its shape. This recipe yields eight portions.

Pineapple Mint Bouillon

One medium-sized pineapple
Three cups boiling water
Juice of two lemons
One-half bunch fresh mint
One tablespoon cornstarch
Six tablespoons granulated sugar
Twelve green mint cherries, sliced

Pare pineapple and put through food-chopper using finest knife. Add to boiling water with lemon juice, and mint leaves. Simmer 10 minutes. Strain through a fine sieve and again bring to a boil, stirring in combined cornstarch and sugar. Cook 15 minutes, stirring frequently. Chill. Serve, garnished with green mint cherries. This recipe yields six portions.

Iced Beer Soup

Four cups beer
Two cups cold water
Two cups white wine
One cup pumpernickel crumbs
One tablespoon granulated sugar
One teaspoon lemon rind, grated
One-eighth teaspoon cinnamon
One tablespoon lemon juice

Combine ingredients in order given and shake vigorously in a cocktail shaker. Set in refrigerator to chill thoroughly. Shake again just before serving. This recipe yields eight portions.

Meatless Recipes for Variety

LENT gave many cooks a chance to concoct and try out new and tasty meatless dishes. From several readers we have received letters telling of such recipes and asking us to share them with other readers of this department. This we gladly do with warm thanks to these kind and clever ladies.

For cheese spagehtti, cook spaghetti in boiling water until tender, then drain away the water and add plenty of grated cheese, a good-sized piece of butter, a dash of various piquant sauces and seasonings. Heat, stirring occasionally, and make quite sure you have plenty of cheese in the dish.

For a variation, use the same ingredients but make in a baking dish with layers of spaghetti and cheese. Heat half a pint of tomato pulp with a half pint of beef stock, adding a clove of garlic and some seasonings. Cook for five minutes, then remove garlic, pour the stock over the speghetti and bake in moderate oven for half hour.

For potato souffle, sieve one pound of boiled potatoes while they are still hot and mix them with an ounce of butter, seasoning and the yolks of two eggs. Fold in the stiffly whipped whites of the eggs and turn the mixture into a buttered souffle dish. Bake for 20 minutes in hot oven. Serve at once.

A reader send us a splendid recipe for cooking cauliflower. Pick the white part of a cooked cauliflower into sprigs and mix with an equal quantity of bread crumbs which have been soaked in milk. Add the yolk of two eggs, seasoning and fold in lightly the stiffly beaten whipped-egg whites. Turn the mixture into a buttered mold and steam for some 40 minutes. Turn out and serve with white sauce or parsley sauce.

Lentils are healthful and nutritious as well as being tasty. Therefore, we are rather astonished to find that the lentil isn't more popular here. In Europe it is a staple item of diet. It is a marvelous substitute for meat, as you will find if you try these lentil rissoles. Sieve a cup of lentils which have been cooked in salted water with a small onion. Mix the puree with a teaspoon of chopped parsley, a teaspoon of chopped olives and sufficient sieved, white bread crumbs to make into a fairly stiff paste. Shape into rounds, lay all on greased tin, and bake in hot oven until browning. Serve with tomato sauce or chutney.

Don't let the shop-keeper cut off the greens from your carrots, turnips, celery or beets. These tops contain minerals and vitamins. Cook these vegetable greens separately and serve in place of spinach, or lettuce; or serve creamed; or cook in soups.

French Dressing

If you do not prepare your French dressing at the table—make enough to last you for four or five days, at one time. Place in a covered, glass jar, and keep in the refrigerator. Shake thoroughly before using. If you like garlic to pep up your salad, add a garlic clove to your dressing. Remove from the bottle after one day, if you like it mild, and after two days, if you prefer it strong. If garlic is too pungent for your taste and oleofactory sense, use a small slice of onion instead.

Have you ever tried shining your windows and mirrors with crumpled paper? It gives a good polish, and saves washing clothes.

Recipes That Save Work in Hot Weather

This Can Be Done Without Letting Down on Quality of Meals.

By Alice Lynn Barry

WITH warm weather here, it behooves us to take things as easy as possible without letting down on the quality of the meals we serve.

You might find it a good notion to make two quarts of white sauce to have on hand for scalloped or creamed dishes or creamed soups. Cook enough potatoes or rice for two days. While the rice is still hot put it into a well-buttered large ring mold. Cover with waxed paper and store in refrigerator. Later in the week serve with a chicken stew in the center or with stewed or fresh fruits. Mix four or six cups of flour with the fat, salt and baking powder needed for baking powder biscuit. Enough for a single meal may be moistened as needed and either muffins or biscuits will glorify any meal, especially when served with honey or preserves and fresh, sweet butter.

—o-o—

NOW FOR A couple of seasonable receipes leading off with a delectable strawberry cream. Heat together three-quarters cup sugar and half-cup hot water and when sugar is melted, boil for five minutes with rind from quarter of an orange. Beat two egg yolks and beat the syrup into them. Wash one pint strawberries, hull them, then crush through a potato ricer. Allow to stand in sugar and egg custard for half an hour. Beat the two egg whites until very stiff. Add two tablespoons sugar, then add to strawberry mixture.

Beat one cup whipping cream until thick but not stiff. Combine. Freeze until half frozen, then beat once. For each portion, serve with two pineapple slices cut in half and arranged on a plate with the rounded sides in. Add a mound of the strawberry cream and place a fringe of unhulled berries round the mound of cream.

Now for a batch of frozen pineapple rings. Heat together half cup sugar and one cup hot water. Boil for five minutes after the sugar is melted. Add two teaspoons gelatin that has soaked in quarter cup water, and when melted, cool. Add one No. 2 can crushed pineapple, half cup grapefruit juice, juice of one orange and one lemon and some green coloring. Freeze until about half frozen. Then beat thoroughly and pack in individual ring molds or in narrow ice tray freezing until very hard. Unmold on shredded watercress and fill the centers with fresh fruit. If frozen in freezing tray, unmold, cut into strips, then arrange around a mound of fresh fruit salad. Cream cheese balls which have been rolled in finely-chopped nuts, or balls made of cream cheese and Roquefort cheese may be nicely served with this delicious salad.

Hollandaise Sauce

Hollandaise sauce, with a teaspoonful of sugar added to it while cooking, makes a perfect dessert for fruit or steamed puddings. It can be used over crumbled stale cake or cookies, and is excellent on ginger-bread. You can substitute one tablespoonful of grapefruit juice, or pineapple juice, in place of lemon juice; or you can use two tablespoonfuls of orange juice.

To straighten bent knitting needles, hold them in the steam of a kettle until pliable, bend into shape and put into cold water immediately.

Beverage Sets

● BEVERAGE SETS for the serving of iced tea or fruit drinks are reasonably priced and widely displayed. They are of crystal and colored glass with pitchers and jugs of odd shapes on their own glass serving tray.

—o-o—

Nested tables for serving tea or drinks on the porch or in the garden are highly ornamental and useful. One "nest" has three tables that when fitted into one another form a tier and may be used as an end table. Tables of this type of white metal with blue glass tops will catch the eye and the fancy and serve many purposes.

—o-o—

For the serving of warm weather menus the cheese tray really comes into its own. A less elaborate but attractive one is of chromium with a removable wooden block covered by a chromium bell shaped top with a walnut knob.

—o-o—

The adage "out of the frying pan into the fire" is partly true of individual servers for supper. The servers are wooden blocks with small covered frying pans fitted into one end. The food may either be cooked in the pans or placed there, with room left on the server for vegetables or a salad plate.

OFF the LEASH

by
H. F. Owen

OUR lesson today will be "Speaking on Command." Before we go into this lesson we wish to thank all of those who have written or called us on the phone. We are always glad to answer any questions regarding dogs.

Those who have dogs that have "spoken" from puppyhood will think that teaching a dog to speak is unnecessary. There are many dogs, however, who would never "speak" unless trained.

A young dog that is always eager to go with you for a walk or a ride in the car can be taught to speak easily. Pretend you are going out as usual but before you open the door say, "Do you want to go out? Well, speak!" In his eagerness to go, he will probably bark. Then you open the door and take him out. You can teach him to speak in this way, but you will also teach him to bark every time you have to go out and leave him alone. And that is very annoying to the neighbors.

If your dog is a good eater and seems always hungry, he can be taught to speak by showing him food. Say, ""Speak," but do not give him any food until he barks at your command. Later pretend you have food in your hand, give your command, "Speak," and praise him when he obeys.

In a short while do not pretend you have anything for him to eat, but give your command in the same tone and manner that you used when you were using food as a reward.

—o-o—

● NOW WE HAVE the dog that does not care especially to go out. He has lots of patience and will wait until you set his food down for him to eat. If you go out and leave him he will wait for you to come home and be glad to see you, but usually does not bark to show it.

If your dog is like this, the best method to use is to snap on his leash and have the dog sit in front of you. Hold the leash within a foot or so of the dog's head, so that he cannot get very far away from you. Now say, "Speak." He will not know what you mean, but repeat "Speak" and at the same instant touch his front foot with the toe of your shoe. He will "Yip" and pull his foot back. Pat him and say, "That's right, speak." Repeat this a few times, touching his toe each time you give your command, and praising him each time he makes a sound. After a few times you will not have to touch his toe, but just move your foot as you give your command, "Speak." In a very short while you will have your dog speaking when he hears the command.

With any method you use in teaching your dog to speak, look directly into his eyes and try to get him to keep his eyes upon yours.

—o-o—

● DATING FROM the fifteenth century illustrations show dogs with long bodies, short legs and the long ears of a hound. These dogs were pictured hunting badgers. These cuts show a similarity in the coat, but seem to indicate a long and a rough coat. They were called badger dogs.

Vigor and endurance were needed against an opponent such as the badger. A smaller sized Dachshund was used to hunt foxes and to track wounded animals. Miniatures were produced in the early part of the twentieth century and were used for jumping rabbits.

Since 1895 the Dachshund Club of America has encouraged the breed and in 1913 the Dachshund was one of the most popular breeds at leading dog shows. Since 1930 its popularity has increased. Last year it was leading the breeds in dog show entries.

The Dachshund has three types of coat, the smooth or short-hair, having a thick gleaming short coat; the wire-hair, with a hard heavy undercoat, and the long-hair, with a coat like the setter.

—o-o—

● THE COLORS are a reddish-tan of different shades and a black with tan markings, which should have a black nose and black toe nails. A chocolate color with tan markings allows a brown nose. The eye should be dark and they should be bright and sparkling.

The long head, well-developed nose, well angulated shoulder and legbones are important characteristics of the breed. He should have a free gait of front and hind legs. His feet should be sound and strong with heavy nails for digging. The jaw should be strong and the teeth even. Over-shot or under-shot teeth are a serious fault. The Dachshund should be spirited but not quarrelsome.

The smooth-haired Dachshund is the most popular in this country and is small enough for the apartment, affectionate and a good watchdog. Out of doors he is tireless. A companion in a quiet mood and a grand playfellow for the children.

Cleaning Mops

Your mops and brooms should be washed once a week, if you don't want to add more dirt and germs to the room you are cleaning than you are disposing of. Soak them for half an hour in a warm, soapy solution and rinse thoroughly. Dry in the sun if possible. A little disinfectant should be added to the water in which they are soaked.

KING LEHR AND THE GILDED AGE

By Elizabeth Drexel Lehr

Author Tells of the Difficulties Encountered by a Young American Social Climber at a Party He Gave in Paris for Royalty.

"HENRY SYMES LEHR, Baltimore, Maryland (valet, wife, maid and dog) . . ."

I have seen it so often written in Harry's neat precise handwriting in a dozen hotel registers all over Europe. It was his invariable manner of describing himself and his "entourage," to use his own word. Once I remonstrated with him over it, pointing out that friends who looked casually at the register would not know that I was traveling with him. He stared at me in astonishment. . . .

"How can you possibly expect me to write 'Mr. and Mrs. Symes Lehr'? Don't you realize that such a thing would detract from my reputation? All Europe has heard of me, but never of you. I am the one people want to meet, not you, so why advertise your presence?"

The humiliation of it! The miserable subterfuge of explaining to friends who happened to see the register and comment on it that it was one of Harry's jokes! To hear constantly, "Why, we never knew you were in Paris, Bessie. We thought Harry was alone—that is why we never asked you to our dinner party!" I would never even have heard of the party, but I would lie valiantly. . . . "Oh, I couldn't have come. I had such a frightful headache. . . ."

"And Harry forgot to tell us! How careless of him!"

And I would be left wondering whether they had guessed. . . .

Years of misery made endurable only by the knowledge that my mother was happy—that she at least suspected nothing!

. . . .

Panorama of those years of travel! Breathless rushes across continents. . . . One country blending into another . . . journeys by car, by boat, by train . . . Paris . . . Newport . . . New York. Paris again . . . London . . . Vienna . . . Berlin . . . the Riviera . . . Italy Champagne years, colorful, sparkling, ephemeral; one skimmed lightly over the surface, not daring to look beneath. Always entertaining . . . being entertained . . . the same scene in a new setting, for Harry dreaded solitude above all things. He must always be the center of a crowd. He craved admiration and applause—deprived of it he was flat, lifeless. He who could be the gayest of companions to others, whose wit would enliven the dullest gathering, was bored miserable in his own society.

Paris in the spring, like all good orthodox Americans. We would be certain of finding a little coterie of acquaintances, women come over to buy the latest models before the Newport season, men intent upon sampling the distractions of Europe's gayest capital.

Mr. Van Alen would be stopping at the Hotel Bristol. He preferred the Ritz but King Edward VII always stopped at the Bristol, and as the resemblance between them was supposed to be remarkable, he got a great deal of pleasant anticipation out of the thought that someone was sure to mistake him for the King of England. His stately dignity was always more in evidence in Paris than anywhere else.

—o-o—

HE invited us to an enormous dinner party which he was giving at Armenonville. His guests were to include some of the most distinguished people in Europe. He was very anxious that all the arrangements should be perfect and enlisted Harry's help over the orchestra, the choice of favors and table decorations, and the two of them drove off to Armenonville, where poor Mr. Van Alen harassed the manager, the maitre d'hotel and the chef to the point of frenzy, before the menu was finally drawn up to his satisfaction. In the meanwhile Harry Lehr interviewed the chef d'orchestre.

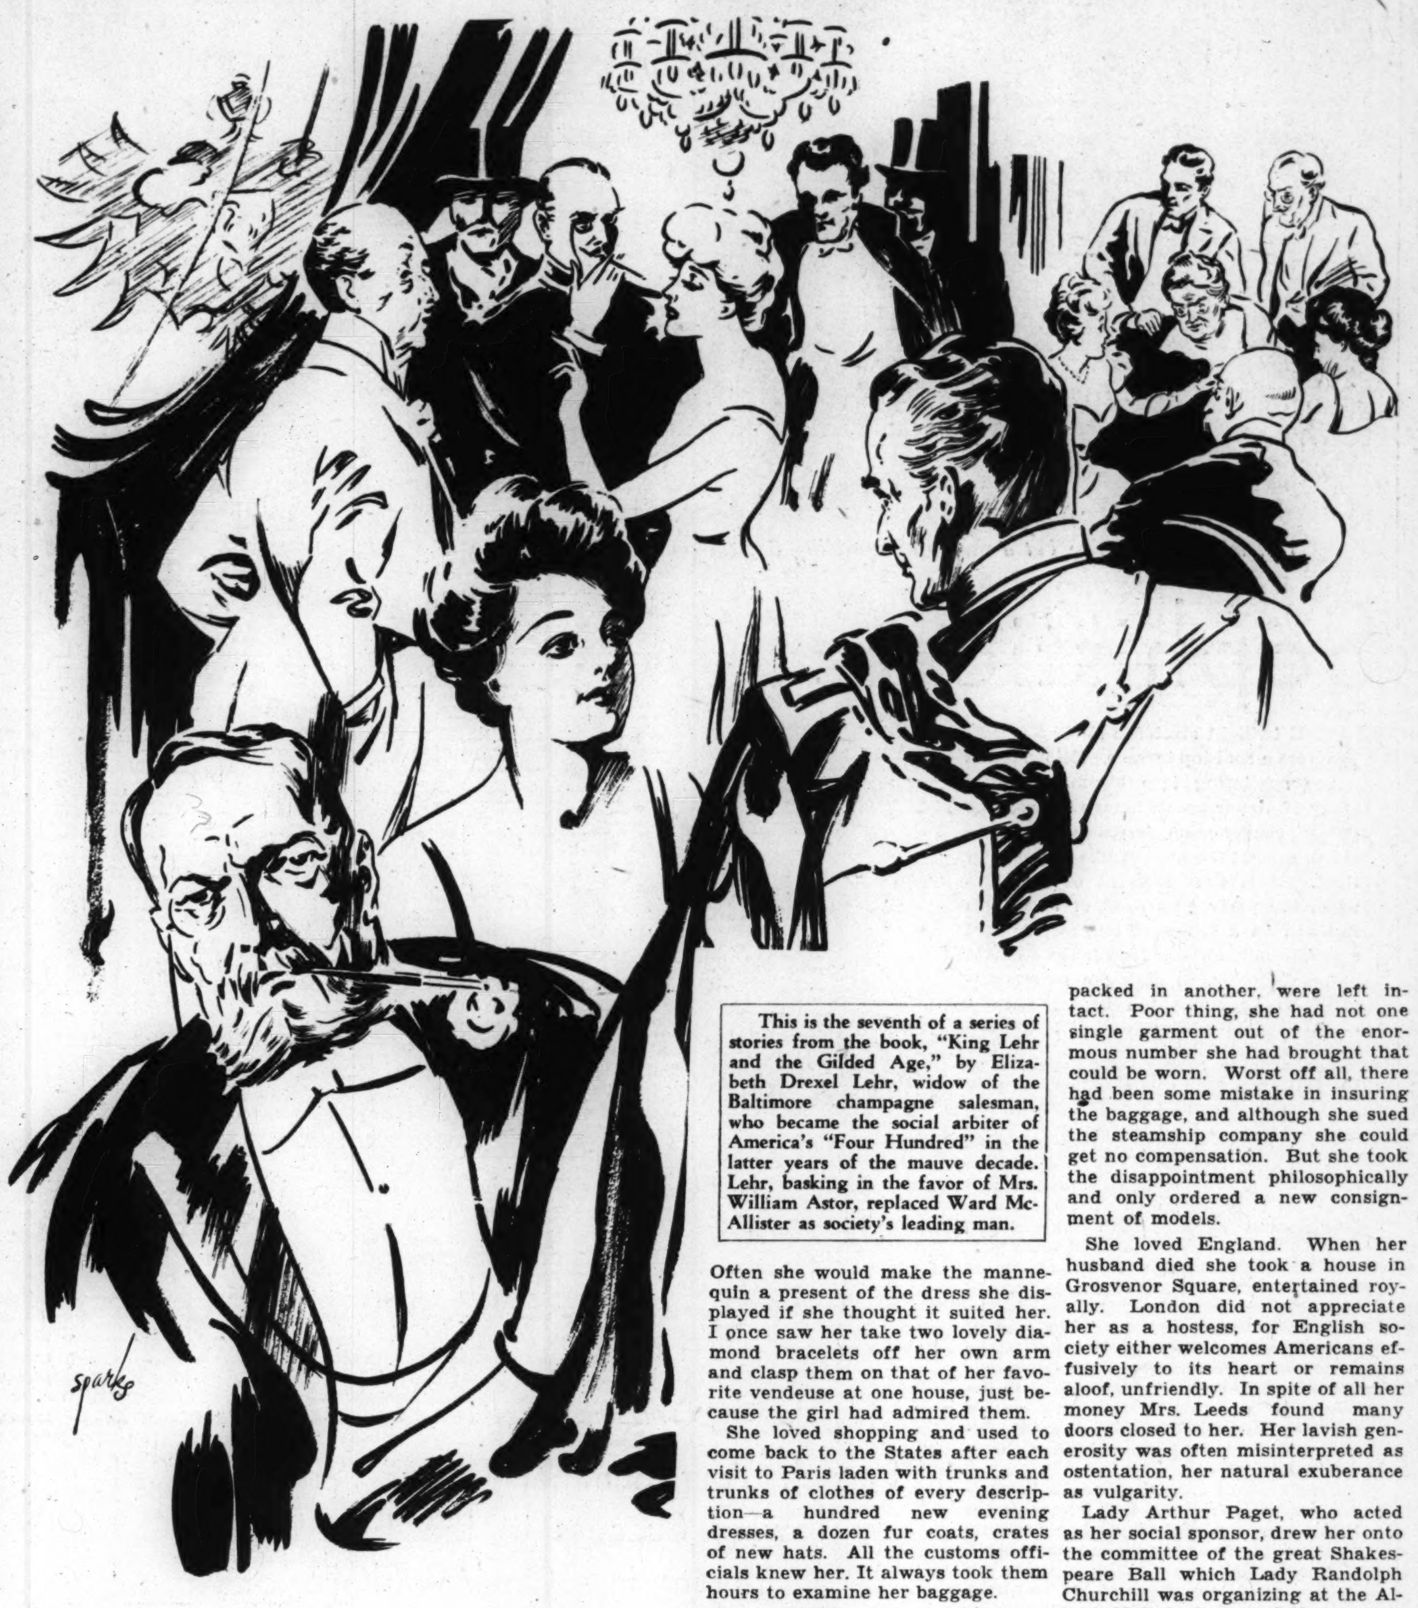
When the night of the party arrived Mr. Van Alen was delighted with the preparations. The table had been beautifully decorated, everything was precisely as he wished.

We had just taken our places at the table when the orchestra, with beaming faces, struck up "The Star Spangled Banner," and we all got up again and stood while it was played through twice. Mr. Van Alen was gratified . . . "Charming compliment, eh, what? Most thoughtful of them. These French are always so polite." . . .

We were beginning to eat our fish when the familiar strains rang through the room again, and we all rose once more to stand solemnly while the delicious hot soles cardinals congealed on our plates. Mr. Van Alen did not look quite so pleased this time. Patriotism was all very well, but he did not believe in letting it interfere with the enjoyment of his food. He sat down with pardonable irritation. The dinner was excellent, the conversation flourished. The orchestra was playing a dreamy Viennese waltz.

Then just as we had begun to appreciate delicate little poussins cooked to perfection the stirring notes of "The Star Spangled Banner" burst forth once more, and up we all got again. The foreign guests, though puzzled, were politely smiling; the Americans who had begun to think they were the victims of a practical joke were rather annoyed.

When the offence was repeated for the fourth time Mr. Van Alen summoned the chef d'orchestre and wrathfully demanded an explanation. The man looked astonished.



There was no host . . . but the dinner was a big success.

. . . "I have only carried out the instructions on Monsieur Lehr." . . .

Then the truth came out. Harry had told him that the dinner was a patriotic reunion of Americans, and that as a compliment to the host and his guests he must be prepared to play the American national anthem whenever the signal was given him by Harry raising his glass level with his eyes!

Mrs. William B. Leeds was one of the guests at that dinner. She was stopping at the Ritz as usual. No longer the slim lovely girl whose beauty had taken Newport by storm. She had put on weight, coarsened, grown a little spoilt in possession of so vast a fortune. It was scarcely to be wondered at. She spent money like a child, without any idea of its value. I remember her husband laughing as he told me that she could never keep within her $40,000 a year dress allowance. Her entry into the salon of one of the great dressmakers was the signal for the vendeuses to bring out the most expensive models in the collection. They used to try to persuade her into all sorts of absurd extravagances, dressing-wraps bordered with chinchilla, boudoir-caps sewn with real pearls.

> This is the seventh of a series of stories from the book, "King Lehr and the Gilded Age," by Elizabeth Drexel Lehr, widow of the Baltimore champagne salesman, who became the social arbiter of America's "Four Hundred" in the latter years of the mauve decade. Lehr, basking in the favor of Mrs. William Astor, replaced Ward McAllister as society's leading man.

Often she would make the mannequin a present of the dress she displayed if she thought it suited her. I once saw her take two lovely diamond bracelets off her own arm and clasp them on that of her favorite vendeuse at one house, just because the girl had admired them.

She loved shopping and used to come back to the States after each visit to Paris laden with trunks and trunks of clothes of every description—a hundred new evening dresses, a dozen fur coats, crates of new hats. All the customs officials knew her. It always took them hours to examine her baggage.

One summer she arrived in New York in a state of distress. There had been an outbreak of fire on the liner, and although the flames had been extinguished before any serious damage was done, the hold had been flooded and the greater part of the passengers' baggage drenched with sea water. The result was that when the trunks were opened a sodden mass was revealed in place of the collection of beautiful frocks that had left Paris. Colors had run one into the other, an exquisitely lovely dress of blue and gold sequins had melted into a sort of jelly, skirts which had been in one trunk were ruined, while their corresponding waists, packed in another, were left intact. Poor thing, she had not one single garment out of the enormous number she had brought that could be worn. Worst off all, there had been some mistake in insuring the baggage, and although she sued the steamship company she could get no compensation. But she took the disappointment philosophically and only ordered a new consignment of models.

She loved England. When her husband died she took a house in Grosvenor Square, entertained royally. London did not appreciate her as a hostess, for English society either welcomes Americans effusively to its heart or remains aloof, unfriendly. In spite of all her money Mrs. Leeds found many doors closed to her. Her lavish generosity was often misinterpreted as ostentation, her natural exuberance as vulgarity.

Lady Arthur Paget, who acted as her social sponsor, drew her onto the committee of the great Shakespeare Ball which Lady Randolph Churchill was organizing at the Albert Hall in honor of the coronation of King George V. . . . "Mrs. Leeds would like to help us. I am sure she will be such an asset, and she is so interested in the ball . . ." The artistocratic ladies of the committee received her with enthusiasm . . . She was given a seat between two duchesses.

"Such wonderful costumes! You really must see them, Mrs. Leeds. And of course you must take part in the quadrilles. You would make a lovely Cleopatra. . ." She was delighted. How friendly and charming they all were!

Before the end of the meeting she had committed herself to pay the entire cost of the ball so that charities for which it was being organized might benefit more substantially.

"So good of you, so generous. You Americans are always so sympathetic . . ." They overwhelmed her with thanks.

She wrote to Harry Lehr and me in Paris. . . . "I am having a marvelous success in London . . ." Invited us over for the ball.

The splendid pageantry of those quadrilles! English tradition backed by American dollars! Mrs. Leeds had that morning handed over to the committee a check for $80,000.

Weeks had been spent in rehearsals, months in the preparation of the costumes. Prince Youssoupoff who was paying his first visit to London, was a radiantly handsome young Henry V; Anthony Drexel appeared in the same quadrille as a French courtier in a wonderful suit copied from an old engraving. Lady Arthur Paget as Mistress Page danced in "The Merry Wives of Windsor" quadrille. But the most splendid figure of all was Mrs. Leeds, who, as Cleopatra, led the dancers of the "Antony and Cleopatra" quadrille, in a costume sewn with rubies, emeralds and diamonds.

Lady Randolph Churchill has placed at her disposal one of the boxes in the Albert Hall, requesting her to bring her own party to occupy it during the ball. Apparently this did not meet with the approval of some other members of the committee, for when Mrs. Leeds arrived there with her guests she found the entire box occupied by an English Duchess whose friends had taken possession of all the best chairs. . . . "I'm afraid there must be some mistake. This is my box," said Mrs. Leeds. . . . "As you see, my name is on the door." The Duchess surveyed her in apparent surprise. . . . "Oh, really? Well, then, Mrs. Leeds, you can have those two chairs. . . " indicating the only remaining ones at the very back of the box. So poor Mrs. Leeds was obliged to take her party downstairs to watch from a doorway the quadrilles which had only become possible through her generosity.

—o-o—

WE were in Paris while Mrs. Leeds had her portrait painted by Boldini. I was often present at the sittings, which always took place at the Ritz Hotel as, much to his annoyance, she refused to be painted in the more Bohemian setting of his studio. It was a full-length, life-size portrait, and for part of the sitting Boldini used to perch precariously on a pile of telephone books stacked one upon the other on top of the table. Getting him successfully poised on top of them was a serious business for he was terrified of falling, and it took the united efforts of Mrs. Leeds' two maids, whom she always kept in attendance during the sittings, her own page, who remained on duty outside the door, and one of the hotel chasseurs. After about 5 minutes of suspense Boldini was generally placed to his satisfaction, and he would then turn towards his sitter, who was always convulsed with laughter while he was clambering onto his perch, with a vicious expression. . . . "Now, Madame, you are going to stand, while I am seated in comfort. . . ."

She was a very difficult sitter, for she could never be induced to keep the pose for more than 5 minutes; but Boldini had endless patience. I remember that when he was painting Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt Jr., she arrived in a different dress at every sitting, as she could never make up her mind which one she wanted to wear in the portrait. In the end he got tired of painting and repainting dresses of every color, and when she appeared in a pale blue satin he exclaimed, "This is the dress you are wearing in my portrait, whether you like it or not. I will not paint another. Do you think I am a designer for the fashion papers?"

Then there was a young American millionaire who generally spent the spring in Paris, and could be found at this hotel or that, elegantly dressed, handsome with that careless charm that so endeared him to women.

His visits to Europe had only served to develop his passion for social climbing. He could talk of nothing but the titled people with whom he had got acquainted, the Princes and Grand Dukes whom he was accustomed to address by their Christian names. . . .

"And I said, 'Mich-Mich, my dear old chap, . . .'"

"I really don't think you should talk of the Grand Duke like that" . . . one of us would suggest, "I am sure it is not done in the best circles in Russia. . . ."

"How do you know, you have never been there?" And the young man would burst into one of his uncontrollable fits of temper.

A well-known society woman took him under her professional wing, and promised, if he was prepared to spend enough money, to get him into the most exclusive circles in Europe. She suggested that he should give a big dinner, and assured him that she could get a Russian Grand Duke and Grand Duchess and a great many other

THE STAMP REVIEW

THE Taj Mahal, the most expensive tomb ever erected to an individual, is pictured on the 2½ anna value of the Silver Jubilee set of India.

In the second year after the accession of Shah Jehan to the throne at Burhanpur, Arjumend Benu Begum, better known as Mumtaz Mahal (the Crown of the Palace), favorite wife of the Shah, died. It was in the year 1630. The ruler was overpowered with grief, and for a week he refused to transact affairs of state. For two years the court observed strict mourning. No music or festivities were allowed; the wearing of jewels, the use of perfumes and luxuries of all kinds were forbidden. The month of Zikad, in which she died, was observed as a month of mourning for years afterwards.

According to the old Tartar custom, a garden was chosen as a site for the tomb, a garden with flowers and flowering shrubs. Shah Jehan appointed a council of architects to prepare the design for the building. The design eventually accepted was by Ustad Isa, either a Turk or a Persian. Workers were gathered from Bagdad, Delhi, Samarkand, every part of India and Central Asia.

—o-o—

TWENTY THOUSAND men were employed in the construction which took 17 years to complete. The sarcophagus was enclised by a screen of gold studded with gems, but this was later replaced by a beautiful pierced marble screen. The Taj originally possessed two silver doors, but they were looted and melted down by the Jats in 1764.

Besides the expenditure on the building, the most lavish furnishings were provided. A sheet of pearls was made to cover the sarcophagus. This was carried away in 1720. The cost of the building, according to native accounts, was more than six million dollars, not including labor, which cost nothing.

The tomb consists of a domed, square white marble building, raised on a terrace from the corners of which rise four slim white minarets. It is set in a garden surrounded by a red sandstone wall. Light is admitted to the interior through double screens of marble trelliswork. The whole of the Koran is said to be written in mosaics of precious stones on the interior walls. The stones include jasper, jade, coral, crystal, turquoise, lapis lazuli, sapphire, cornelian, diamonds, onyx and amethyst.

The Taj Mahal is considered the most perfect example of Mogul style, and is considered by some to be the most beautiful building in the world.

TOWARD the close of the nineteenth century, an impressive set of stamps appeared on the market, allegedly emanating from the "Principality of Trinidad," an imaginary kingdom located on what was later found to be a small, rocky uninhabited island about 750 miles northeast of Rio de Janeiro. The island was reported to be governed by one Andre Bandilla, who had proclaimed himself ruler and adopted the title of "Andre I, Ruling Prince and First Potentate of the Principality of Trinidad."

Bandilla, it later turned out, was of French descent, a skillful navigator, and is said to have been one of the earliest stamp collectors. Bandilla was on one of his sailing trips in the South Atlantic when he conceived the idea of issuing stamps to sell to gullible collectors.

After he returned to Paris, he engaged an engraver to make a number of stamp designs for him. From these he selected eight for his initial set of postage stamps, and found a printer in Germany to do the printing job. The set carried a coat of arms mounted by a sleeping lion and was said to be the royal arms of the "House of Bandilla."

—o-o—

BANDILLA'S stamps sold so rapidly that later printings were ordered. The American market caught his attention, and proved more profitable than the Continental. Before his fraud was finally exposed by a member of the American State Department at Washington he had collected several hundred thousand dollars for his fraudulent stamps.

The Governments of France and Brazil, after receiving complaints from stamp collectors from all over the world, issued a joint disavowal of all responsibility for Bandilla's fraud. His arrest was ordered by both governments, but he escaped to Honduras. Later he was connected with the national lottery of that country. Some years later he died in poverty in Havana, Cuba.

The "Principality of Trinidad" followed the monetary system of France and consist in the coat-of-arms set, of the 1 centime, green; 5 centimes, blue; 10 centimes, orange; 25 centimes, purple, and 50 centimes, gray; 1 franc, dark red; 2 francs, deep yellow, and 5 francs, crimson.

● LILYPONS, MARYLAND, is the town named for Lily Pons, the opera singer. The postoffice there is a rather bare room in the lily and goldfish company's two-story frame building, surrounded by hundreds of ponds. The building and ponds constitute the town of Lilypons.

Covers from stamp collectors seeking cancellations of the town constitute the bulk of the postmaster's work, for Lilypons' only firm, which deals in lilies and goldfish, has a mailing permit so that its letters and parcels need not be canceled.

At Christmas for the last two years, Miss Pons had mailed her greeting cards through her namesake postoffice. She also occasionally sends cards to be canceled with her name announcing special concerts.

Stamp collectors make more work for the postmaster than senders of the regular mail, and the postmaster finds little solace in their requests. The postoffice is rated third class, and his remuneration depends upon the number of stamps sold. Most collectors send their own stamps.

Double-Breasted White Dinner Jacket and Black Trousers in Good Taste.

By Esquire

THE summer version of holiday spirit can hardly be confused with the feeling that manifests itself during its winter counterpart. Christmas, although both put us in our most joyous moods. Summer offers an opportunity to break from the routine of work, never more odious than when the temperature climbs, and turn this same heat to our advantage in a holiday amid surroundings of leisure and luxurious relaxation. And since diversion is an important part of a holiday, the proper wearables for the holiday maker are of major importance if the vacation is to be entirely successful.

For summer resort formality, a shawl collar, double-breasted white dinner jacket is smart and comfortable in linen, Palm Beach cloth or synthetic fabrics. Black dress trousers are alone correct.

The combination of plaid jacket and white flannel slacks is a complete vacation wardrobe in itself. A pair of gray flannels might be added, if you plan to golf.

A dress shirt of white broadcloth with soft wide pleats with either collar attached or for wear with separate laundered collars, is ideally suited for the purposes of vacation.

Pumps complete the summer formal outfit. They're great for dancing and highly fashionable with white dinner jackets.

A checked sport shirt for lounge wear and shorts for beach wear should be included in the vacation outfit.

BEFORE JUNE gives way to July we want to slide under the wire with another wedding story; then we promise to give the subject a rest for a year.

The scene: One of St. Louis' most fashionable West End churches. The time: June, of course. The story teller: A groomsman who was on hand early and figured in the action.

A group of guests came in, said they belonged to the bridegroom's family (but didn't mention the name) and were shown to the white ribbon section on the proper side of the aisle. The groomsman had his doubts about them from the start, because he thought he knew all of that numerous family. So when one of the bridegroom's cousins arrived to usher, one was sent down the aisle to investigate.

"I don't know who they are," he reported.

Another cousin reconnoitered.

"Darned if I ever saw them before," was his report.

Finally, the bridegroom's brother ambled down for a look at the guests, who by that time must have grown a little self-conscious. They were strangers to him, too. Something obviously had to be done about it, becauses the white ribbons on that side were getting crowded.

The first groomsman, being outside the family, was delegated to ask them their names. It was a tough assignment, not usually in the line of duty for a wedding attendant. He marched down the aisle, leaned over, and after some throat-clearing popped the question. Yes, they were relatives of the groom. And their name?

They had picked the wrong groom, in the wrong wedding, at the wrong church!

And, may we postscript, were their faces red!

Crocheted Caps

Crocheted caps that are much too small to be classed as berets and a trifle large to be termed "skull" in their dimensions have been given the name of muffins. They are worn by tennis players and less ardent sportswomen to keep their hair in place as well as to add a touch of novelty to their costume. Navy blue is the favorite shade although white and bright shades are available.

In direct contrast to these tiny turbans are the huge berets which are forerunners of the autumn season in town millinery. Their crowns assume the proportions of capeline brims and sweep downward or upward as the designer prefers. Velvet and velveteen are the favored materials but felt in autumn tones also is used successfully.

Broiled Grapefruit

Broiled grapefruit is delicious as an appetizer, or dessert. Halve the grapefruit, remove core, cut into sections; place in broiler for a few moments, until fruit begins to get golden brown; serve immediately. A little honey, or brown sugar may be poured or sprinkled over the grapefruit just before it is broiled.

More Two-Way Bidding

By
Ely Culbertson

IN MY last three Sunday articles I described the purpose and mechanics of the new Two-Way Three Bid. I explained that it was devised to retain the good features of old-fashioned pre-emptive bidding, at the same time insuring that if a slam is in the combined hands it will not be missed by reason of rounds of bidding gone to waste. In those articles the very elastic requirements for opening a hand with a bid of three in a suit were stated, as well as partner's conventional response to the three bid. Most important, I pointed out that partner cannot tell until the three-bidder rebids whether the hand is a strong one, with a solid suit, or a weak one with a long, almost solid suit. In my second article on the subject I lightly sketched the manner of rebidding to show how this point was made clear, but now I want to elaborate.

Rebids by the opening three bidder: The rebid by the opening hand provides the three-bidder with the opportunity to declare his real strength. The first and most important rebid is the simple rebid of his own suit. This bid is the signoff. Almost invariably it announces the weak three-bid; it shrieks "no ready-made suit"; it implores partner to pass.

After a three no trump response: With seven or eight winners and a ready-made suit, the opening bidder should as a rule pass a three no trump response. The one exception is: rebid a major suit, with unbalanced distribution or eight sure winners.

When three no trump is doubled: If the three no trump bid is doubled by the right hand opponent of the opening bidder, with a weak three-bid the double must be taken out; with a strong three-bid the double should usually be passed, to indicate to partner that the hand contains a ready-made suit or 1½-2 honor tricks outside the bid suit. Partner can then leave in the double—or take it out—in accordance with the strength of his no trump response.

—o-o—

● AFTER A MAJOR suit takeout: When the bidding is opened with three of a minor and partner responds with three of a major, opening hand may not pass, unless partner has passed originally.

After a takeout in a lower ranking suit, or a takeout of three clubs with three diamonds or of three hearts with three spades, one of the following rebids must be made:

Sign off, by rebidding own suit.

Bid a conventional four no trump, if able to do so, unless an asking bid is better.

Raise partner's suit, inviting a slam.

Bid any new suit (asking bid).

After an immediate four no-trump response:

Sign off by rebidding own suit.

Bid a new suit (asking bid).

Bid six of own suit.

Bid five no trump with two aces and eight winners.

—o-o—

ONE OF THE first things for the would be expert to learn is that position exercises an enormous influence over good bidding. The novice is often confused by an apparent anomaly—that what is a good bid on one occasion is a very bad bid on another. The explanation is extremely simple; neither honor trick nor distribution values are immutable; almost always they fluctuate with each new bulletin from partner and opponent.

—o-o—

● IT TAKES VERY little intelligence or experience for the novice to discover that if he bids one spade on such a hand as: ♠A K 10 9 5 ♥ K 6 ♦5 3 2 ♣ 3 2 and his left hand opponent overcalls with two hearts, he must devaluate the heart king from ½ trick to almost nothing. Conversely, had the heart bid come on his right, he automatically promotes the king to a full trick. This is perhaps the most elementary example of the meaning of position. Other examples are not so simple. Consider the South hand shown below from the viewpoint of position in bidding:

	NORTH
	♠ 4 2 ♥ 08 ♦ 7 6 5 3 ♣ K J 6 5 2
WEST ♠ Q J 10 9 8 ♥ J 9 ♦ A Q 10 ♣ 10 7 3		EAST ♠ 5 ♥ A K Q 7 5 ♦ J 8 4 ♣ A Q 9 8
	SOUTH ♠ A K 7 6 3 ♥ 6 4 3 2 ♦ K 9 2 ♣ 4

With both sides vulnerable, East deals and bids one heart. If South now overcalls with only one spade (which nine players out of 10 would do!) he is caught between two fires and burned to a cinder! West will, of course, double and if he makes the proper opening lead, a trump, South will make exactly two tricks on his contract for seven! (East-West could make a slam, but should certainly not bid it, depending as it does on several finesses succeeding.)

—oo—

● NOW, MENTALLY exchange the North and South hands, and the importance of position fairly leaps at you! South, now holding nothing but the KJ of clubs, will pass and it will be West who bids the spades. North, fully warned, will remain discreetly silent and East-West will, it is true, collect game and rubber (unless they get optimistic and go for a slam), but the loss to North-South will be nothing like the 1400 points penalty described above.

To point out this difference due to position would be fruitless were we not to draw a conclusion. It is simply this:

Great caution must be observed in the immediate overcall of an opening bid, before the partner of the opening bidder has had the opportunity to affirm, deny, or locate his strength. This is particularly true when the prospective overcaller is long in the suit declared to his right, as in the hand given. (The supposition is that opener's partner will be short in that suit.) Certain hands may be more safely bid at the two than at the one level.

—o-o—

● QUESTION: Using asking bids, the bidding of partner and myself has proceeded as follows:

MYSELF (dealer)	PARTNER
1 spade	3 spades
4 diamonds	5 diamonds

What is my correct next bid, holding:

♠A J 10 5 4 ♥K Q ♦ KJ 10 5 ♣K Q

Answer: Sign off at five spades! Your partner has told you by his bid that two aces are off the hand!

IN THE BIG VILLAGE

"I simply gotta get out of these shoes—lets go to a movie."

"Banana Boats" Carrying Salad Sail Into Favor

WE can't all have yachts, however much we may like to go nautical. But we can bedeck our table with banana boats (no pun intended!). So take a minute and find out how easy it is to launch these boats for salad or dessert, and so keep menus on an even keel.

Get bananas and peel a ripe fruit for each person to be served, cut into halves crosswise and place on salad plate on bed of greens (these may represent the billowy deep, if you care about it). Then cut a groove lengthwise along the top of each half. (A sharp knife will do the job, or for some types of stuffing, use a spoon and scoop out a groove.) Then put in your chosen filling, garnish to suit and serve.

Tuna fish and salmon are toothsome with bananas, or make a mixture of tuna fish, celery, scooped out banana and mayonnaise and put into deep groove. Meat mixtures, chopped or deviled ham with a little sour pickle and dressing, are excellent filling for banana boats, too. Fruit mixtures are all favorites with the boat launchers. But we like using vanilla ice cream for filling the banana boat, topping this with quartered strawberries—a grand party dessert.

Not a boat but a boast is this new recipe, guaranteed to round out any menu.

For date stowaway, mix one cup cottage cheese, half package sliced dates and one-half cup chopped nut meats with sufficient mayonnaise to form a paste, the kind that will spread easily. Add salt if necessary. Spread small lettuce leaves with a thick layer of the filling. Start at the base of the leaf, roll tightly. Place a narrow strip of canned pimento around the center of each roll. Place three rolls on each salad plate and serve with additional mayonnaise.

KING LEHR AND THE GILDED AGE

distinguished people to come to it. He was delighted with the idea, and she sent out the invitations.

Unfortunately for her protege, she was taken ill a day or two before the party and was unable to be present. Harry Lehr and I and the T—— B——s were the only Americans invited and immediately the Grand Duchess arrived she sought out Harry and asked him to sit next to her. . . . "I have heard so much of you, Mr. Lehr, from my son. He tells me you are the most amusing man he has ever met. 'King Lehr,' isn't that what he calls you?"

—o-o—

THE dinner party was a most extraordinary affair. There was no one to receive us or to make introductions. The unfortunate pseudo-host was quite lost among his forty or fifty aristocratic guests not one of whom was personally known to him, and nervousness made him disregard all the instructions of his absent sponsor. At last Olivier, with a wonderful tact, grasped the situation, and eventually we were all shepherded to the dinner table.

But there confusion ensued. The young millionaire had given no instructions whatever beyond the fact that he was expecting a party. He had not known the number of his guests, and had completely omitted to mention the fact that they included royalty. He had not even taken the trouble to order a special dinner. The hotel staff rose to the occasion nobly. The table was prepared as though by magic. But there was no time to make a list of the guests or write out cards. People wandered round and round, wondering where they were expected to sit, until the crisp voice of the Grand Duchess called out, "Let us all sit down where we are." . . . And we sank into the chairs nearest to us.

Fortunately the dinner was excellent, the wine all that could be desired. Everyone began to talk to his or her neighbor, waiving the question of introduction. Harry Lehr and the Grand Duchess sat opposite to me. She was evidently finding his conversation amusing, for she laughed repeatedly. Presently she leaned forward and said to her husband, who sat next to me, "My dear, it seems that that little man at the end of the table is paying for this dinner party. How very curious! Cannot we find out his name? We shall have to thank him for his kindness." . . . Apparently she had had no idea with whom she was dining!

Despite all this mismanagement, the "little man" was elated with the success of his party. The next day he was able to reel off a complete list of the guests. . . . "Now those really are names for you" he concluded triumphantly.

—oo—

AFTER the Paris conquest he was fired with the ambition of adding to his laurels in London. His social guide, now recovered from her illness, again came to his aid. She suggested that she should take a house for him at Ascot, in which case it would be easy to get him into the Royal Enclosure, and even to take him into the Royal Box and introduce him to the King. It might even be possible to arrange for the King to lunch at the house. . . . "In that case money's no object," he said grandly.

Ascot week found him installed in a large house with a full complement of house guests whose names included some of the most famous titles in England. But even that was not enough for his ambitions. He wanted to return to America with the story of how he had sat in the Royal Box. On the first day of the races he prepared to start off for the course. . . . His mentor restrained him. . . . "I really think it would be better for you not to appear in the Royal Enclosure until I have paved the way for you to be presented to the King. I shall be able to arrange it for tomorrow, but until then you had better stay away from the course. It is so important to create a favorable impression from the very start. You won't miss anything, the first day is never very interesting." Rather reluctantly, but in obedience to her superior knowledge of the social conventions, he remained behind while she and the rest of his aristocratic house party drove off to the races.

—o-o—

THE next day thesame thing happened again. . . . "I am so sorry,, she said, "but I did not get a favorable opportunity yesterday of speaking to His Majesty about you. However it will be quite easy for me to manage today. You will not mind waiting one more day, I am sure? After all, it is worth taking a little trouble, and it is such a fatal mistake to rush these things. The racing is really very poor this year, I don't think there will be anything worth seeing today. But tomorrow when you have your seat in the Royal Box you will really enjoy it all."

So the unfortunate man remained at home once again, watched his guests, most of whom were still strangers to him, drive off in the cars which he had hired for them, listened when they had returned for dinner to talk of the day's racing.

On the third morning he sought out the lady patroness and presented an ultimatum: "Am I going to be presented to the King today, or am I not?"

"Oh, Mr. ——, you know you must be patient. Just look at all I have done for you, the wonderful house party I have got for you! The best people in England, Lord X, the Duke of Z, Lady A, all staying under your roof! It takes time to get into English society. But today I really will be able to arrange for your presentation. I am going to speak to His Majesty immediately we get to the course, and then I will send one of the cars back for you so that you can come straight to the Royal Box, be presented to the King and Queen, and see the races."

He made no further demur, waved to his guests as the procession of cars started for the course. But when they returned in the evening there was no host. The millionaire—now disillusioned—had gone back to London, leaving his social cicerone to pay for the house which had been leased in her name!

Why All this Confusion and Haste in Life

"One Need Not Hurry for Eternal Things, Not Battle for Beauty."

By Elsie Robinson

(Copyright, 1936.)

SOMETIMES I get hurrying . . . hurrying . . . worrying . . . worrying. Hurrying about the things I want . . . worrying about the things I fear.

Suddenly life becomes unreal . . . looms and lowers into a monstrous nightmare . . . a nightmare in which I race frantically . . . lost.

Then, like a voice calling through the darkness, I remember old words. He had gone as fast as any in his time, that old man who wrote them—raising many a hell as he went. But there was that in him which sometimes also caught a glimpse of heaven—saw the beauty that lay in peace, and the wisdom that lay in faith. And as he grew older, in spite of all his lusting and battling, those glimpses increased.

Clearer and clearer he saw how foolish and futile it all was—this frantic scramble which filled his day as it filled ours. One need not hurry for the eternal things—they were always there. One need not battle for beauty—it was ours for the asking. For the God who made it all still walked serenely in His garden, and we could leave our gutters and cockpits and walk with Him whenever we chose.

—o-o—

WHAT A TIME he must have had, coming to this realization—the turbulent old King David of the Jews, who had always been a law to his willful self and loved a fight or race above all things else. Yet at last even he saw the Truth—shining and serene. And out of that vision he wrote a poem which has comforted and steadied hurried, worried humans ever since.

So now, when the nightmare grips me and I find myself caught up in our strange, human madness of haste, like a quiet voice calling through the darkness I hear that old man's words—

"The Lord is my shepherd, I shall not want . . ."

"Why all this insane struggle? Why must I act as if fate depended on my tiny efforts? Surely the One who made me has the power and purpose to carry me on. As a baby I came helplessly through the portals of life—and He saw me through. In my later years I have passed through so many other births, so many other deaths, and been on many a trial where my own wits were useless. Yet always I have been led. Then why not have faith that He still will see me through? Why not rest, and lean for a little on life?

"He maketh me to lie down in green pastures: He leadeth me beside the still waters.

"He restoreth my soul: He leadeth me in the paths of righteousness for His name's sake."

—o-o—

(GREEN PASTURES . . . still waters . . . how lovely they seem after all this heat and fury. How lovely all the gentle places of life . . . the simple, friendly pleasures . . . the things that cost no money, need no battle. Still waters . . . green pastures . . . they are the real things of life. They are the things I loved as a child, and will remember and yearn for when my last hour comes. Why have I forgotten them? Why have I wasted myself over these dark alleys and blood-stained arenas?)

"Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil: for Thou art with me; Thy rod and Thy staff they comfort me.

"Thou preparest a table before me in the presence of mine enemy: Thou anointest my head with oil; my cup runneth over.

"Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life, and I will dwell in the house of the Lord forever."

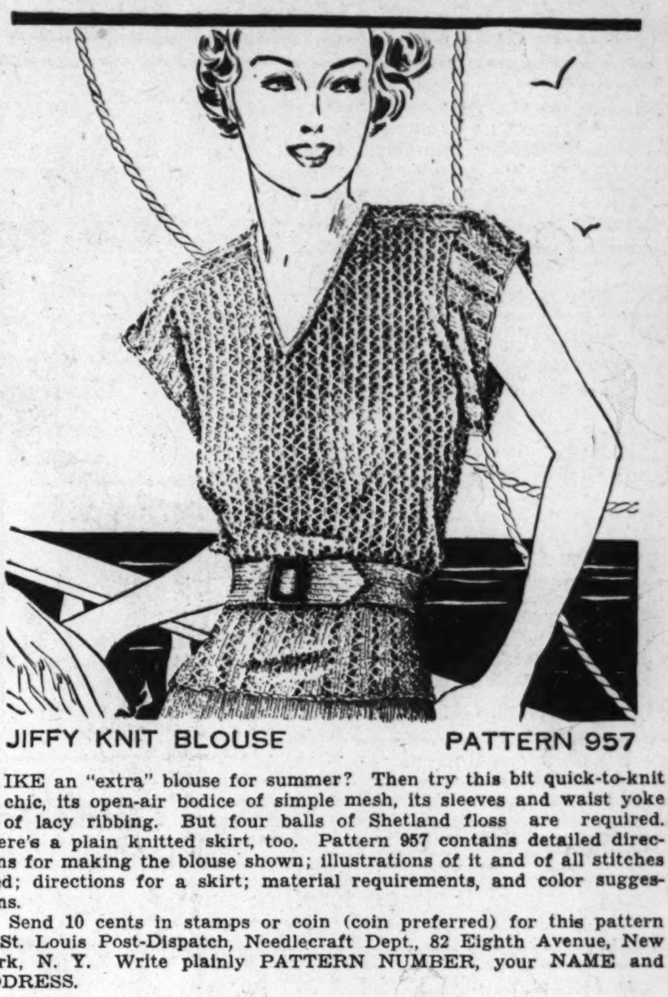
(In the house of the Lord! How tired I am . . . how wistfully I remember the home I knew as a child . . . the home that was filled with peace because there was love and trust. Have I lost that peace because I have forgotten how to love and trust? Then lead me out of my nightmare—where He leads me I will follow!)

Evening Fashions

● Newest versions of the redingote theme in summer evening fashions to arrive in town are more glamorous and less tailored than the first ones to be placed on display. For example, there is a combination of black chantilly lace and white mousseline which could cause a stampede in any stag line. Over a simple foundation of the white mousseline there is a flaring redingote of the same material that has bands of the lace arranged at spaced intervals from the hemline to the shoulders. Short sleeves are moderately puffed.

Another striking costume of the redingote style consists of turquoise blue taffeta frock and matching full length coat. The dress has a halter neckline with straps as intricately crossed and twisted as any bathing suit. The coat has sleeves gathered quite full at the shoulders and has a wide Peter Pan collar which fastens close to the throat.

JIFFY KNIT BLOUSE



JIFFY KNIT BLOUSE PATTERN 957

LIKE an "extra" blouse for summer? Then try this bit quick-to-knit chic, its open-air bodice of simple mesh, its sleeves and waist yoke of lacy ribbing. But four balls of Shetland floss are required. There's a plain knitted skirt, too. Pattern 957 contains detailed directions for making the blouse shown; illustrations of it and of all stitches used; directions for a skirt; material requirements, and color suggestions.

Send 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) for this pattern to St. Louis Post-Dispatch, Needlecraft Dept., 82 Eighth Avenue, New York, N. Y. Write plainly PATTERN NUMBER, your NAME and ADDRESS.

THE HOLLYWOOD WHIRL

of cream colored kasha, and as she arose to leave she drew about her slender shoulders a flaring cavalier cape of the same material, the wide lapels of which were made of timber-wolf, the same color as the kasha.

I HAVE JUST returned from a very delightful luncheon given for Loretta Young and the members of the "Ramona" cast. The company has been away on location for some time but has now returned to Hollywood to complete the picture at the studio. As they are hard at work and have only a comparatively short time off for lunch, Loretta, and all the rest came just as they were, in their make-up and costumes. Loretta was, of course, dressed in simple garb showing traces of the early Spanish influence. It was a dark brown homespun with a tight basque and very full skirt, and her hair—a wig—was parted straight in the middle and hung Indian style to her waist in back. It has been pretty warm here today and Loretta admitted that she would be glad when it was time to remove the wig and have nothing on her mind but her own short bob.

—o-o—

● PAULINE FREDERICK, whose delightful speaking voice always enchants my ears, was at the luncheon, too, but, as she said, they kill her off early in the picture, and so she was able to come in cool and attractive in white silk crepe. A wide pleated ruffle completely encircled the neck and then crossed to the left side in front where it was brought to the waist line and then continued merrily to the hem of the skirt, and all around it. The full cap sleeves were also edged with pleating and a softly twined girdle of green lined with rust encircled the waist. Miss Frederick's hat of white stitched crepe, with rather wide brim and band of white ribbon, was held firmly in place, not by the usual elastic band but by two short white glass headed pins, which, as she showed me she pushed through the hat under the band gave them a twist or two around a lock of hair and then gave the pins another push into the hat. These pins did not show at all and held the hat in place even better than an elastic, she said.

—o-o—

JANE FROMAN who will return to the screen in "The Big Broadcast," has a new dancing frock that will positively make your mouth water. The bouffant skirt is made of layer after layer of all shades of blue chiffon, and there is a full length cape made in layers just as the dress itself but with extra little panels of the chiffon which float gracefully as the wearer moves. And this costume again bears testimony to the increasingly popularity of the cape.

—o-o—

● AN INTERESTING event of the week was the annual golf tournament for the employes of MGM at the Rancho Club. The day was warm but a large and enthusiastic gallery turned out and followed the screen stars around the course. There were almost enough priezs for everyone but, as usual, the pick of them went, mostly, not to the actors but to employes in the less artistic departments. Most of the trophies, all pretty valuable, were donated by the stars of the studio but the two that seemed to be the most sought after were those given by Norma Shearer and Joan Crawford. Norma's was a solid silver cocktail shaker on which was engraved the recipe for making most of the popular drinks and with it was a handsome silver tray and six silver cocktail "glasses." This useful trophy was won by a young man in the "prop" department and Joan's prize, an elaborate portable bar, went to "Cotton" Warburton, a former all-American football star, who doesn't drink, incidentally. Warburton is now a film cutter at the studio. During the matches I noticed Miss Shearer, always one of the best dressed at any gathering, running true to form in a tailored suit of white woolen homespun with its lapels and collar bound in criss-cross lacings of red and blue. Under this Miss Shearer wore a sweater of chalk blue cashmere and a red handkerchief fringed scarf was knotted at the throat.

—o-o—

Now that the real heat of summer has probably descended upon Saint Louis, you may be interested in a tip given me by Eleanore Whitney in regard to keeping your costumes in proper shape, and I mean exactly that. You know how the cold cream goes all runny and the lipstick unless firmly repressed, oozes all over your dressing table drawer, and even the eye-shadow and brow-pencil go unruly. Well, Miss Whitney tells us she solves it all by keeping her make-up kit in the icebox. "Yes," she laughed. "My new maid thought I was slightly deranged when I said to her, bring me my make-up box, and after a minute of looking in my dressing table, I suppose, she returned to say she couldn't find it, and I said, 'It's in the icebox, of course.'"

—o-o—

AS MENTIONED before, "The Big Broadcast of 1937" is getting under way, and, by way of getting together, Mitchell Leisen, the director, gave an elaborate and amusing party the other evening to the members of the cast and a few outsiders. Jack Benny and his wife, Mary Livingstone, were among the first to arrive, Mary wearing a black blistered satin, semi-formal in design and splashed liberally with large white flowers, her only ornament being a handsome diamond and ruby clip.

George Allen and "Gracie" came in soon after the Benny family. Gracie dresses exceptionally well always and on this occasion had selected a tea-rose crepe, the fullness of the bodice being repeated in the fullness of the upper sleeve. The shoulders were fitted by several rows of shirring and caught on each side by tiny diamond clips.

Another guest was Martha Raye, who featured a two-piece cocktail gown of black triple sheer slit at each side, and having a long-sleeved white lace tunic. A small scarf of the black tied about the throat. And it would take this crowd to think up serving as one of its special delicacies something called "Champagne Sauercraut," which I'll have to leave to either Gracie or Mary to define to you at some future date. But before dismissing Gracie, I really must tell you about an unusually smart one-piece dress I saw her in a few days ago. It was semi-tailored of beige wool, the distinctive feature being a short cape scolloped in sable and with sable tails at the throat. Capes are definitely going everywhere. On the beaches they are seen in rubberized sik and novelty cloths; at evening affairs they appear in chiffons, taffetas and velvet and on the tailored suits they now often take the place of the usual jacket.

A stiff bristled tooth-brush is excellent for cleaning your table silver, etc., and will help prevent your hands from becoming smeared with the polish, as is the case when you use a cloth.

Adequate Rest Necessary For Small Children

Youngsters Become Fretful When They Go Beyond Limits of Their Strength.

By Angelo Patri

BEDTIME had come and gone and still Jackie, age three, was crying and protesting. He did not want his supper. He did not want to sleep. No, he did not want daddy to carry him to bed. No, no, no, he didn't want to do anything whatsoever, nohow, no place, never.

"He is tired to death," said his mother. "I'll just have to take him and put him to bed, whether he likes it or not." Gathering him up in her arms she disappeared with him in the direction of the bathroom. From there came sounds of battle. After that tears and pleadings. Turn on the big light. Stay with him. Give him a drink. Put on the blanket. No, take it off. Let him sit in the chair. Open the window. Close it. Give him his bear.

"Lie still," said m·ther finally. "I will stay with you for a little, and sing to you." She began singing softly a sleepy song. First he complained, but mother sang on in the same sleepy voice, in a gentle up and down rhythm. The complainings grew fewer. Finally there was silence. Shortly after the quiet fell on the household mother returned to the waiting family.

"He is asleep. I blame myself for the whole thing. It was a beautiful day and I wanted him to get as much of the fresh air and sunshine as he could, so I put him out earlier than usual. This afternoon when it was time for his nap I called him and he begged to play instead of resting. I made the mistake of letting him play on when I should have made him come in. He got so tired that he couldn't think straight. It is all my fault and hereafter I'll stick to his schedule."

"O, now, I don't know, Martha. Seems to me you did the best you could. You can't always make children rest, you know," said her mother, anxious to relieve any guilt of conscience.

"I can stick to his routine and not make trouble for him by breaking it. Now the next time he wants to stay out I'll have trouble getting him in and putting him to rest. But I'll have to put up with it. He has to have his rest."

Little children, and even those of adolescent age, are likely to go beyond their limits of strength. It is this overstrain that makes children have tantrums at bedtime. It is this exhaustion of reserve energy by adolescent children that brings on nervous illness, indigestion, bad temper, poor work. Guard the little ones against their own eager desire to keep on going. They do not know when they are tired.

Dressing Recipes That Can't Fail

NOW is the time for all good women to come to the aid of newlywed wives and help them achieve skill with the skillet and success with the stove. There are many easy cuts to good cooking and it behooves the old hand to pass on all she knows. To our way of thinking, one of those easy cuts is the use of sweetened condensed milk, not only for frostings and as the basis for delightful sweets, but for sauces.

Mayonnaise used to rank with Hollandaise sauce as a tricky betrayer of even the accomplished cook. But today, even the newest bride can produce a curdle-proof mayonnaise in 5 minutes and be certain of a perfect triumph. The magic lies in the sweetened condensed milk which thickens as soon as vinegar or lemon juice is added, and never curdles. So with a salute to all brides, we offer a tasty selection of can't-fail recipes for dressings that assure infinite variety in presenting vegetables and salads.

—o-o—

FIRST IS A good basic mayonnaise for both fruit and vegetable salads: Place two-thirds cup of sweetened condensed milk, one-quarter cup vinegar or lemon juice, one-quarter cup salad oil or melted butter, one egg yolk, one-half teaspoon salt, a few grains of cayenne and one teaspoon dry mustard in a mixing bowl. Beat with rotary egg beater until mixture thickens. If thicker consistency is desired, place in refrigerator to chill before serving. It makes one and one-quarter cups.

For a delicious Thousand Island dressing, make the foregoing recipe and just before serving, add two-thirds cup chili sauce, six stuffed olives, minced, and one tablespoon green pepper, minced. It makes two and one-quarter cups.

A jelly dressing is delightful for fruit salad. Place in a mixing bowl two-thirds cup sweetened condensed milk, one-quarter cup each vinegar or lemon juice, salad oil or melted butter, one egg yolk, one-half teaspoon salt, few grains cayenne and one teaspoon dry mustard. Beat with rotary egg beater until mixture thickens, then place in refrigerator till serving time. Just before serving blend in one-half cup tart red jelly, such as currant or cranberry. It makes one and three-quarters cups.

Sunday June 28, 1936—Supplement of the ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH Magazine

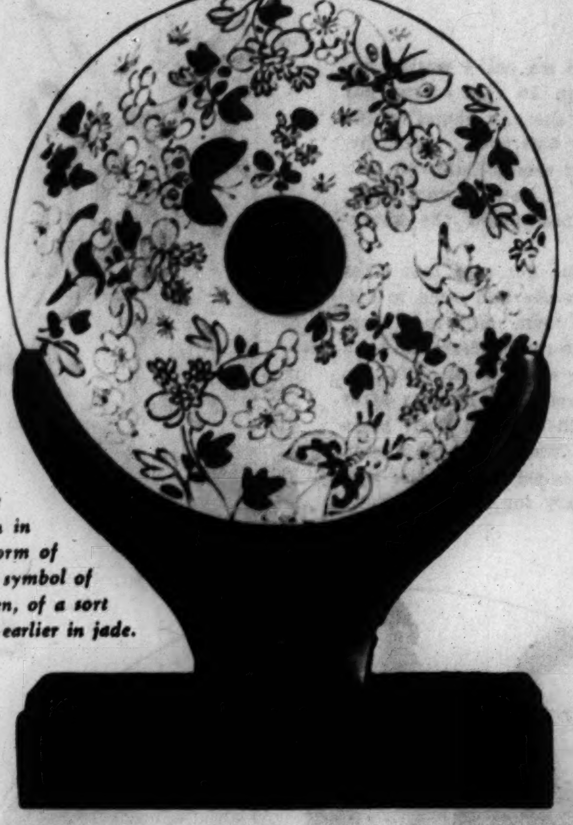

Table screen in the form of "Pi," symbol of heaven, of a sort done earlier in jade.

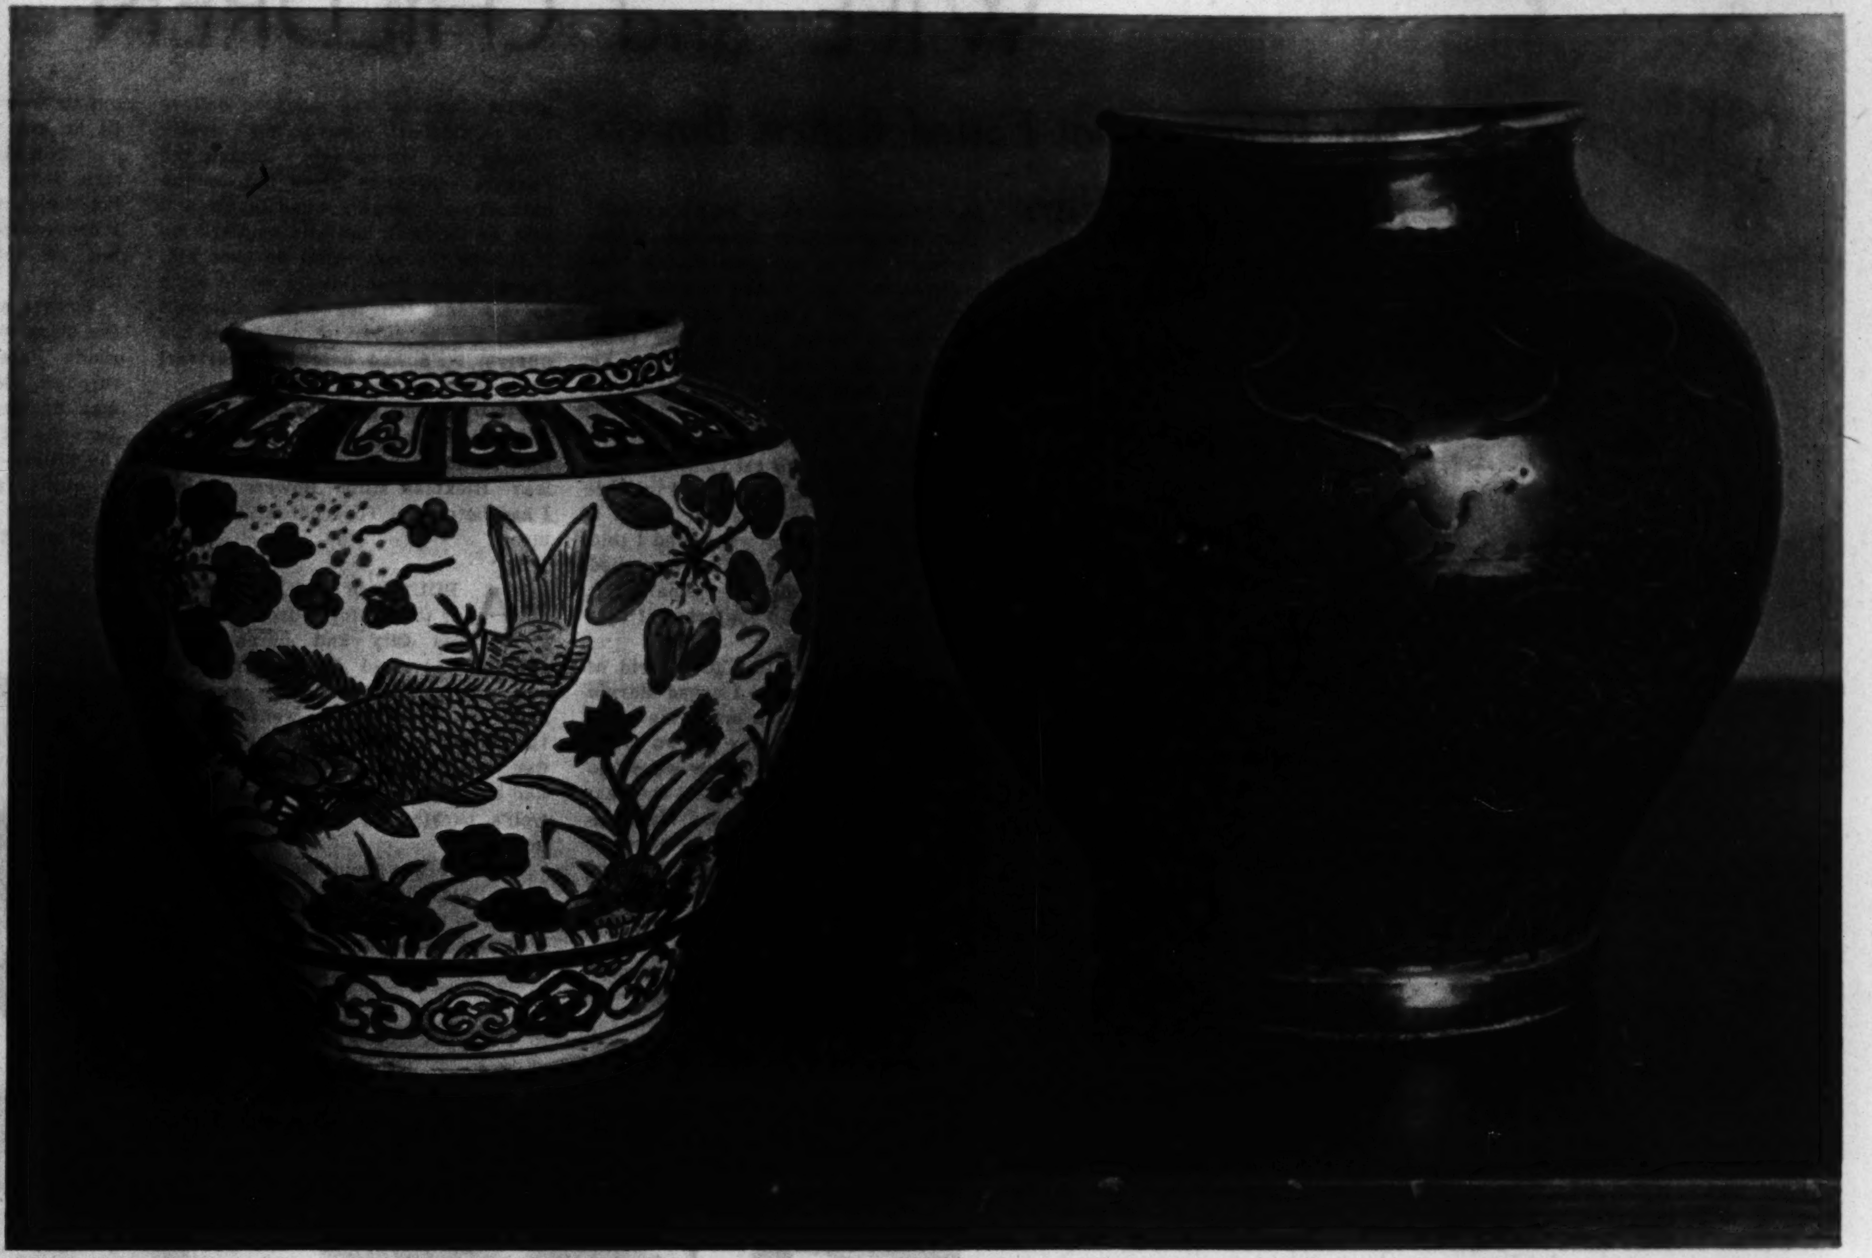


Stone porcelain jar with strongly-outlined multi-colored decoration, made in the reign of Chia Ching, 1522-66; and a large potiche in an iron oxide red with figures including the Imperial five-clawed dragon in Mohammedan blue, applied under the glaze without outline, in two shades.

An EARLY TRIUMPH of MASS PRODUCTION

Seventy-Five Masterpieces of Ming Dynasty Chinese Ceramics on Exhibition at the St. Louis Art Museum.

By ELLWOOD DOUGLASS

Of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine Staff

Perhaps the earliest and certainly one of the greatest triumphs of mass production methods is demonstrated in a summer loan exhibition at the St. Louis Art Museum and illustrated in the six pictures on this page, two of them from photographs in natural colors, by Clint Murphy of the Post-Dispatch.

It comprises 75 masterpieces of Chinese ceramics of the Ming Dynasty, 1368-1643, selected from a collection about which there are three points of keen local interest: (1) It is considered probably the most representative collection in the United States; (2) it was built up by a living St. Louisan; and (3) its St. Louis owners have elected to preserve strict anonymity.

Each of these ancient masterpieces—achievements though they were in distinction and finesse—was as much a product of collective effort as a modern newspaper article. In the "production line" at the Imperial factory at Ching-te-chen—where the kilns blazed redly against the night skies of 10 unbroken centuries—there were 23 departments; four separate departments, for example, for engraving, outlining and coloring designs and for writing, and a fifth for applying the seal or "hall mark."

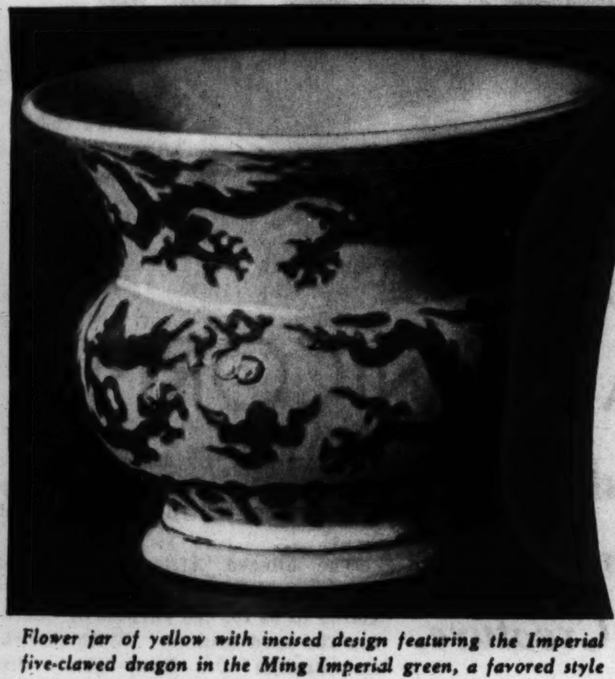
There were even patterns, though not for use in modern stamping machinery. A master laid down an archetype to the liking of Emperor, superintendent and foreman; his materials were carefully measured; and common workmen had to follow the precise design with the exact amount of materials.

There was foreign trade—if no "Foreign Trade Bureau"—and fluctuations in export and import business were reflected in artistic excellence or artistic disaster. On this page is a large potiche in iron red and underglaze Mohammedan blue, an import commodity prone to shortage. It is written that in the twenty-sixth year of Chia Ching (1548) the supply of hsien hung—"fresh" red from native earths—ran out, and the potters begged the Emperor to be content with the duller iron red. But as if for compensation in that dark hour, they received fresh supplies of the priceless blue from some Mohammedan source; as Galeotto Perera reported it two years later, "Certain Tartars and Mogorites brought into China certane Blewes of great value."

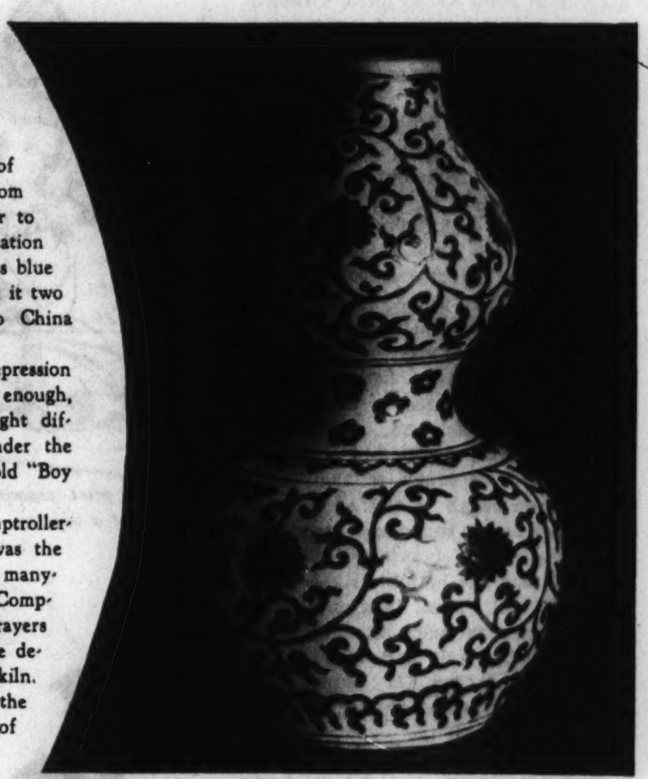
Mass production brought about its own death or fatal depression at Ching-te-chen, but the deciding factor was, incredibly enough, that chief stumbling block of the modern go-getter, a freight differential. "Mass" orders for the palace rose in 1583—under the reign of Wan Li, who took the throne in 1573 as a 10-year-old "Boy Emperor"—to no less than 96,000 items.

Even then there was a counterpart of the modern Comptroller-General to protest against so extravagant a budget. He was the Censor Wang Cheng-min, who kicked particularly about many-colored decorations. But there was no Supreme Court, and Comptroller-General Wang was overridden. At the factory daily prayers were offered to Chao for "merciful" orders. Fish bowls were demanded for the palace in such size that they collapsed in the kiln. A distracted potter, T'ung, cast himself into the kiln fire; the bowls came out perfect, and T'ung succeeded Chao as god of the potters.

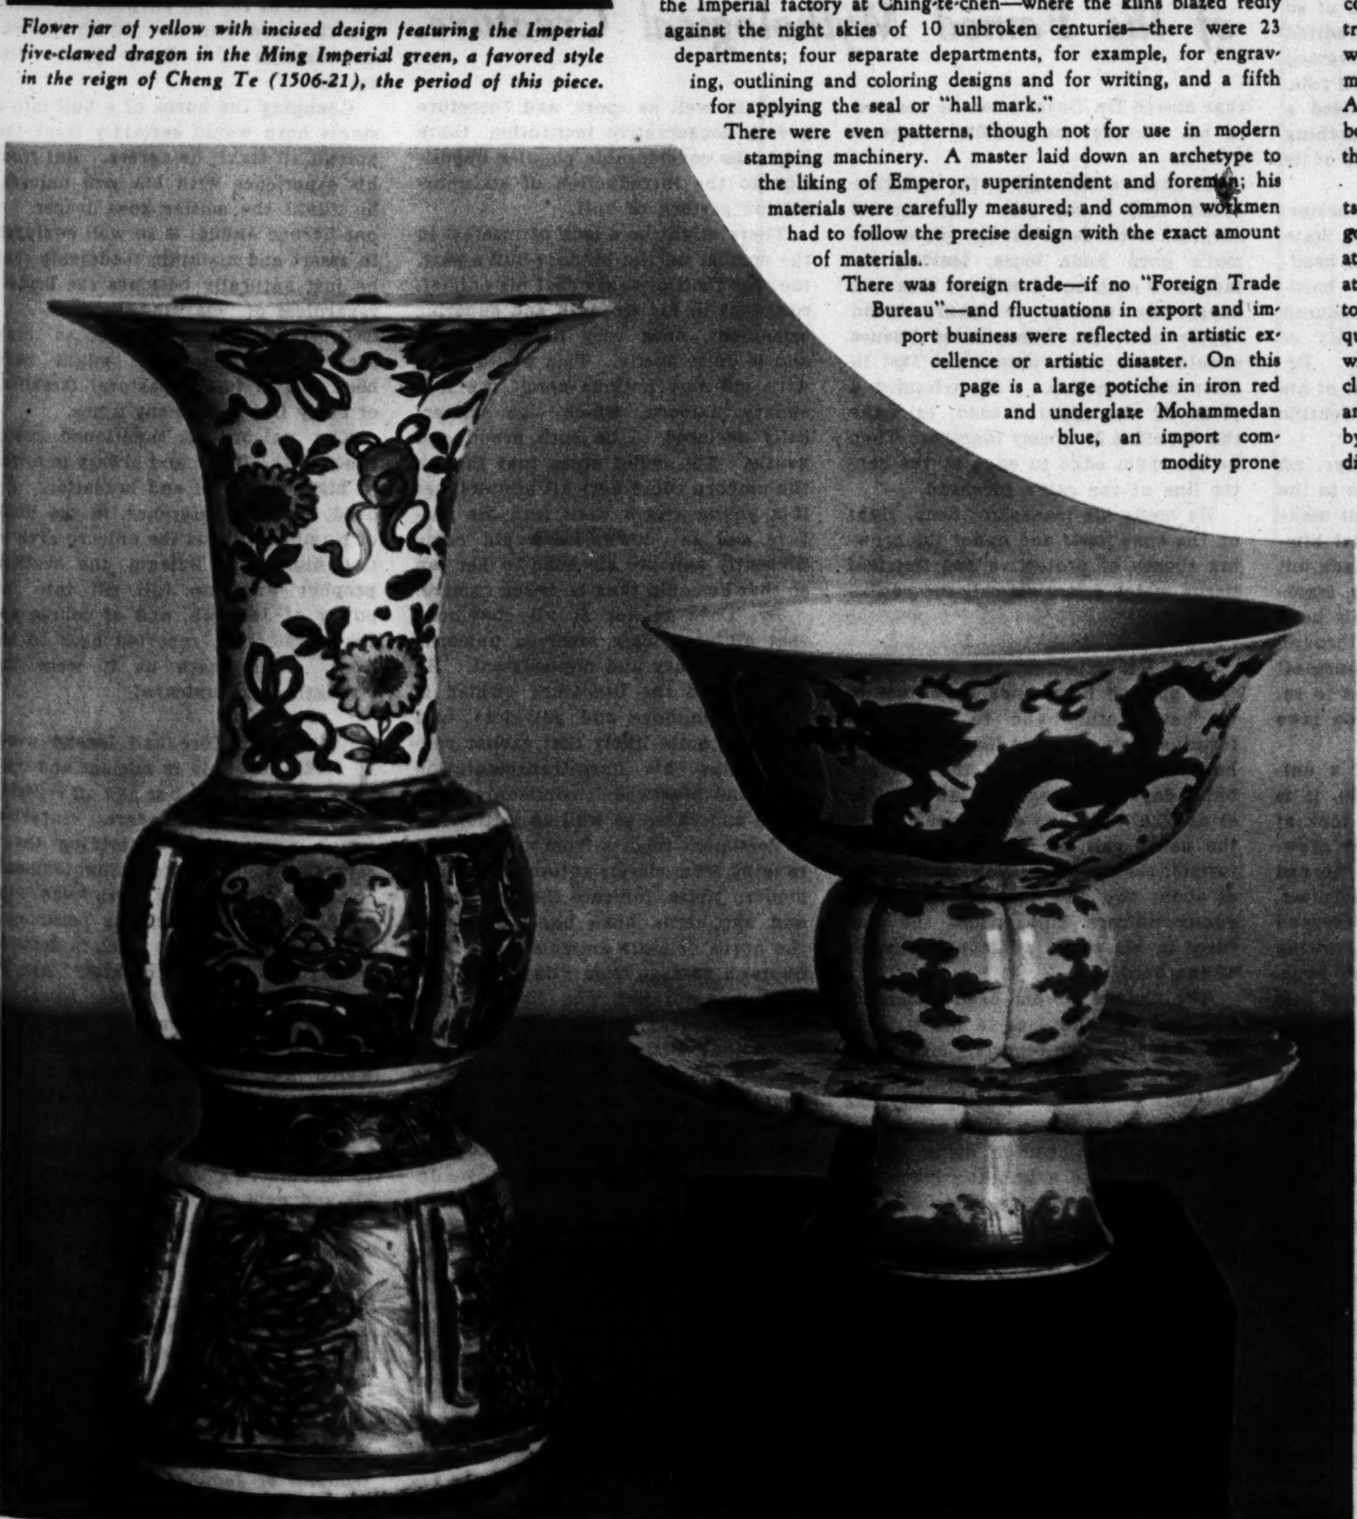
Mass production exhausted the fine clay mines at Ma-ts'ang just as the supplies of import blue played out for good. There was an alternative source of porcelain clay at Wu-men-t'o, but it was further from the factory at Ching-te-chen and the Imperial potters refused to cover the higher transportation cost. The quality of their material declined, and with it the perfection of the ware. A classic era in an art of individuality and distinction had been ended by failure to meet a freight differential.



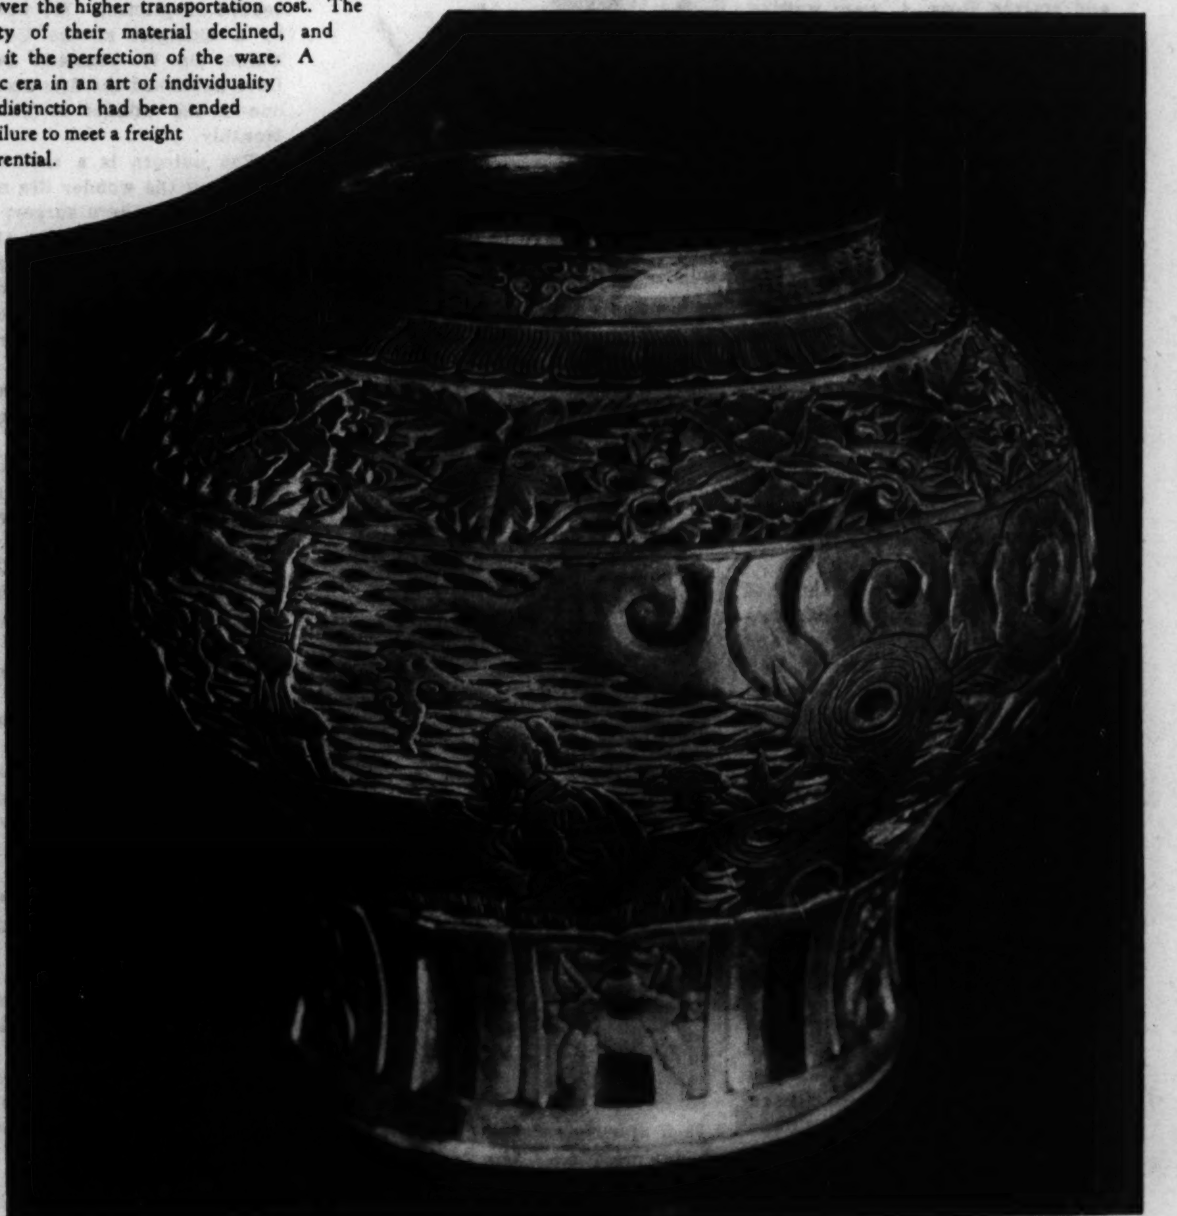
Flower jar of yellow with incised design featuring the Imperial five-clawed dragon in the Ming Imperial green, a favored style in the reign of Cheng Te (1506-21), the period of this piece.



Double gourd bottle, blue on yellow, Chia Ching, an item in the cultural exchange that followed the flow of commerce to Persia and the Near East.



Trumpet jar in a design suggested by bronze; at right, a stem cup in the incised green and yellow with the original lotus stand intact.



Huge carved openwork jar in yellow glaze, approaching a size that traditionally worried one distracted potter to death.

Robert Bowers.

TRIED to BUY HIS FRIEND'S WIFE and CHILDREN

But When That Failed Robert Bowers Paid Fifty Dollars and Had Tony Caldwell Murdered.

Marvin Parsons.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

KANSAS CITY, Missouri.

AN OLD friend of the family was a big help to the Jackson County authorities last March 30, when Tony Caldwell, popular young dairy worker of Hickman Mills, just south of this city on United States Highway 71, was called outside his home at 10 p. m. and returned in a few minutes to die in the presence of his wife and two children.

It happened that the friend, Robert W. Bowers, 37 years old, a truck driver for the dairy where Caldwell was employed, was in the Caldwell home at the moment, as he told Chief Deputy Sheriff John Kelley quite willingly. Bowers and Caldwell had just come in with their arms full of groceries. They put the groceries on a table in the kitchen, and Bowers was starting to follow Caldwell into the front part of the house when he heard a hoarse shout from outside, "I want to see that fellow in the house." He told Caldwell, and Caldwell went out, and there was a shot, and Caldwell staggered in and died without a word about who shot him. And not an enemy in the world, either. . . .

Chief Deputy Kelley and his men heard Bowers' story a little too often. Almost any reference to the murder would set him off, and, once started, his tongue ran irresistibly along the same well-oiled track to the deadly end. They began to tire of it. And then they began to wonder at it. And in precisely four days after the murder they had the helpful friend of the family in jail. Also, they announced, they had his statement that, failing to buy Mrs. Caldwell and the children from Caldwell for $50, Bowers had paid an unsuspected enemy $50—the same $50, for all the record shows—to "put him out of the way.

And for a while it had looked like an impossible case. Mrs. Caldwell had not been able to help much—not nearly as much as the friend of the family. She and the children, Billie Floyd, 7, and Martha Rose, 4, were waiting that night when Bowers and Caldwell came in.

"I heard Tony go out the steps and into the front yard," she told the authorities. "Then I heard a loud shot and Tony screamed terribly. When I got to the door Tony fell in, mumbling he had been shot. His eyes seemed to be trying to tell me something, but he died before he could speak again."

Bowers could add a lot of detail. He had run to the front yard the moment he heard the shot, though, unfortunately, it was too late for him to do anything. A car was speeding away in the darkness. He saw it was an Oldsmobile. He was sure of that—too sure, for the deputies found it rather difficult to identify an automobile by make at the distance and under the conditions which Bowers too eagerly described.

Now they learned that Bowers had taken Mrs. Caldwell to the local moving picture theater once or twice. And he had associated with Marvin Parsons. That meant nothing to the officers, but some of the neighbors recalled Parsons, 29-year-old filling station employe, had some sort of grudge against Caldwell. That wasn't much to go on, but it was enough for them to take the helpful family friend to the jail and see if he couldn't give them a little more help. He was less willing, now. But rapid-fire questioning began in just one hour to elicit details that they judged worth writing down.

"Last fall," as this confession stated, "Tony realised that I wanted his wife and children. I asked him how much he would take for them. He refused to sell them to me for any price.

"The last time I took Mrs. Caldwell to the show was some time about three months ago. Last fall, just after talking to Tony about buying his wife and children, I was in his home and he told me I couldn't have his children, but that if I wanted his wife, 'Take her and get out.'

"His wife didn't say whether she would go with me."

Later he was quoted as saying Mrs. Caldwell refused to go with him. And Mrs. Caldwell, informed that Bowers said Caldwell told him he could have her for nothing, declared she never even thought of going away with Bowers and, not only that, but he was lying from beginning to end.

Chief Deputy Kelley and his men had nothing to connect Parsons with the case except a vague report of a grudge concerning hives and a charivari—"shivaree," a traditional marriage celebration, which usually means only a lot of noise and drinks on the groom, but which may be taken by some of the boys as an excuse for getting rough. But now, they said, Bowers continued:

"A young fellow named Marvin Parsons, who works in a filling station near Hickman Mills, and whom I have known for about eight or 10 years, had had some trouble with Caldwell. That was about four years ago. I understand that at the time Marvin was married they had a charivari for him, and Tony and some other men attempted to throw him in the lake. Marvin at that time had hives and he had been told that if he got wet it would kill him.

"Because of this trouble, Marvin has been wanting to get Caldwell ever since that time. I have talked to Marvin at different times about it and a few days before Tony was killed I told Marvin that Caldwell had treatened him. Marvin made the remark, 'It looks like flowers on the grave if that is what he is doing.'

"I had been wanting to get rid of Tony for some time so I urged Marvin to kill him. We then made the plans and I met Marvin a day or two afterwards and we discussed how we would kill Tony, and agreed to meet the next day and make final plans. We finally agreed that Marvin would drive up to the house and call Tony out, then kill him. I agreed to pay Marvin $50 to kill Tony, and I gave him the money at that time."

Parsons, taken to jail, accused Bowers of shrewdly playing on the grudge until he was ready to believe that Caldwell plotted his death. "About five weeks ago," related the Parsons confession given out by the authorities, "Bowers came to me and told me Caldwell had said he'd kill me if it was the last thing he ever did. From time to time Bowers would come to me and tell me what 'Caldwell said,' and he never let me forget the quarrel we'd had over the charivari some years before.

"Bowers told me Tony had threatened to blow up my filling station and that I had only five days in which to leave Hickman Mills. Bowers told me I had better get Tony before Tony got me.

"ABOUT 9 o'clock of the day of the killing I drove to Kansas City and purchased a shotgun. I paid $4 for the gun, and the proprietor gave me one shell for it. I then went back to the filling station and worked all day until 7 o'clock that night. I had supper and then went to Caldwell's, parking my car east of his house.

"My car was about 300 feet from Caldwell's house and I stayed in it until I saw Caldwell and Bowers drive in.

"When Caldwell came out in answer to my call I waited until he got within 10 feet of my car and then placed the gun barrel on the right front door and fired. After firing the shot and seeing Caldwell fall, I drove away. I saw Bowers later, but we never mentioned the shooting."

Bowers said he got cold feet after the plans were made and tried to dissuade Parsons from carrying them through. Despite the confessions, both men decided to stand trial. But on June 5—little over two months after the killing—both changed their pleas to guilty, and Circuit Judge Marion D. Waltner sentenced both to the Missouri pentitentiary for life.

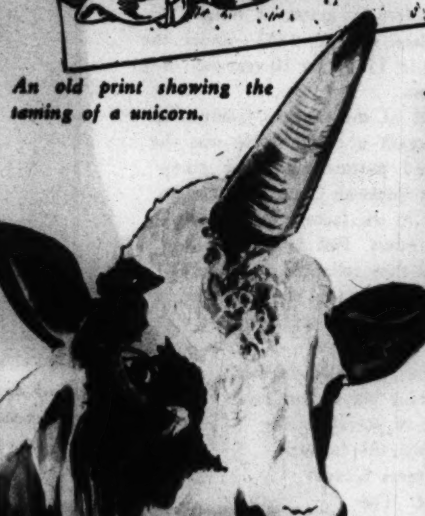
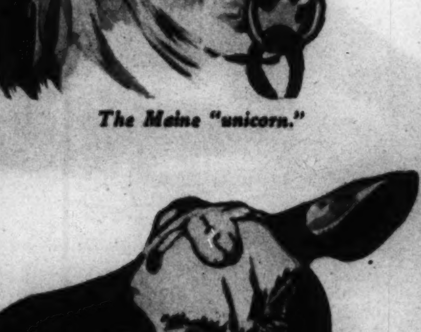
SCIENCE PRODUCES a REAL UNICORN

How a Young Ayrshire Bull Was Made Into a Modern Counterpart of the Famed Mythological Creature.

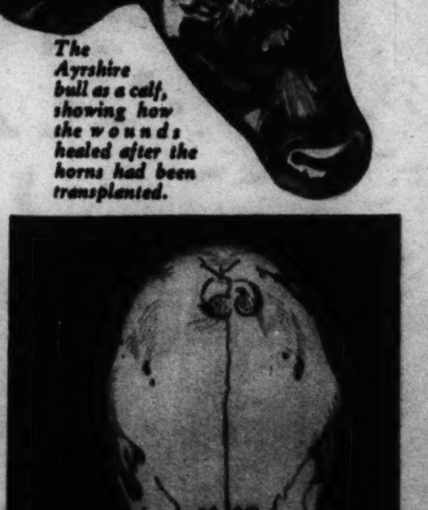
By DR. FRANK THONE



The Maine "unicorn."



The Ayrshire bull as a calf, showing how the wounds healed after the horns had been transplanted.



Skull of a "unicorn" calf that died, showing transplanted horn buds at top of the center line and scars where they orginally grew.

UNICORNS are no longer creatures of myth and fable. Science, which has been the death of so many once-credited myths, has reversed its time-honored role, and has produced a real, live, breathing animal with a horn in the middle of its forehead.

And to make the story even better, this modern unicorn lives in the State of Maine, usually thought of as headquarters for commonsense, hard-headed skepticism. He was produced by a biologist at the University of Maine, Dr. W. Franklin Dove. Dr. Dove published the first account of his one-horned wonder in The Scientific Monthly.

The unicorn is a real wonder, all right, but the wonder lies more in the methods of modern surgery that made him possible than in the animal himself. For his one horn was made out of the beginnings of two horns, transplanted from the corners of his head to the center line of his brow, through the use of the same kind of surgical methods that transplant fingers to replace missing noses, or make new jaws out of pieces of ribs.

To understand the horn of a unicorn, and how it can be made, it is necessary first to take a brief look at horns in general, and how they grow. Calves, kids, lambs and other horned animals are of course born hornless. But at each corner of the forehead there is a little round knot of growing tissue, loosely attached to the bone, but not really a part of it. These bits of growing tissue are known as the horn buds.

As the animal grows, the horn buds develop. They grow fast to the skull underneath, and finally seem to be altogether parts of it. On their outer sides they build up into solid bony cones, called the horn cores.

All horned animals except the deer family, which shed their horns each year, have these horn cores. Over them the true horn develops, growing like hair or finger nails and indeed formed of much the same kind of material.

The two horn buds therefore are the determining factor in horn formation. Where they are, the horns grow. If they can be transplanted the horns will grow somewhere else.

It was this knowledge and reasoning that moved Dr. Dove, when he decided to see whether he couldn't make a unicorn.

He chose a bull calf of the Ayrshire breed, only a day old. By careful surgical methods he cut the young animal's horn buds loose, leaving attached to each one a strip of skin and supporting tissues, to insure blood supply until the transplanted tissues should have made themselves fast in their new location. He trimmed a piece off the edge of each, to make the flat sides fit closely together. Then he set them edge to edge at the center line of the calf's forehead.

He made his transplant deep, right on the bone itself and under the growing sheath of protective and nutrient tissue which scientists call the periosteum.

AS HE expected, the two transplanted horn buds grew fast to each other and to the skull, forming a single large horn core. The horn that developed, as the younger bull's days increased, was much thicker and heavier than either member of the usual pair of horns—a massive, formidable weapon. Now, at the age of about two and one-half years, the young unicorn bull strides the pastures in his pride, undisputed master of the herd.

The change in his head-armament has made a difference in his style of fighting, Dr. Dove reports. Most bulls charge at an enemy and then slash to one side or the other, using only one of their pair of horns. But the unicorn goes into action head-on, using his single weapon like a knight's lance. It is a far more effective mode of combat, apparently, and certainly is very disconcerting to any rival bull.

Dr. Dove has conjectured about the possibility of producing one-horned fighting bulls, for the immemorial sport of Spain. Such animals would certainly introduce a note of novelty into the bull ring, and might make doubly significant the warning in the operatic favorite, "Toreador, be wary!"

However, since bull fighting is a ritual as well as sport, and therefore a very conservative institution, there might be considerable popular opposition to the introduction of an unorthodox pattern of bull.

There might be a lack of interest in the combat on the unicorn-bull's part, too; for Dr. Dove says that his animal, confident in his strength and superior armament, does very little fighting, and is quite docile. This would fit in with old-time notions about the legendary uniocrn, which was universally declared to be both proud and gentle. The belief arose that though the unicorn could defy all hunters, yet if a young virgin went into his pasture and sat down, he would come presently and lay his head in her lap so that he could then be taken captive.

Dr. Dove is not at all convinced that all previously reported unicorns were legendary and non-existent. He has combed the literature (which is most voluminous and polyglot), and thinks it quite likely that earlier peoples knew his horn-transplantation trick and practiced it commonly, with goats and sheep as well as cattle.

Persistent reports from many lands, ranging from classic antiquity down to modern times, indicate that herdsmen and shepherds have done things to the horns of their animals. Dr. Dove quotes a passage from Pliny, the noted Roman naturalist who lived during the first century A. D., which says in effect that certain shepherds "cut and twisted the horns (of their sheep) so that four grew on a single head." Following this lead, the Maine biologist several years ago produced a six-horned goat—unfortuately now departed this life.

Pliny also records the practice, in Africa, of "bending the horns" of cattle, and causing the tips to grow together, to produce a single central horn. One of the homes of the unicorn in medieval legend, significantly enough, was "Ethiopia"—which at that time meant almost any part of Africa outside of Egypt. And two modern writers, one a Frenchman in 1796, the other an Englishman in 1924, describe "unicorn-making" by African tribes. Dr. Dove also adds a note on "multicorn-making" in sheep by natives of the Himalayan state of Nepal.

The alleged African practice of making unicorns out of bulls is declared to be for the purpose of "marking the herd leaders." With this rationalization Dr. Dove partly disagrees.

Changing the horns of a bull into a single horn would certainly mark the animal all right, he agrees. But from his experience with his own unicorn, he thinks the matter goes deeper. A one-horned animal is so well equipped to assert and maintain leadership that he just naturally becomes the leader, regardless of "markings."

Dr. Dove is also inclined to think that "unicorn-making" might have been known to the pastoral Israelites of early Old Testament times.

The unicorn is mentioned many times in the Bible, and always in terms of highest respect and laudation. Indeed, the first reference, in the Book of Numbers, likens the unicorn even to God himself. Balaam, the heathen prophet who ran full tilt into the power of Jehovah, and of course got the worst of it, reported back to his king: "He hath as it were the strength of an unicorn!"

UNICORN lore and legend were rife not only in ancient and medieval times, but had an especial vogue in early modern centuries, which were given to priding themselves on their greater enlightenment. Because a unicorn's horn was supposed to have miraculous poison-dispelling powers, it was much in demand during the "arsenic cocktail" Age of the Renaissance. Queen Elizabeth had a "little cuppe of Unicorne's horne," which she prized highly and which her successor, James I, presented to his wife as an exceedingly great treasure.

Pieces of horn that were purported to be unicorn's were listed above jewels and gold in the inventories of the great houses of that time. A whole unicorn horn was a prize worth a city's ransom.

Later, cold-blooded zoologists looked over these precious objects, and found them all to be the twisted nose-horns of the narwhal, a smaller relative of the whale which carries a lance on its nose. But zoological knowledge was one of the least of the troubles of James I, who incidentally was a stanch believer in witches.

When the Chinese Fought With Bows and Arrows and Under Umbrellas

How a New War With Japan Would Contrast With the Fantastic Manner in Which the One in 1894 Was Prosecuted.

By KEITH KERMAN

Of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine Staff

CHINA is bristling with war preparations, as the Canton (South China) Government clamors for another go at the ancient foe, Japan. If such a conflict develops, with North China uniting with South China to make common cause against the enemy, the world will have opportunity to see how well the Chinese have learned the lesson of 1894-95, when Japan decisively demonstrated that the antique military establishment of her big neighbor was no match for her own modern war machine.

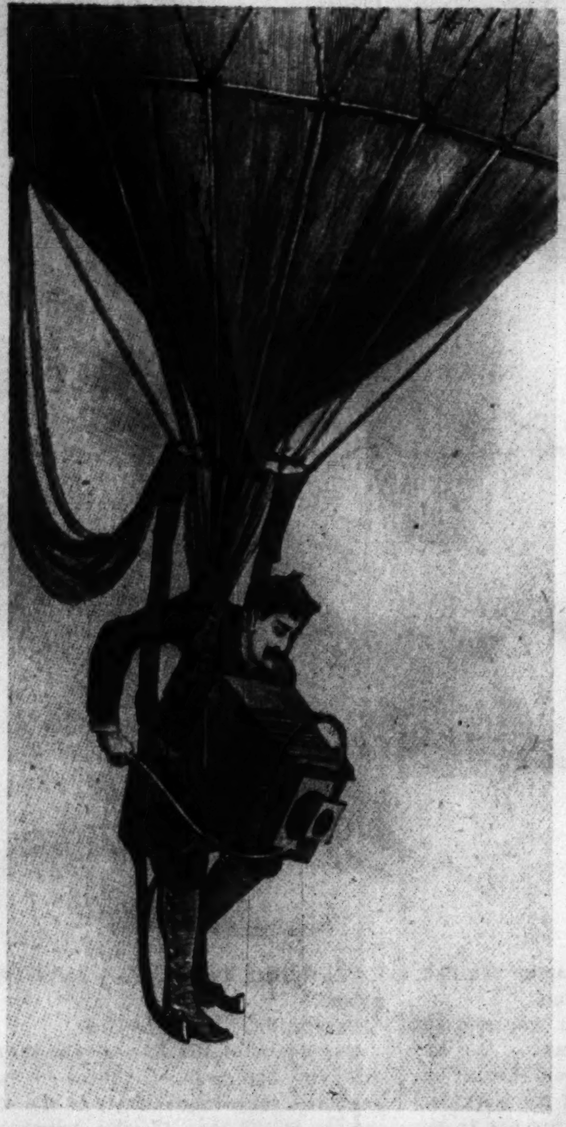
Whatever the outcome, a new war between China and Japan would be bound to present notable contrasts to the nineteenth century struggle. In that affair, the weight of public opinion favored the Japanese, who represented civilization at grips with barbarism. Today the rooting of the Western world probably would be for China, because of Japanese invasions of her territory. In 1894 Japan was the underdog. It was David tackling Goliath, and the quickness with which the little island kingdom defeated the huge empire astonished everybody, including the little island kingdom.

In a new war China could put into the field, in contrast to its undisciplined, poorly equipped, badly led hordes of the nineties, armies of trained troops, led by trained officers and supplied with machine guns, hand grenades, artillery, tanks and airplanes comparable, at least, to those of the enemy. And many of its soldiers have war experience gained in the civil strife of recent years and in conflict with the Japanese invaders of Northern China and Manchuria in 1932-33. China, it is apparent, has learned enough of the lesson to have Westernized its fighting forces. How much it has progressed in such intangibles as strategy and morale remains to be tested.

That Oriental war of the nineties was a crazy combination of the modern and the medieval. There was fighting with up-to-the-minute machine guns and with bows and arrows. There were displays of scientific tactics and of such ancient customs as raising umbrellas to protect soldiers from rain as they fought. There were the humanitarian services of the Red Cross and the torture and murder of prisoners. There were leaders proficient in military science and officers who had qualified for their positions by passing tests in archery and weight-lifting.

Despite its briefness, limited scope and the relatively small numbers of troops engaged, the war was of considerable importance. It marked the emergence of a new force in the affairs of nations—the military power of Japan—and the Japanese became "a wonderful little people." It demonstrated anew the value of organization, professional training and morale in war. And it offered convincing proof that from Christian countries, the exemplars of Japan, could best be learned the science of killing.

The war of 1894-95 was over Korea. China claimed suzerainty over the country—which Japan did not recognize—and in June, 1894, sent in troops to put down a revolt. Japan, acting under a treaty right, also sent troops to the small kingdom. The Japanese felt that the situation called for certain reforms in the Korean administration, and when China declined to co-operate in enforcing such measures and the Korean Government failed to act, Japanese troops seized Seoul, the capital, and placed in authority a new government, which promptly asked the Japanese to drive the Chinese army out of the country. With this somewhat legal sanction, Japan directed its arms against China.



A Japanese war photograph of 1894—attached to a balloon; from a contemporary illustration.

The first clash was at sea. On the morning of July 25, three Japanese war vessels encountered two Chinese warships and a transport carrying 1200 soldiers to reinforce the Chinese army in Korea. Accounts differ as to which side fired first. There had been no declaration of war as yet. However the fight started; it ended with one Chinese warship disabled, the other crippled and in flight, and the transport sunk with 1000 of its passengers. The Chinese sailors fought their ships well.

THE sinking of the transport was brought about by Chinese ignorance of modern warfare. It illustrated, too, the ruthless determination of the Japanese. After the defeat of the Chinese warships, a Japanese officer boarded the transport and gave orders for it to follow his ship. The transport was a British steamship, the Kowshing, under charter to the Chinese Government. Two Chinese generals, commanding the troops aboard, refused to let the English master, Captain Galsworthy, carry out the order. They issued arms to the soldiers and declared they would fight, apparently blind to the fact that their unarmed vessel could not resist a warship. They refused, also, to let the captain and other Europeans leave the transport. The Japanese boat met the situation by stationing itself broadsides to the transport, less than 200 yards away, and firing broadsides into the vessel until it sank. Captain Galsworthy, a few other Europeans and about 160 Chinese soldiers survived, some of them swimming ashore — the engagement was near Phung Island—and others being picked up by boats.

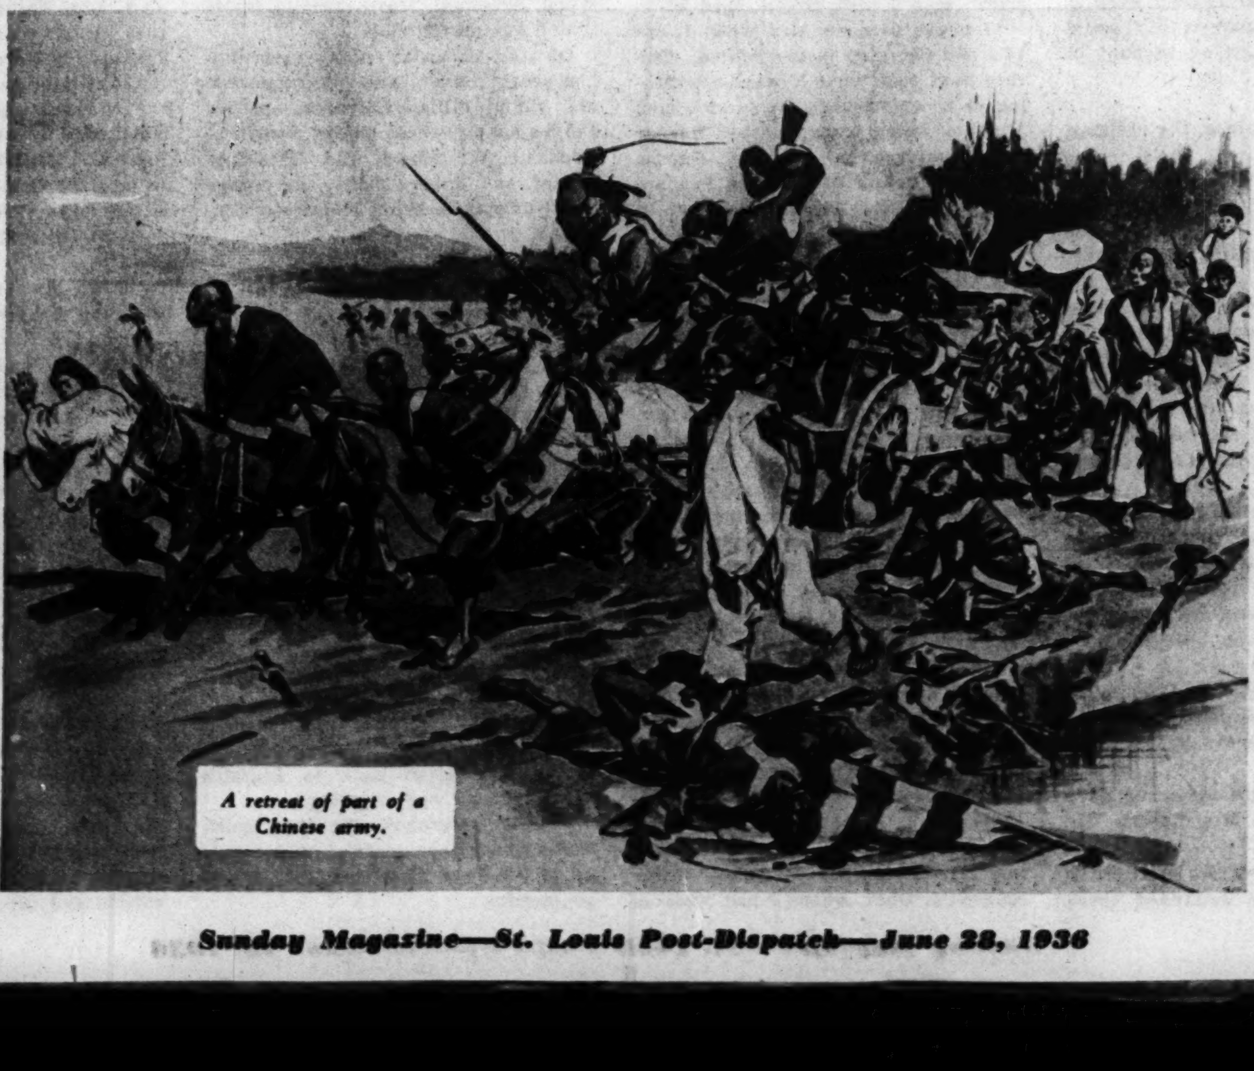
On the same day, July 25, the Japanese moved to attack the Chinese on land. General Oshima led a body of troops from Seoul toward Asan, a short distance to the south, where a Chinese camp had been established. The march was delayed by the difficulty of getting men or animals to transport supplies; Major Koshi, commanding the advance guard, was so bitterly annoyed by this obstacle that he committed suicide. But on July 29 the Japanese came up to the Chinese force, about 10 miles from Asan and defeated it, storming the enemy entrenchments after an artillery bombardment. The Chinese also used cannon, but in technical terms, "made bad practice"—that is, didn't hit much.

Some 2500 Japanese and 1500 Chinese took part in this battle. The Chinese casualties were 500 killed and wounded, the Japanese, 88. Eight guns and a large quantity of supplies and ammunition fell into the hands of the victors. The Chinese commander, General Yeh-chih-chao, "retired" with a large portion of his men quite early in the fray.

His description of this withdrawal as a devastating strategical blow to the enemy so impressed his superiors that he was honored as a hero.

It was several days later, on August 1, that war was formally declared by the two countries. Japanese in China and Chinese in Japan were placed under the protection of the United States. For six weeks the two belligerents devoted themselves to rushing troops to the theater of war.

Vastly different were the two sets of fighting men gathering for the death struggle, despite the fact that they represented civilizations separated by only 500 miles or so. The Japanese soldiers, taken into the army under a universal service system modeled on that of some of the European countries, were well-fiftted and well-discipilined. Their weapons were modern and they knew how to use them. Their uniforms were of Western type—snug-fitting jackets, trousers and leggings. The officers were trained in tactics suited to modern armament. The rifles with which the infantry was equipped were invented by a Japanese and manufactured in a Japanese factory. Hospital and supply services were adequately organized. Despite the conscription system, officers and men were almost fanatical in their patriotic zeal.



A retreat of part of a Chinese army.

The quality of the Chinese soldiery reflected the fact that in China the profession of arms was held in contempt. They were in large measure ignorant peasants and plug-uglies who were interested chiefly in their pay and very little in their country. Some didn't know whom they were supposed to be fighting. Except for a few thousand who had been drilled by Europeans—and who gave a good account of themselves in battle—they were inexperienced in the handling of modern guns; a good many merely held their rifles against their sides and blazed away in the general direction of the enemy, sometimes shooting their own comrades. The repeating rifles, machine guns and cannon which China had bought in other countries were not very destructive to the foe in such hands. Many of these troops didn't have modern weapons, but were armed with ancient gas-pipe blunderbusses which frequently exploded, with pikes, pitchforks and bows and arrows. The majority of the minor officers knew little more about the kind of fighting this war demanded than did their men; their proficiency was with the bow, the spear and in feats of strength. The bespectacled mandarins who were the principal leaders were for the most part reactionary gentlemen uninterested in Western military ideas, but devoted to philosophic musing, graft and the society of dancing girls. They took their armies behind fortifications and waited for the Japanese to attack. It is not surprising that many of the untrained troops, after their guady uniforms, multitudinous flags, aimless firing and tumult of trumpets, gongs and yells, had failed to intimidate the enemy, withdrew early from a combat, tearing off their uniforms as they ran so that if captured they could pretend to be peaceful civilians.

PING-YANG, in Northwestern Korea, was the scene of the decisive battle in the Korean campaign. The town was strongly fortified and held by a Chinese force of about 13,000 men. On September 15 a Japanese army of 14,000 men, which had surrounded the position, attacked it.

There were strong outlying fortifications blocking the way to the walled city, and their walls bristled with heavy cannon and machine guns. All along the walls, too, were waving banners, while within the town floated the huge flags of the generals, each bearing in large characters its owner's name. One of these generals was Yeh-hih-chao, the commander who had made the "strategic" retreat some weeks before.

Four Japanese detachments, under General Oshima, General Tadzumi, General Nodzu and Colonel Sato, carried out the attack, advancing on the position from different directions. Supported by their artillery, they stormed fort after fort, in several cases against exceedingly stubborn resistance. Early in the day rain began to fall, and the Chinese defenders placed enormous oiled-paper umbrellas on the walls to avoid the discomfort of getting wet as they fought.

A piece of good luck for the Japanese was the death of Tso-pao-quei, a Chinese general who, despite that distinction, was a fighter. Wounded twice, he continued to urge on the defenders under his command until he received a third wound, which was fatal. He had prevented the other generals from ordering abandonment of the city before the actual attack began. Now that he was gone, escape became the principal object of the Chinese. Several hundred Manchurian cavalrymen attempted it in a dashing, spectacular manner. In three successive waves, they rode out of the city and charged down a valley toward the Japanese lines, hoping to cut their way through. Clad in blue and red uniforms and mounted on white horses, gay pennants whipping on their long black lances, they made a brave sight, typifying the glamourous pageantry of war. The Japanese gun-

WHAT HAPPENED to SIX GLORIFIED SHOW GIRLS

And Why Only One of Them Kept the Rendezvous "at Churchills" Made Twenty Years Ago.

Olive Thomas.

Martha Mansfield.

Lilyan Tashman.

Kathryn Lambert.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

NEW YORK.

"DEATH plays no favorites," Kathryn Lambert sighed.

She dipped her finger tips in the tiny glass bowl, wiped them on her napkin, surveyed the five untouched covers at her table in the Paradise Restaurant, and rose to leave with the feeling that she had fulfilled her promise.

"It was just 20 years ago that five of us girls in the Follies of 1916 made each other promise that on June 2, 1936, we'd all have dinner together at Churchill's—it never entered our pretty heads that there wouldn't be a Churchill's—and tell each other what had happened. And I'm the only one left.

"All of them had tragic ends, too—even Lilyan Tashman who was a martyr to dieting at the height of her screen career," Miss Lambert explained. "I guess I've been the happiest—even if I'm not as well off as some of the others were."

The promise was made on the dressing room tier atop the old Amsterdam Theater on the first night of the call. The girls present—most of them newcomers to the theater and all of them attractive, young, and full of hope—included Olive Thomas, Miss Tashman, Martha Mansfield, Fifi Alsop, Bessie Poole, and Miss Lambert.

Five of them were getting out of their clothes and chatting about their luck in getting into a show that boasted such stars as W. C. Fields, Ina Claire, Allyn King, Sam Hardy, Fannie Brice, Ann Pennington, Kathryn Perry and Ethel Delmar. Then Miss Thomas, who had been in the show the year before, called out "Hey girls, come in here."

They trooped into her dressing room.

"There was an old hag," Miss Lambert explained recalling the scene as though it happened only yesterday. "She looked 70 although she was probably no more than 45. She was eking out a living selling cold cream and she wanted us to buy some. She told us that years before she too had been a show girl, filled with ambition.

"'I was very beautiful, my children,' she said, 'as beautiful as any of you. I was in the Floradora show. That was more than 20 years ago—'

"We stared at her in horror as she took our nickles. And when she was gone Olive whispered:

"'Isn't that tragic?'

"'I wonder if that will happen to some of us?' One of the girls asked.

"Olive drew herself up proudly.

"'Not to me. It can never happen to any of us if we make up our minds. We all have beauty and talent. Something to sell. Twenty years from now we will all be famous and successful.'"

It was then they made the pact—the pact which one alone fulfilled.

"Twenty years from now all six of us will meet at Churchill's and tell one another what the years have done. We swear at all costs to make good and to have nothing but pride for what we have done in those 20 years. We will meet at Churchills on June 2, 1936."

Well, Kathryn was there—her skin as beautfiul, her eyes as clear as ever. But she has taken on weight and when she rises there is little hint of the once slender form which glorified the Follies of 1916.

And, as she ate her dinner from the first cocktail and hors d'oeuvres to the final coffee and brandy, if the ghosts of her former friends were at her elbow and had spoken they would have given the following account of themselves.

FIRST Olive Thomas, the prettiest of them all:

"I am Olive Thomas. I was the first to go. I thought when I was talking to you girls that I was on the road to millions—millions I had never known before.

"For, as you know—I began as a cashier girl in a department store.

"But even as I spoke I knew I was in love with Jack Pickford, Mary's brother — and that all the King's horses and all the King's men couldn't keep me from marrying him. No, not even Flo Ziegfeld."

It was a known fact that the late Ziegfeld never liked young Pickford and that he did his best to prevent Olive's marriage to him. But young love had its way and in September, 1920, Olive and Jack were on their honeymoon in Paris.

Jack left the room and while he was out Olive swallowed a vial of poison—why, only a few people know and they never tell.

She left her entire estate of $37,094 to her mother, Mrs. Lorena Van Kirke of St. Louis.

"I was, you know, the prettiest of you all," the ghost reminded them.

And then she vanished from the table.

Another rose:

"But I was the most photographed, for I was Martha Mansfield, and my future in the movies was assured.

"My father, Maurice Ehrlich, had deserted my mother, Hattie, in 1912, leaving her to take care of my sister Edith, then 7, and myself, then 12.

"I began to dance and when I was 16 I met you girls in the Follies. The very next year when I was entertaining at a performance for service men I met a young ensign named Kaspar G. Schmidt, the son of George K. Schmidt, president of the Prudential State Savings Bank of Chicago. In 1918 we were married.

"I was too young to know what I was doing and in January, 1920, when Kaspar won his discharge from the navy he wanted me to live with him in Chicago where he had a realty business. But all his millions couldn't have induced me to leave my career.

"He divorced me on grounds of desertion in March, 1922.

"However, I was very happy—after I got out of the Flo Leeds-James Stillman-Fifi Stillman divorce suit. You know Flo was one of my best friends and my name cropped up in that suit when I was called to come forward and give some information on Flo's antecedents. I'd been with her in several stage productions after I left you girls in the Follies.

"And then John Barrymore chose me for his leading woman in the Fox film production 'Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde,' and I was bound for new heights. I was even sorry I was calling myself Martha Mansfield—after Mansfield, Ohio, where I had lived as a child—instead of Martha Ehrlich which was my real name.

"And then in 1923 I was cast in 'The Warrens of Virginia.' We all went down to San Antonio, Texas, on location. I had finished my work for the day and I got into my car to go back to the hotel. I lit a cigarette.

"I thought I blew out the match. At any rate I tossed it away. It was flaming. It caught the ruffles and crinolines of my costume dress. I screamed. My fellow actors tried to save me.

"I died Thanksgiving Day."

Miss Mansfield's death in 1923 was not in vain. She was able to leave her mother in comfort for life—with two $25,000 insurance policies, $20,000 worth of Liberty Bonds and $2473 in cash.

A few months later the Texas Industrial Accident Board awarded Mrs. Ehrlich $7500, payable in 360 installments of $20 each for her daughter's death.

"I am Bessie Poole—born Elizabeth Chatterton Poole—," another ghost rose and spoke in hollow whispers. "I was not so successful as Olive or Martha. In fact I led the life of an average show girl with a lot of dates, some work, some love, and some hates.

"My death is still a matter of mystery and although it occurred in 1928, mother, Bessie Poole Wood of Onset, Massachusetts, and father, Louis Wood, Brockton, Massachusetts, insist that I was murdered."

On the Saturday night preceding her death, Bessie, and her roommate and chum, Lillian Lorraine, another Follies beauty, accompanied Joseph L. (Conky) Whitehead, the Coca-Cola official, and Robert Neilly, the orange drink official, to Dinty Moore's to dinner.

THEN because she was still in the convalescent stage from an operation Lillian had to return home and the remaining trio journeyed on to Chez Florence, a night club owned by Tommy Guinan, brother of the late Texas. It was the rendezvous of the champion Broadway stay-out-lates and the frequent scene of hit and run whoopie parties.

There was some of the usual cuffing around and some general necessary administering. Neilly grew the worse for wear and someone suggested rubbing ammonia on his face.

"Oh, don't do that, you'll burn him," Bessie cried.

A fist shot out and caught her in the nose.

She was taken back to Lillian's apartment, ill and bleeding.

Sunday afternoon she was much worse and Lillian insisted that Bessie go to the Park East Hospital. Bessie acquiesced.

"Oh Lillian I'm going—I know I'm going."

Several days later she died.

The death of the 33-year-old show girl who had been so robust in appearance, came immediately to the attention of the then District Attorney, Joab Banton, and his Chief Assistant, Ferdinand Pecora. But no autopsy was made until after the body was embalmed.

The death had been first laid to hardening of the arteries and natural causes. Then the late Dr. Charles Norris, city medical examiner, took Bessie's body.

"Why this whole thing is a farce," Tommy Guinan sputtered. But that was because he was embarrassed by the fact that he, running his place on October 8 when his license had been refused on October 4, had come publicly to the attention of the police. However, Dr. Norris verified the report that Bessie was not the victim of an assault—although there may have been one—and that she died of chronic ethylism (alcoholism).

Bessie's story done, the smartest, slimmest ghost of all arose, smiled, and said:

"I was the most successful of you all, for I was Lilyan Tashman, the movie star and the wife of Edmund Lowe.

"As some of you know I was born in New York on October 23, 1899, as plain Lily Tashman. I was the seventh daughter of Rose and Maurice Tashman, and my father was a clothing manufacturer.

"My theatrical career started by accident one afternoon when I was having tea in Martin's. A man came over to my table and said, 'Mr. Ziegfeld is sitting over there. He thinks you're very pretty and would like to meet you.'

"From that meeting my first job with you girls resulted—the Follies of 1916. Well, three years later I was on the stage and I had met Mr. Lowe. But he was married then and I had to wait until his divorce was secured.

"After that he and I went into movies—we were married in 1925. I made a fetish of being well dressed—and to be as chic as I wanted to be I had to keep slimmer than slim. You know the movies add inches and pounds to every figure for the camera does lie. Well, I overdid it. I died at Doctor's Hospital in New York in March, 1934. I was 33 and I left $31,000."

And when Lilyan vanished from the table a sorry haggard looking ghost arose—the fifth of the sextette.

"I was Effie Pope Hill Alsop—you girls called me Fifi. When you knew me I was destined to be the most successful of all. I was the least successful and the most unhappy.

"Back in 1912 I was a pretty blonde living in a small town in Georgia. Then Edward B. Alsop, the wealthy manufacturer of Washington and Pittsburgh saw me and wanted me for his own. He was 77 and I was 17. That didn't make any difference to him. It didn't make any difference to me either because I knew he had millions and could show me a world of which I had never even dreamed.

"Well, I was called the 'Billion Dollar Bride.' I had a mansion on Fifth avenue, a honeymoon in Europe, my pictures in the papers and the world was mine.

"But two months after our marriage old Mr. Alsop began to see the folly of such a union, even as I had done. He turned most of the fortune over to his two sons at Harvard—the children of his wife who had died four years before.

"That made us all bad friends and in 1915 he sued for and won his divorce. I got a half million dollars by the divorce settlement in 1916.

"When I met you girls in the Follies of 1916 I didn't need to work, but my name had been in the papers so much I was good publicity for the Follies and of course I was proud to be considered pretty enough to be part of that gorgeous group.

"BUT before the year was out my money had gone in Wall Street and I wasn't wanted in another show. I struggled along for years resorting to drink and drugs to make me forget my miseries. I was in and out of Bellevue Hospital, and in and out of the dingy rooms I called home.

"I was so poor, so horrid looking, so ill—I doubt that I would have attended your reunion if I had been alive. I had nothing to be proud of. I'm glad I didn't live. I wanted so much to die. I did die in a cheap rooming house a year ago. My body laid unclaimed for days at Bellevue."

And Kathryn Lambert?

"Oh, I've had a career too," she laughs with a quizzical smile, "and not all of it in show business.

"For a long time I was a companion to Mrs. Edna Crawford Champion, the show girl who married the spark plug millionaire and kept in love with Charlie Brazelle. After Champion died she and Charlie lived with each other on top of the Medical Arts Building which she bought one afternoon for $1,000,000 just as a housewife might buy a bunch of carrots.

"Then I was married for a while and I sued a man who held my jewels and—and—

"Well, now I've invented a permanent waving machine which I think is going to be a great success and perhaps I'll be wealthy after all. But even if I never am wealthy—I'm a lot happier than those other girls—say, let's drink a toast to them.

"I'd rather drink one to you."

"All right—to me."

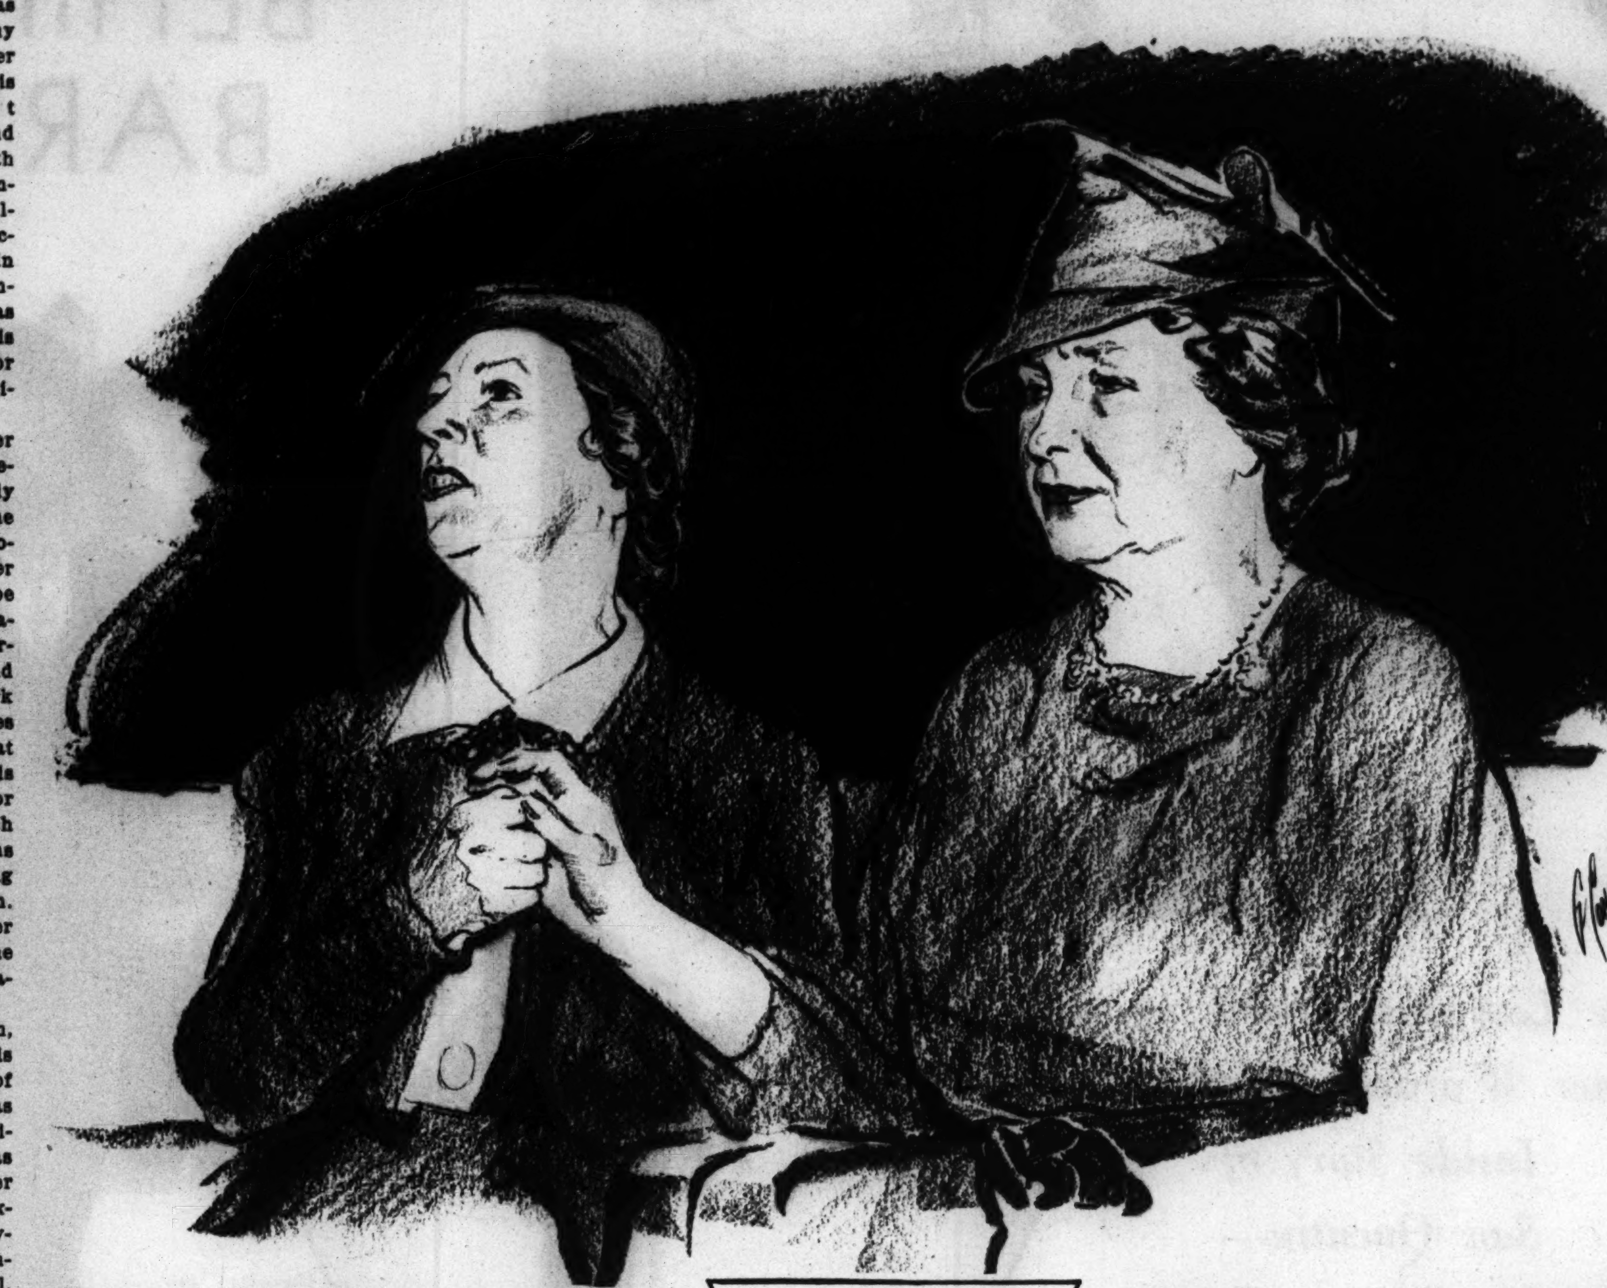
Her brown eyes sparkled. The night rolled around.

SKETCHES FROM LIFE

High Lights on Unusual Personalities

HELEN KELLER
KARLIS ULMANIS

Helen Keller at Fifty-Six



Helen Keller (right) and her secretary, Miss Polly Thompson.

HELEN ADAMS KELLER celebrated her fifty-sixth birthday yesterday. It is high time that someone point out (what has been obvious to many who have known her well) that she is phenomenal not because she conquered blindness and deafness; others have done that with comparable success. She is most conspicuously phenomenal because she illustrates the almost miraculous spectacle of a personality triumphant in every possible respect and morally invulnerable. And because her life has had a measure of sheer quality that is defiant of any amount of cynicism or indifference or even maudlin sentimentality.

One hasn't heard much about her for two or three years. She has become almost obscure. It is unlikely that this has anything to do with the fact that novelty has worn off and people have grown used to the idea her name evokes. Mark Twain, it will be recalled, remarked that she and Napoleon were the most interesting characters of the nineteenth century and David Warfield trumped the remark by exclaiming with tears in his eyes that Napoleon wasn't in it with "that girl." What is important in all this isn't the force of the compliment or the eminence of its authors, so much as the fact that both were Victorians and that both considered the young prodigy a fellow of their generation. It is probably because Helen Keller achieved her main triumphs before the war that she has relapsed into relative obscurity since.

It should be pointed out, though, that this decline of public interest is probably owing more to the passing of the great names with which hers has been associated than to any loss of vitality on her own part. Her ideas have not been out-moded with her language. They have grown and expanded without pause and today, having outlived the generation that ennobled her name, she remains vital, intelligent and robust.

Everybody finds it almost impossible to describe Helen without falling into an attitude of homage. Such an attitude should make it quite clear that the fact of her blindness and deafness is more and more an incidental. Milton's blindness was almost equally intrusive to his contemporaries and is forgotten today. It is still possible that Helen Keller will be remembered principally by her work.

In the American Who's Who her education is described in a succinct phrase: "ed. by Miss Anne Mansfield Sullivan (Mrs. John A. Macy) her teacher from beginning of her education in 1887, to present time." Nothing could be more significant than the fact that she has never regarded her education as completed, not even the day she was graduated cum laude from Radcliffe College.

The daughter of a land-poor Southern gentleman who also edited a newspaper and served as a captain in the Civil War, she was of distinguished ancestry. The Boston Adamses were her most formidable relatives—through her mother; her father was descended from colonial Governor Spottswood of Virginia. Her family were cultivated; she was born intelligent and robust and might have had an even more distinguished career without the hurdle that caused her to leap so high. But before her twentieth month she was nearly killed by a severe fever (never convincingly diagnosed) which left her deaf and blind. Her early childhood was marked by a sucession of tantrums; even as a baby she knew the rage of frustrated expression. Before her teacher came she worked out for herself a vocabulary of gestures which even included some adjectives, but she realized even then that other people communicated in another way and every day she experienced the desperate bitterness of not being able to make herself understood.

Anne Sullivan, who became another self to her, arrived at Tuscumbia, Alabama, her birthplace, when she was not quite seven years old—sent there from the Perkins Institution for the Blind, in Boston. Her name will go down as one of the greatest educators of all time, despite the fact that academicians have learned little from her and studied less. She was a lovely girl, born half blind and only saved for the time being from the total blindness into which she has since relapsed. Her childhood involved such sordid horrors that its details cannot be described in print. Being naturally talented and unconventional, the hideous background of a Victorian alms house in Massachusetts combined with the smug Bostonian atmosphere she later experienced at Perkins Institution conspired to turn her into an impish Becky Sharpe sort of person filled with inner rebellions and a drastic disgust for the disciplines of respectability. That such a person, not natively gifted with patience, should have undertaken a painstaking educational job that was to require all the years of her maturity indicates something about the fiber of her personality. Anne Mansfield was possessed by an inner compulsion that surpasses patience—and mocks it.

There is no mystery about her methods of teaching Helen Keller. It is all in the books now—how she initiated her into the mysteries of the manual alphabet, how she spelled out words on her fingers day after day until she grasped their meaning, how she helped her to discover that all things have names, how she caught insects for her to examine and vividly described what couldn't be examined with the hands. . . . It is impossible to tell that history of marvels here. It is recounted brilliantly in Anne Sullivan Macy's biography (by Ella Braddy) as well as in Helen Keller's two autobiographies. What can be pointed out is that this immensely wise teacher built her "method" on the idea that language can be well taught only by capitalizing on a pupil's need for words and by use of the imitative method. She multiplied her pupil's needs for words by multiplying her sensory and mental experience until Helen knew English to its roots, and French and German and Greek and Latin, almost as well.

Helen was given several ways of communication, each by infinitely painstaking teaching. Before being admitted to Radcliffe she had a complete command of the manual alphabet, of a method of lip reading with her fingers, of three kinds of braille. She could virtually see through her teacher's fingers, she could use a Hammond typewriter (including the Greek alphabet) and she had a phenomenal senstitiveness to vibrations. It is definitely known that she never developed a better sense of touch than normal and that her other live senses were also no better developed than average. Her efforts to learn to speak were the most discouraging of all. Not being able to see others' lips she had to imitate muscular movements she could only feel with her fingers. She did this at her own insistence, though even her teacher believed it would be impossible for her to learn. Not until she was 30, when Charles White of the New England Conservatory of Music began to teach her, did she achieve anything approaching normal speech.

Her life became a procession of vivid personalities. Among her dearest frieids were Alexander Graham Bell, Mrs. William Thaw (mother of Harry), John Spaulding (an enlightened Boston millionaire), Mark Twain and Oliver Wendell Holmes. She met nearly everybody of importance in America—presidents, writers, industrial pioneers, actors and society leaders. Usually she brought out the best in all of them. Andrew Carnegie offered her a pension—twice before she would accept it. Mark Twain was at his most lovable in her presence. Boston thawed before her, while snubbing her teacher. New York adored her.

Helen Keller was a well-known author before she finished college. Her "Story of My Life," written in installments for Edward Bok's Ladies' Home Journal, created an enormous sensation. She has written five other books and numerous stories. Always it has irritated her that she was not allowed to discuss anything except herself, and what relates directly to herself. She is a Socialist (even joined the I. W. W.), a Swedenborgian, a pacifist and was a leader in the woman suffrage movement and several others.

Writing books have cost her severe labor, and probably cost Mrs. Macy her sight. The method she used was to draft the manuscript on a typewriter, numbering the pages with braille pin pricks. Then these had to be read back to her through her fingers, time after time.

IN SPITE of frequent attacks on her, she had persisted in fighting for her causes. She has been an angel to the American Foundation for the Blind and once raised $1,000,000 for it by her own efforts. Typical was the gesture she made when awarded a $5000 prize for this. Though desperately in need of money (she always has been more or less so, not knowing how to be "practical") she added the prize money to the fund.

She has lectured in every state in the Union, and several foreign countries, has been awarded honors wherever she has gone. She appeared in vaudeville to raise an annuity for her teacher and was a brilliant success everywhere. In 1918 she went to Hollywood and acted in a movie. Blindness and deafness never prevented her from visiting strikers even during times of violence, from addressing angry mass meetings and even marching in demonstration parades. She has never hesitated to espouse controversial issues.

Today in her little house at Forest Hills, Long Island, she remains kindly and active (mostly on behalf of the blind, now) and still quite revolutionary. Her teacher, now past 70, blind and widowed, is forgotten. Helen Keller, surrounded by pets and overwhelmed by correspondence, is little remembered by the public at large. Yet no one can be certain that she will not burst forth on one last crusade even yet.

During the war she donated the royalties from the German edition of her first autobiography to the blind soldiers of Germany. . . . In 1933 her books were burned in a public square in Berlin. . . .

How a Former Professor at an American College Became a European Dictator

RIGA, Latvia.

A PLEASANT-LOOKING man, thick set, with a strong chin and a crew haircut, is the sole ruler of Latvia, its President, Premier and Foreign Minister all in one. He is the only American university professor who has ever become dictator of a European state. Although Karlis Ulmanis has been more or less the ruler of his native country since 1918, when Latvia won her independence from Russia, the miniature dictatorship wasn't absolutely established until last April, when he took over the presidency after eight terms as Premier.

Karlis Ulmanis' domain is 25,402 square miles in area. Outside Riga, the capital, it is largely agricultural. And the dictator achieved his fitness for governing it in a school of agriculture. He is a graduate of the University of Nebraska and served on its faculty for five years before returning home to enter the turbulent politics of this little Baltic state.

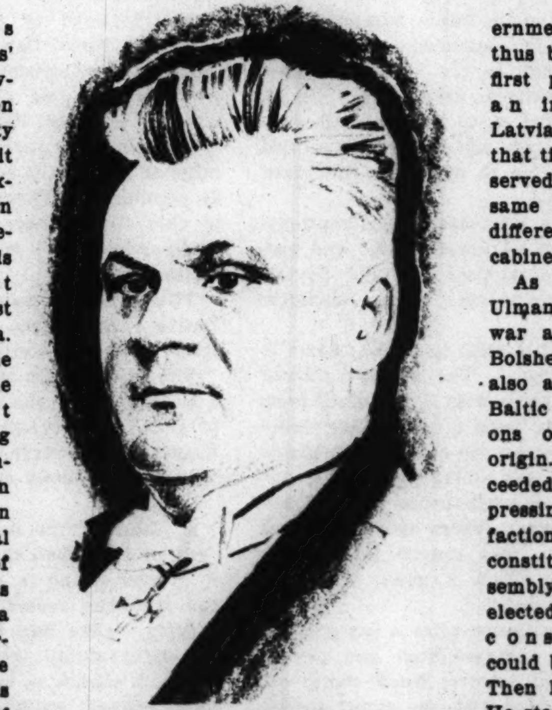
Ulmanis is of peasant stock and his father was a wealthy mujik near Kurzeme in the province of Courland. He was born on his family's farm in 1877, when his country was still identified only as one of the Baltic provinces of Czarist Russia. His family were prosperous and progressive. They sent him to school in Kurzeme and Jelgava, expecting him to follow their tradition and take over the big farm.

To perfect his equipment he was also sent to a model dairy farm in East Prussia for technical training. He was a satisfactory apprentice—if not something more. At 22 he was a founder of Courland's first agricultural society and a speaker at the first dairy congress in Riga.

Four years later, Karlis Ulmanis went abroad in Europe to study the most important problems of agriculture pertaining to his country; he found able instruction in the schools of Zurich and of Leipzig. When he returned to Latvia in 1905, he wanted to put his knowledge to practical use by introducing modern scientific farm methods to the Latvian farmers.

But the Russian Government at that time did not look with any measure of approval upon young men who went abroad to study. The Czar's agents suspected that Ulmanis might have received along with his lectures on plows and feed, a sprinkling of "subversive" political ideas; they arrested him, released him, then exiled him because they found that he had engaged in a movement for Latvian independence.

After a brief period as teacher in an agricultural school in Germany, he decided to come to the United States, then a haven of all political exiles. He went straight to Lincoln, Nebraska, where in 1907 he enrolled at the University of Nebraska and took a degree in agricultural studies. Immediately afterwards he was made an instructor in agriculture. A professorship followed and he was a member of the faculty for five years.



Karlis Ulmanis.

Latvia was still Ulmanis' real home, however, and as soon as the amnesty of 1913 made it possible for exiles to return home, he resigned from his teaching post and went post haste to Riga. There he became embroiled in the changes that were sweeping war-ridden Central and Eastern Europe. When the provisional government of Kerensky was set up in Russia after the overthrow of the Czar, Ulmanis found himself vice-governor of part of Courland. When German troops arrived to occupy Riga, he stubobrnly refused to abdicate. He was busy organizing the Latvian Democratic Parties, and immediately after the victory of the Allied Powers, on November 18, 1918, while the German irregular troops were still occupying much of Latvia, Ulmanis was present at an assembly of the people where Latvia's independence from Russia was declared. He was made prime minister of the new provisional government, and thus became the first premier of an independent Latvia. Since that time, he has served in the same post in different Latvian cabinets.

As Premier, Ulmanis led the war against the Bolshevists and also against the Baltic Land Barons of German origin. He succeeded in suppressing both factions until the constituent assembly was elected and a constitution could be adopted Then he retired. He stayed out of political office until he was called back to the premiership in 1925. A year later he left again, only to return for a few months in 1926 as Minister for Foreign Affairs. This time he said he was leaving public office for good.

But as leader of the Farmers Union—the most powerful unit in the Latvian Parliament—Ulmanis remained the dominant personality in the country's politics. He detested communism and disliked the Bolsheviki. At a time when a considerable faction advocated union with Soviet Russia, this made him the target of the bitterest antagonism from the left. But it also made him a rallying point for the conservatives and they forgot their individual and factional differences in coming to his support. In 1931 he was reinstated as Premier, this time with open backing from the conservatives.

Internal disagreement and foreign intervention presently lost him the post. But not for long; in 1934 he became Premier for the fourth time. And this time, with 20 factions represented in a Parliament of 100 members, he showed signs of losing patience. He proposed a reform of the constitution to the deputies. They beat it down. In the meantime the parties of the extreme Left and the Nazis of the Right (they were subsidized by Hitler's agents) were arming and preparing to fight it out in the streets, if necessary. Ulmanis declared that he was not sympathetic either to the Nazis or to the Socialists, who were for the abolition of large land holdings.

As soon as Ulmanis took the reins, on May 15, 1934, he and his Minister of War, General Janis Balodis, proclaimed a state of siege for six months, seized all the secret arsenals they could find, dissolved the Parliament, sent the deputies home and declared martial law. Hundreds of political arrests were made. All the Socialist members of the disbanded Parliament were thrown forthwith into jail.

In spite of such dictatorial methods, Ulmanis kept on insisting that he was not ushering in Fascism, but was forced to put an end to political freedom temporarily as a necessary expedient. He set himself up as agrarian leader in opposition to the urban Socialists of Riga. He pointed proudly to the absence of violence and bloodshed in the streets and said that he was using Fascist methods only temporarily in order to defeat a possible German dictatorship under Nazi control, or a proletarian tyranny desired by the urban group of Riga Socialists. Ulmanis set himself to increase the production of flax, butter and pork, to keep the money sound, to help the export trade, and to create state chambers of commerce, industry and labor.

THE Latvian dictator is now openly called Vadonios (Fuehrer or Duce), but his manner more closely resembles that of an American boss. He added the title of President to his others a few weeks ago when Koiesis, the incumbent, went out of office, but his breezy manner is still reminiscent of the Nebraska professor and he loves to tell American visitors about the year he drove a milk wagon to earn his tuition. In those days he longed to open a cheese factory and settle in Texas. He still keeps a pennant from his American university hanging on the wall of his office and tourists are prone to think him a trifle naive and easy-going. But Riga's prisons are jammed with his opposition.

The STRANGE HALF-WORLD BEHIND BARS

The Last Installment of Former Warden Holohan's Inside Story of San Quentin—World's Largest Prison.

This article concludes a series on intimate aspects of prison life by James Bernard Holohan, who retired April 15 after eight and a half years as warden of the California State penitentiary at San Quentin, the largest institution of its kind and, during part of his period in office, one of the most dangerously crowded.

Within the penitentiary walls he shows a strange half-world, physically side by side with the "normal" everyday world of free men and women, but, in every human element, incredibly remote. The unavoidable restrictions, the enforced contacts, the hope of freedom or certainty of doom or imminence of death, alike contribute to the other-world scheme of values and taboos that make up the "prison mind." In "My San Quentin Years," former Warden Holohan shows its workings—with the sure and authoritative touch of first-hand experience—in friendship and feud and in the dash for freedom, in crowded cell and swarming prison yard, in Condemned Row and even on the steps of the gallows.

By JAMES B. HOLOHAN

A LITTLE gray-haired woman came sobbing into my office after hours. She had scraped up enough money to buy a one-way railroad ticket. She had seen her son. But she had no money to pay her way home. I slipped a $10 bill into her pocket—and forgot all about it. Almost a year passed. Then one day a postal money order came to me from this little mother. It was for a dollar. And there was a letter saying the woman had a job. I wrote her to forget it. But she kept sending me money, a dollar at a time, until her debt was paid.

I never failed to wonder at the faith of these women — the mothers and wives. They suffer worse than the convicts do. There is the anxiety and shame of a loved one's arrest. Then he is dragged off to prison. They have to struggle to keep food on the table and a roof over their heads. The world has tumbled around their heads. Perhaps the home they were buying has to be sold to pay the costs of an attorney.

But they go on loving. . . .

The mothers would say to me:

"You know my boy, warden. He's the curly-haired little fellow handling raw jute down at the mill. Well, Jimmy had whooping cough till it like to kill him when he was only 4 and he's never been strong since and I'm worried about him. It's so dusty in the mill. Couldn't you put him out working in the garden and get him to take up reading and writing in your classes so he'll come out with some learning?"

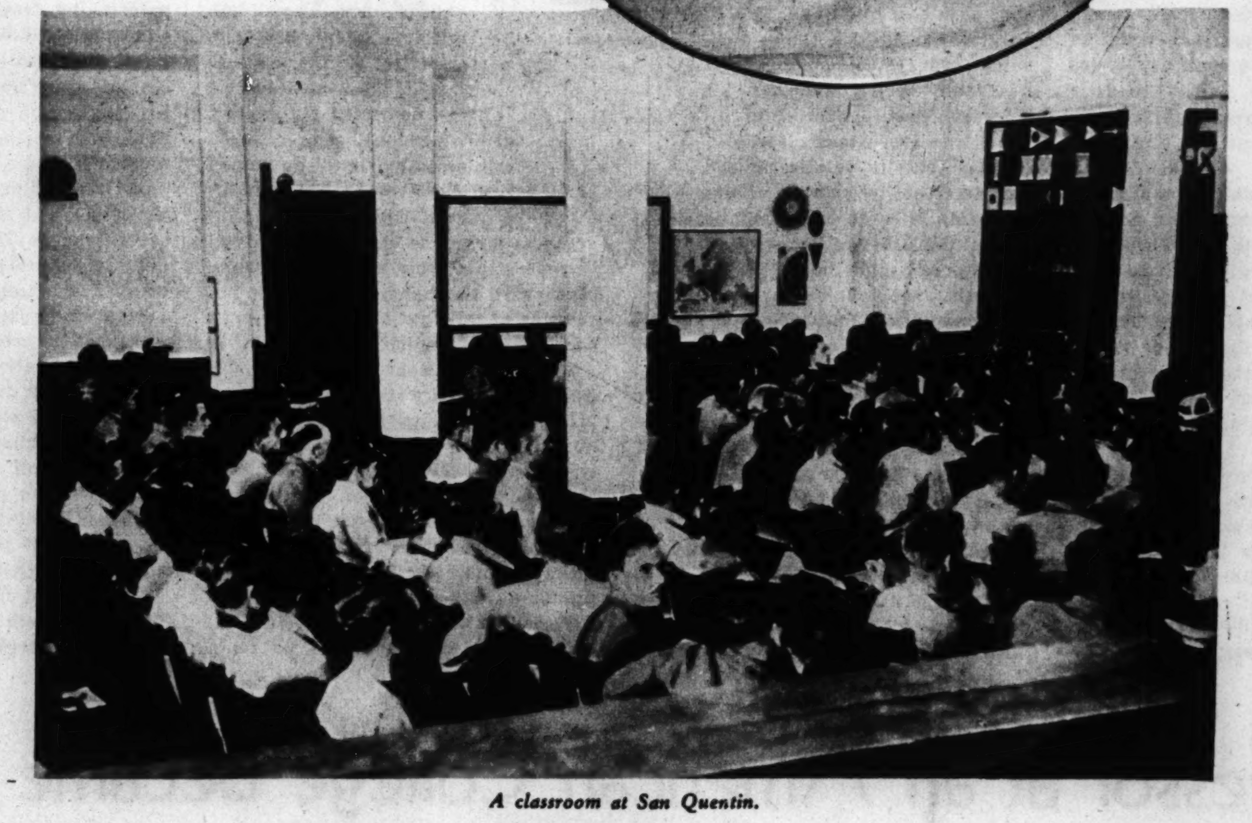
Know her boy! Merciful heavens, there are nearly 6000 men jammed elbow to elbow over there beyond the walls . . . young kids, hardened criminals, perverts, murderers!

No, little mother, I don't know your boy. And there isn't an awful lot I can do for him. Society has seen fit to send him down here, so that society can forget him. He's just one of 6000 now. But I'll try to look up your boy and get a line on his troubles.

San Quentin is so big, so disgracefully crowded. I used to have hundreds of individual cases stored away in my mind. But it's a super-human task for a warden to try to be more than a mere jailer to the 6000, all of whom have some relative, somebody who cares, outside.

Perhaps her boy can "get some learning." For they are going to school at San Quentin—they're playing baseball, publishing papers and magazines, debating with college orators, worshipping, enjoying good band music, reading, and learning and working at a hundred occupations.

Drop in San Quentin's new three-story Educational Building. There are some 2700 prisoners taking classroom courses, local correspondence and University of California Extension courses.



A classroom at San Quentin.

There are as brilliant men among the convicts as you'll find in university chairs and centers of culture to draw from to teach the classes. We didn't have to hire one outside teacher to get a chief of electrical instruction with a degree in electrical engineering from the University of Chicago, a mechanical engineer from Johns Hopkins University to teach mechanical drawing and machinery, nor a Ph.D. and Sc.D. from a German university to head the German language department.

Today about 85 inmates are teaching full time.

GOING to school isn't compulsory in the Big House. The youths who came in unable to speak or read English and with less than a third grade education, the sleek confidence man, the rum-soaked lad from Hollywood, the homeless robber, the middle-aged farm hand and the penned-up fellows who used to play hookey, each has to want to get ahead before he is signed up for instruction.

They may scoff at the idea at first, but they hear the old-timers saying, "That course is the real McCoy. Say, would you believe. . . ." And so, of their own choosing, they get into the finest rehabilitation-by-education system I've seen in any prison.

They can take up a vocation. Out of 165 courses offered inside the walls, there are mechanics, plumbing, carpentry, commercial art, a whole field of engineering—electrical, drafting, navigation, gas and Diesel engines, air conditioning, radio, mining, architecture. For hundreds of men, the courses stick to the fundamentals—reading, writing, arithmetic. If an alien convict is to be deported, he's taught to write his own language, and perhaps fitted to become a dairyman or gardener.

The men with intelligence quotients of 106 and up (professional and university mentalities) can and do improve themselves with academic studies.

Baseball is built to a great game in San Quentin. The prison's all-star team competes with crack nines from the outside once a month and every Sunday during the season with prison teams. Husky athletes get into a spirit of real sportsmanship in the intramural games. Years ago that wasn't the case. The convict team would sometimes throw a game for a few sacks of tobacco.

A few minutes after a big game is over, the inmate-edited and printed San Quentin Sports News comes out with an extra with the speed and efficiency of a metropolitan newspaper, despite the fact the type is hand set. A copy goes to every cell. It is a snappy, newsy little publication. The other convict publication is The Bulletin, a magazine always chock full of articles of high merit.

San Quentin has graduated some writers who have made national fame. Caged poets, short story writers and commentators get their opportunity for creative expression in The Bulletin.

Two high revels of the year are looked forward to by the inmates.

One is Field Day that comes on California's Admission Day. The prisoners' genius for acting, clowning, athletic stunting, track events and general hilarity breaks loose in a reign of fun that is good for our pent-up population. Female impersonators in this city without women. . . . "Miss Jute Mill" competing against "Miss Mess Hall."

The other occasion is the New Year's show when roars of laughs chase away the winter's scowls.

The San Quentin Military Band lifts a lot of fog from the spirits of the men in gray. A special orchestra group from the band plays in the main mess hall at every noon and evening meal.

AGAINST the monotonous shuffle of 5000 feet, the sounds of 5000 men eating in unison, there are the inspiring melodies from the orchestra. Like San Quentin's Garden Beautiful within the walls, a bit of music, a chance to improve the mind, an ocacsional entertainment or game can do more reforming than harsh treatment.

But one of the greatest wonder workers for rehabilitation of men that California has in its penal system is not inside the walls of San Quentin.

In a rocky canyon, under a hot sun, a hundred men are toiling. Bronzed muscles and faces lathered in perspiration, they are driving picks into the mountainside, bending their backs in tussles with great boulders, scooping up earth with steam shovels.

They are San Quentin convicts hewing a highway along the side of the Feather River Canyon.

At twilight they file into camp dead tired. They've worked hard. They drench themselves under showers, eat like starved men and then to sound sleep.

This may sound like the notorious chain gangs. But a job in a prison road camp is the most sought-after assignment San Quentin can bestow. Every day that I strolled into the midst of prisoners in the yard or in the industrial shops, several would step up and ask, "Warden, won't you consider me for road camp? I've tried hard to earn it."

The requirements are stiff to get out of a cell into a road crew. The prisoner has to be physically fit and near the end of his term. He has to have a prison conduct record that shows he can be trusted.

Then he is sent off far from settlements of free men and isolated to do, very likely, the first real hard work in his life.

Why should men beg for this chance?

The road camps take them into the real out-of-doors for the first time in one, three, five or more years. They no longer are jammed together like sardines. They are earning their way now by honest sweat—and more.

They are able to draw pay of around 35 cents a day, besides earning their own food, shelter, shoes and clothes. And for every two days they toil building a highway, they get one day taken off their prison term.

If the 35 cents a day net sounds like a trifle, you should see what the prison camp workers can do with it. Maybe they have dependents at home. At last they are able to send their wife and children a little money. They immediately are new men, as far as their morale is concerned. Or they can store up the earnings against the day when they will be paroled and instead of leaving the Big House with only the State's gift of $10 and a prison-made suit, they will have enough to take them to a job. Tremendous trifles.

The road camps are the finest outlet for reclaiming men from careers of crime that California has.

San Quentin now has about 570 prisoners in its five different road camps and Folsom about 125 more in one camp. Camps are all well away from centers of population.

The men don't have to be as closely guarded as in the prison. A sergeant and two or three guards keep tab in each camp. And in the two decades that California has been, year by year, bringing the road camps up to higher standards, only one per cent of the men have escaped.

The men curtail would-be escapers themselves, because for each break their collective pay is docked $200. The escaper usually takes his chance to walk away impulsively and is sorry for it before he's gotten very far. Of course it goes hard on him in the way of a longer term for making the try.

The men who get the benefit of work in the road camps make the best records upon being freed. The toil builds them up physically, and what it does to their self-respect and minds is remarkable. They are better prepared to go back to a hostile, suspicious world outside.

THE program is less than a third as big as it should be. At least 1000 men are in San Quentin who could and should be sent to road camps.

From the standpoint of the public, wanting to know how to check crime, I advise the road camp system as one excellent investment in salvaging human lives from ruin.

The toughest part of a prison term starts when a man leaves the Big House. Two men come out of the walled city that crime made — San Quentin. They are free—Jerry on parole and Herb discharged after serving his full term. They wear new suits made to their tastes in the prison tailor shop and each has $10 liberty money and a ticket—back to the county of his conviction—in his pocket. I walk down to the gate to see them off.

"Warden, you'll never see me back here," says Jerry. "I've learned my lesson, believe me. I'm going straight!"

"That goes for me, too," Herb says. "If they just won't hound me. . . ."

They breathe deeply the air of freedom; their eyes drink in the scene—the great San Francisco Bay, the new bridge spanning it, the rolling hills all around—and they blink, bewildered. Their voices are a bit husky, nervous as they say good-by. Jerry on parole Herb's five-year stretch over with. . . .

Will they make the grade or land back in crime and the penitentiary?

I emphasize that one is on parole the other fully discharged. The makes an enormous difference. The paroled man must have a bona fide job assured him on the outside in writing before he can be freed. Parole agents check up first-hand on the job and with the sheriff or police chief to find out whether the prospective employer is a man of character. That prevents a hard-pressed prisoner from being turned over to his former associates in crime on the outside. It goes part way toward preventing a grasping employer from taking advantage of a convict's need for a job to make him virtually an indentured slave.

We found one paroled man, for example, who had been hired as a truck driver at $7 a week and forced to sleep at night in the truck. The rapacious employer browbeat him into fear of complaining by saying: "You go squawking and I'll see you go back to the pen. It's better than the Big House, ain't it?"

The man going out on parole reports immediately to the State parole agent and is given the rigid rules he must follow to avoid being returned to prison. In California, he must report once every month to a parole officer, disclose what he is earning, saving, and generally how he is getting along. He can't quit his job without notice to the parole agent, nor leave the State without consent. He becomes a parole violator if he drinks liquor, enters a drinking place or drives an automobile.

NOW take Herb, who has had to serve every day of his term. The discharged man goes out of the Big House without a string attached. He probably does not have a job. (San Quentin now is imprisoning 400 men who have earned and been granted paroles, but can't use them because no one will give them jobs that pass muster.) So the man discharged has no parole officer dropping around to advise and surprise him; probably jobless, he finds it harder to keep from drifting back to underworld pals and the lure of money to be gotten at gun point.

Judge for yourself whether the prisoner who is penned up till his terms ends or the one who has the stabilizing, restraining influence of parole for one, two or three years is the better bet to stay out of future trouble.

Out of 1086 persons paroled in California after conviction for robbery in a period of 10 years, the State has found it necessary to return 110 to prison. Fifty-three of these were technical violators of parole, others had got into minor offenses and only 13 had been arrested for new felonies.

For every paroled man who returns to crime, nearly 19 others don't. The headlines blazen out the case of the paroled man who goes wrong. Another blast is fired against paroles. But the public never hears about the 19 who are making good in the uphill struggle to come back.

The parole board can't point out the ex-prisoner who got into a little business for himself, married and is bringing up a family. Even writing an inside story of San Quentin, I can't tell about men who made good. When they paid their debt to society, I wanted them to put their grim years of incarceration behind them, and lose themselves in normal living. When they'd write me, I would take my reply to a nearby city and mail it, so the letter would not bear the San Quentin postmark, to be seen by chance-prying eyes.

But the figures tell a different story about the men who are imprisoned the full length of their terms and then discharged outright. We found that 54 per cent of those were coming back to prison within five years!

Size up from this whether the parole system is the hit-and-miss affair you may have been led to believe. Some of the recidivists were men whose past records cut them off from a chance on parole; others couldn't qualify for a job on parole outside, and many, undoubtedly, were demoralized and ruined by being kept penned up too long. And, highly significant, they were cut loose upon a hostile society without any parole supervision.

I think every prisoner ought to be released on parole before he is finally discharged.

California, in common with many other states, has the indeterminate sentence law. A committing judge, instead of fixing a prisoner's term at an exact number of years, sentences him to serve a minimum to a maximum number of years in a State prison, according to the gravity placed by statutes on the crime.

The Board of Prison Terms and Paroles sets the definite term of punishment after studying all the circumstances, taking into account the penalties inflicted in lesser, similar or more aggravated offenses and the prisoner's conduct.

This is enlightened penology. The indeterminate law individualizes and equalizes punishment.

The man in gray comes before the parole board with great trepidation and hope crashing in his mind and nerves. I have seen big strong men go to pieces under the strain of personally pleading their cases. Beads of perspiration rolled down their faces, they gulped a drink of water when a glass was handed them, maybe tears welled up in their eyes against their will. It's a tense time for them. The parole directors are asking questions that unmask them to the core.

The minute the board gets an inkling that a prisoner or his family is being bled for money on the claim leniency will be procured, the intended victim is called in. "What did this person tell you he could do for you?"

Usually we're up against a stone wall in getting evidence that would send the outside racketeer to prison. But we tell the prisoner, "You don't need a drag to get what's coming to you, and you don't need a lawyer or a politician. Money won't buy you out of prison."

An old convict gardener doffed his scissor-bill cap and handed me a letter before I left San Quentin.

"Twenty solid years I have served behind the walls of San Quentin," his letter said. "I have had the best kind of record, which didn't seem to do me any good.

"DURING these 7297 days I have eaten 21,891 meals of beans, 2968 meals of jute balls." He certainly had it added up to the dot. "Jut balls," you may recall, is con slang for hamburger meat balls. He continued:

"During this time, 1000 rations of sugar and 1452 packages of tobacco were put in my cell. In my time exactly 29,227 'fish' (new prisoners) have passed through the prison and still I am here—No. ——."

This man blotted out life in a love triangle, two decades ago. Forgotten now, he is more than 70 years old, an affable trusty and he does have a parole that he could use if somebody would give him a job.

But much hardier and younger men have had to stay cooped up for months and years after they earned parole because they couldn't obtain the requisite bona fide employment outside. There were 277 men who gained paroles but, jobless, had to serve to the end of their terms last year. That's one reason for overstuffed prisons.

San Quentin, instead of being the world's biggest Big House, should have less than half as many prisoners as now. Certain more enlightened methods of combating crime can rid it of its excess population.

Twenty-five hundred men ought to be the limit in any penitentiary and under any one warden. I am not proud that I had to imprison 6389 felons at one time. I am sorry for my native State that it has drifted into a tragic mistake in its prison system.

Attorney-General Homer S. Cummings made the rounds of inspection of San Quentin with me in August, 1934, and back in Washington a few months later used San Quentin as an example of critical overcrowding in the nation's prisons. Of San Quentin he said, "It was one of the most depressing sights I ever saw."

As a one-time apple grower, I learned how important it was to keep the bad apples from rotting the good apples. A small percentage of convicts are inherently criminal, crooks or killers by nature. But most of them are products of poor environments; undisciplined, they came from broken homes, poor, weak, spineless mortals, to a certain extent, yet with possibilities of being made useful citizens.

They are sent to penitentiaries to be punished, yes, but to be put on the right track—not ruined. Yet the rotten apples are tossed haphazardly in with the good. There is slight individualizing of prisoners and segregation of the better from the hopeless.

A five-fold prison system, as I visualize it, would put California, and about 40 other states that are equally in an inexcusable fix about handling their bad men, on the right track. Instead of two Big Houses for California's men convicts and an inadequate road camp program, I favor:

FIRST—A prison farm or farms for youthful first offenders who are not serious problems, and who could and should work out-of-doors in health and character building toil that will produce a return for the state. To the farm or farms should be graduated prisoners from San Quentin.

SECOND—San Quentin, limited to 2500 inmates, should be used as a receiving institution for the general run of felons with decidedly more emphasis than now on segregation and constructive employment.

THIRD—Folsom should be the State's maximum security prison for dangerous criminals and others serving long terms.

FOURTH—A new institution within prison walls should be provided for the criminally insane and feeble-minded, this to be in one sense a mental hospital, but with maximum security to prevent maniacal killers or degenerate fiends from breaking loose upon society.

FIFTH—The prison road camps should be doubled or tripled in the number of men they are rehabilitating.

Segregation can be carried too far. I found that out as warden. Often I observed older convicts exerting a good influence instead of bad on young first offenders. Untamed youth will take a chance, defy restraint, plot wild crimes.

The prisoner finishing a long stretch in the Big House has taken on a philosophy of imprisonment and has found out the things that didn't pay him. "Take it easy, son," he'll counsel a hare-brained youngster. He can do more good than the khaki-uniformed guards. "You're making a bad mistake thinking that way," he'll say off-hand. "It'll bring you nothing but trouble. I found out. . . ."

So the prison farm could use the stabilizing influence of older inmates. That is why I suggest that the cream of San Quentin be graduated, before parole or discharge, to the prison farm.

Judges often have asked me about sentencing youths to San Quentin.

"I wouldn't commit a man to prison for the first time unless it was absolutely necessary," I would advise them. "Once they are sent to San Quentin, they get the pen brand on them. They are sentenced for life to try overcoming that stigma and handicap. Unthinkingly heartless people will throw it at them the rest of their lives."

Yet when the home, the church, the schools, the reformatories and the jails have failed, the lawbreaker must be condemned to the hell called prison. Then let the courts be done with their job quickly!

THE law's delays are meat to the criminal and to his overly technical attorney. Court cases drag and drag through postponements, demurrers, continuances until the crime is forgotten and the final sentence, if any, loses its deterrent effect.

Harsh sentences do not have a fraction of the effect that swiftness and certainty of justice have. Prison terms that are too long overdo themselves by demoralizing and wrecking men.

. . . And I say good-by to the Big House with these dreams of what the people, once awakened to the right and the wrong things about our methods of treating convicts, can accomplish.

When the Chinese Fought With Bows

ners and riflemen, interested in results rather than effects, practically annihilated them.

White flags appeared on the walls of Ping-yang, but it soon became apparent that the Chinese merely wanted to gain time. When darkness fell, they began fleeing from the city, only to fall by hundreds before the fire of Japanese outside. One group of defenders held out until about 1 o'clock in the morning, when the Japanese scaled the walls and drove them out of their position. James Creelman, a war correspondent, has reported that 30 Japanese correspondents, armed with big swords, entered the city with the first of their soldiers and helped overcome the remnants of the garrison.

Two thousands Chinese and 162 Japanese were killed at Ping-yang. The defeat of the Chinese forced them to evacuate Korea, retreating beyond the Yalu River. It foreshadowed the outcome of the war.

Two days later the Japanese fleet, under Admiral Ito, defeated a Chinese squadron of about equal strength, under Admiral Ting, at the battle of Hai-Yang Island. Superior tactics won for the Japanese. It should be recorded that on paper the Chinese navy was superior to the Japanese, and the Chinese naval personnel had much better fighting qualities than the Chinese army.

The Japanese crossed the Yalu into Manchuria and swept on to Port Arthur, capturing Chin-chow and Ta-lien Bay on the way. Marshal Oyama was now in command of the invaders and one of his leaders was the grim, one-eyed General Yamaji, who, as a school boy, had plucked out one of his own eyes to prove his fearlessness. On November 21 the Japanese captured Port Arthur with but small loss of life to themselves, the demoralized Chinese abandoning almost without a struggle positions which could have been defended for weeks by resolute garrisons. The victory was dimmed in Western eyes by the slaughter of inhabitants which the Japanese perpetrated after they got into the city. Creelman said they "killed everything they saw."

IT WAS their only notable departure during the conflict from the practices of civilized warfare. In their defense it could be said that they found in Port Arthur the earless, noseless heads of comrades who had been tortured and slain, and that on the retreat from Ping-yang Chinese had invaded their hospitals and killed their wounded. It may be, too, that many of the "merchants" they killed had been soldiers an hour before.

After several other engagements in Manchuria, the Japanese in a combined naval and land battle captured the port of Wei-hai-wei in Shantung province. In this operation they also destroyed part and captured the rest of the Chinese fleet. After the capitulation, Admiral Ting, who had fought gallantly, committed suicide, as did several subordinates.

This action virtually ended the war. After a few more Japanese successes, China sued for peace and the venerable Li-hung-chang acted as its representative in arranging terms. The terms provided that Japan should receive the island of Formosa, the Pescadores Islands, the Liao-tung Peninsula, which included Port Arthur, and an indemnity of 200,000,000 taels. Because of pressure from several European Powers, Japan relinquished the peninsula, in exchange for an additional 20,000,000 taels. It had become a force to be reckoned with. China, after a brief rousing, drowsed on again with an antique military establishment until the days of the Republic.

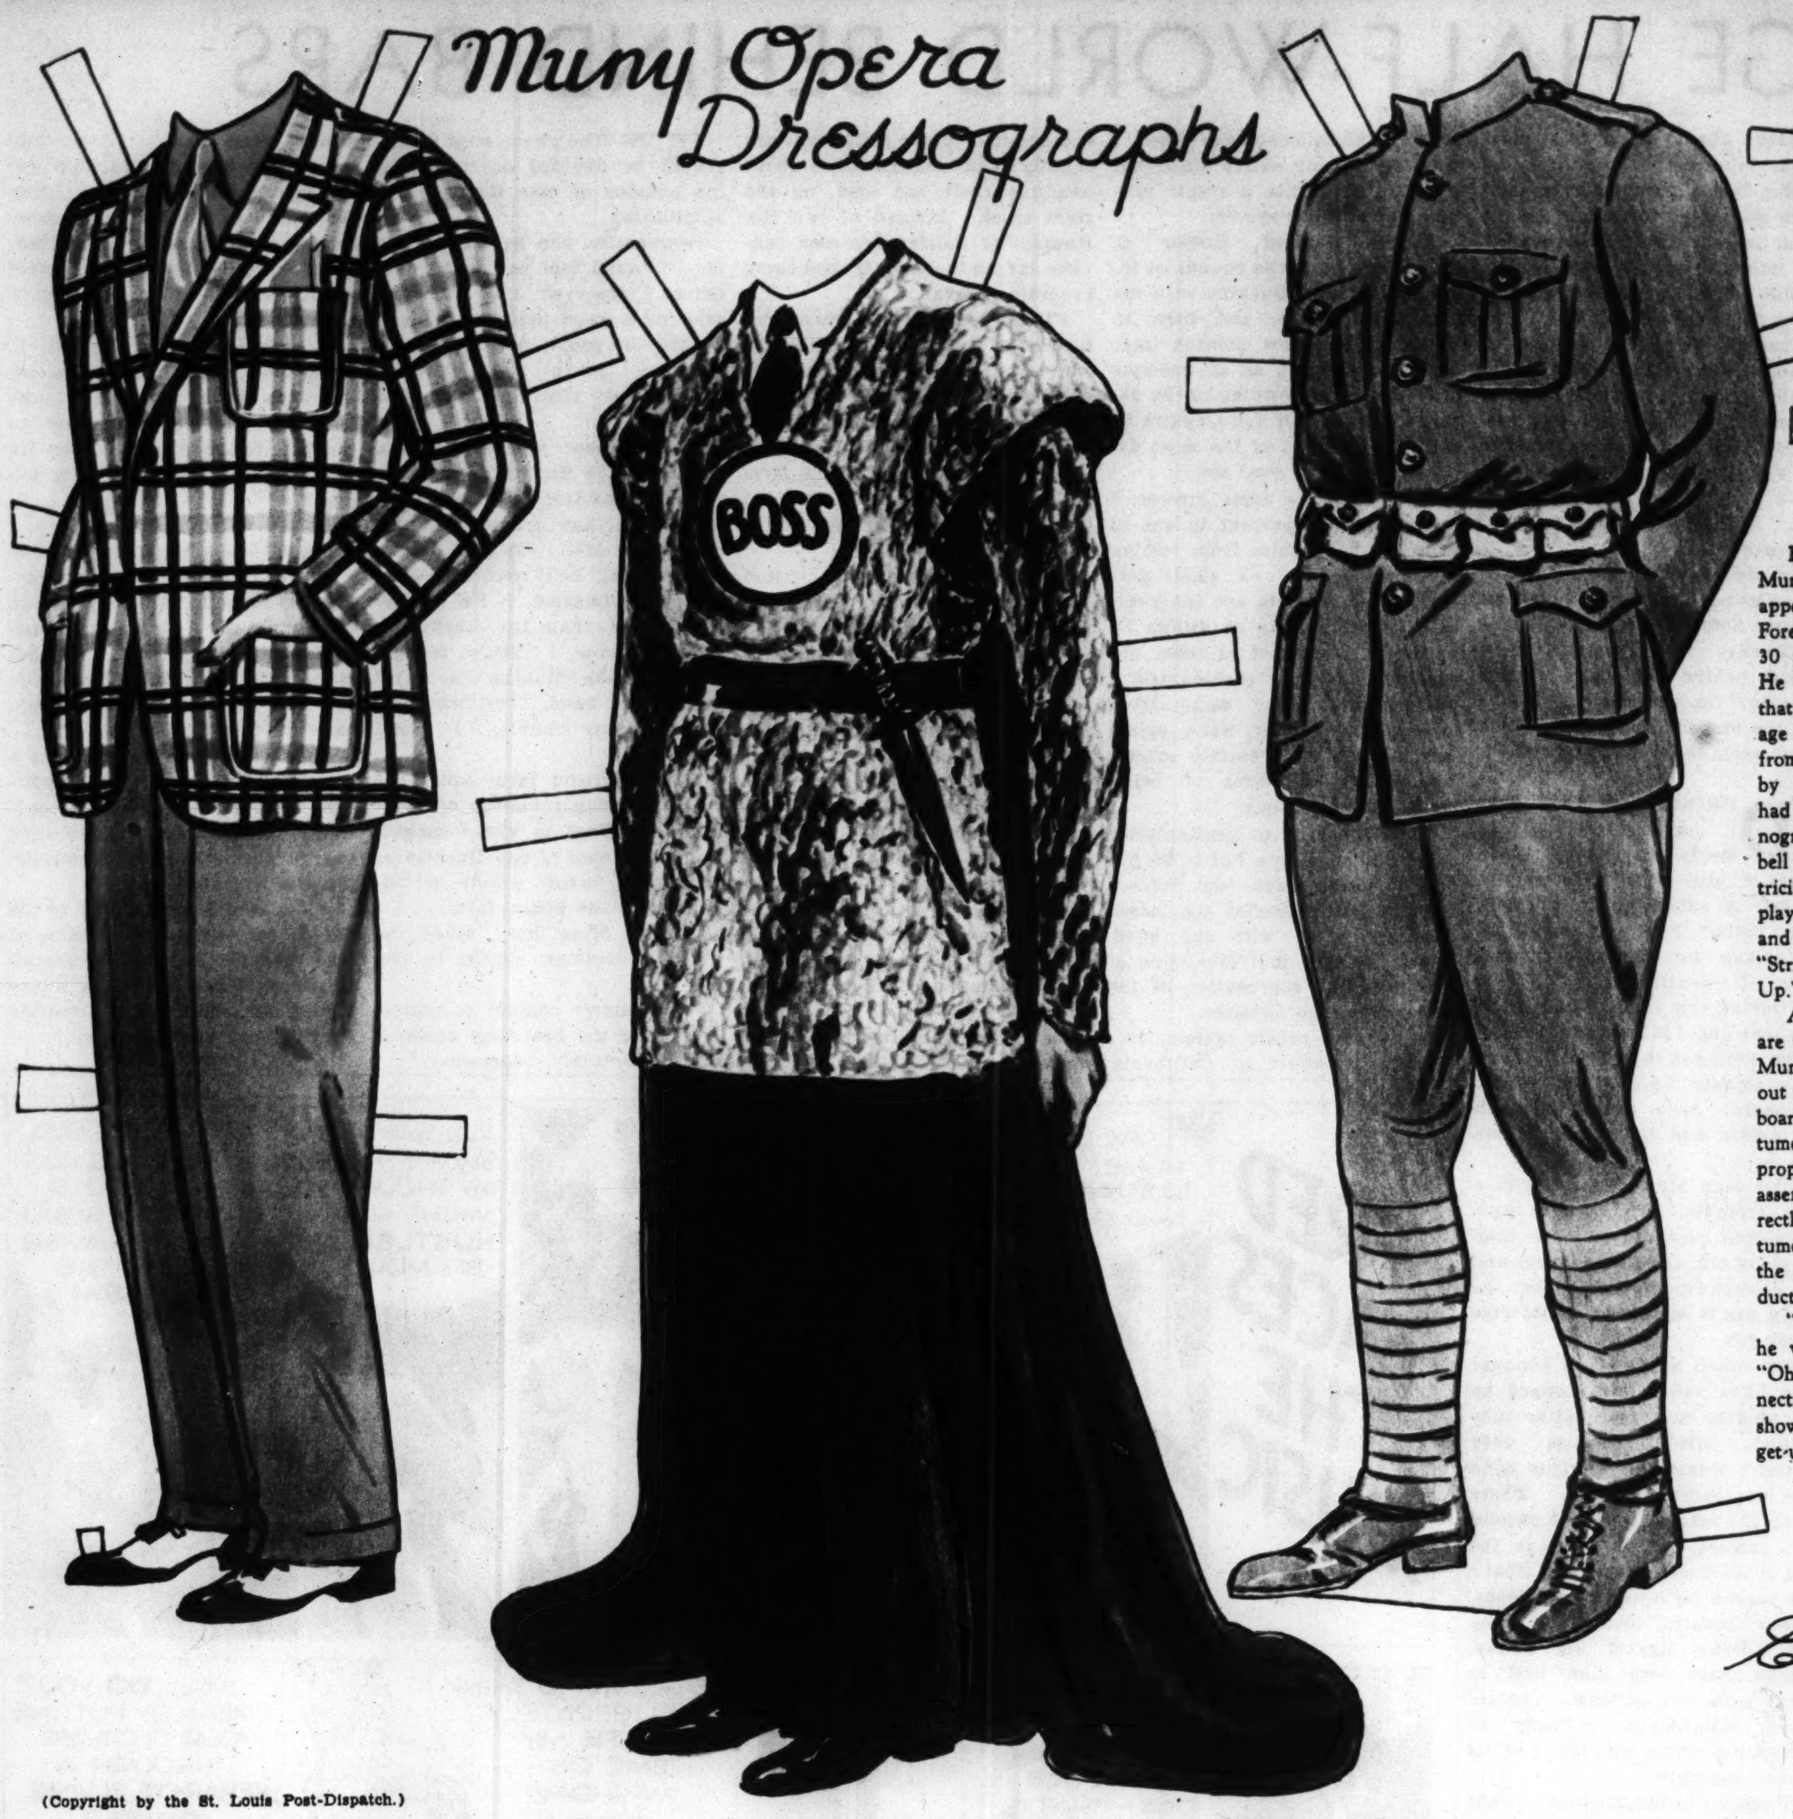
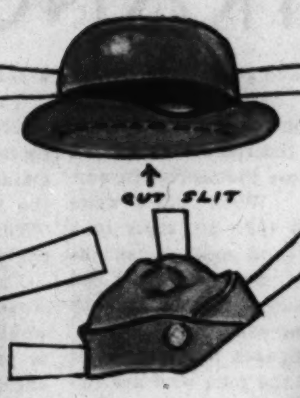
Muny Opera Dressographs





EDDIE GARR, one of the Municipal Opera stars who will appear in this space during the Forest Park season, was born 30 years ago in Philadelphia. He gave the first indication that he was stage bound at the age of 7, when he got a laugh from adult visitors at his home by mimicking stage stars he had heard by way of the phonograph. Later he worked as bell boy, hotel clerk and electrician. The first hit show he played in was "Hit the Deck," and that was followed by "Strike Me Pink" and "Thumbs Up."

Accompanying Mr. Garr are three costumes he wears in Municipal Opera shows. Cut out the star and paste on cardboard. Then cut out the costumes. Now dress him in his proper outfits, being careful to assemble each costume correctly. The three types of costumes shown here are worn by the actor in the following productions:

"Sons o' Guns," in which he wears a soldier's uniform; "Oh, Boy," and "A Connecticut Yankee," and in this show he wears a very peculiar get-up.

THE CHARACTERS

BUNGALOW BEN—A happy old turtle.

WALLY WADLER—A delighted duck.

BUZZ AND HUM—Two gossipy little bugs.

GRUMPY—An ill tempered old bear, who is the Mayor of Hickory Hollow.

Poor Jittery John. He doesn't know what danger he's in. In other words, he doesn't know that he has been nominated to run against Grumpy in the coming election for Mayor of Hickory Hollow. Now in any other community a nomination of this kind would be considered an honor. But in the Hollow things are different because Grumpy threatens to beat up anyone who dares to run against him. Everyone but little Jittery knew this and attended the convention that was to select Grumpy's rival. So they had to nominate someone who wasn't there. And that someone was the absent mouse. And we see him, unaware of his political importance, talking to Buzz and Hum as

THE PLAY BEGINS

BUZZ—Did you hear who they nominated at the convention the other day?

JITTERY JOHN—No, I didn't. I didn't even know there was a convention. I don't take any interest in politics.

HUM—I feel sorry for whoever was nominated, because Grumpy said he was going to hit him on top of the head and run him out of town.

JITTERY JOHN—Gosh, what a headache he's going to have. I'm sure glad it isn't me. (They talk a little longer and when Buzz and Hum leave, Jittery digs his spikes in a wheat stalk and climbs to the top to collect some of the precious grain.)

JITTERY JOHN—Politics is for those who like it, says I. Ha! Ha! (He hears someone walking and looks to see who it is.) Well, here comes Bungalow Ben and Wally Waddler. I wonder what they want? (He climbs down and greets Bungalow and Wally.)

BUNGALOW BEN—(With an air of importance.) Wally and I are on the committee that is to notify you that you are nominated to run for the great office of Mayor. (Bungalow gets no farther, because, when Jittery hears this he leaps into his wagon and drives rapidly away.)

BUNGALOW BEN—(Surprised.) Gosh, he must have heard about Grumpy's threats. Well, we can't tell the papers that our candidate ran out on us. Hm-m-m. (And Grumpy, reading the paper the next day, has a big surprise.)

GRUMPY—(Reading.) "Jittery John, candidate for Mayor, has left town for a much needed rest." That's a lie. That mouse told that to the the papers to make everyone think he is a hard worker. Wait until I catch him. Gr-r-r.

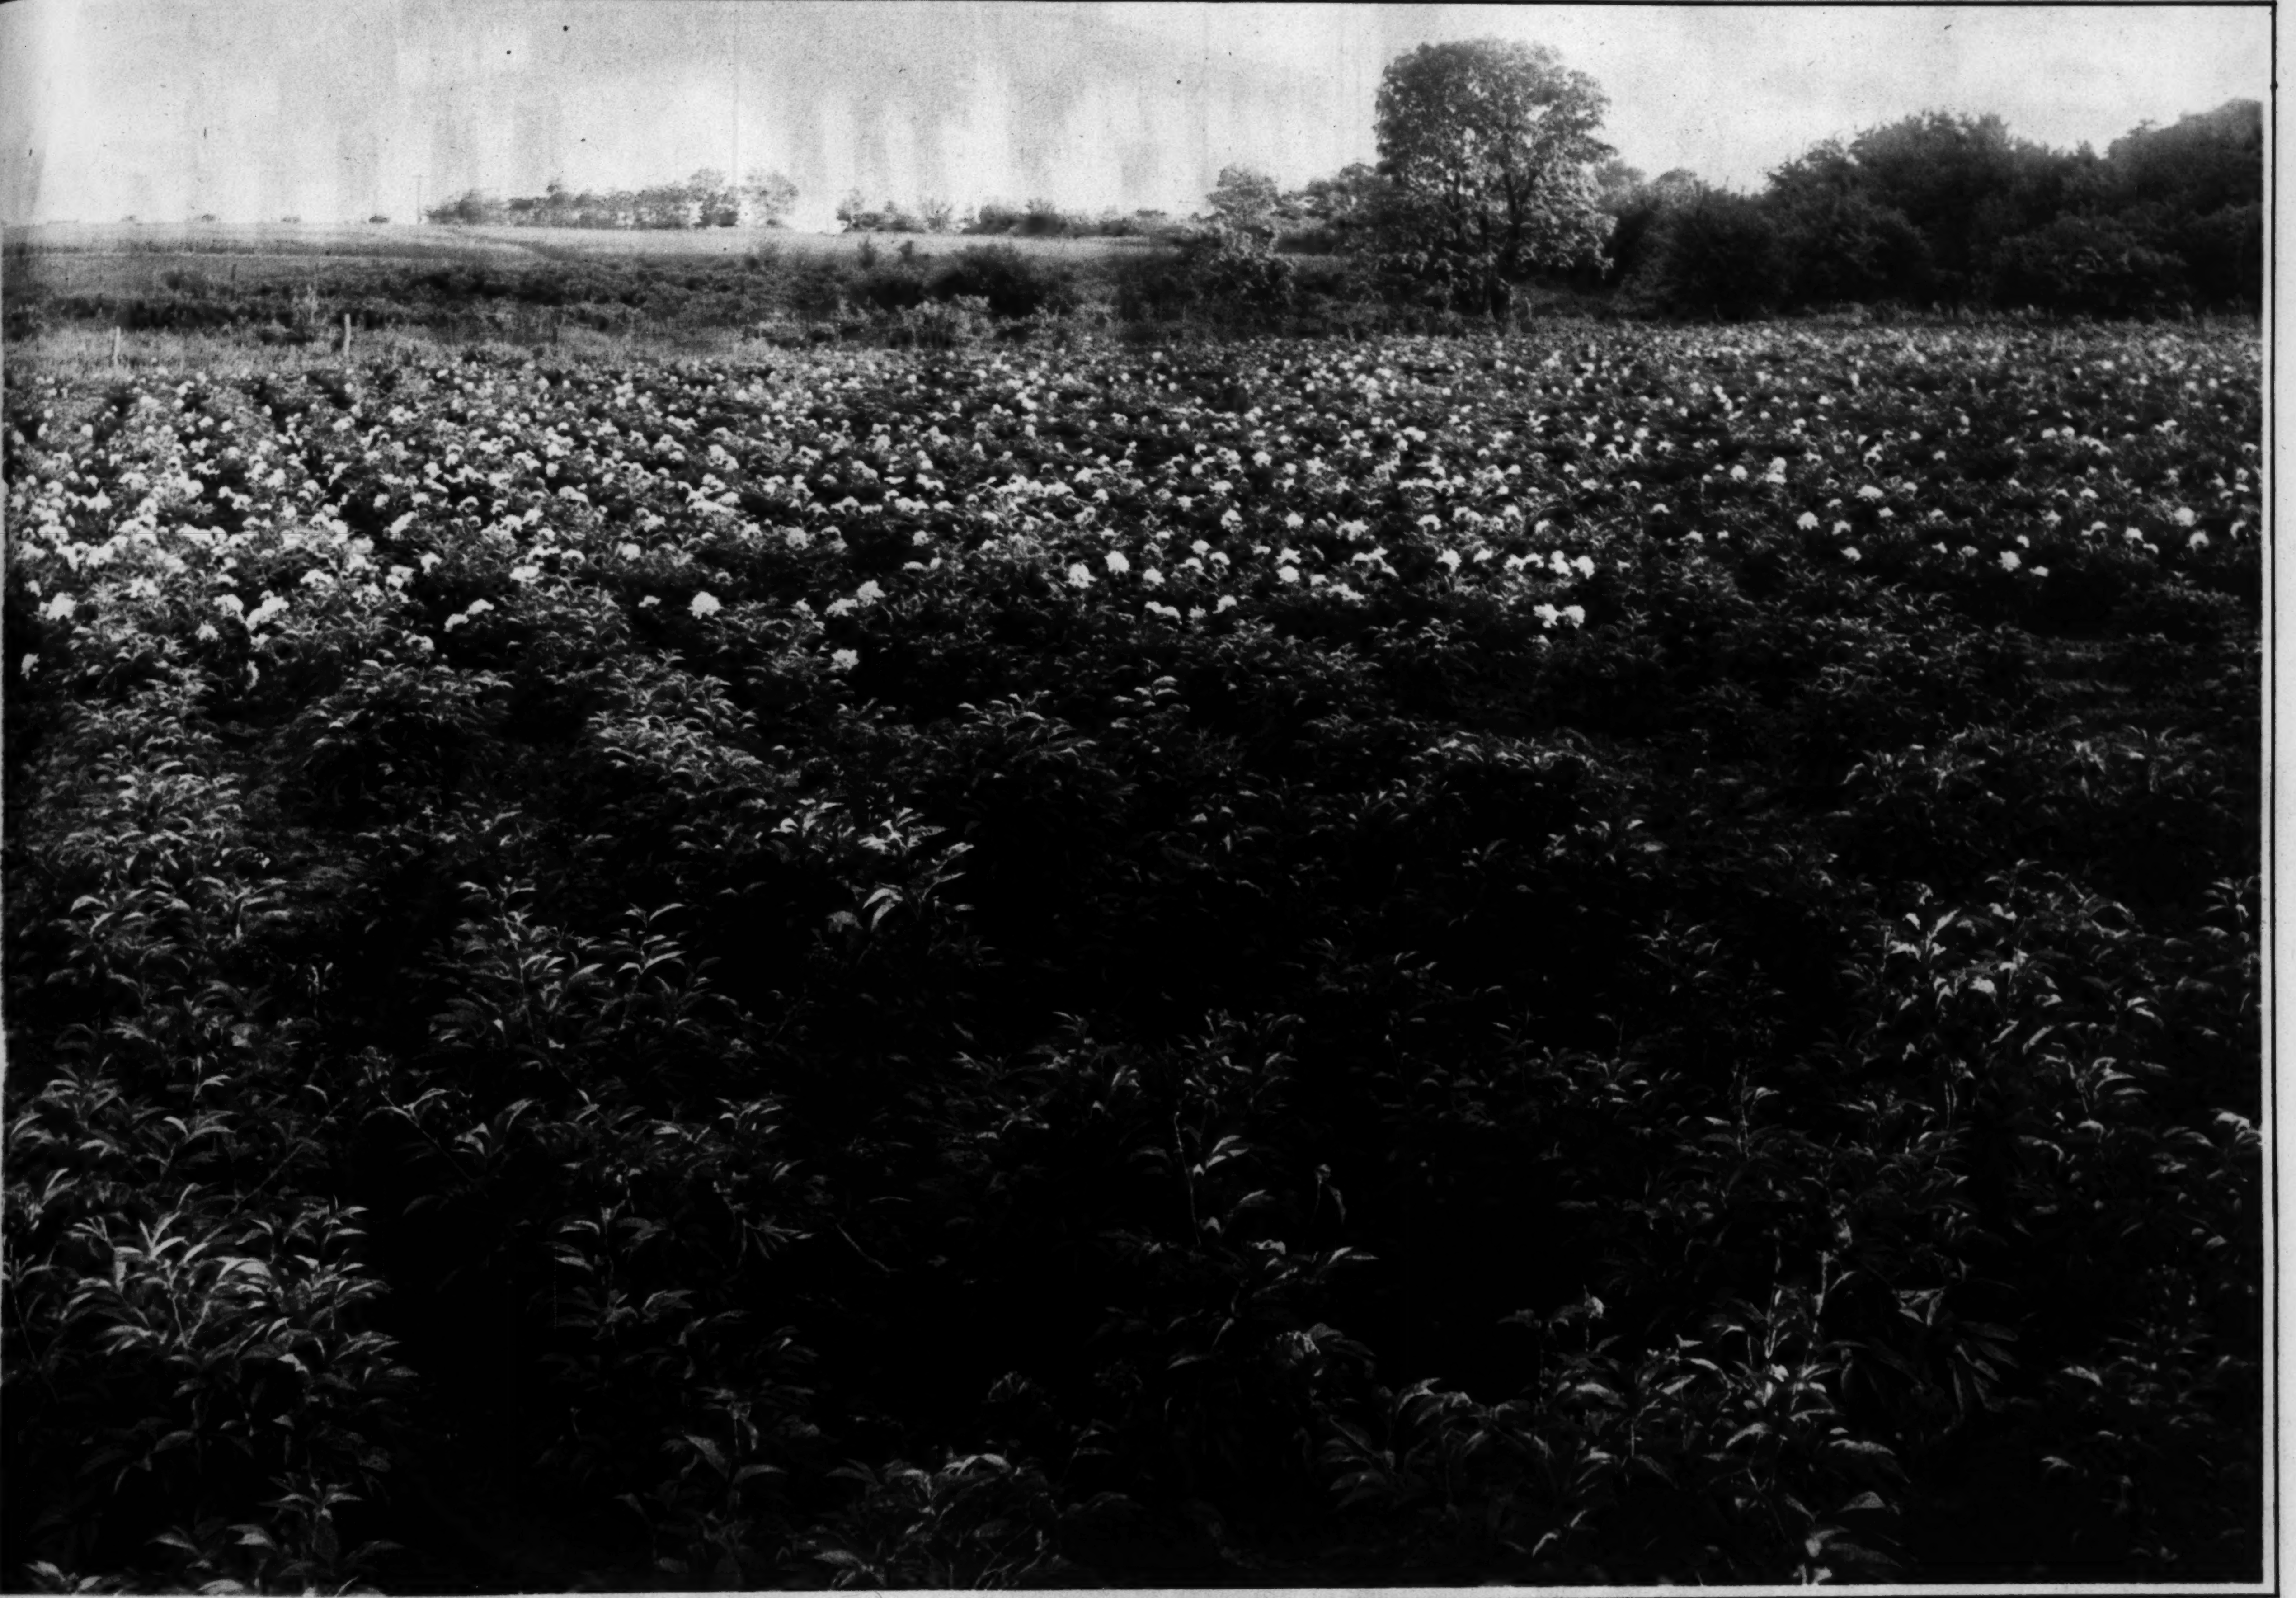
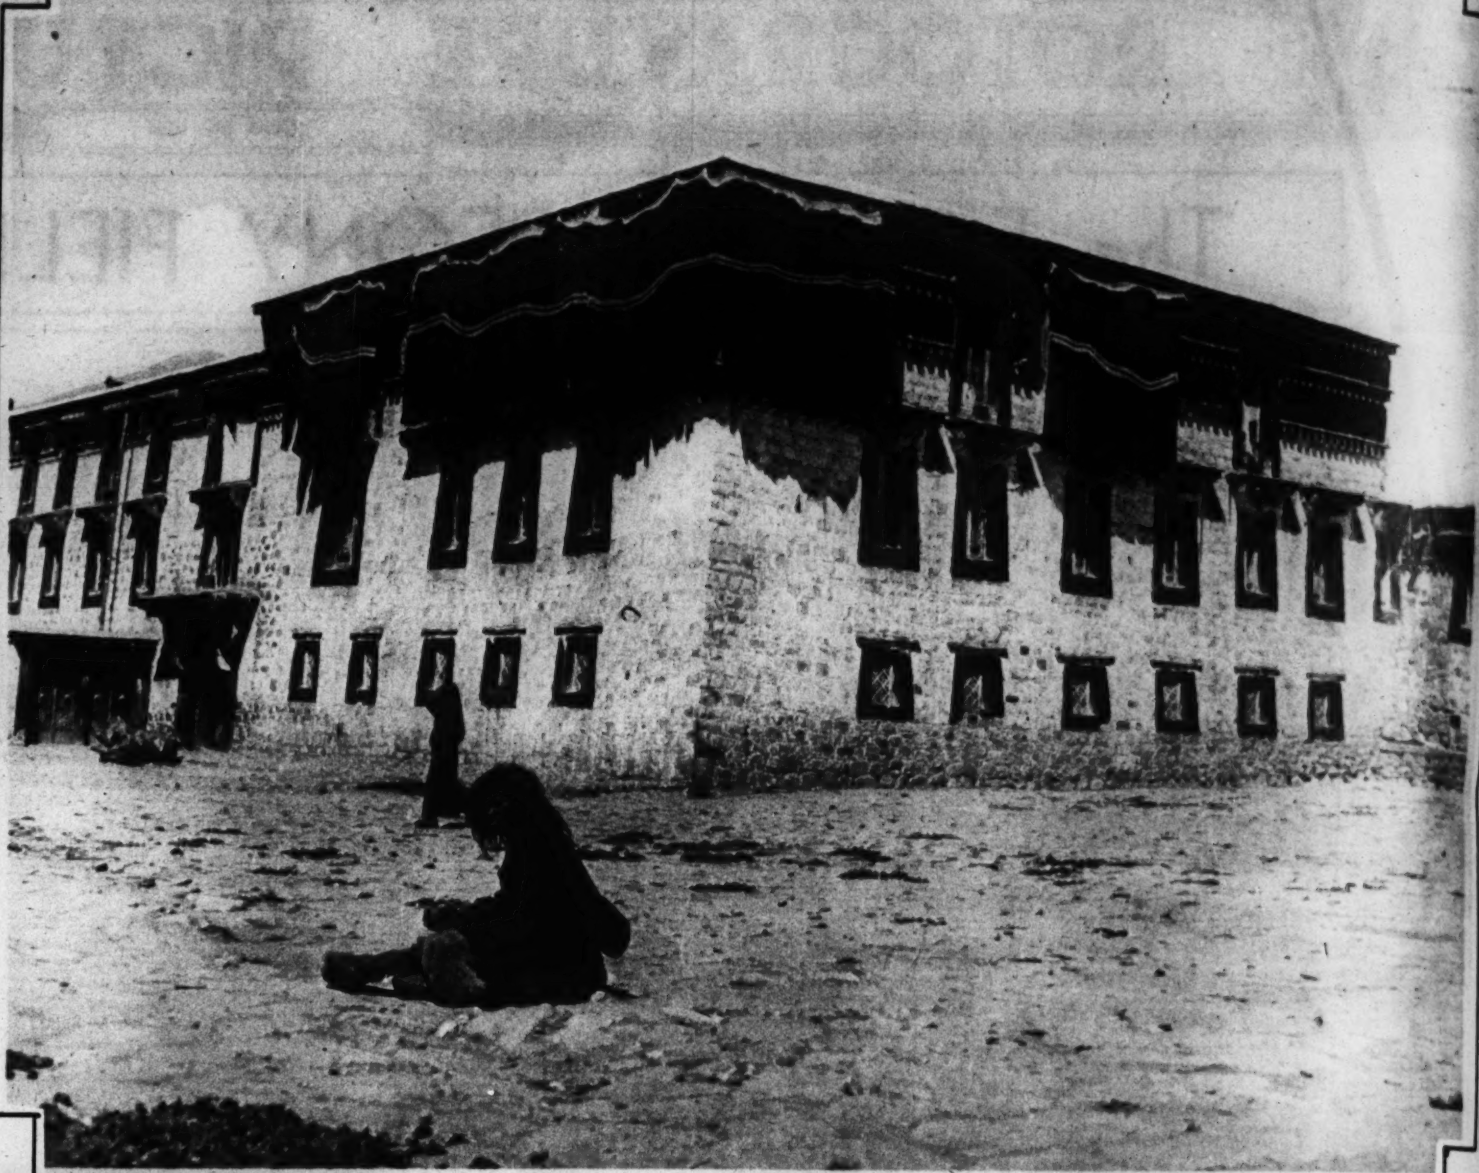
The FAMOUS PEONY FIELDS at SARCOXIE



Peonies in bloom near Sarcoxie, east of Joplin in Jasper County, Mo., a high rolling country that glows each season in mile after mile of fields like this. They are cultivated with one-horse plows drawn by animals accustomed to avoid stepping on the closely planted rows. Buds are cut while yet firm and refrigerated for shipment, sometimes months later, to florists throughout the United States. Below, at left, Miss Dorothy Mae Green gathers some full-blown flowers; at right, a few of the popular varieties—Felix Crousse, Edulis superba, Festiva maxima, Francois Ortegat, Karl Rosenfield, La Perle and Lillian Wild—photographed in color by Clint Murphy of the Post-Dispatch.

BORN IN "PRISON"—A large colony at Bolshevo, near Moscow, houses 3200 Soviet criminals. The convicts have built a complete city there. Not only does it have electric lights, factories, six-story apartment houses, running water, work shops and a stadium, but the prisoners have been given nurseries, kindergartens and schools for their children, three of whom are shown here. The aim is to eliminate all possibility of a return to crime.



AFTERNOON IN THE FORBIDDEN CITY—A street scene in Lhasa one of the two capitals of Tibet. The private house shown here is considerably more pretentious than it is typical.

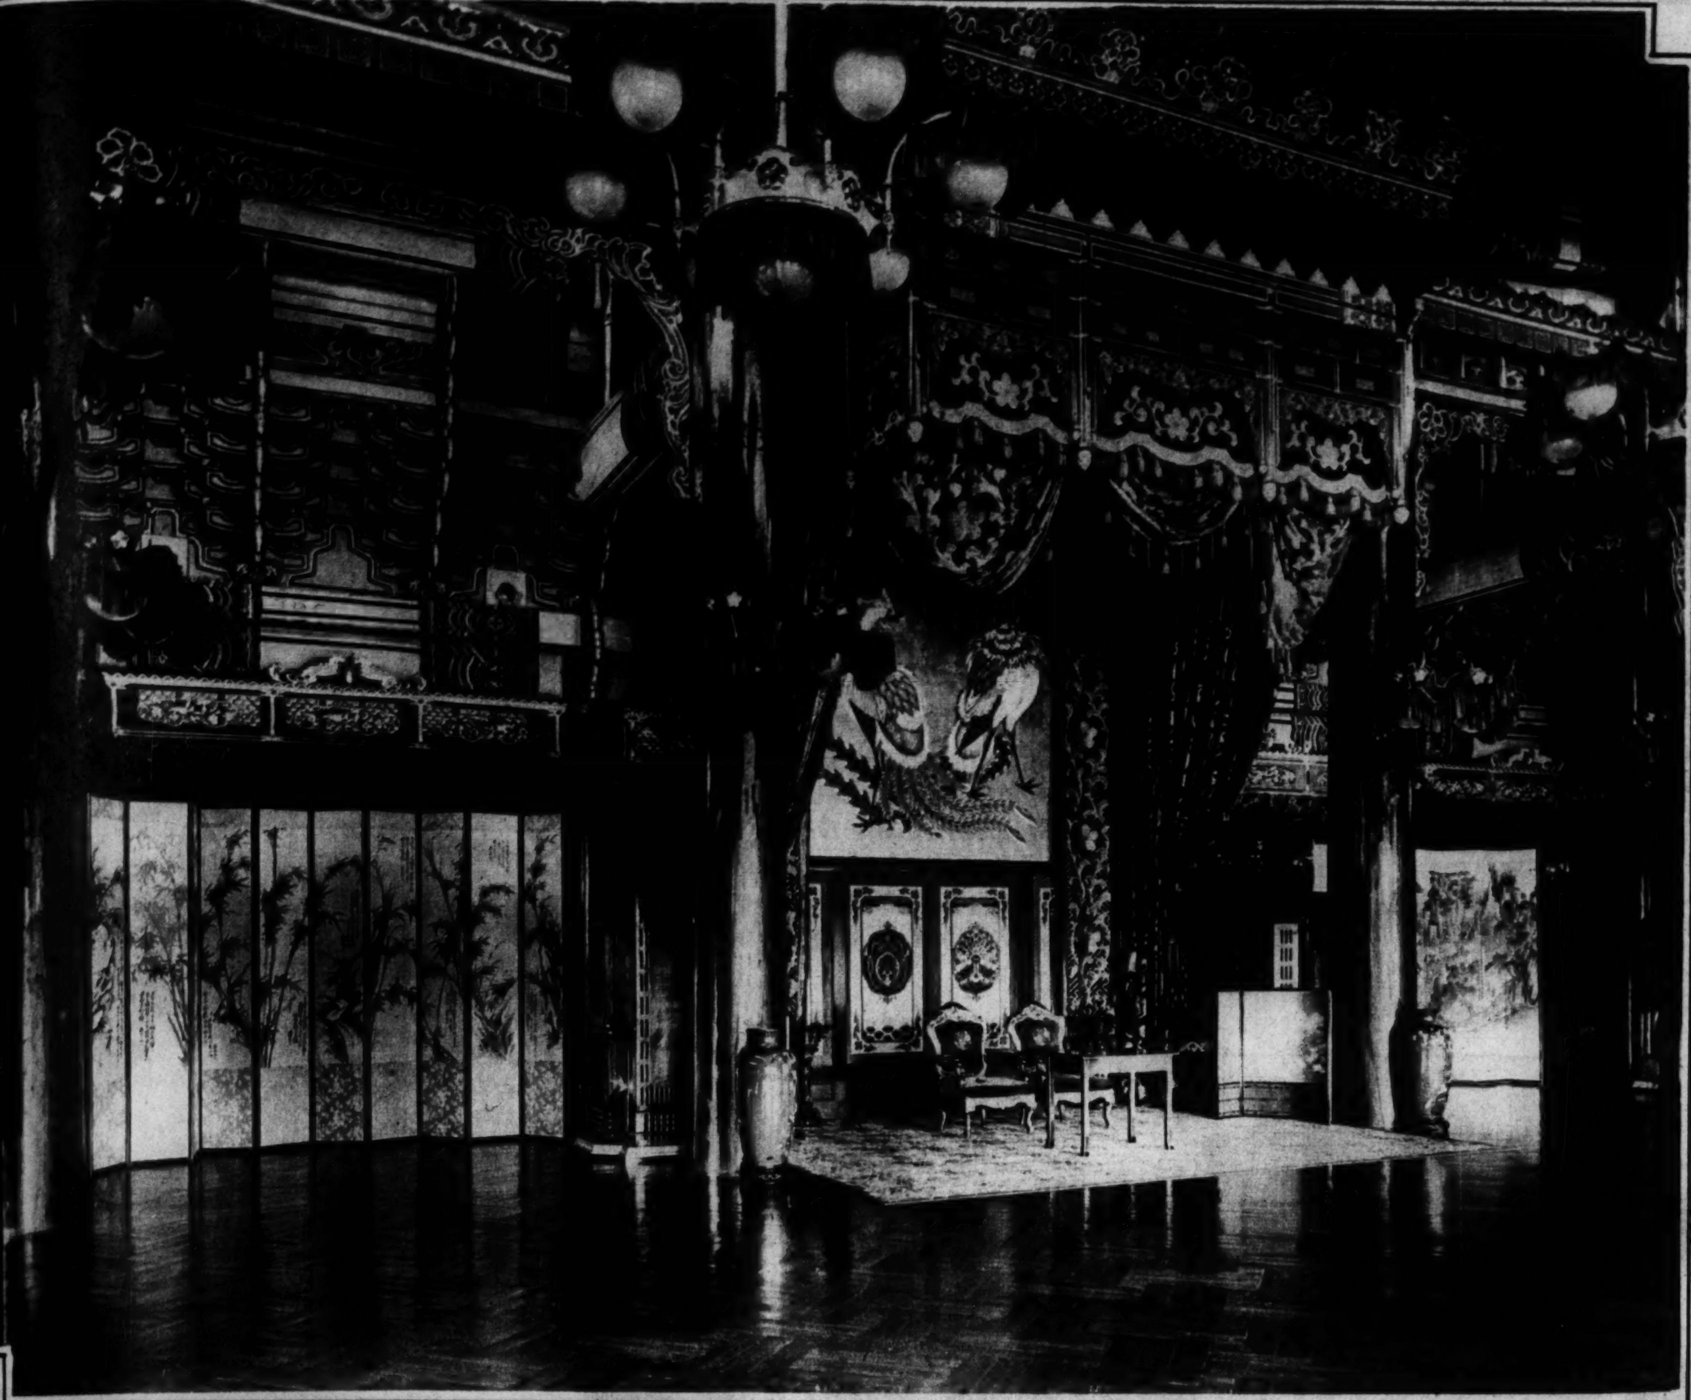
Lawrence—for the same reasons which prompted them to accept English aid in their revolt against the Turks. The girl is cited as "an example of the settlers against whom the Palestine Arabs complain."



RELIC OF BETTER TIMES—The rarely photographed throne room of East Palace in Seoul (now Keijo) is filled with priceless art treasures. When Japan usurped the government of Korea in 1910 the palace was spared the gangster tactics accorded the populace in general, which previously boasted high culture. Korea invented printing and taught the Japanese to write.

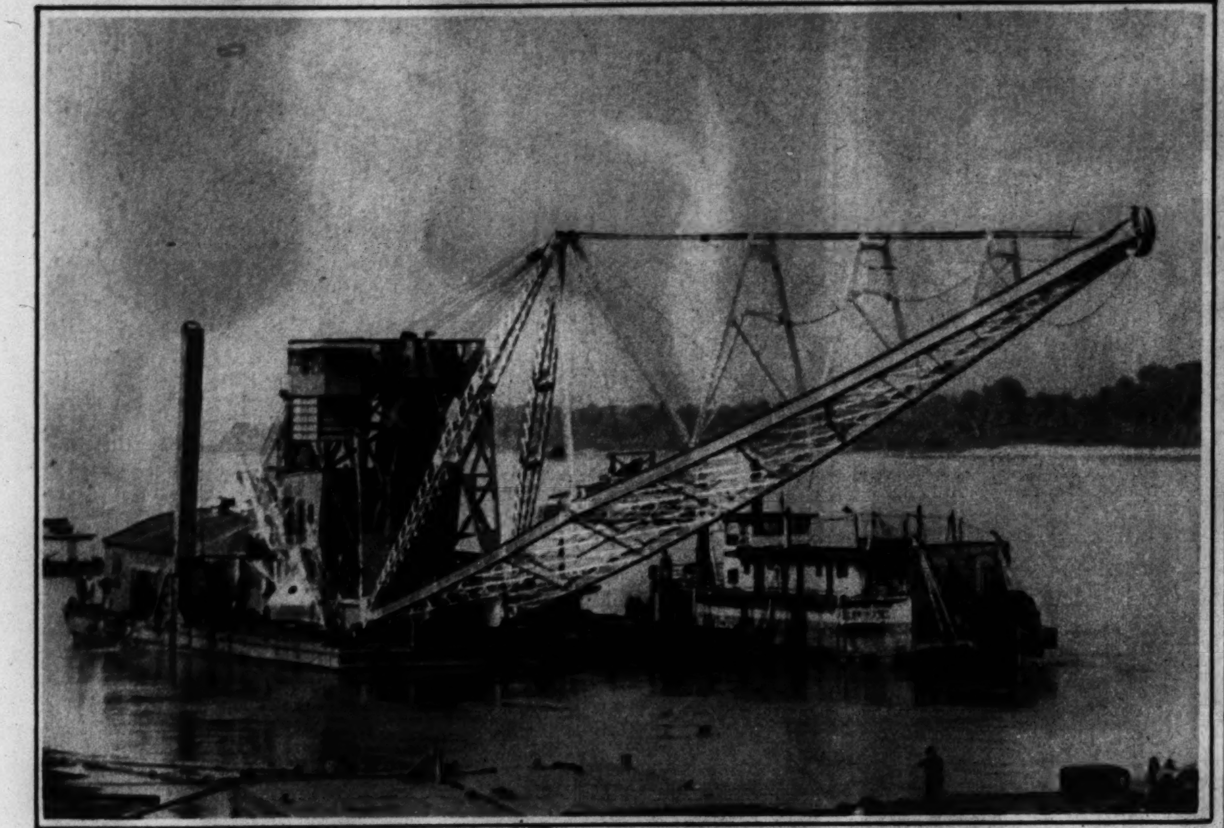
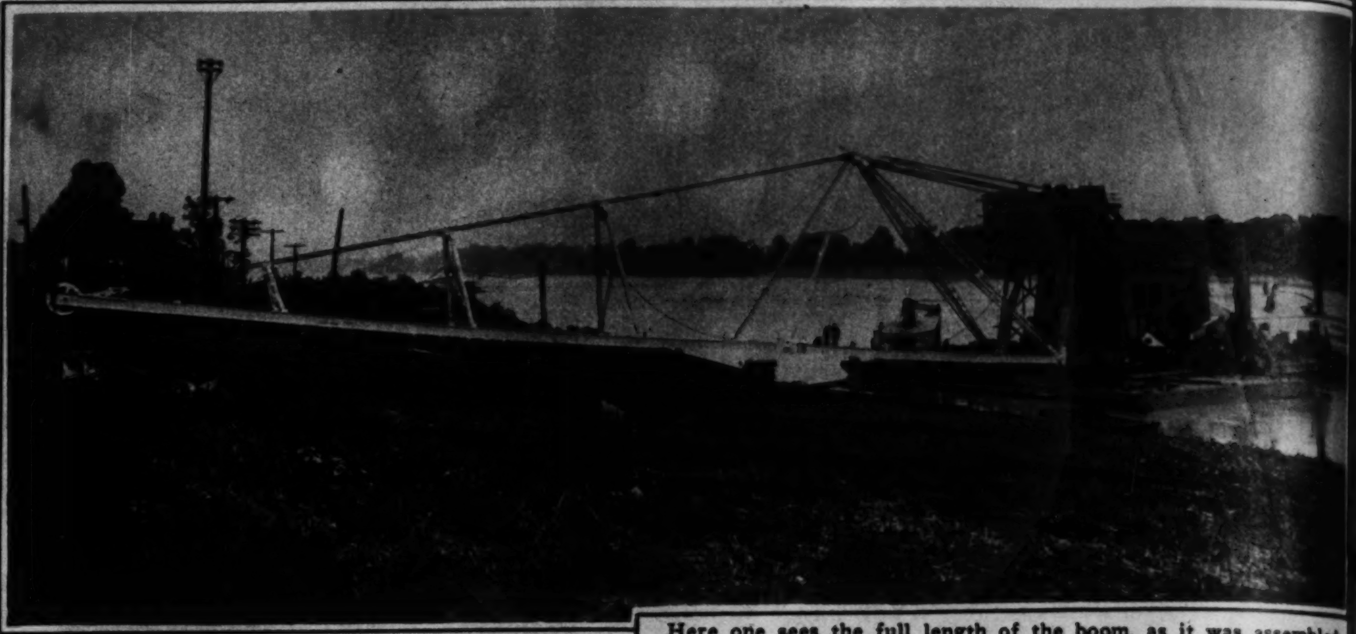
A Big New Boom for Old Man River

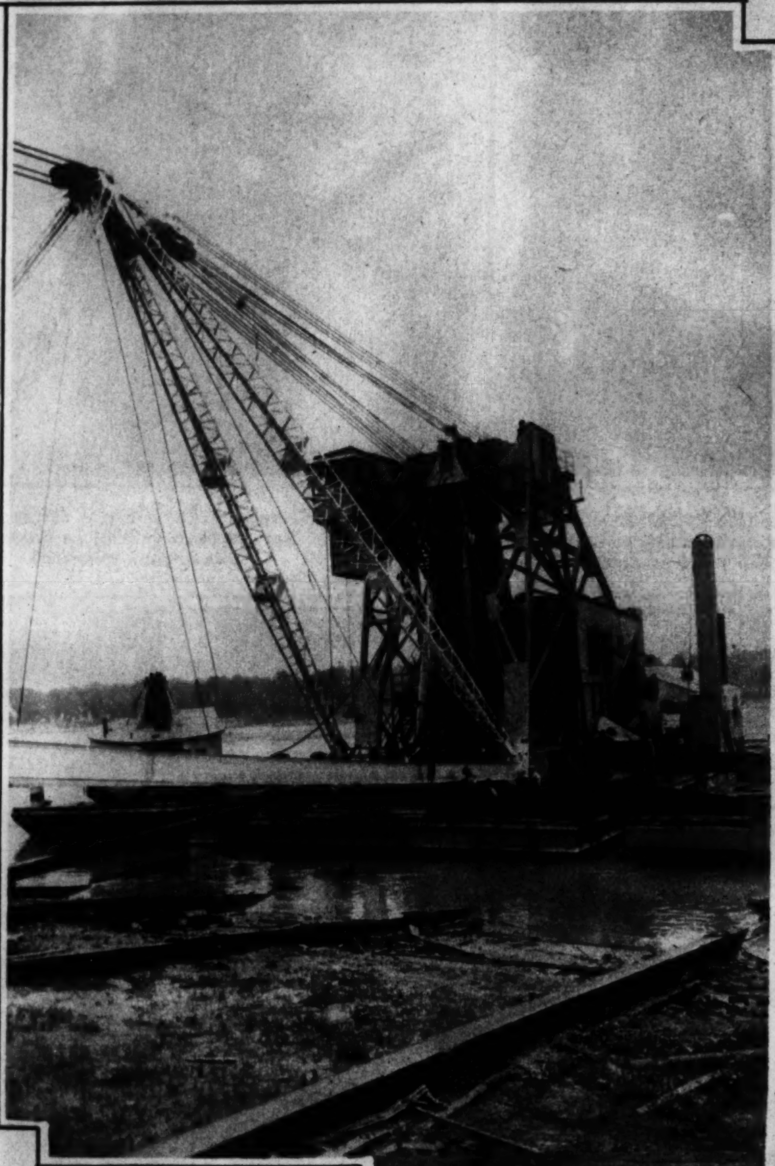


A towboat dwarfed by the huge boom, nudges the floting power-house into the Mississippi at the foot of Davis street to begin the cruise to Belle River (La.) and "the job"—an 18-foot levee, part of the eastern confining wall for the Atchafalaya floodway, through which excess flood waters are to be diverted from the Mississippi for the protection of New Orleans.

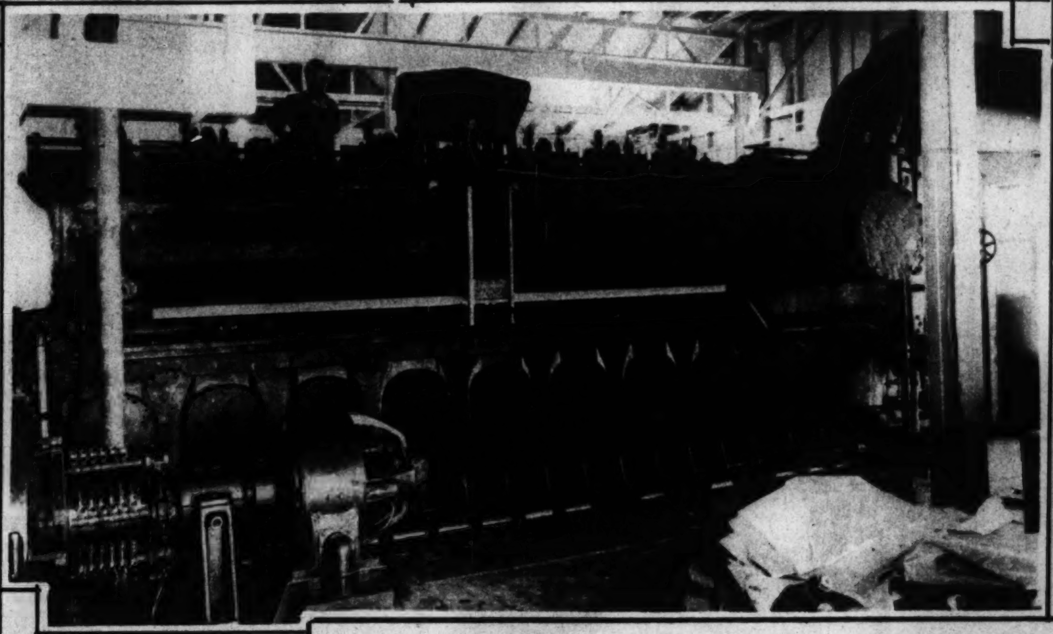


Here one sees the full length of the boom, as it was assembled on the bank at a St. Louis shipbuilding company. Due to engineering and the use of aluminum, it weighs only 20 tons including A-beam and braces. H. J. Sternberg, dredging company president, knows of one other boom as long for similar purposes; that one collapsed.

A 1450-ton, $225,000 floating dredge swinging a six-yard, 15-ton clambshell bucket on a 240-foot boom, built in St. Louis with 1000-horsepower St. Louis-made Diesel engines for levee-building in Lower Louisiana on the Atchafalaya floodway, a major phase of the $325,000,000 Mississippi flood control plan.



A nearer view of the A-beam and the novel steel cone, which was made an integral part of the 150-foot steel hull by electric welding. From its tip the entire weight of boom, bucket, load and counterweights are in effect suspended, placing the center of gravity below the pivotal point.



A view of the St. Louis-built Diesel engines, delivering 1000 horsepower to generators of the electric power which, by remote control in the hands of a single operator, can swing the bucket to the opposite point of a 500-foot circle and back again in one minute — the bucket averaging about 20 miles an hour.

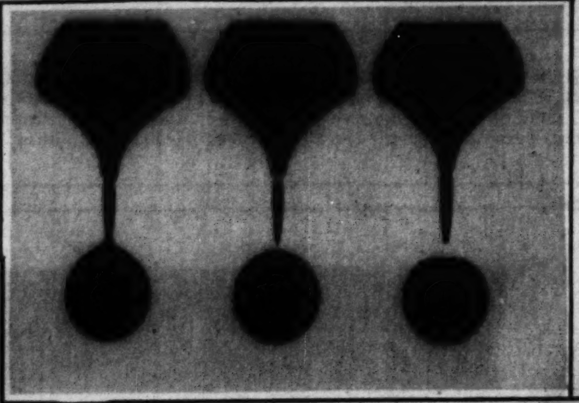
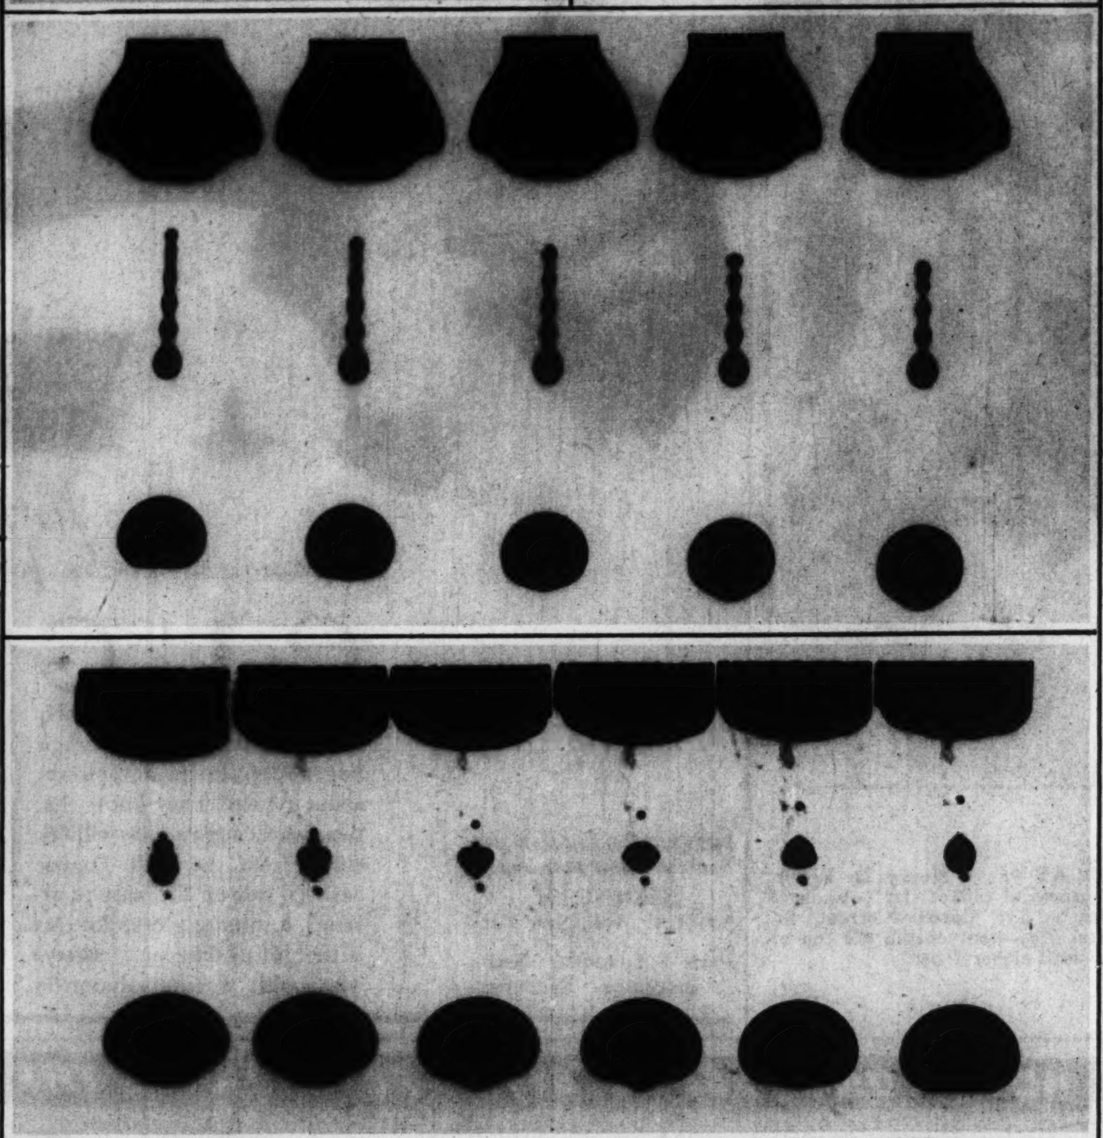
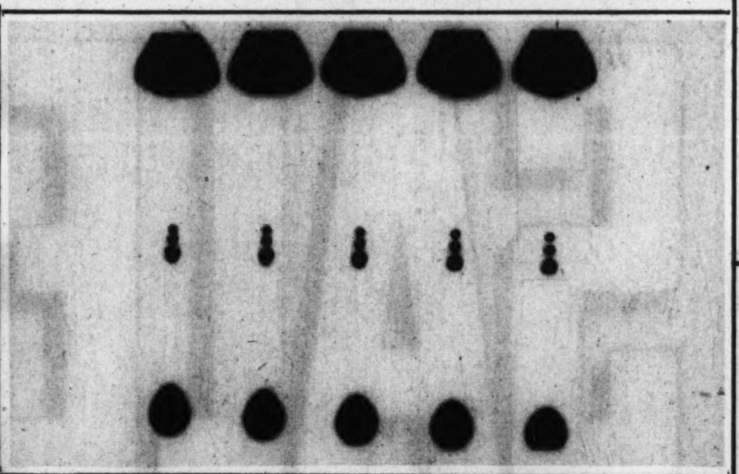
HIGH-SPEED SNAPSHOTS of LIQUID DROPS

Actual photographs at 1200 a second by the Massachusetts Institute of Technology high-speed camera.

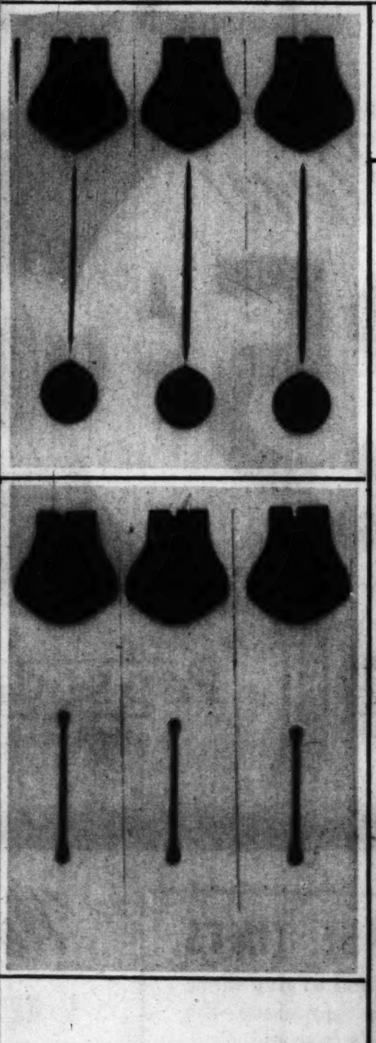




Three stages in the formation of a drop of liquid are shown above. Note the stem breaking off in the upper picture and beginning to coalesce in the second for the formation of an extra drop—or drops—in the third. The photographs, selected from a new scientific moving picture presented in the Thirteenth Colloid Symposium of the American Chemical Society recently at Washington University, are reproduced by the Sunday Post-Dispatch through the courtesy of Prof. E. A. Hauser, famous Austrian scientist, who directed the work at M. I. T.



A stage in the formation of a drop of a highly volatile liquid of low surface tension. Note the multiplicity of drops and the contrast to the two pictures below.



Two stages in the formation of a drop of a highly viscous liquid. Note the long, tenacious stem and the dumb-bell shape in the lower picture, where the stem seems about to part just below the secondary drop. The pictures were made by Dr. Hauser and his collaborators in the study of surface tension, a major factor in the efficiency of soaps, lubricating oils and some medicinals.

How to Stop ITCHING TORTURE In Minutes

ANY WHERE ON BODY

No itch can keep you squirming if you know this secret! Athlete's Foot — poison ivy — rashes — eczema — stop torturing in minutes after you apply HYDROSAL. It's new to you! Contains an active ingredient, used for years by doctors and hospitals, in improved "colloidal" form. Almost instant relief from itching, burning. Astringent, too; actually refines skin. Accepted by Good Housekeeping Bureau. At all druggists, liquid or ointment, 30c or 60c.

Hydrosal

REMOVE SUPERFLUOUS HAIR with the painless, odorless Baby Touch Hair Remover. Used like a powder-puff, it safely removes hair from arms, legs and face. Not a liquid, paste or powder. Makes skin velvety soft and beautiful. Take no chances with substitutes—be sure you get Baby Touch—25c each—or 5 for $1.00—at drug and department stores or mailed direct in plain wrapper. Money refunded if not delighted. Address Baby Touch Hair Remover Co., 2368 Olive St., St. Louis, Mo.

WHY PUT UP WITH WINTER FURNACE TENDING WHEN OIL-O-MATIC COSTS SO LITTLE?

Now everyone can afford OIL-O-MATIC!

Prices reduced 50% in last five years!

New low running cost. No monthly payments till Oct. 1st!

REMEMBER the last bitter winter. Remember those long months of back breaking furnace tending. Mutiny now, while there's time! For our part, we're determined to break down every obstacle which might prevent you from having Williams Oil-O-Matic, the finest heat in the world.

We're offering special terms now, with no monthly payments till October 1st. And wait till you hear for how little you can own an Oil-O-Matic. Do you know, for example, that mass production has reduced prices 50% in five years? Think of it! And—more news! This new Oil-O-Matic is designed to burn the low priced fuel oils and wring every drop of heat from them! What a break for fuel bills!

Get rid of coal shoveling forever. Have clean, noiseless, care-free heat. Williams Oil-O-Matic can be installed in your present heating plant in a few hours. The Summer plan permits installation now under the FHA program. Nothing to pay until Oct. 1, 1936—low interest—12 to 36 months to pay balance. Write or phone us today for a free heating estimate.

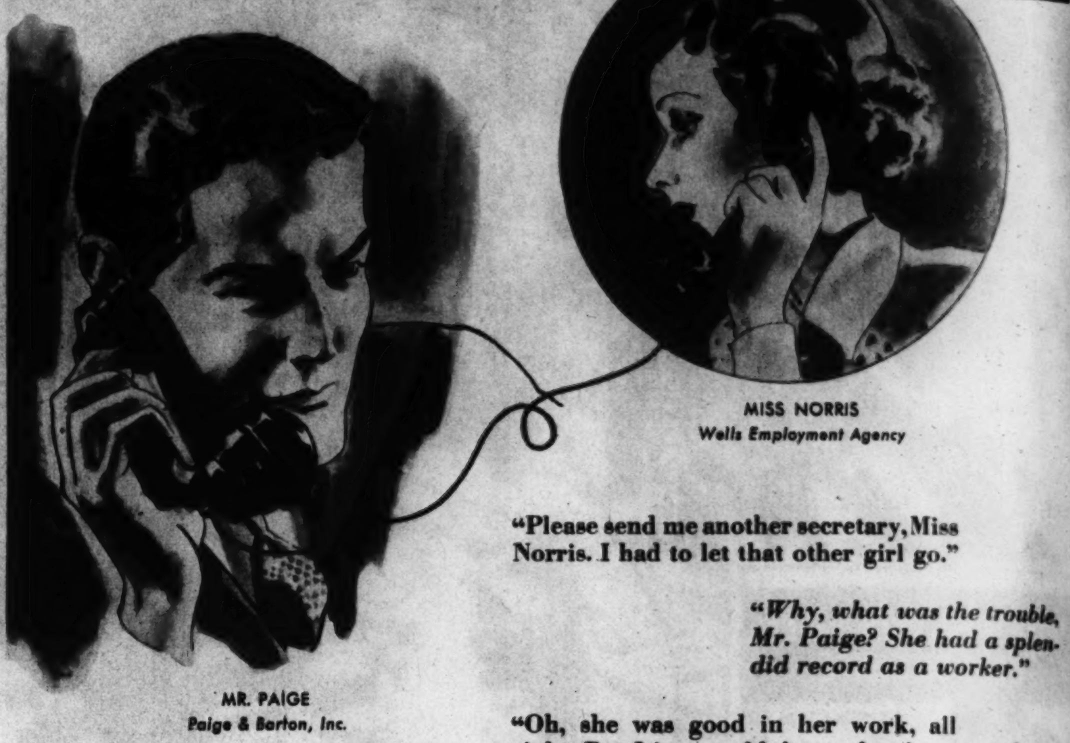
Listen in, GIRLS!



"Please send me another secretary, Miss Norris. I had to let that other girl go."

"Why, what was the trouble, Mr. Paige? She had a splendid record as a worker."

"Oh, she was good in her work, all right. But I just couldn't stand to have her around."

"I'm so sorry."

"And say, buy some Mum for the next girl and charge it to me, will you?"

"I certainly will, Mr. Paige."

THE reason behind many a girl's failure to succeed in her job is not that she isn't smart and capable. It's just because she's careless and neglectful about one personal thing.

Underarm perspiration odor is an annoyance men will not tolerate in a girl, either in the office or in social life.

Why should they tolerate it, when it is so easy to avoid—with Mum!

Half a minute is all it takes to use Mum. A quick fingertipful under each arm—and you're safe for the whole busy day.

If you forget to use Mum before you dress, use it afterwards. It's harmless to clothing, you know. And it's so soothing to the skin, you can use it right after shaving the underarms.

Mum does just what you want it to do. It prevents the disagreeable odor of perspiration, and not the perspiration itself.

Remember, a fresh daintiness of person, free from the slightest trace of ugly odor, is something without which no girl can hope to succeed. Make sure of it with Mum! Bristol-Myers, Inc., 630 Fifth Ave., New York.

MUM TAKES THE ODOR OUT OF PERSPIRATION

ANOTHER USE FOR MUM is on sanitary napkins. Enjoy the relief and freedom from worry about this source of unpleasantness, which Mum affords.

Menthol Cooled CIGARETTES

● To most people, "cigarette breath" is offensive. Don't take a chance of offending that way—switch to SPUDS. Even if you smoke a lot, they'll keep your breath sweet—and they're the only cigarettes that will. The reason is purifying menthol, added by a patented process to SPUDS' better blend of superb tobaccos. That means a grand smoke. And never a hint of "cigarette breath."

TELEDIAL IS HERE!
(PATENT PENDING)
SEE AND HEAR THIS NEW RADIO SENSATION AT YOUR GRUNOW DEALERS!

WE'RE GETTING STATIONS 2,000 MILES AWAY—WITH ONE FLIP OF THE FINGER!

NOT A SOUND BETWEEN STATIONS!
EACH STATION COMES IN TUNED TO A HAIR!

15 STATIONS IN 15 SECONDS—Any 15 stations—local or distant! Stop watch tests show TELEDIAL secures all 15 stations in time required to satisfactorily tune in a single station by usual method.

COMPLETELY SILENT TUNING—Finger touch on TELEDIAL tunes out station you wish to leave, instantly. No noise from intervening stations. No more ear-rasping squawks—thumps—howls.

TELEDIAL is here! Again Grunow scoops the radio world. Automatic radio tuning has arrived!

And along with TELEDIAL, Grunow presents for 1937 a whole series of radio advancements almost equally sensational. Until now, no ear has heard all the beauty on the air. But today you can hear utterly pure tone. Reproduced with new fidelity through the new Tone-Tested Resonator! Freed at last from distorting "cabinet resonance" by the exclusive new Grunow "Violin-shape" cabinet design!

Visit your Grunow dealer's store. He will show you qualities in radio reception you never knew existed. Today!

GRUNOW "FIRSTS"
Major radio accomplishments which stand to the credit of Wm. C. Grunow and his engineering staff:
1923—First to span Atlantic with short wave signal (by Commander F. H. Schnell, U. S. N. R., now Grunow engineer).
1925—First to develop "B" eliminator.
1927—First to engineer complete A C radio unit with dynamic speaker combined in one cabinet.
1933—First to build successful production All-Wave radio.
1933—First to develop automatic antenna tuning device now used by all radio manufacturers.
And in 1936—"First" with TELEDIAL and revolutionary "violin-shaped" tone chamber.

HELLMANN'S
MAYONNAISE

LOOK, DADDY, I MADE IT ALL BY MYSELF!

And I used Real Mayonnaise just as Mummy told me to

AND WHEN DADDY TASTED IT, HE SAID:

"NOW, that's what I call a real man's salad. Those ordinary dressings sure can't compare with Hellmann's Real Mayonnaise. Boy! It's got a swell, rich flavor and creamy goodness that no other dressings can come close to!"

You're right, Mister! And the reason is simply this: Hellmann's is made differently. It is all mayonnaise — made only from the choicest ingredients . . . fine salad oil, freshly broken eggs, specially selected vinegar and imported spices. Nothing else. No starchy fillers. And it is double-whipped for its famous creamy smoothness.

No wonder Hellmann's makes salads taste ever so much more delicious! Yet it costs but a trifle per salad. Get a jar of Hellmann's Real Mayonnaise tomorrow!

JULY 4TH DRUM SALAD—2 cups fresh strawberries, hulled and sliced; ½ cup sugar; 1 package Strawberry Jell-O; 1 cup hot water; 1 teaspoon vinegar; ¼ teaspoon salt; ¾ cup strawberry juice; Hellmann's Real Mayonnaise.

Combine strawberries and sugar and let stand 10 minutes. Drain. Dissolve Strawberry Jell-O, pour over berries. Add vinegar, salt, strawberry juice. Turn into straight-sided 3" (diameter) glasses and fill 2 inches. Chill until firm. Unmold on crisp lettuce. Make design of a drum on top, bottom and sides of mold by forcing Hellmann's Real Mayonnaise through a pastry tube. Place 2 tan, sugar-candy sticks (or cheese sticks) on top of drum for drum sticks. Serve with Hellmann's Reel Mayonnaise.

SO GOOD FOR GROWING CHILDREN

Mothers! Let the youngsters have all the Hellmann's Real Mayonnaise they want. It is so good for them . . . easy to digest, and rich in food elements that build sturdy bodies. Children love it . . . plain, as a spread for bread . . . or, blended with other ingredients to make tempting sandwiches.

WHAT DELICIOUS VARIATIONS YOU CAN MAKE WITH HELLMANN'S!

Because Hellmann's is real mayonnaise you can vary it in many delicious ways to suit any salad you serve. It is so much richer, creamier . . . so much more full-bodied that it blends perfectly with milk or cream, fruit juices, chopped pickles . . . or with literally dozens of other delicious ingredients. But remember—you can do this successfully only with real mayonnaise—Hellmann's.

SPECIAL PICNIC SANDWICHES MADE WITH HELLMANN'S

Hellmann's Real Mayonnaise is an ideal base for making sandwich fillers. Here are two examples . . . special for picnics.

PEANUT BUTTER AND ONION—Blend ¼ cup Hellmann's with 1 cup beaten peanut butter. Spread on bread, top with onion slices.

DEVILED EGG AND HAM—Blend thoroughly ¼ cup Hellmann's; 2 finely chopped hard-boiled eggs; ½ cup deviled ham and 4 tablespoons diced Fanning's Bread and Butter Pickles. Spread on bread.

THE DEATH BATTERY OR HOW MELVIN PURVIS CAPTURED THE GARSON JAIL-BREAKERS

The Sun
BIG JAILBREA

AN INSIDE STORY OF MELVIN PURVIS
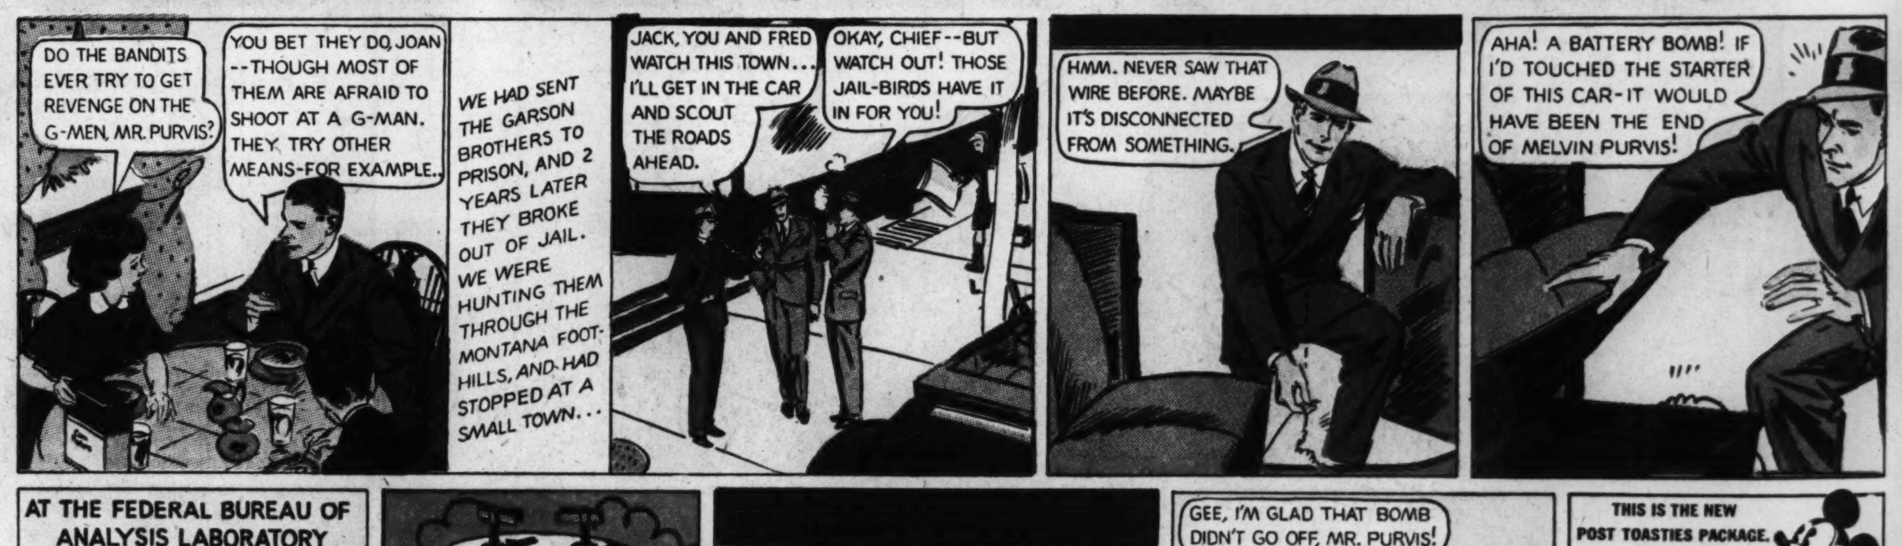
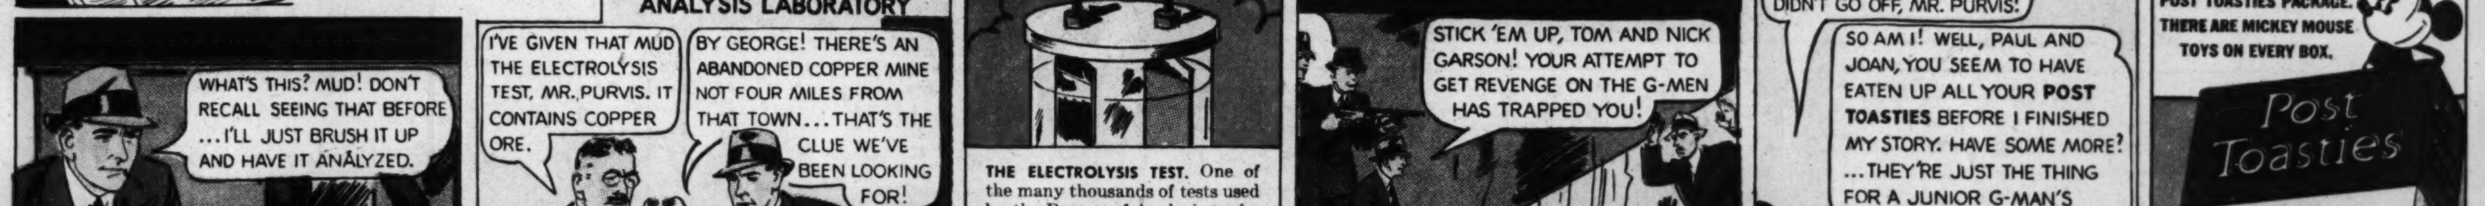
AMERICA'S NUMBER-1 G-MAN

MELVIN PURVIS, the young lawyer who became ace G-Man, who directed the capture of Dillinger, "Pretty Boy" Floyd, "Baby Face" Nelson, and many other public enemies. Mr. Purvis reveals here the story and methods used in capturing desperate criminals. Names of places, and the characters involved have, of course, been changed. This inside story is herewith published as clinching proof that CRIME DOES NOT PAY!



DO THE BANDITS EVER TRY TO GET REVENGE ON THE G-MEN, MR. PURVIS?
YOU BET THEY DO, JOAN --THOUGH MOST OF THEM ARE AFRAID TO SHOOT AT A G-MAN. THEY TRY OTHER MEANS-FOR EXAMPLE..
WE HAD SENT THE GARSON BROTHERS TO PRISON, AND 2 YEARS LATER THEY BROKE OUT OF JAIL. WE WERE HUNTING THEM THROUGH THE MONTANA FOOT-HILLS, AND HAD STOPPED AT A SMALL TOWN...
JACK, YOU AND FRED WATCH THIS TOWN... I'LL GET IN THE CAR AND SCOUT THE ROADS AHEAD.
OKAY, CHIEF--BUT WATCH OUT! THOSE JAIL-BIRDS HAVE IT IN FOR YOU!
HMM. NEVER SAW THAT WIRE BEFORE. MAYBE IT'S DISCONNECTED FROM SOMETHING.
AHA! A BATTERY BOMB! IF I'D TOUCHED THE STARTER OF THIS CAR-IT WOULD HAVE BEEN THE END OF MELVIN PURVIS!



WHAT'S THIS? MUD! DON'T RECALL SEEING THAT BEFORE ...I'LL JUST BRUSH IT UP AND HAVE IT ANALYZED.
AT THE FEDERAL BUREAU OF ANALYSIS LABORATORY
I'VE GIVEN THAT MUD THE ELECTROLYSIS TEST, MR. PURVIS. IT CONTAINS COPPER ORE.
BY GEORGE! THERE'S AN ABANDONED COPPER MINE NOT FOUR MILES FROM THAT TOWN...THAT'S THE CLUE WE'VE BEEN LOOKING FOR!
STICK 'EM UP, TOM AND NICK GARSON! YOUR ATTEMPT TO GET REVENGE ON THE G-MEN HAS TRAPPED YOU!
GEE, I'M GLAD THAT BOMB DIDN'T GO OFF, MR. PURVIS!
SO AM I! WELL, PAUL AND JOAN, YOU SEEM TO HAVE EATEN UP ALL YOUR POST TOASTIES BEFORE I FINISHED MY STORY. HAVE SOME MORE? ...THEY'RE JUST THE THING FOR A JUNIOR G-MAN'S BREAKFAST YOU KNOW!
YOU BET! THEY SURE DO TASTE GOOD!
THIS IS THE NEW POST TOASTIES PACKAGE. THERE ARE MICKEY MOUSE TOYS ON EVERY BOX.

THE ELECTROLYSIS TEST. One of the many thousands of tests used by the Bureau of Analysis to determine the composition of substances brought in to be analyzed. Some of the mud Melvin Purvis brought in was placed in solution in this beaker, and then an electric current was passed through it. The copper ore in the mud was revealed* when it was deposited on one of the metal plates connecting with the electric wire.

"Post Toasties—that's the clue to better breakfasts!" says MELVIN PURVIS

"BOYS and GIRLS, take a tip from me—have a big bowl of crisp, crunchy Post Toasties with luscious, ripe fruits and berries!" says Melvin Purvis.

"I know you'll like them—every spoonful! Post Toasties, the better corn flakes, are made from the sweet, tender little hearts of the corn . . . where most of the flavor is stored. And every golden-brown flake is toasted double crisp, so it will keep its crunchy goodness longer in milk or cream."

You bet Melvin Purvis knows the secret of better breakfasts! And John Cavanaugh, 14, of 35 St. Nicholas Terrace, New York City, is one of the thousands of youngsters who agree with him. He's a member of the Junior G-Man Corps and he says: "Every morning I have Post Toasties for breakfast. Mom says they are good for me and I can have them any time of the day. I sometimes have them after I come home from school."

WISH THE ARRESTING BUSINESS WOULD PICK UP-I'VE BEEN SAFETY COMMISSIONER ALMOST A WEEK-
IF THAT'S SOME OF THE KIDS SWIMMING AGAINST ORDERS, THIS IS MY BIG CHANCE!
IN HERE, GUYS-I JUST SAW JOE STERLING, THE SAFETY COMMISSIONER!
HE'S GOT IT IN FOR US, ANYWAY-WE DIDN'T VOTE FOR HIM
NO SIGN OF ANYONE-I'LL JUST TAKE A LOOK AROUND, THOUGH-
OH HO! THEIR CLOTHES-BUT WE ALL DRESS ALIKE HERE-HOW CAN I TELL-? I KNOW!
I FIGURED THEY'D HAVE TO COME OUT OF THE WATER AND I'D JUST WAIT WHERE THEIR CLOTHES ARE PILED GREAT WORK, COMMISSIONER-THAT'S USING THE OLD BEAN!
THEY CAN'T FOOL THE OL' COMMISSIONER, CAN THEY, JOE?
I'M TOO SMART FOR 'EM, COACH-TOO SMART FOR 'EM!
WE'RE GUILTY!
YOU'RE TELLIN' ME?
COMMISSIONER STERLING WILL PRESCRIBE THE PENALTY, BOYS
FOLLOW ME, YOU GUYS!
PS-S-ST-THAT KNIFE YOU LIKE SO WELL, JOE-IT'S YOURS
B-10 DEPEW
AND WHEN YOU FINISH THIS FLOOR, THERE ARE SEVEN MORE-AND THE GUY WHO OFFERED ME THE KNIFE DOES ONE ALL ALONE!
GIVE BRANT A RING AT HIS BOYS CAMP-THE WIND MAY CHANGE ANY MINUTE!

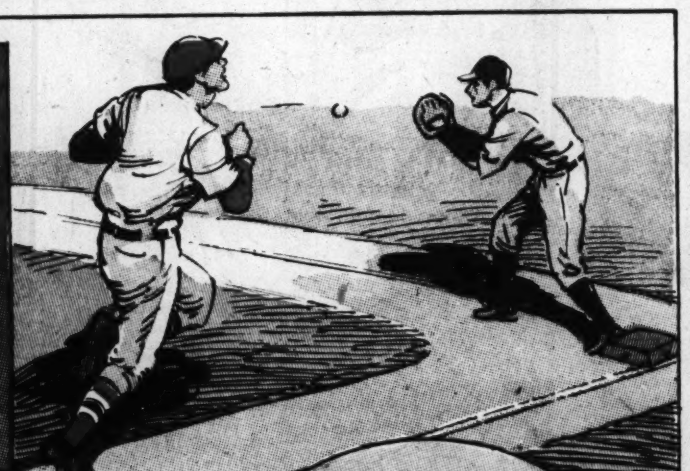
Game

The Brooklyn - Boston game at Boston May 1, 1920, starts out normally. When Cadore of Brooklyn is thrown out here in the fifth inning nobody has any idea that this is to be one one of 43 putouts First-baseman Holke of Boston will get today.



Brooklyn is leading in the sixth but Cruise of Boston bangs out a screeching triple and races across the plate a few moments later with the tying run.

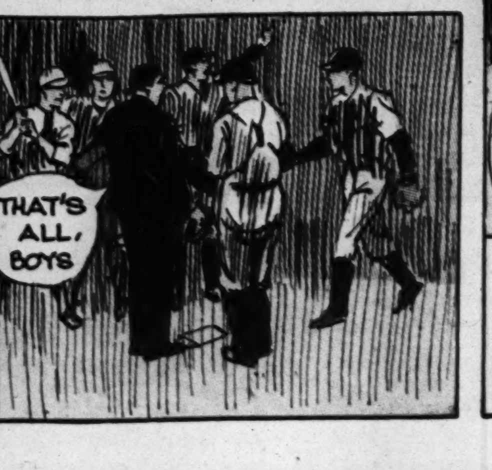
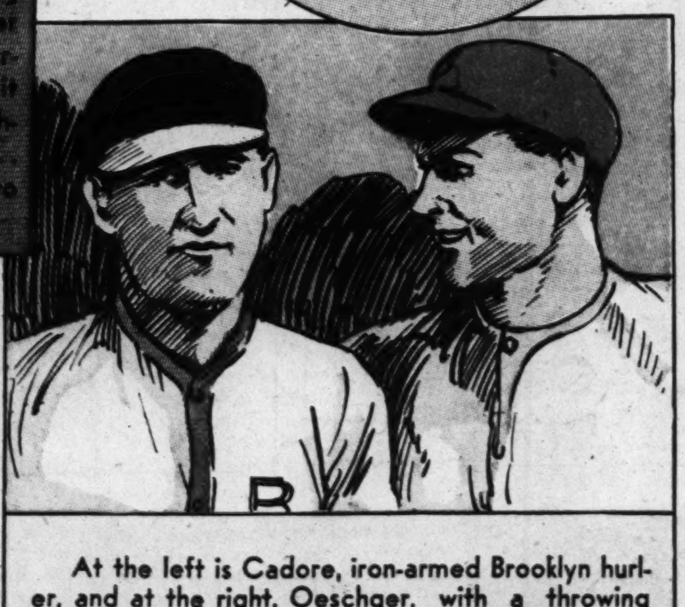
BETTER ROLL UP IN A BLANKET-THIS MAY LAST ALL NIGHT!

The teams play out the first nine innings—there's no more scoring . . . They play another nine—and still no scoring . . . And through it all both starting pitchers blaze the ball in . . . And they go on—into the third nine innings!

The ball is scarcely visible in the gloaming when the umpires call the game because of darkness at the end of TWENTY - SIX INNINGS! And the score is 1 to 1!



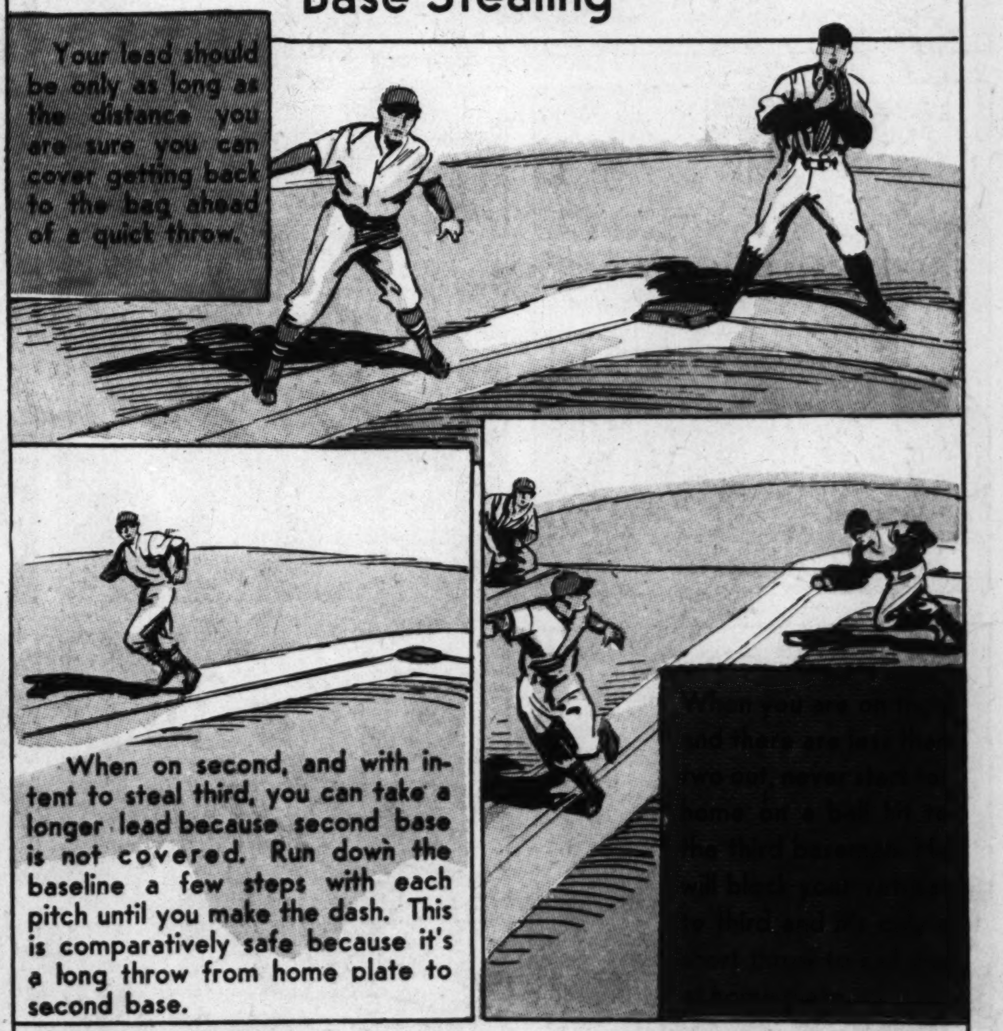
THAT'S ALL, BOYS



At the left is Cadore, iron-armed Brooklyn hurler, and at the right, Oeschger, with a throwing arm like a rawhide whip, who started and finished that unbelievable contest.

Baseball . . . . By NED BRANT

Base Stealing



Your lead should be only as long as the distance you are sure you can cover getting back to the bag ahead of a quick throw.

When on second, and with intent to steal third, you can take a longer lead because second base is not covered. Run down the baseline a few steps with each pitch until you make the dash. This is comparatively safe because it's a long throw from home plate to second base.

When you are on [illegible] and there are less [illegible] two out, never steal [illegible] home on a ball hit to the third baseman [illegible] will block your [illegible] to third and [illegible]

DAN NEVER DREAMED BAD BREATH WAS TO BLAME . . .
BUT FOR MONTHS HE TRAVELLED IN CIRCLES WITH FAILURE AT HIS HEELS
YES, DAN, YOU HAVE BAD BREATH. AND MOST BAD BREATH COMES FROM FOOD PARTICLES IN HIDDEN CREVICES BETWEEN IMPROPERLY CLEANED TEETH. I ADVISE COLGATE DENTAL CREAM BECAUSE ITS SPECIAL PENETRATING FOAM REMOVES THESE ODOR-BREEDING DEPOSITS.
NO OTHER TOOTHPASTE EVER MADE MY TEETH SO BRIGHT AND CLEAN!

Dentists warn : Most Bad Breath Begins with the Teeth!

Read How Colgate Dental Cream Protects You!

WHY let bad breath interfere with romance—success—happiness? It's so simple to be safe when you realize that the most common cause of bad breath is improperly cleaned teeth!

Dental authorities point out that decaying food deposits, lodged in the hidden crevices between the teeth, are by far the most common source of unpleasant mouth odors—of dull, dingy teeth—and of much tooth decay.

Ordinary cleaning methods, which merely polish exposed surfaces, fail to remove these deposits. Use Colgate Dental Cream. It has a special penetrating foam that gets into every tiny crevice—emulsifies and washes away the food and acid deposits that cause bad breath.

And at the same time, Colgate's soft, safe polishing agent gently yet thoroughly cleans and brightens the enamel—makes your teeth sparkle.

So brush your teeth, gums and tongue at least twice daily with Colgate Dental Cream and have cleaner, brighter teeth and a sweeter, purer breath! If not entirely satisfied after using one tube, send the empty tube to COLGATE, Jersey City, N. J. We will refund TWICE what you paid.
